It must be admitted that in none of these states, with the possible exception of parts of Tennessee and Oklahoma, is the way made easy for a Negro to vote. Judicial boards of registrars, qualifying laws which theoretically apply to white and colored alike, and other laws covering the ballot are interpreted against him. The rural counties have relatively few who wish to vote and by making the registration books difficult to reach that number is cut down. Nevertheless, the Negro now votes in some numbers in the primaries in all but three states in the Union—Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina. Court tests are in the making in two of those states.

County Unit Georgia's eventual position is not clear. Apparently there is not now any great desire to call a legislative session, although sentiment for one may be developed.

What holds back most of those who are not in favor of a special session seems to be one of three reasons or a combination of them. They are:

An unwillingness to abolish the county unit system, which would have to be done if the primary laws are repealed.

A belief that the trend of courts and opinion cannot be halted and that any legislation would be a stop-gap job. Also—and this sound idea is gaining—to accept the court ruling but to set up literacy standards and apply them to all voters alike.

And, thirdly, that since the Negro was called on to fight in the war, is required to pay taxes, he should be allowed to vote in the primaries or elections which select the officials who will govern him.

Admittedly this third reason is not often advanced, but it is in the minds of more persons than ever before because of the war.

The county unit system is the chief reason for a holding back from legislation which would abolish all the primary laws.

The county unit system is an effectual check on the influence of large city populations. This is painful to a person with majority beliefs, but it is a fact. As long as the county unit system is a part of the election laws of the State the rural counties will dominate politics. When it goes the cities take over.

The CIO The growing strength of the CIO bloc, largely an urban strength, is another reason why the rural county leaders have not as yet hurried into a special session. With the CIO already proclaiming its determination to enter politics in Georgia in an aggressive manner, the rural counties are not eager, apparently, to enter any plan which would abolish the county unit system and substitute for it a party declaration without legal standing.

Georgia

It is perfectly true that a white primary could be set up, as its proponents claim. It is perfectly all right to establish a party in which only those with red hair or blue eyes may vote; one in which only Masons or Catholics may vote, and so on.

The federal court steps in, on complaint, only when these primaries produce, year after year, the usually unopposed officials in the regular election. Should a white primary be established, free of all State connections, it would inevitably disintegrate or be subject to court action were it successful as the old white primary was.

With only three states left in which the courts have not opened the way to Negro participation, most of the counties seem to take the attitude that the court will be obeyed but that "they can handle it."

Meanwhile, the discussion has brought about the largest registration in history. Ninety percent of it is white registration.

Democracy for Georgia

New Republic New York, N. Y.

The Supreme Court has made its expected decision upholding the right of Negroes to vote in the Democratic primaries in Georgia. It could have made no other. Two years ago the Court ruled that Texas Negroes could not be barred legally from voting. This case was on exactly the same principles. The Court did not even see fit to deliver a decision. It merely refused to review a lower-court ruling that a Georgia statute limiting primary voting to whites violated the Fifteenth Amendment.

Mon 4-8-46

What is amazing is the blatant bigotry of the Georgia election officials who made the appeal. They placed the issue of white supremacy squarely before the Court, asking it to rule "on the right to confine the right of suffrage in primaries to white citizens." From one point of view, it is fortunate that they did not seek to confuse the issue. The Court's decision is so clear that it is hard to see how Georgia can do anything but comply.

Bars To Negro Vote Falling

By V. W. HODGES

Slowly but surely, the barriers to the participation of Negroes in the political life of the state are being removed one by one. The age limit has been lowered from 21 to 18. The poll tax is no longer required. Unlike our neighbor Alabama, Negroes in Georgia are not required to submit to the gruelling tactics of a vote test or examination before being accepted on the Registrars' book. And now with the affirmation of Judge T. Hoyt Davis' decision by the New Orleans Appellate Court upholding the right of Negroes to vote in all elections without regards to race and color, there is no good reason why we should not chalk up between 100,000 to 150,000 registered Negroes between now and early Summer. The road is open and the responsibility on Negro leadership is inescapable.

There can scarcely be any doubt as to the binding effect of the New Orleans decision opening the primary to Negroes. Broadly interpreted as it is the decision not only permits Negroes to vote in general elections but in ALL elections federal, state and municipal. That the decision will be appealed, has already been indicated. However, responsible authorites agree that the decision will be ultimately confirmed.

There is also some talk of summoning the Georgia Legislature back in session to repeal the Neil Laws with reference to the primary. Regardless to the action which may be taken to attempt to circumvent the ruling, it is fairly well established now that Negroes in Georgia will vote in the approaching September primary. And this despite news stories announcing the presence in Washington last week of Georgia House Speaker Roy V. Harris and Charles Bloch, President, Georgia Bar and chief defense lawyer in the primary case, ostensibly to seek an appeal hearing before the United States Supreme Court.

WHITE PRESS IN ACCORD

The splendid reception and endorsement given the decision by Georgia newspapers, both rural and urban, foreshadows a new determination on the part of responsible white leadership in the state that the integrity of the law shall be upheld and the Negroes shall be accorded their rights as citizens.

THE ATLANTA JOURNAL — continuing its stand on the franchise for Negroes, said in an editorial entitled "An Expected Decision," "Primus King, a Negro of Columbus, has won his second and probably final round of his legal fight to vote in Georgia primary elections . . . King's case was argued in the first instance by white attorneys, Georgian born and bred, that Negro Citizens who profess to be Democrats, cannot legally be excluded from Democratic primaries. The opinion of the appellate court, sustaining Judge Davis' ruling, was written by Judge Samuel H. Sibley, of Marietta, Georgian born and bred. There can be no charge, therefore, that Georgia is being afflicted with carpet-bag government or that the law is being laid down by outsiders unmindful of our traditions and our ideals."

THE COLUMBUS LEDGER-ENQUIRER—in a second editorial endorsing the right of Negroes to vote—said: "Since we have felt for some time that qualified Georgia Negroes have every moral right to participate in Democratic primaries we are neither surprised nor alarmed at the unanimous opinion of the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in the case of Primus E. King . . . The truth is that the law of the thing is settled."

THE CLAXTON ENTERPRISE: "Of the late we have wondered if it would not be a good idea to permit the Negroes to vote. Perhaps this would insure that the whites would take full advantage of their right to express their judgement."

TIFTON, GA. GAZETT: In an editorial anticipating the court's ruling, said: "It is doubtful that the courts will sustain an exclusively white primary of any kind Further, that might not be the best approach to the problem. If the white people of Georgia are afraid that Negroes will become the determining factor in our elections, it might be that the real solution would be the federal courts already have ruled on the question. And suggesting more voters over the state in order to insure victory against which Talmadge, Atlanta Journal column poll 130,000 votes cast of the cities. And that means under ist Mogan Blake, said: "Let's assume for the sake of argument that Talmadge got about 130,000 votes. He might get the county unit vote system that sume for the state and Arnall got 50,000 votes. Well, where does that leave Governor Eugene Talmadge will most certainly win that the vote numerically in this state? system of centering his campaign in the small rural counties will be uprooted."

WHOSE MOVE NOW

We repeat, there are relatively no obstacles in the path of Negroes to get themselves registered in Georgia today. Whether the Negro leadership in the rural and urban communities will take advantage of this opportunity and urge Negroes to register, remain to be seen. As things stand today, nothing of any exceptional note is being reported, if we should omit Brunswick, Atlanta and possibly Athens and Valdosta. They can no longer sit around in barbershops and cuss the way Talmadge goes on. There is a cure for that: Get qualified Negroes to register. Otherwise, they will have a right to be left alone to stew in their own juice of indifference.

Better World

Atlanta Constitution

Editor Constitution: I want to commend the writer L. Mitchell Johnson of Atlanta, on the letter written 17 April, 1946 in the Pulse of the Public column of the editorial page—subject: "Negro Vote." Personally, I don't think it's any Negro voters' aim to clamor for social equality. The general idea, I think, is to have equal opportunity on the basis of moral character, education and qualifications, and if the majority of the people looked at the situation in an unprejudiced and unbiased way, the whole world would be a better place for us all in which to live.

Negro Vote In Georgia Studied By Politicians

Courier-Journal

By HENRY LESESNE.

Brunswick, Ga., March 24 (AP)—The nearest thing to mass suffrage—white and black—in the Deep South has come out of this county, steeped in Southern tradition since colonial days.

Louisville, Ky.

It has resulted in a political upheaval but does not answer what is on the politicians' minds: How will the Negro, flushed with his newly won right, vote?

In the border states, where Negro participation in the Democratic primary is accepted as a matter of course, the Negro has voted—or neglected to vote—just about as white people do.

But what happened last week in the coastal county of Glynn was the first thing of its kind in the Deep South. Negroes have voted recently in two Georgia municipal primaries but not in great numbers.

Monday

Vote Total Is Tripled.

Ordinarily 2,000 votes is a good turnout in Glynn County, which the last census gave a population of 13,356 whites and 8,564 Negroes.

Yet in the primary last week 2,400 Negroes alone registered and nearly all voted. There were 6,700 whites registered. In all 6,512 votes were cast.

How did this amazing change come about?

Georgia last year repealed its poll tax. It is the only state which permits 18-year-olds to vote. U. S. District and Circuit Courts have said Negroes may vote in Georgia primaries.

Mass Registrations Made.

Virtually alone in the South in its action, the Glynn County Democratic Executive Committee granted a request by a Negro political organization to allow Negroes to vote in the "white primary."

Mass registration of whites and Negroes followed. Georgia law gives tax collectors pretty wide discretion in passing upon qualifications of applicants for registration.

Yet the charge has never been raised here that there was any discrimination against Negroes. "We registered white and black alike," says Tax Commissioner J. M. Exley. "They came in taxicabs, everything. Sometimes there were 50 or more in line."

However, in the neighboring and larger county of Chatham (Savannah), a group of Negroes a few days ago filed suit charging discriminatory methods of registering Negroes—a charge which officials denied.

Effect of Vote Not Known.

The Glynn County election resulted in the ousting of seven County commissioners.

There is no way of knowing definitely how the Negroes voted. Whites and Negroes voted in the same booths. Once separate booths were considered but it was decided this would be unfair.

The request for Negro voting was made by a local Negro political organization, the Progressive Democratic League. Its president, John Robinson, a Negro who runs a wood yard here, says his organization supported the defeated commissioners.

"We spent a lot of our money and we worked hard to get members of our race to vote intelligently and sincerely," he says.

War Workers Blamed.

One of the defeated commissioners, declining to be mentioned by name, blamed his defeat not so much on the Negro vote as on the vote of war workers who have remained in this "war-boom" town.

Politicians view the "Glynn experiment" with a weather eye. The Governor's race is coming up this fall. Other Deep South states have poll taxes or other voting restrictions.

Georgia's neighbor, South Carolina, has got around the Supreme Court decision that Negroes can vote in primaries by the expedient of stripping all laws relating to primaries from its statute books, and leaving the primaries unregulated.

A movement in the same direction in Georgia was halted by the general acceptance of the opinion that it would mean the scuttling of the county unit system of voting by which small rural counties control politics.

Primary Ballot Seen for Negro In Many Counties

Atlanta Constitution

Indications that many counties are planning to permit Negroes to vote in Democratic primaries without excitement were seen yesterday, as political leaders predicted the Georgia legislature would not meet in special session and that the Muscogee Democratic committee would lose any appeal it might make to the United States supreme court to ban the Negro.

Atlanta, Ga.

Telephone communication with political leaders in several rural counties revealed that these areas were not greatly excited over the coming of the Negro vote.

Nearly all the counties that have held primaries since Federal Judge T. Hoyt Davis, of Macon, ruled that the Negro is entitled to cast a ballot in the primary have permitted Negroes to vote. Bulloch county last week stopped the Negroes from voting, after many Negroes had started casting ballots.

Sun. 3-10-46

Glynn county will permit the Negroes to vote in its primary March 20. The Brunswick News says, however, that the Negro is on trial in that county. If Negro votes are sold again, as they were at one time, some way possible will be found to deny Negroes the ballot box in primaries in Glynn county, the paper warns.

Negroes voted in city primaries in Valdosta and Athens, without incident.

Leading lawyers yesterday pointed out that any election manager who refuses a Negro the right to vote because of color is laying himself open to criminal prosecution, since the federal courts already have ruled on the question.

Attorneys for the Muscogee committee will meet with Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook Monday or Tuesday to decide whether they wish to appeal the fifth circuit court of appeals decision to the United States supreme court. The attorney general entered the case as a friend of the court, arguing that the state is not involved in party affairs. The state Democratic committee has not become involved in the case.

Sun. 3-10-46

Several attorneys and party officials, who would not be quoted, said that the legislature could do nothing to circumvent the federal court's decision. Any effort on the part of the legislature to repeal primary laws would leave the county unit system of election in the hands of a committee, without any state supervision. They feared this would mean the end of the county unit system, and rule of Georgia by the big-city counties.

Tom Linder, commissioner of agriculture, meanwhile has suggested that the state repeal the Neill primary act and substitute for it a "poll of public opinion" under which any group could conduct a "poll" among those of its choosing. He suggested that under the setup, the county unit system of voting be retained.

Suffrage

Atlanta Constitution

Editor Constitution: Except for Federal Court decisions, under Georgia Law no colored man in Georgia can be a Democrat and no white man in Georgia can be anything else but a Democrat.

As one who has been a duress Democrat for several years by operation of repressive election laws, let me again protest that law of March 1943, requiring the signature of 5 porcent of all registered voters in order to qualify any candidate not a member of the Democratic party.

Atlanta, Ga.

No one has ever confessed authorship or sponsorship of the repressive five per cent election law—and it will be repealed as quietly as it was enacted. It is now obvious that no arbitrary classifications will ever exclude citizens from the basic elections. In this connection many of us voted against the present Constitution of the State of Georgia solely because it did not set up those educational qualifications for suffrage which ordinary foresight would have provided. As it stands now, illiterate paupers (not criminals) have in Georgia equal suffrage with those who have accepted citizenship training in our schools and whose taxed earnings pay for state services.

90 Per Cent Of Negro Registrants Participate

Atlanta Daily World, Ga.

Fri. 3-22-46

BRUNSWICK, Ga.—(SNS)—More than 90 per cent of the 2,400 Negroes registered in Glynn County voted in the democratic primary here Wednesday when all incumbent county commissioners were defeated.

It was the first time that Negroes had voted in the Glynn County primary, results of which heretofore have been tantamount to election. Only about 75 per cent of the 6,700 white registrants voted, officials disclosed. About 7,000 votes were cast, the largest in the history of the county.

General trend of Negro voting, according to citizen-observers, probably was indictated in a precinct in Everett City which had 112 Negro and 59 white registrants. This precinct went overwhelmingly for candidates opposing the present administration.

Nineteen candidates, all white, offered for the seven county commission posts.

BASED ON RULING

Right to vote was given Negro registrants by the Glynn County Democratic Executive Committee which decided to comply with the Macon federal court ruling by Judge T. Hoyt Davis that Negroes were entitled to participate in Democratic primaries. Judge Davis' ruling was upheld by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Most Negroes voted in the Brunswick district, which named four of the seven commissioners Whites and Negroes voted together and it was possible to determine the choice of Negroes.

All four incumbents in the Brunswick district were defeated. Nominated were Floyd E. Gressel, and Arthur True, Joe C. Stewart, Sam Levine, Ray W. Whittle, Alton H. Perry and Oscar Nail. Official consolidation of the vote figures showed that W. McD. Harley first reported re-elected, was defeated. An error in tabulation of votes placed Harley in the winning column, but the official count showed the place went to Nail.

APPEAL FAVORED

The Brunswick Progressive Democrats appealed to the county Democratic committee to give Negroes a voice in the county primary several weeks ago. The committee decided in Negroes favor after consideration of the Primus E. King case ruling, and there was general appeal to Negro voters throughout the campaign period.

In upholding Judge Davis' decision that Negroes were entitled to vote in the Democratic primary the Circuit Court of Appeals held in order to preserve white primaries that conducting the primary was an action of the state and that Talmadge and former Governor Eugene denying King the vote violated the fourteenth, fifteenth and seventeenth amendments to the federal constitution. Some Georgia political leaders have suggested that state laws governing Democratic primaries be repealed

Negroes Voting in First Primary In Glynn; 5-6 of Registered Ballot

Thurs. 3-21-46

BRUNSWICK, March 20.—An estimated 5,000 of Glynn county's 9,100 registered voters, including 2,000 Negroes, had voted by 4 p. m. Wednesday in the Democratic primary to nominate seven county commissioners from a field of 19 white candidates.

Negroes were voting in a Democratic primary for the first time. One precinct was predominately Negro and the result of this box was of prime interest. The polls closed at 7 p. m.

Of the 2,400 Negroes registered, approximately 2,000 had voted by 4 p. m., officials estimated.

Voting at all polls has been quiet and orderly, officials said, adding 4,359 ballots had been cast in Brunswick and about 700 in the county.

Another departure in today's primary placed candidates on record before the voting regarding their background and stand on various issues. A voters' committee polled candidates and published their answers. Thurs. 3-21-46

Candidates were asked whether they favored slot machines, pinball games and similar coin-operated games of chance. All 19 said they opposed slot machines and gambling devices. They gave varying answers regarding the best route for the proposed new coastal highway through Brunswick. Other questions dealt with their educational background and whether they had ever held political office.

VOTE IN PRIMARY IS GIVEN NEGROES

Birmingham Ala. Age Herald

ATLANTA, April 1—(AP)—Georgia, a deep South state with a heavy Negro population and no poll tax, was told by the Supreme Court today the minority race can vote in its "white primary" this Fall.

The effect amounted to that when the court declined to review lower Federal Court rulings that Negroes are entitled to vote in the Georgia Democratic primaries—the actual elections. Wed 4-3-46

The Supreme Court gave no reason for its refusal to review the Georgia case, but two years ago, in a similar case from Texas, the court upheld the right of Negroes to vote in the primaries.

In view of the Texas decision, Georgia politicians frankly did not expect the high court to act otherwise; but they wanted the court to rule, one way or the other, before the Fall primaries.

The decision heightened the prospect that Georgia will become the first deep South state with a large Negro population and no poll tax to witness the mass suffrage of Negroes.

Other "black belt" states either have a poll tax or other voting restrictions, or have found a way to get around the decision of the Supreme Court.

Collect From Negroes By Sales Tax--Griffin

Constitution Atlanta, Ga.

Declaring that Negroes should pay their fair share of taxes if they are going to vote, Adj. Gen. Marvin Griffin, candidate for Governor, advocates a sales tax for Georgia. He would abolish the ad valorem tax.

"We have more than three million people in this state," Griffin said yesterday. "Of this number, there are 1,089,000 Negroes who pay little or no taxes. I think it mandatory if we are to provide the necessary funds for education, public health and old-age assistance in Georgia, that we call upon this segment of our population to pay their fair share of the tax burden. Sat 4-20-46

"Most of them are making good wages at this time but there is no way under the present tax system in Georgia to collect anything from them.

"Up to now I have never been an advocate of a sales tax because of the trouble the collection of this tax brings to our merchants, but there is no other source that I see at the present time. Business is already taxed to capacity.

"We should revise our tax system, abrogate the state ad valorem tax except for nonresidents, and levy a sales tax. In my opinion, this will raise the revenue necessary to adequately provide for increased teachers' salaries. It is foolish to speak of increasing teachers' salaries 50 percent and not increase taxes," Griffin said.

Negroes have obtained political rights in this state, but under the present tax system they are not called upon to pay a prorata share of the cost of services rendered to them, the candidate asserted. A person who participates in government should help pay the cost, he concluded. He spoke to the Kiwanis Club at Commerce.

Arnall Decries 'Subterfuge' To Kill Negroes' Voting Rights

By United Press

ATLANTA, April 6.—Gov. Ellis Arnall called on Georgians yesterday to accept the Negroes right to vote and said he would not be a party to a "subterfuge scheme" to prevent Negroes from voting by calling a special session of the Legislature to repeal State primary laws.

"If the members of the Legislature want to assume the responsibility, they have the right," Arnall said. But he predicted that even if the legislators convened themselves, they would not repeal the State's primary laws, which, he pointed out, set up the county unit system which "affords the small counties recognition in state political affairs."

Arnall's statement was issued in reply to demands of House Speaker Roy Harris and Former Gov. Eugene Talmadge that a special session be called to take action to preserve the "white primary."

The U. S. Supreme Court earlier this week refused to review a District Court ruling that Negroes must be permitted to vote in primary elections.

Federal Suit Filed Against County Registrar

Atlanta Daily World

Atlanta, Ga.

Sat. 3-30-46

District Judge Scarlett Sets Hearing April 18

SAVANNAH, Ga., — (SNS) — Determined to remove all discriminatory impediments being lodged in the pathway of Savannah Negroes seeking to qualify as registered voters, a group of local leaders, headed by young Dr. J. W. Jamison, filed a Civil Action suit Thursday, charging the Registrar, John L. Cabell, Chatham County, with employing outmoded and repressive measures as a means of discouraging heavy registration among them.

Specifically, the suit charges that the Registrar has consistently discriminated against Negroes by requiring a personal property tax return prior to registration; that the methods thus employed are "repressive, purely discriminatory, and calculated to discourage legitimate enrollment of Negroes on the Registrar's rolls.

DENIES ALLEGATION

Cabell denies the allegation, stating that applicants are not required to pay any tax at the time but are asked simply to file a tax return on taxable property owned.

Federal District Judge Frank M. Scarlet set a date for the hearing on the request for the injunction and declaratory judgement for April 18.

For many months past, Savannah has been a beehive for registration activities among Negroes. At the recent session of the Legislature a bill, sponored by Senator Grayson of Chatham County, attempted to invalidate the majority of the more than 7,000 Negro voters. Two local organizations, the Savannah NAACP and the A F of L have spearheaded the registration drive.

ANOTHER DETERRENT

Another objective feature of Savannah registration tactics is the presence of a large sign, threatening prosecution of delinquent Negroes. Sat. 3-30-46

The suit seeks also an injunction, restraining the registration officials from displaying these or such other signs which apply only to a certain race or class. In specific terms, it wants the officials to desist from "using any sign or employing any method different from those employed toward white people, and which would have the tendency to hinder, delay, hamper, restrain, repress or in any sense interfere with the free and unhampered right to register as citizens of the United States for participating in the primaries and elections.

Chatman County is, thus far, the only county in the state whose Registrar reportedly has so much as mentioned the educational qualification idea as a possible enforceable requirment for registration although two counties have been said to be still using the unpaid poll tax argument as a means of discouraging Negro registrants.

LET 'EM VOTE

Atlanta Ga. Constitution

(Sparks Eagle)

The White Democratic Primary is outlawed. It should stay that way. Any Negro Democrat, qualified to vote, has the right and should be allowed to vote in any Democratic Primary. We work with them in our homes, farms and factories, and with very rare exceptions in peace and harmony. We can do the same in elections, and if nothing else, it will be an incentive to the white voters to go to the polls and vote in all elections. Mon. 4-22-46

Negroes Registering In Increasingly Large Numbers

Thurs 4-4-46

Judge Frank M. Scarlett is sued a directive yesterday to Tax Collector John L. Cabell for him to show cause in the United States District Court on the morning of April 15 why an order for the inspection of the voters' registration records by a group of Negro citizens should not be granted.

The right for the privilege of inspecting the records was asked in a petition filed by Dr. J. W. Jamerson, Jr. and others who claim that according to the number of Negroes who have registered to vote in Chatham county, there should be upwards of 8,000 Negroes' names on the registration lists whereas Tax Collector Cabell claims there are only about 5,000 on the lists.

The petition also requests Judge Scarlett to set a time and place for inspection of the registration lists, and it further states as no receipt is given to a registrant, it is impossible for him to be positive of his voting status until the day of the election when he presents himself at the polls.

Others who signed the petition, besides Dr. Jamerson, are J. W. McGlockton, J. Q. Jefferson, Dr. H. M. Collier, Jr., Rev. A. C. Curtright, Mrs. Florine Foreman, John Roberts, Willie Nichols, Lorenzo Elleby, Robert Mumford, Thomas Daniel, Fred Hill, Louise Green, Crawford Smith, Mrs. Nancy Elliott and Cyrus Cohen.

A request to examine the registration lists was made by the committee of Negroes in a conference followed a conference with Mr. Cabell last week before last in which he was accused of discriminating against Negroes seeking to register to vote. The daily and concealed use of this privilege, crimination and using repressive tax collector requirements was made by Mr. Jamerson, Jr. and others stating that it was impractical and unfair to the registration officials, and it was stated that the books were in daily and constant use in his office.

On April 18 by Judge Scarlett.

It was set out in the petition filed with Judge Scarlett this week that it is necessary that the records be examined prior to the hearing of the bill in equity now pending against Mr. Cabell.

The petition sent to Judge Scarlett Monday night by Aaron Kravitch, attorney for the Negro group, declared that registration slips should be examined of "thousands of Negroes in Savannah who have been permitted to register" and "whose registration is being questioned" or who have been refused permission to register and which rejection and questioning . . . are alleged by your petitioners to be without legal warrant or authority."

In the meantime, the campaign of the Negro leaders to place 25,000 Negro names on the voters lists of Chatham county has been greatly boosted. For the past two weeks Negroes have been registering at the rate of approximately 125 a day. Thurs 4-4-46

Many civic, religious and business organizations have been throwing their entire weight behind the drive. A number of the leading ministers have accompanied large numbers of their congregations to the registration window at the court house and many civic organizations have registered en masse. All the undertakers have joined in the campaign and have placed their cars at the disposal of the leaders of the drive to carry applicants for registration to and from the court house, free of charge. In addition to this, many business firms are seeing to it that their employees register 100 per cent.

Registration to vote has become the watchword of most of the leading clubs; it is the theme of many a Sunday sermon, and the people as a whole are becoming registration conscious. It is confidentially believed that the goal of 25,000 Negro voters in Chatham county will have been achieved before the registration books in the court house close on July 5.

Time Running Out; Crackers Nervous

Wed 4-3-46

House Speaker Roy Harris, of Augusta, is conducting what amounts to a frantic appeal to keep the ban on Negro voting in Georgia Democratic primaries. He has said he would ask Gov. Arnall to call a special session of the Legislature to repeal primary laws in an effort to get around the federal court decision. He has tried to get members of the General Assembly to agree to convene themselves in special session. He has urged members of the State Democratic Executive Committee to have Chairman Lon Duckworth convene that committee in immediate session. He has written numerous State officials warning them that unless they come out publicly in favor of retaining the white primary they will have opposition in their races this summer.

Harris has had little response to any of his pleas. Legislators are more concerned with keeping the county unit election system than they are in losing the white primary. State officials realize that the reason for Roy's nervousness is his "local problem."

Time is running out on the Cracker Party. The Richmond County Democratic primary is scheduled for April 16, and Harris and other Crackers have strong opposition from indepndents. The registration of Richmond County, usually a closely-controlled figure of the Cracker Party, has been doubled. Three thousand Negroes are registered.

Unless the Legislature and the State Democratic Executive Committee act and act quickly, these 3,000 Negroes will be legally qualified to cast their ballots in Richmond County. Like ex-Gov. Talmadge in his state-wide fears, the Crackers have no doubt how the Negroes will vote, if given an opportunity. With Harris and others saying flatly that the Negroes won't vote, and United States Attorney General Tom Clark saying his agents will enforce the law in Georgia, the Richmond county primary promises to offer Georgia her first test of Negro voting under opposition. Virtually all other counties which have held primaries since Federal Judge Hoyt Davis, of Macon, upheld the right of Negroes to vote have permitted Negroes to cast ballots without any excitement.

While the eyes of the entire State will be on Richmond County and its battle between Crackers and Col. Effingham's raiders, the most interested in this test on machine-control politics and Negro voting is Chatham County, which is one of the State's strongest machine counties. The Savannah newspapers sent a staffer to Augusta to do a story about the independents' uprising. This staffer, a former Augusta newsman, wrote a story favorable to the anti-Crackers. This was surprising, since the Savannah papers, unlike the Augusta papers, usually work with the machine. The Augusta papers have teamed up against the Crackers. The Herald, violently anti-Cracker, has indorsed the Chronicle's publisher, Bill Morris, for the House seat against Harris.

Members of the Legislature and Statehouse officials remember him from the January session of the General Assembly which he staffed for the Macon News and Telegraph. John recently completed four years' service in the Navy, rising from the enlisted status to the rank of lieutenant, junior grade. He saw service in the Mediterranean, Atlantic and Pacific areas aboard the vessels of the amphibious force. Those Unfounded Fears

Memphis World, Memphis Tenn.

The splendid reception and strong endorsement of the Circuit Court of Appeals' action in holding that Georgia Negroes must no longer be deprived of their constitutional right to vote in the state's Democratic primary merely because of their race and color, is heartening evidence of a trend in the thinking of fair-minded white Georgians which will grow more pronounced. In fact, that trend was well indicated Friday in the reply of Governor Arnall to the noisy clamor which House Speaker Roy Harris has been making for a session of the Legislature to circumvent the action. The governor very properly told Mr. Harris:

"We have discussed the question of the Democratic primary in the light of the opinion of the U. S. circuit court of appeals. We are undertaking to determine upon a proper solution of the problem which will be to the best interest of Georgia. We are considering the matter and will take up our discussion at a later date." Fri. 3-22-46

The governor does not make himself crystal clear when he said that "we are considering the matter", but we hope he means, and we take it to mean that members of the State Democratic Committee are considering the wisdom of dropping all appeal talk as well as the stupid suggestions of House Speaker Roy Harris, and that it is hoped that some specific announcement can be made soon in which the question of Negro voting will be taken as right and final. There can be scarcely any doubt that the great majority of white Georgia leaders will applaud such a ruling from the Committee. And we believe the Committee will sense the wisdom of speedy and forthright action. Fri. 3-22-46

There appeared in one of the dailies recently as a survey which indicates that there are in the state forty nine counties in which Negroes outnumber the whites. There is absolutely no sound reason why this simple truth should have any disturbing effects on the normal process of electioneering either in rural or urban Georgia communities. It is true that Negroes have voted as a group in the case of Mrs. Mankin. But such a thing can never happen where candidates discuss the merits and demerits of the vital issues. If we should ever reach the stage in Georgia politics where the Negro issue can be eliminated, there will never be a problem of Negroes voting as a block. Only men like Talmadge and his ilk can force the Negro vote to such behavior.

Some Habits Are Quickly Acquired

Atlanta Constitution

The Nashville Tennessean, taking cognizance of our regret over the relatively small turnout of voters in the recent congressional election, offers editorial consolation. Sat. 3-9-46

What we overlook, says The Tennessean, "is that exercise of the suffrage, the foundation upon which our democratic system is built, is a habit, a good habit, and that like other habits it is established by practice. Neither in Georgia nor in Tennessee has the present generation been free to acquire the good habit of voting.

There have been no majority-of-the-people elections in this century. The fathers have not voted, the sons have not had the example of voting before them. What is a greater deterrent, in all probability, is the lack of confidence in elections that has grown in company with the power of organized minorities in a shriveling electorate." Pillar Ga.

All of which is patently true.

But if The Tennessean or anybody else got the idea from our previous editorial that we considered the case hopeless—or from this that we intend to wait a couple of generations until nature takes its course and voting is established as a universal habit—then they are very much in error.

Use Illegal Vote Devices In Georgia

The Journal and Guide Norfolk Va.

By O. E. McKAINE

SAVANNAH, Ga.—Lady Astor recently shocked Savannah natives when she told them that the city needed its face washed; but the proud citizens of this momentary world monetary capital promptly proceeded to clean up. But much of white Savannah is still dirty behind the ears if it is to be judged by the actions of the city's registration officials. Sat. 3-23-46

Notwithstanding the decisions of the U. S. Supreme court, the various state courts and more recently the Federal District Court in New Orleans that, in Georgia, Negroes must be permitted to vote without hindrance in the primaries, the registration officials of Savannah and Chatham county, Ga., are still using illegal procedures to prevent Negroes from qualifying to vote in the primaries.

Since the poll tax has been abolished by the state legislature, the demand on the part of officials for the payment of a tax to qualify to vote is manifestly illegal. However, it is alleged that, here in Savannah, many Negroes have been obliged to pay their personal property taxes before they were permitted to have their names enrolled on the registration books.

In the county court house, the tax collector's office is located just across the hall from the registrar's office and when certain types of Negroes request to be registered they are first asked if they have made their tax return and if they respond in the negative they are given a slip of paper and directed to first clear with the tax collector and then return to complete their registration. Sat. 3-23-46

DEMAND BACK TAXES

Usually those who comply are registered without further questioning. And in nearly all cases the Negroes who register without having gone to the tax collector receive, in a few days after registration, a blue or a pink slip demanding the payment within five days of from two to seven years "back taxes" under threat of having their furniture seized by the sheriff for non-compliance. Sometimes these delinquent taxes amount to more than thirty dollars. And as a natural result of these tactics the registration of Negroes has slowed up considerably.

Within the past nine months, the number of Negroes registered has increased from approximately 1,800 to about 6,500. And under the impetus of a newly organized registration drive, Negroes have been qualifying at the rate of more than 100 daily. This number has now diminished to about 40 per day.

NOT DISCOURAGED Sat. 3-23

The Savannah Negroes are not discouraged; only very indignant. The Hub, an organization of Negro professional and businessmen, backed by the Committee for Georgia, an affiliate of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, and the NAACP, has retained a lawyer to bring suit in the Federal Court at once to oblige the registration board to conform to the law in dealing with Negro voters. Several white Savannahians who witnessed the illegal treatment of the Negroes have expressed their willingness to testify in their behalf.

J. W. McGlockton, prominent businessman and chairman of the Political Action Committees of the Hub and the NAACP, states that while these maneuvers of the registration officials may momentarily slow up the registration, they will not bring it to a complete halt.

Negro Opinion

Mon. 3-18-46 Atlanta Ga.

Editor Constitution: Recently I have read numerous articles in The Atlanta Constitution, many which were excerpts from other Georgia Publications, concerning Negroes' voting in the primaries of this state. That the Negro is partaking of these rights doesn't necessarily mean he is attempting to rule the political roost of Georgia. The Negro is only attempting to help chart courses which he'll have to travel as a citizen of this state. World conflict today would be less prevalent if all races had equal rights along all lines of life.

There can be no real peace until all nations (including America) grant equal priviledges to each individual regardless of race or color. In conclusion: Why make such a ruckus about the Negroes' voting. After all, he's within his rights. Constitution.

Illegal Tactics Used to Check Ga. Voters

Afro-American Baltimore Md.

SAVANNAH, Ga. — (ANP) — Registrars here are employing illegal tactics to discourage registration in spite of rulings by the U.S. Supreme Court, the State Courts and the Federal District Court in New Orleans, the NAACP charges. 3-30-46

Registrars are requiring some applicants to present their receipts for having paid personal property taxes, while in many instances tax collectors are billing prospective registrants for two and three years of back taxes, which must be paid within five days.

Increase in the number of colored people registered within the past nine months has jumped from 1800 to about 6,500. But the registrars' tactics have decreased the 100-a-day qualification rate to about 40 a day.

Plots Against Negro Voting Pointed Out

Daily Record Atlanta, Ga. Sat 4-27-46

Civic-Political League Hears Many In Macon Meeting

BY V. W. HODGES

MACON, Ga. — (SNS) — Negro leaders were warned Thursday against the efforts of thin-skin shysters and clandestine plotters in Georgia to undermine and embarass their participation in the State's primary elections this fall. The occasion was the biennial session of The Georgia Civic and Political League at Macon, Georgia, where nearly 250 Negro leaders were gathered from over 43 counties to map plans for the effective organization of their political forces over the state.

John Wesley Dobbs, president of the statewide group, presided over the session and in his message called upon the representatives to "continue to stick together, organize and plan wisely" for the political welfare of "our people" in Georgia and in a "non-partisan way." Sat 4-27-46

Dr. Allen R. Cooper, pastor, of Stewart Chapel AME Church, extended official greetings to the delegates on behalf of his congregation. And Dr. M. J. Sherard, pastor, First Baptist Church of Macon, felicitated the meeting on behalf of the citizens of Macon.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

"We must think together; we must stick together, and until that day comes when we have fully acquired our liberty and freedom as full-fledged American citizens, we must even vote together," declared President Dobbs.

Mr. Dobbs, who prefaced his message with a number of citations where Negroes in the state were being deprived of their rights to vote, read excerpts from letters from the United States District Attorney's Office, assuring him that all such violations will be dealt with rigidly and in conformity with the laws guaranteeing Negroes their vote rights. "We cannot vote unless we register," he continued, "and it must be our first objective to get Negroes registered."

LAUDS ARNALL'S STAND

In recounting developments in the primary suit and its successful victory up to the highest court, Mr. Dobbs commended the lofty and liberal position taken by Governor Ellis Arnall in refusing to become a party to any scheme seeking to circumvent the decision. "Our Governor of Georgia," said he, "has said that Negroes now have a right to vote in Georgia elections. He has refused to call an extra session of the Legislature. For this courageous stand, I think we should not only commend the Governor, but that we should make a secret pledge in our hearts to remember and support him wherever a future occasion should permit us to do so," he suggested.

STROZIER SPEAKS

Delivering an impromptu address to the delegates, Attorney Harry S. Strozier, principal lawyer in the Primus King suit, accepted with moderation the credit for victory in the suit; paid high compliments to Dr. T. H. Brewer and his associates in the prompt, businesslike manner in which the payments were made, and then cautioned Negroes not to become discouraged if here and there, a few of them may encounter difficulties in voting this Fall, said he.

"I do not take any special credit for the primary victory. It was one of those cases any lawyer would have jumped at. It was easy to win, because the law was on the side of Negroes voting. But more than that, I was paid a good fee for handling the suit. And I would have taken it, even if I had believed that I would lose, because I had the conviction that the Negro possesses every right which any white man in Georgia has to cast his ballot." Sat 4-27-46

The Macon lawyer paid special tribute to the services of his partner, Attorney Oscar Smith, Columbus, Georgia and took occasion to observe that the Primary victory was a wholesome thing not only for the Negro but for the white Georgians, because it has caused all of them to evince a new interest in good government. However, he advised, only Negro Democrats of Georgia, rather than Republicans, can take advantage of the decision, since it is primrily a Democratic primary."

OTHERS PRESENTED

Others who were presented to the delegates included W. S. Hornsby, president, Pilgrim Health and Life Insurance Company, of Augusta; Dr. T. W. Josey, physician, Augusta, Major Hopkins, of Savannah, Dr. E. R. Searcy, of Thomasville, I. D. Harvey, Pelham, Ga., Rev. J. F. Carter and Clinton King, Albany, Georgia, F. M. Hutchins, W. J. More About The Augusta Election

Atlanta Daily World, Ga.

Official figures on the results of the Richmond County (Augusta) prmary election last Tuesday which repudiated Speaker Roy Harris and his Cracker Party which has been in power there over 20 years, disclose some interestng facts.

First, a majority of the white voters in the County voted for the Independents, thereby repudiating Roy Harris and his Cracker Party and their issue of the campaign "white supremacy" and restoration of the white primary. This is significant in that the majority of the white people are showing they don't believe in denying the Negro the right to vote in the primary. This should be a clear notice to the rabble rousing race-baiting candidates of the futility of their efforts.

Second, that 1994 Negroes voted for the Independents and 437 for the Crackers. At first it would seem that this is a small percentage out of a registration of 4600. But the fact that several hundred Negroes who had been in line to vote long before the polls closed only to be turned away at the closing time, partly explains this. However, there has not been explained how Speaker Harris and his Cracker Party who ran on a platform committed to disenfranchise our race got even one Negro vote. For instance, in the Fourth Ward Harris and his ticket received 352 Negro votes as against only 221 for the Independents. It should be noted, however, it was in this ward where several hundred Negroes in all probability anti-Harris votes, were turned away at closing time of the election. But suppose the election had been closer and it would have been revealed that Harris and his party won by the margin of the Negro vote? This could have happened. Every single vote is important and every citizen must realize this. We can take no chances with our precious ballots.

We will have little choice in the next few elections. Our simple duty must be to concentrate on the best candidate or ticket to assure that a race-baiting demogogue will not slip into office through a divison of the votes. This is common sense and it is a matter of self-defense.

When the race issue is gotten out of the campaigns then we can be normal citizens and consider the candidates and tickets on their merits as to political and economic principles. But until then, we have little individual choice, less we through division, become re-enslaved politically.

Also we noticed in the Augusta election the practice of using separate voting booths for Negroes was carried out. This enabled officials to tell just how the Negroes voted. This fact may explain why the Cracker Party got some Negro votes. We happen to know that the Cracker Party cracked the whip over the head of every Negro it could reach and demanded support for their ticket. One Negro of questionable influence who was obligated to the Crackers and could not square his conscience with the idea of supporting the Crackers wanted to leave town but he was warned not to do so until after the election.

All in all, considering this election was probably the first time of voting for most of the Negro participants, we have no criticism for their conduct. And of course, we are very gratified over the results of the election.

All Georgia Votes

Daily Worker New York

DEMOCRACY'S battle is going ahead in the South.

Negroes, voting in a Georgia primary on a wide scale for the first time, were decisive in retiring from the Legislature one of the state's top reactionaries and in electing an entire independent county slate.

The election results are highly significant for the entire country. They demonstrate that, as the Negro people win the right to vote, they will help to clean up the Tory gang that has dominated the South and has blocked progress in Congress.

New York

The "white primary" is slowly being defeated in one state after another largely because of the great national drives that have been conducted against the polltax. That drive has also forced some states to take action by themselves against the election tax.

The harder the pressure on Congress for elimination of the polltax, the greater the successes in the individual states for the right to vote. Fri 4-19-46

Backbone of the struggle for the franchise is the labor movement. The CIO drive to organize the South will do much to cut out the remaining checks on a free ballot.

Registrars Slow Up Savannah Voters

Georgia County Has First General Voting By Negroes In South

Birmingham Ala. Herald

Sun. 3-24-46

BY HENRY LESESNE

BRUNSWICK, Ga., March 23—(AP)—The nearest thing to mass suffrage—white and black—in the Deep South has come out of this county, steeped in Southern tradition since Colonial days.

It has resulted in a political upheaval but does not answer in any definite way what is on the politicians' minds: How will the Negro, flushed with his newly-won right, vote? Sun. 3-24-46

In the border states where Negro participation in the Democratic primary is accepted as a matter of course, the Negro has voted—or neglected to vote—just about as white people do.

But what happened this week in the coastal county of Glynn was the first thing of its kind in the Deep South. Negroes have voted recently in two Georgia municipal primaries but not in great numbers.

Ordinarily 2,000 votes is a good turnout in Glynn County, which the last census gave a population of 13,356 whites and 8,564 Negroes.

* * *

YET IN THE PRIMARY this week 2,400 negroes alone registered and nearly all voted. There were 6,700 whites registered. A total of 6,512 votes were cast.

How did this amazing change come about?

Georgia last year repealed its poll tax. It is the only state which permits 18-year-olds to vote. The U. S. District and Circuit Courts have said Negroes can vote in Georgia primaries.

Virtually alone in the South in its action, the Glynn County Democratic Executive Committee granted a request by a Negro political organization to allow Negroes to vote in the "white primary."

Mass registration of whites and Negroes followed. Georgia law gives tax collectors pretty wide discretion in passing upon qualifications of applicants for registration.

* * *

YET THE CHARGE has never been raised here that there was any discrimination against Negroes. "We registered white and black alike," says Tax Commissioner J. M. Exley. "They came in taxicabs, everything. Sometimes there were 50 or more in line."

However, in the neighboring and larger county of Chatham (Savannah), a group of Negroes a few days ago filed suit charging discriminatory methods of registering Negroes—a charge which officials denied. Sun 3-24-46

Evasion Is Not The Answer

Atlanta Daily World, Ga.

We noticed with interest the suggestion by Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Linder that a so-called executive committee be substituted for the Democratic Executive Committee in the conduct of the coming primary and continue to exclude Negroes from participation. The declared position of many responsible white citizens that qualified Negroes should be permitted to vote in the primary without regard for race and color is much sounder than this idea advanced by Mr. Linder. 3-16-46

This plan would be a clear attempt at evasion and we believe those who would permit themselves to become a part of such a scheme would be subject to contempt charges. Moreover, the election of those nominated in the primary for national offices could be challenged. And this may also be true of those elected to state offices. Sat.

The proper way to meet the question of the Negro voting is to meet it squarely and fairly. Evasion will prove unsatisfactory to both sides. The fact that Atlanta Negroes voted preponderantly for the successful candidate in the recent congressional election was cited as a reason for continuing to exclude the Negro from the primary. Eliminate the race issue in the campaigns and you eliminate the reason for the Negro voting as a race or bloc. Then, too why should Mr. Linder complain of the Negro voting as a race when the South has voted as a section for many years. Furthermore, the candidate Negroes voted for was one that had been elected in a white primary several times.

Friendly compliance with the law as has been done recently in Athens and Valdosta and is to be done in Brunswick this month, is the only just and therefore, final way to settle this vital issue. Georgia can never be a truly Democratic state until political discrimination and denial on the basis of race and color is eliminated.

Georgia Trys Poll Tax Substitute'

Chicago Defender Sat 3-30-46

Chicago Ill.

SAVANNAH, Ga. — Since the poll tax has been outlawed, registrars here are using the personal property tax to balk the registration of Negro voters, it was reevaled this week.

The number of colored voters registered within the past nine months has jumped from 1,800 to about 6,500 under the impetus of a newly organized registration drive.

But the 100-a-day qualification rate has been slowed down to about 40 a day because of the registrars' tactics.

The right to register to vote here is being based on the payment of personal property taxes. In the county court house, the tax collectors office is just across the hall from the registrars' office.

Negroes who come in to register are asked if they have made their tax return. If they respond in the negative, they are given a slip and directed to pay their taxes first.

Those who comply are usually registered without further questioning. In all cases where this is not done, the voter gets a demand for payment of taxes as far back as five years under the threat of having their furniture seized by the sheriff for non-compliance.

Reaction to the registrars' methods has been a deep indignation and the mapping of plans for legal action. Atty. Aaron Kravtich had been retained by the Hub, an organization of Negro business and professional men backed by the Committee for Georgia, and the NAACP. Both organizations plan to have a showdown in court.

The registrars may slow up the registration but they can not stop it, said J. W. McGlockton, fighting prominent Negro businessman and chairman of the political action committees of the HUB and NAACP. Several white residents here have witnessed the illegal treatment of Negroes and have expressed a willingness to testify.

Atty. Kravitch is hopeful of obtaining an injunction against the registrars within the next 10 days.

Let Negroes Vote, Drop 'Subterfuge', Arnall Pleads

Fri 4-5-46

By JOHN COURIC

Gov. Arnall has called upon Georgians as "good citizens" to accept the Negro's right to vote and has flatly refused to "be a party to any subterfuge or 'scheme' designed to nullify the orders of the courts."

Declaring he will not call the Legislature into an extraordinary session, the Governor, in a statement yesterday said he was convinced the General Assembly would refuse to repeal the State's primary laws even if convened.

However, he added, if such a repeal were effected, primary elections, in his opinion, still would be a part of the State's election machinery and therefore subject to federal laws.

Pointing out the County Unit System and laws against election fraud would be voided by a repeal of State primary regulations, the Governor said he would not assume responsibility for such a move.

"If the members of the Legislature want to assume the responsibility, they have the right," he declared.

He termed the County Unit System a "law that affords the small counties recognition in State political affairs." The importance of this section is the basis of his belief that the Legislature would not repeal the White Primary Law.

"Should the criminal statutes be abolished," he added, "the people would have no assurance the primary elections would not be 'stolen' by fraud and corruption."

Both House Speaker Harris and former Gov. Talmadge have advocated the repeal of the State's primary law as a means of preventing Negro voting. They also have argued for keeping the County Unit System and regulations against fraud by rulings from the State Democratic Executive Committee.

The Governor's statement in full follows:

"The courts having spoken, I call upon the people of Georgia to accept their decisions. It is our duty as good citizens to uphold the courts, the Constitution and laws of our land. As governor, sworn to uphold the Constitution and laws, I will not be a party to any subterfuge or 'scheme' designed to nullify the orders of the courts.

"I am persuaded that the General Assembly would refuse to repeal the law providing a county unit system in our primary elections. This is the law that affords the small counties recognition in state political affairs. Likewise, it is my opinion that the General Assembly would refuse to abolish the criminal laws governing our primary elections. Should the criminal statutes be abolished, the people would have no assurance that the primary elections would not be 'stolen' by corruption and fraud. Fri 4-5-46

"It is my considered legal judgment that even if the county unit system and the criminal statutes against corruption in primary elections were repealed, the courts would still hold that the primary elections are a part of the state election machinery in that they are recognized on the official ballot and are, therefore, protected by the provisions of the United States Constitution.

"I do not propose to call an extraordinary session of the General Assembly to do away with the county unit system and the criminal laws governing primary elections. If the members of the Legislature want to assume that responsibility, they have that right."

A notice posted on the official sales and order bulletin board at the Courthouse gives information as to where the sittings of the Board are being held.

"It is believed the examination of registrants will be completed in time to permit revision of the qualified list of registered voters now on file in the office of Superior Court Clerk H. E. Allen before June 11. The examination of registrants will be continued along the same lines as heretofore and identical methods of qualification will be used in the case of all persons certified to the Board by the County Tax Commissioner."

Sumter Voters List Largest In History

June 4-8-46

Constitution State News Service.

AMERICUS, June 5—Despite the fact that the largest number of citizens in the county's history have registered this year, only 92 Negroes have qualified, according to a report filed by the Board of Registrars with the Clerk of Sumter Superior Court.

Of the total of 4,384 qualified registered voters, 2,344 of this number are white men, 1,948 white women, 34 Negro men and 58 Negro women.

The election today in August will be the second primary in the state in which a large number of colored voters will participate. It is reliably estimated there are 5000 Negroes among the 26000 qualified voters.

The Cracker Party which controls the city and county governments is being seriously challenged today for the first time in 20 years. And despite its stated position of preserving the white primary and a boast made by Harris that his victory would be a spring board for stumping the state for restoration of the white primary, the Crackers are trying to woo every Negro vote it can get. A daily paper is circulated in the Negro Community.

But judging from the sentiment expressed at a mass meeting last Friday night by the colored voters of Augusta the Cracker Party will be

Trial of Negro Vote Asked Before Action

Atlanta Constitution, Ga.

As former Gov. Eugene Talmadge staked his political comeback attempt on an anti-Negro campaign and Commissioner of Agricultur Tom Linder moved away from the Arnall camp and away from gubernatorial campaign, Rep. Claude Pittman, of Bartow, asked Georgia solons to try out the Democratic primary this summer with Negroes voting and then decide whether this is worse than junking the county unit election system and laws against election frauds.

Several weekly newspapers said they were more concerned with the possibility of losing the county unit system than permitting Negroes to vote.

Talmadge's formal announcement for Governor yesterday followed many months' speculation that he would seek a comeback. He is the second avowed candidate in the field, Adj. Gen. Marvin Griffin already having announced. No announcement has yet been made by former Gov. Ed Rivers, who is regarded as a sure candidate this summer.

Internal Revenue Collector Marion Allen, who is gaining strength as a prospective candidate, will launch another series of speeches this week, and will soon decide whether he will run. Meanwhile, observers have predicted that Sec. of State Ben Fortson, Jr., will seek the governorship, and that he will have the backing of Gov. Arnall.

Linder, who campaigned for Arnall against his former boss Talmadge in 1942, has left Arnall on the Negro voting issue, and has announced he will support a candidate who promises to keep the white primary.

He termed Arnall's position on Negro voting a climax to the Governor's "opposition to including the county unit system in the new State Constitution; his abolition of the poll tax; his lowering of the voting age; his support for Henry Wallace in the last National Democratic Convention, where Wallace attacked the people of the South, and his letter to Mrs. Roosevelt insulting men in Georgia who were responsible for Mrs. Roosevelt's not coming to Atlanta to address a mixed audience of whites and Negroes in the City Auditorium."

Indications that Linder would not seek the governorship were seen when his home town newspaper at Hazlehurst, The Jeff Davis County Ledger, indorsed State Auditor B. E. Thrasher, Jr., for Governor. The Ledger recalled that newspapers in Richland, Watkinsville, Greenville, Valdosta and Augusta already had indorsed Thrasher. The Sylvester Local, Warm Springs Mirror and Tri-County Review, at Cuthbert, last week praised Thrasher.

Pittman expressed fear that abolition of the county unit system would lead to control of Georgia by big city machines.

The Lowndes County News, at Valdosta, the Pike County Progress, at Jasper, and the Claxton Enterprise, at Claxton, each said repeal of the county unit law will be risky, and that the average Georgian is not as concerned about Negro voting as is the political machines. The Newnan Herald said that demagogues are using the Negro voting issue as a scare campaign to fool the people. The Herald said many Negroes can vote intelligently; that no one, white or Negro, should be permitted to vote if he is incapable of understanding the issues involved. Sun 4-7-46

The Thomaston Times said the Negro vote is here to stay in Georgia and expressed the opinion that the situation can be handled satisfactorily. At any rate, it would be well to let the law take its course for try out before making any effort to amend it or revoke it, the Times added.

A Talmadge newspaper has indorsed Roy Harris for re-election as speaker, as the Augustan, battling for his political life in a local campaign, tried to convene the Legislature in special session to repeal primary laws preparatory to keeping the white primary. The Dodge County Advertiser, at Eastman, denounced Democratic Chairman Lon Duckworth, Senate Pres. Frank Gross and Gov. Arnall and called for the election of Talmadge as Governor and Harris as Speaker. Sun 4-7-46

The North Georgia Tribune, at Canton, has come out flatly in favor of the right of Negroes and "people of all races" to vote. Says The Tribune: "The old question of Negro voting has arisen again in Georgia, and by the publicized statements of opponents who have a mania to adhere to a Democratic form of government, yet are willing to defeat the first principle of democracy, we are reminded that the old witch-burning spirit still lingers to hinder progressiveness. The intemperance of some racial relation reformer in the nation's Capitol and the intolerance of fanatical racial subjugators in the South have set the nation at odds, and until all races are regarded as the human race, there is little hope for humanity."

"WHAT IS WHITE?"

Rep. Pittman, once a candidate for Governor and a former Superior Court Judge, asked the Legislators if "we should not deliberate before violating or circumventing the Constitution and laws of the United States and our oaths to uphold them?"

"If the State Democratic Executive Committee is to say only white persons can vote in a primary, then the question will arise: "Who is white?" Pittman pointed out. "Is a mulatto white? Is a Chinaman, a Jap, a Cuban, a Mexican, a Filipino, or brown races white? Shall white be held to mean only the descendants of the English, French, German and other original settlers of the state? We are trying to build a new political bridge before testing the old one, which has been redesigned and remodeled by the courts, clothed with a solemn duty to interpret our constitutions and laws. After all, ours is a Government of laws rather than of men and executive committees. So why not save the expense of another con-

Effective Cooperation

Daily World Atlanta, Ga.

The splendid manner in which the entire Atlanta Negro community organized, worked and sweated in an effort to secure 25,000 eligible voters, is enough to inspire Negroes in every community in the South. Measured in terms of other events in Negro life, there is nothing with which to compare it, not even the popular appeal of the Jitterbug King, which all too frequently in the past, has claimed too much of the attention of Negroes at the expense of things more meaningful. Fri 5-10-46

For this magnificent organization and cooperation the credit is ascribed to no one person or club, or church or school. It was the result of the effective, unselfish and wholehearted unity of everyone, young as well as old, literate as well as unlearned, well-to-do as well as poor, together with the church, the school, the clubs and various organizations, partisan and non-partisan, cemented by a flaming spirit of togetherness, never before attained for any single objective. Although final and conclusive figures are still lacking, it is more than an even guess that the goal of 25,000 was reached, thus trebling the voting list of the County in less than six weeks. We congratulate Atlanta and the vision evidenced by these leaders.

Says Brunswick Negro Vote Not Solid For Opposition

Atlanta Daily World Atlanta, Ga.

Democratic Club Secretary Gives Primary Analysis

Sat. 3-30-46

J. M. ATKINSON
(Secretary, Brunswick, Progressive Democratic Club)

BRUNSWICK, Ga.— (SNS)—Approximately 2,000 Negroes voted March 20 in Glynn County primary to nominate seven Democratic nomiees for election as Commissioners of Roads and Revenue. About 93% of the 2,400 Negroes registered voted, as compared to about 75% of the 6,700 white registrants who voted.

According to an official announcement of the Democratic Executive Committee of the county an entirely new set of commissioners were nominated. The Negro Progressive Democratic Club supported five of the incumbents, who were overwhelmingly defeated. Two candidates the club supported --Joe C. Stewart and Arthur True --were successfully nominated.

Untrue allegations have been made to the effect that the Negroes voted overwhelmingly for opposing candidates and that this accounted for the outcome of the election. Newpapers all over the state have carried a story relating to the outcome of the balloting of Everett District in the county, where there were 112 Negroes registered to 59 whites to indicate the trend of the Negro's voting throughout the county. Sat. 3-30-46

It is interesting to note that in the Thalman District where there are no Negroes registered, the incumbents got only 15% of the votes cast, but in the Everett District a majority of the registrants were Negroes, 27% of the votes went to the defeated incumbents.

It is true, however, that the solidarity of the Negro vote was greatly hampered by several factors outside the influence of the Progressive Democratic Club. At election time, there were four different slates among our people.

Despite adverse factors, it can be said with good support that the election was lost by the incumbents because of the fact that the several opposing candidates were instrumental in putting nearly 4,000 white registration on the list for the sole purpose of having them vote fora new board.

Administration candidates attributed their defeat to two causes. They believe the Negro vote was against them and that hundreds of residents who had never before voted in the county voted against them vote for a new board.

There was no disorder of any kind at or around the polls.

Plots Against Negro Voting Pointed Out

Black Dispatch Oklahoma City, Oklahoma

MACON, Ga. — (ANP) —Leaders of Georgia's political circles, meeting here last week at the biennial session of the Georgia Civic and Political league were warned against the efforts of thin-skin shyers and clandestine plotters attempting to undermine and embarrass their participation in the state's primary elections. 6-1-46

Some 250 community leaders gathered from over 43 counties of the state to map plans for the effective organizotion of their political forces over the state.

In his message to the gathering, John Wesley Dobbs, state president, called upon the representatives to "continue to stick together, organize and plan wisely" for the political welfare of "our people" in Georgia and in a "non-partisan way."

"We must think together; we must stick together, ond until that day comes when we have fully acquired our liberty and freedom as full-fledged citizens, we must even vote together," declared President Dobbs, who is also grandmaster of Prince Hall Masons in Georgia.

The president of the state group revealed that the United States District attorney's office assured him that all such violations of political rights as might come through subterfuge would be dealt with by that office.

In recounting developments in the primary suit and its successful victory up to the highest courts, Dobbs commended the lefty and liberal position of Gov. Ellis Arnall in refusing to become a party to any scheme seeking to circumvent the decision. "Our governor of Georgia," said Dobbs, "has said that Negroes now have the right to vote in Georgia elections. He had refused to call an extra session of the legislature. For this courageous stand, I think we should not only commend the governor, but that we should make a high complements to Dr. T. H. secret pledge in our hearts to report him wherever which the payments were made, member and support he should permit and then cautioned, Negroes not a future occasion should become discouraged if here and us to do so." 6-1-46

It is Time For A Change

The Atlanta Daily World Atlanta Ga

The inspiring manner in which colored Atlantans flocked to the courthouse in the recent vote drive to qualify for the approaching special congressional election presages a new determination to share in the protections and benefits of representative government. With approximately 7,000 reported on the current registration rolls, their actions give indication that they want a change in the old order. 1-13-46

They want protection from police brutality and unfair discrimination practices in employment. They want better schools for their children. They want justice in our law courts based upon justice rather than upon race. They want representation on the Councils which determine policies affecting their interests and welfare. They believe that an intelligent use of the ballot will, at least help, to bring about these changes. It is time for such a change. 1-13-46

Negroes of course, must not delude themselves in thinking that 7,000 votes can work some magic wand. They will not. Our point is that we have made a praiseworthy beginning. But our hardest struggles are still ahead. We must continue the vote drive with vigor. The registration books, while closed for this special election, remain open until May 1. Let all who have not done so, get registered.

Discusses Negro Vote in Georgia

Atlanta, Ga.

While a United States district court in New Orleans studies the plea of a Columbus Negro for the right to vote in Georgia Democratic "white" primaries, Negroes already have cast their ballots in primaries in at least two Georgia cities in recent months, and will be voting in primaries in many Georgia counties during this election year. There were no incidents when the Negroes voted for mayors of Athens, in north Georgia, and Valdosta, in south Georgia. Now in a general election in Atlanta the Negroes have exercised the balance of power in naming a congressman. Tom Camp and Helen Mankin went into the Ashby Street school precinct neck-and-neck, and Mrs. Mankin came out the winner by 800 votes.

There has been much undercurrent talk about the way the Negro officials of the Ashby Street precinct conducted the election. A few white people have telephoned The Constitution that their cooks claimed the election officials voted for them. The cooks according to their white employers, said when they asked for ballots they found them already scratched except for one name. They were told that the election officials would "fix up the ballots" for them, the cooks were quoted as saying. The ordinary's office investigated these serious reports. It said the Ashby street election was conducted orderly. It said no Negro voter had made any charge of fraud to that office. However, one candidate has protested the election. The office said it is the duty of election officials to aid voters, if the voters wish help. Since many Negroes were visiting the ballot box for the first time and looking at a ticket of 19 names, it is probable that some were confused and desired help.

May Be Issue

Some groups are planning to make capital out of this election and the rumors. They are expected to use it in an effort to preserve the white primary on a state-wide basis. They will use the rumors as truth and say, "If that's the way the Negro uses his ballot, he can't be trusted with it." They will view with alarm the Negro being a deciding factor in an election. As a matter of record, the Negro's deciding vote in Atlanta was cast in a general election—and the Negro has always been permitted to vote in general elections in Georgia, and could have been exercising his power before in general elections.

Tom Camp, who lost many votes because of his connection with the railroads, may run again this summer. He carried two counties, whose combined unit vote equals the unit vote of Fulton county.

In the recent Valdosta voting, Negroes were praised by both factions of white persons for the way they conducted themselves at the polls. It was the bitterest fight Valdosta has ever witnessed, and the tempers of white people were on edge—yet the Negros cast their ballots without any incidents. The Negroes were not herded to the polls and voted in a bloc by either one of the two white factions. This was attested by both Mayor-elect H. B. Edwards and outgoing Mayor Frank Rose. There were two elections conducted simultaneously—enough to confuse experienced voters. The people voted in a general election on the public power issue, and in a primary for mayor and council. For weeks before election day, Negro leaders held public meetings in school houses and explained voting procedures to their people. The Negroes went to the courthouse, cast their ballots and left, amidst favorable comment from the white people.

By The United Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 12—The Alabama Democratic Executive Committee removed today a seventy-five-year-old specification that only white persons can vote in the party's primaries, thus allowing Negroes to vote in the May 7 primary.

Negro Attacks Deprivation Of Right To Vote

Montgomery, Ala. Advertiser

Georgia Case Is Carried To Court Of Appeals As Racial Issue Is Raised

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 19.—(AP)—A contention that Negroes may not be barred because of their race from participating in Democratic primary elections in Georgia was taken under advisement today by the U. S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Application of the 15th amendment to the U. S. Constitution, providing that voting rights shall not be abridged because of race, and of the federal civil rights act, were involved in the case originally brought by Rev. Primus E. King, Columbus, Ga., Negro minister, against the Muscogee County Democratic Executive Committee.

U. S. District Judge Hoyt Davis in Macon awarded King $100 damages for deprivation of his right to vote in a Muscogee County Democratic primary election July 4, 1944. The decision was appealed to the court here.

King's attorney, Harry S. Strozier, of Macon, told the circuit court today the previous decision gave his client "only half a right to vote." He said Judge Davis' decision was subject to the interpretation that the election officials were wrong only in preventing King from voting on the U. S. offices of senator and congressman, and asked the Appellate Court to affirm his right to participate in primary elections for state and county offices as well. 2-20-46

Much of the argument turned on a U. S. Supreme Court decision in 1944 which held Negroes could not be excluded because of their race from Democratic primaries in Texas.

Charles J. Bloch of Macon, attorney for the Democratic Committee members, said the decision was not applicable to Georgia. Texas laws, he said, govern the organization and operation of parties to such an extent that the laws "create the Democratic party in Texas."

On the other hand in Georgia the parties are voluntary organizations and make their own rules, he asserted. Therefore Georgia party officials are not acting for the state when they make their rules, and a vote in a party primary is not an official vote of the nature guaranteed by the Constitution, Bloch contended.

A similar argument was contained in a brief filed by Attorney General Eugene Cook of Georgia, as a "friend of the court." Cook attended the hearing today, but made no oral argument.

The 15th amendment was first mentioned by Presiding Judge Samuel H. Sibley, who asked Bloch whether it was not "the big law" governing the case. Bloch agreed, but said the question of whether primary elections and the rules governing them came under state activities still had to be determined.

Negroes Will Vote In Georgia County

BRUNSWICK, GA., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Negroes will be permitted to vote in the Democratic primary in Glynn County on March 20.

The County Executive Committee, meeting yesterday to fix rules and regulations, pointed to the decision by Judge Hoyt Davis, of the Middle District of U. S. Federal Court, holding Negroes are eligible to vote.

It will be the first time Negroes have been permitted to vote in a Democratic primary in this county. 2-20-46

A committee representing the Progressive Democrats of Brunswick and Glynn County, Negro organization, appeared before the committee and requested that Negroes be permitted to vote.

Seven members of the County Commission will be nominated in the primary.

Glynn Primary Set March 20; Negroes To Vote

Atlanta Ga. Constitution

BRUNSWICK, Feb. 19.—March 20 has been selected as the date for the county primary at which seven members of the Glynn county commissioners of roads and revenues will be nominated. In setting the date, the Glynn county Democratic executive committee also announced that Negroes will be permitted to vote in the primary for the first time.

Noon on Saturday, March 2, was set as the deadline for candidates to qualify, and the deadline for voters to register in order to be eligible to vote in the primary. The entrance fee for candidates was set at $50 each. 2-20-46

Meanwhile, indications are that the race will be spirited one. Six of the seven incumbent commissioners today announced they will be candidates for re-election, and four others have also announced their intention to become candidates. In addition, at least four others are expected to announce their candidacy in the next few days, so that probably in all there will be some 14 candidates competing for the seven offices.

Incumbents who will offer for re-election include Chairman R. A. Gould, C. V. Abbott, J. N. Parham, J. B. D. Paulk, J. C. Strother and Norman A. Way. W. McD. Harley, a present member of the commission, said he hasn't definitely decided yet whether or not he will become a candidate.

Those who have already announced they will oppose the present group include Joe C. Stewart, Olaf Olsen, T. Arthur Nail and Sam Levine. All except Levine announced within the past few days, while Levine has been waging an active campaign for the past 10 weeks.

7,000 Negroes Eligible To Vote in Atlanta

Atlanta Ga. Constitution 1-25-46

ATLANTA. — (ANP) — Upwards of 7,000 Negro residents of Atlanta and Fulton county are now qualified to vote, it was revealed last week following a record breaking registration up to the deadline for a special congressional election.

Extra clerks were required to register the deadline runners who filled the lobby of the Fulton courthouse.

Potential voters were assisted by representatives of the Atlanta branch of the NAACP.

T. E. Suttles, tax collector, said that approximately 70,000 persons are now on the voters' lists, 7,000 of them being Negroes. Over 700 of the new registrants were persons between 18 and 21 years of age, given the right to vote at the beginning of the Arnall administration.

According to reports, registration by Negroes is continuing at a brisk pace for the state and general elections to come in the fall.

TREND

(From THE ATLANTA JOURNAL)

Atlanta Daily World - Atlanta, Ga.

WHILE ARGUMENT was being heard in Federal Court in New Orleans on the question of whether Negroes shall continue to be barred from voting in Democratic primaries in Georgia, the Glynn County Democratic Executive Committee was meeting and deciding that there will be no disqualification because of color in the local primary to be held on March 20.

Sun. 2-24-46

The contest in Glynn is for the nomination of seven Commissioners of Roads and Revenues who constitute the county government. The decision to permit the vote of qualified colored citizens followed the appearance of a committee of members of a local Negro Democratic Club who asked the right to participate in the primary.

It is significant that within recent weeks Negroes have voted without let or hindrance in primaries in Athens and Valdosta and in Atlanta's congressional election.

Of little less significance are such editorial expressions as this from last week's issue of the Claxton Enterprise in deeply southern and intensely rural Georgia: "Of late we have wondered if it would not be a good idea to permit the Negroes to vote. Perhaps this would insure that the whites would take full advantage of their right to vote in all elections. Reports from the County Commissioner's office indicate that many Negroes are enrolling their names on the registration books while eligible white voters are negligent."

Valdosta Accepts

Valdosta, located in South Georgia and a typical city of the state, accepted the spirit of Judge Davis' decision on the state's white primary system and permitted Negroes to vote in a city primary election which selected a mayor and councilmen and in addition decided the question of whether the city would purchase an electric utility. This makes the second city in the state to accept Negro participation in a primary election. Others led the way last November.

Commenting editorially under the caption "White Primaries a Thing of the Past," the Lowndes County News, a white newspaper, stated: "It proved that whites and Negroes can go to the polls and vote at the same time on the same issues without any bitter feeling. The occasion marked a great forward step for the Negroes of Valdosta, to whom we think a large part of the credit for no disturbance is due."

The achievement of the right to vote on a basis of equality and freedom, to be sure, is a great forward step for us, as the News observes, but it is a step we must make if we are to be first class citizens and the achievement of it is the only way the so-called race problem will be solved at least partially. Therefore, it should be important to the responsible white people that we exercise freely our right to vote on a basis of equality as citizens. Sat 2-20-46

Let us hope that when the Democratic Executive Committee of Georgia meets to make rules for the coming state primary which will elect a Governor, Senator and ten Congressmen besides members for the State Legislature, it will make it possible for qualified Negroes to vote. This would settle the issue for the entire state.

The primary this year will be most important because it will determine whether the state will continue with progressive and liberal government or revert to the days of Talmadge-ism. Every Negro who is over 18 years of age and has not already registered should do so immediately so he can be qualified to make his contribution if the opportunity is available.

The Victory Of Atlanta Voters

Memphis Tenn. World Fri. 2-22-46

(From THE LIGHTHOUSE AND INFORMER)

Three major victories were earned in last week's voting for Georgia's fifth congressional district by colored Georgians. First, Negroes — in a general election and without participation in the controversial "white primary" — "white primary — voted in united fashion more of their race than is generally recalled in that state. To get these people interested enough and organized for voting in bloc was a great victory for the people who led them.

Secondly, in Atlanta's 3-B ward Negroes acted as managers, clerks, etc., conducting the voting of their people themselves. Certainly, this is a great victory. Finally, perhaps by co-incidence, perhaps through Divine blessing, the 956 of them who voted for Mrs. Mankin — an overwhelming majority of the 1,041 votes cast in the precinct — were the deciding voters in a close and hotly — contested race. Their candidate finally led with 808 votes, a fact which would have been impossible had they not voted for her or had voted for the next in line.

Fri. 2-22-46

The Atlantans have demonstrated, more than anything else, that Negroes can make their votes felt in means other than through the Democratic primary, although this too may be effective as was shown in Texas two years ago. But the only effective voting, the only final voting is done in the general election. The Georgians had organized for this election, they had, maybe unwittingly, employed the procedures of the Progressive Democratic Party in South Carolina. And they have fired the ambitions of others like them all over Georgia. Negroes in such cities as Augusta and Savannah are reported as registering en masse. They have seen the doors opened and they want to taste this dessert to citizenship, too.

There is another demonstration of the Atlantans which should not pass unannounced. The Negroes in Atlanta threw away traditional party lines on election day and put their race first. That is why they won. That is why we can always win.

Negro Vote Claimed Decisive In Georgia Congressional Race

Times-Dispatch Richmond, Va.

ATLANTA, Feb. 13—(AP)—The Atlanta Daily World, Negro newspaper, said today the Negro vote decided the race for Congress in the Fifth Georgia District won by Mrs. Helen Douglas Mankin, State Legislator, over 17 male candidates.

Mrs. Mankin, backed by the CIO, received 11,099 votes to win a close race with Thomas L. Camp, former secretary to Robert Ramspeck, whom Mrs. Mankin succeeds. Ramspeck resigned recently to take an aviation post. Camp was given 10,329 votes.

Camp led by 146 votes in the unofficial count until returns were received from precinct B in the third ward, predominately Negro. This precinct gave Mrs. Mankin 956 votes and Camp seven.

"It was clear," the Daily World said, "that the Negro vote had decided the race in a photo-finish." 2-14-46

The newspaper said Negroes served as precinct managers and clerks in Atlanta for the first time in a congressional election.

Balloting was in a general special election and all of the candidates were Democrats. Negroes vote in general elections in Georgia and a court test is underway which seeks to give them the ballot in primaries. A primary was not held in the Fifth District congressional contest.

Negro Vote Ousts Georgia Officials

Montgomery Ala Advertiser

BRUNSWICK, GA., March 21 —(AP)—All of Glynn County's seven county commissioners lost bids for renomination in a Democratic primary in which Negroes voted for the first time.

One box where 112 Negroes and 59 white voters were registered, voted overwhelmingly for an entirely new slate of commissioners. Most political leaders said it was probable this box indicated the general trend of the Negro voting.

Most of the Negro vote was polled in the Brunswick district. There were four voting booths in the courthouse where Negroes and white voted together and it was not possible to determine the choice of the Negro voters in the district. 3-22-46

A Negro political organization, the Progressive Democrats, staged a drive to register voters after the County Democratic Executive Committee heeded a plea from the group that Negroes be permitted to take part in the primary. 3-22-46

The 9,100 registered voters included 6,700 white and 2,400 Negroes. Approximately 7,000 votes were cast, a record for the County. More than 90 per cent of the registered Negroes voted. Only about 75 per cent of the whites cast ballots. Friday

First reports indicated one of the incumbent commissioners survived the drive of the opposition, but the official count showed all were defeated. A mistake in tabulating 100 ballots indicated renomination of W. McD Harley. The official consolidation showed he lost to Arthur Nail.

'People's' List Will Finally Dwindle To One

Sun. 3-10-46 Atlanta Constitution Atlanta, Ga.

This watchful waiting is getting on Georgia's political nerves. It's getting late, and no seriously announced candidate for governor is in the field. DeLacey Allen announced several months ago, and now he has pulled out. Former Govs. Rivers and Talmadge are operating campaigns, with only the speaking missing—yet both of them have left a foot back far enough where the limb can't be sawed off . . . neither has formally announced. A large list of potential "people's candidates" has been mentioned, and several are sampling public opinion over the state. Some of these have been indorsed by a few newspapers. Some have had clubs organized to push their candidacies. But the people generally, the press generally, and Gov. Arnall—who plans to campaign for the person the people indicate they want when entries close—remain silently watching and waiting.

We have talked with many of the persons mentioned as potential "people's candidates" for governor. Despite the large crowd of them so mentioned, we can say the field will not be crowded when the entries close. Because each of these candidates who showed any inclination whatsoever to heed the call of the people said he positively would not run unless he were the "people's candidate." In other words, none would venture forth, unless he had the full support of the progressive forces, and the campaign support of Arnall. Many said they were more interested in continuing the policies of the present administration than in becoming governor themselves. So, regardless of the multitude of "people's candidates" mentioned between now and the campaign, the campaign will get under way with most of this multitude backing one "people's candidate." Sun. 3-10-46

One of the potential candidates who has sampled public opinion in many parts of the state made this observation: "There has been much propaganda that this campaign will be a fight between Rivers and Talmadge, without a third candidate in the field. I have been in many sections of the state and talked with people. I find them waiting. They know Talmadge and Rivers are running, and yet the people are still waiting for a candidate. I know of no better opportunity for a third candidate to run and win."

Over Georgia If the white people of Georgia are afraid that Negroes will hold the balance of power in the elections, the real solution might be for more white voters to go to the polls at each primary and election. That's what the Tifton Gazette says in predicting the courts wouldn't permit any such "white primary" plan as suggested by Tom Linder. The Gazette also believes the veterans can elect a governor, if all of them support the same candidate.

Civic clubs are feeling their citizenship duties to the extent of urging people to register and vote. The Rotary Club at Covington has launched an active campaign to get people registered.

An all-out campaign to register all adults in Glynn county resulted in 1,795 new persons registered in three weeks. Of these 532 were Negroes. Negroes will be permitted to vote in the local primaries. The Brunswick News says government is made wiser and safer every time the governing class is enlarged.

Brunswick Shows The Way

Atlanta Daily World Georgia

Atlanta Negroes are in the midst of a heated registration campaign to secure the names of 25,000 on Registrar's roll by the time the books close May 5. If present pace, heartily joined by church, civic and school groups, is maintained, it is not unlikely that their goal will be achieved. But there is a world of difference between having that number on the rolls and later, getting them to exercise their right by going and voting for the candidates. For 25,000 names on the Registrar's book certainly can have no meaning save in the fact that they are there to be used in the proper manner when the opportunity comes to do so. 3-24-46 Sunday

Not so in Brunswick, where accounts show that of the 2,400 registered Negro voters, virtually 75 per cent of whom had registered within the past 30 or 40 days, 90 per cent, or 2,000 of them, joyously and without incident, cast their ballots in the primary election last Wednesday. That is a noble demonstration of civic interest and pride, surpassing anything we have heard of anywhere in the state among our people. We wish other Negroes in Georgia communities will take heart and emulate the example set by Brunswick Negroes. Atlanta, more than any other community in the state, should take up the challenge, for it certainly is a challenge to the pride and patriotism of all of us who believe in good government. 3-24-46

U. S. Supreme Court Declines Review Of Primus King Case

Atlanta, Ga. Daily World.

Action Climaxes Long, Expensive Court Battle Originating In 1944; District, Appeals Decisions Stand

Tue. 4-2-46

Without comment or delay, the U. S. Supreme Court Monday tossed back into the laps of Georgians the Primus E. King primary case, in which a Georgia federal District judge and judges on the Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans agreed that the Democratic Party in Georgia was an instrumentality of the State, and that as such, Negroes had a constitutional right entitling them to participate in all elections.

The action of the Supreme Court climaxes a long and expensive court battle orginating back in July 4, 1944 when the Rev. Primus E. King Columbus, Georgia Negro along with other qualified Negroes were denied ballots by election officials of the Muscogee County Democratic Committee.

DAVIS RULING

At the hearings last October at Macon, Georgia federal District Judge T. Hoyt Davis, held that for 40 years the Democratic Party had successfully excluded Negroes from participation in the primary elections; that the custom and practice was violative of a federally secured right under the 13th, 14th and 17th constitutional amendments and that henceforth, Negroes must be permitted to vote in primary elections. In addition to the vote ruling, Judge Davis also awarded Rev. King cash damages of $1[illegible] plus interest from date of the decision. The New Orleans Appellate Court sustained Judge Davis' ruling and enlarged it to include all elections, federal, state and municipal.

Harry S. Strozier, Macon, Georgia attorney was the principal lawyer for Rev. King. At the original hearings he introduced documentary evidence to show that the White Primary was an integral part of the state's election machinery; that with the exception of three general elections, the Democratic Party was the only party in the state which conducted an election in 40 years and that for a similar period, the state had been prohibiting and interferring with Negroes exercising their constitutional guarantees So interwoven were the state and the party, concluded Mr. Strozier, that the office of the Secretary of the State Democratic Executive Committee was maintained at the State Capitol. Tue. 4-2-46

COUNTER CLAIMS

Representing the defendants was attorney Charles J. Bloch, also a Macon lawyer and President of the Georgia Bar Association, who contended that the Georgia primary unlike those of Louisiana and Texas, in that these states have rules and regulations prescribing when and where primaries must be held, that in Georgia there is no law requiring that primaries be held.

Immediately it will be difficult to forecast what reactions white Democratic leaders will take in view of the decision. In Atlanta Sunday a well known Journal columnist quoted Chairman J. Lon Duckworth as saying that there would be no meeting of the State Democratic Executive Committee until after the decision was handed down by the Supreme Court. In the face of that decision it now remains to be seen what will be done.

PRESS BEHIND RULING

Neither Talmadge nor Tom Linder nor Speaker Roy V. Harris can be expected to do less than they have always done—seek some methods or loopholes in which the decision might be circumvented. The white press of the state, led on by the powerful Atlanta Journal, has stood behind the ruling in favor of Negro oting as a unit. Suprisingly both rural and urban papers are giving splendid editorial support to the Negro vote rights.

United States Attorney General Tom Clark, speaking in Atlanta at a Jackson Day Dinner gathering a fortnight ago, told news reporters that he anticipated no trouble in Negroes voting in Georgia. Said he: "After the U. S. Supreme Court ruled Negroes could vote in Texas, the party permitted them to vote. As a citizen of Texas I have noticed no change in the result of the election since Negroes have been participating. "Mr. Clark, when questioned specifically about Georgia, declared that he would enforce the law if there were any violations. Tue. 4-2-46

REGISTRATION CONTINUES

Meanwhile Negro registration over the state is keeping up an even tenor. In Savannah, where civil action suit was filed to restrain the Registrar of Chatham County from interferring with Negro registration, leaders are seeking 10,000 voters by the time the books close. Another 25,000 are being sought in a city-wide drive in Atlanta.

The Renaissance Club, a group of veterans of Albany, Georgia as already rolled up 3,000 registered voters since January and other efforts will be eligible to vote in Glynn County. The decision by Democratic action on the decision of Judge Hoyt Davis, of the Middle District Federal Court, holding primary to name seven members of the county commission, that Negroes are eligible to vote in primaries. 3-24-46

The committee based its action on the decision in the primary by Negroes recently decided to permit White registration totals 6,730. Registration ended on March 2. The committee ruling on Negroes was made Feb. 18 and Negro registration increased sharply.

Talmadge In A Dither Over The Negro Vote

Atlanta Ga.
Daily World

By V. W. HODGES

The handwriting on the wall for race-baiters, rabble-rousers and political demagogues in Georgia is written in large, capital letters. Talmadge and his friends are beginning to see it. For example, in the latest issue of The Statesman, his personal mouthpiece, he gives front page prominence to the significance of the vote of Negroes if they are permitted to participate in the Georgia primaries. Says he: Sun. 4-2-46

"The people of Georgia are becoming aroused over maintaining the Democratic White primary. If we do not maintain the Democratic white primary, our southern traditions and heritage will be lost.

"Judge Sibley, in his opinion, pointed the way out by saying that neither federal or state statutes would prevent primaries being composed of white citizens or colored, or Jews, or men, or women.

"The FEPC and Harlem crowd want the Negro to vote in Georgia. They are being aided and abetted in this by the present administration who would resort to any measure to stop Talmadge from being governor.

"If the Negroes are permitted to vote in Georgia, their first objective will be to defeat the Southern Senators and congressmen who have fought FEPC. Along with this, they will attempt to elect a governor of their own choosing, who would aid them in their plans. If the Negroes vote in the primary in September, you will see Negro policemen in Atlanta, Macon, Savannah and Augusta by this time next year. Sun. 4-2-46

"If the Negro vote is to be dealt with in the primaries in the metropolitan areas where the Negroes vote in substantial numbers candidates will place Negro deputy sheriffs on the ticket, Negro clerks on the ticket, in order to obtain the Negro vote. Negroes at present vote in general elections. This is in accordance with their constitutional rights. We must, however, preserve our own Democratic white primary. Negroes outnumber the white people in about forty counties in Georgia They could elect the county officers, the senators and representatives. It would not be but a few years in these counties before Negro tax assessors would be determining the amount of taxes to be paid on property.

"If Negroes participate in the Democratic white primary, within ten years, many schools of this state would be attended by both white and black.

"The people of Georgia must determine whether or not, we shall retain our southern heritage and traditions, or whether the Southland will become an adjunct of New York where they have Negro firemen, policemen and school teachers in official positions."

TALMADGE IS RIGHT

Fundamentally, Talmadge reasoning is sound. The ballot for the Negro in Georgia is going to mean the end of race-baiting in the State. It is going to mean better schools and more schools for Negro children. It is going to mean a more equitable distribution of job opportunities afforded by public taxation. More than that, it is going to mean that men like Talmadge will have to get accustomed to seeing Negroes in positions, other than menials and servants. The former governor, we repeat, is essentially correct in his reasoning about the Negro vote. Except we think he places too much stress on the Negro voting for demagogic United States senators and representatives and not enough on their electioneering for the candidates for governor Negroes are far more concerned with the kind of governor, the kind of mayors we have in our cities, the character of the sheriffs and councilmen, than they are about the kind of officials they have in Washington. And while Negroes will overlook the importance and responsibility of their vote in these, their first concern will be to see to it that they have aided in the election of candidates who will possess a sense of fairness and justice to Negroes—who form a third of the State's population. Sun. 4-2-46

BIG VOTE AGAINST TALMADGE

Talmadge, in the current issue of his paper, urges all "white people" that will be 18 before the general election in November, 1946, to go to the ourt House and register. Either the former governor is insincere in his advocacy of continued registration, or else he is not fully aware of the true significance of a large vote. A large vote has never been to the advantage of the demagogue. To the contrary, it is the restricted vote that gives men like Talmadge, Bilbo, Rankin, Eastland and the others, their best chance for election. Moreover, the best informed writers in the state pin their hopes on a large vote to keep Talmadge where he properly belongs—out of the Governor's seat. As an example, The Macon (Ga.) News says: "The possibility that a Talmadge can tie out enough votes to constitute a balance of power diminishes in proportion to the increase in registration. Political bosses are successful only when the masses of people take no interest in governmental affairs."

If Negroes in Georgia will only take an active interest in the present vote registration campaign over the state and get registered in large numbers, they can still the voice of men like Talmadge. Talk won't do it, that has been tried for many years. 4-2-46

Since this story was completed, news has just been received that the U. S. Supreme Court Monday, refused to review two lower courts decision upholding right of Negroes to vote in all elections.

Effect of Atlanta Vote Belittled

Afro-American
Baltimore, Md.

WASHINGTON (ANP). — Expressing fear that minority groups might expect too much from Mrs. Helen D. Mankin in Congress, a number of writers are refuting the contention of some papers that the heavy colored vote in Atlanta won the seat for her.

Declaring that Mrs. Mankin's total plurality was 770, one writer pointed out that "770 white persons who voted for her also might claim that it was their franchise that did the work."

Although denying the statement that she won because she is a "liberal" and not "radical," another writer admitted that although her sympathies attracted a large colored and labor vote, the opposition really clinched the victory.

Explaining, the writer said, "Her opponents tried to make political capital of this support, but she successfully resisted the charge that she was the candidate of any group or clique." 3-2-46

Georgia Negro's Vote Plea Heard

Courier

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 19.—(AP) The plea of a Georgia Negro for the right to vote in that state's Democratic primary was taken under advisement Tuesday by the U. S. circuit court of appeals.

Primus E. King, of Columbus, Ga., denied the right to vote in Muscogee county on July 4, 1944, was awarded $100 damages against the county Democratic executive committee. The committee and state Democratic party officials appealed the decision of the middle Georgia federal court to the circuit court.

Charles J. Bloch, of Macon, attorney for the committeemen, said the lower court ruled the Georgia case should be governed by the U. S. supreme court decision in a 1944 Texas case. The supreme court held Negroes could not be barred on account of their race from Democratic primaries in Texas. 2-26-46

The Macon attorney contended, however, that Georgia primary laws differ with those of Texas. Political parties in Georgia, he said, are entirely voluntary organizations and set their own rules of procedure. In Texas the law requires the holding of primaries by major parties and regulates operation of county, district and state executive party committees.

Harry S. Strozier, of Macon, attorney for King, said the lower court decision gave the Columbus Negro "only half a right to vote." He asked the circuit court to enlarge on the district court decision and affirm King's right to vote on any candidates in a Democratic primary election.

Georgia Negroes Vote In Primaries

Miami Herald
Miami Florida

VALDOSTA, Ga.—(ANP)—Several hundred qualified Negro voters cast ballots in last Tuesday's city primary for candidates for the offices of mayor and city councilmen, and in a special election to decide whether the city would purchase and operate an electrical distribution system.

The total number of registered voters for these elections was 3,700. According to the registrar of Lowndes county where Valdosta is located, 654 Negroes were listed on the books and of this number 437 were qualified to vote in the primary and special election. 2-16-46

A run-off election was scheduled for Friday in the primary to determine whether H. B. Edwards or the incumbent, Frank Rose, would head the city government. Edwards, a former state senator, led Mayor Rose by a vote of 1,246 to 1,180 and David Bell was third with 447 votes.

Voters decided against the city-owned electrical distribution system by a vote of 1,559 to 1,208.

Cloud On 'White Primary' Darkened By High Court

Advertiser
Montgomery Ala.

ATLANTA, April 1.— (AP) — Georgia, a deep South state with a heavy Negro population and no poll tax, was told by the Supreme Court today the minority race can vote in its "white primary" this fall.

The effect amounted to that when the court declined to review lower Federal court rulings that Negroes are entitled to vote in the Georgia Democratic primaries—the actual elections.

The Supreme Court gave no reason for its refusal to review the Georgia case, but two years ago, in a similar case from Texas the court upheld the right of Negroes to vote in the primaries.

In view of the Texas decision, Georgia politicians frankly did not expect the high court to act otherwise; but they wanted the court to rule, one way or the other, before the fall primaries.

The decision heightened the prospect that Georgia will become the first deep South state with a large Negro population and no poll tax to witness the mass suffrage of Negroes.

Other "Black Belt" states either have a poll tax or other voting restrictions or have found a way to get around the decision of the Supreme Court.

In South Carolina, all laws relating to the primary have been stripped from the statute books and the primaries are unregulated by the State. 4-2-46

Georgia admittedly made a move in the same direction last summer when it adopted a new constitution leaving out all mention of primaries.

To get around the Supreme Court decision, Georgia politicians admit they would have to scrap a law which permits a county unit system of voting and gives poltical dominance to small rural counties. Ala.

They admit the legislature would never do this.

An alternative has been suggested by gallus-snapping Gene Talmadge, whose regime in Georgia was broken three years ago by young Gov. Ellis Arnall, and who is regarded as a candidate for governor again this fall. Tuesday

Talmadge suggests that the State Democratic executive committee, which makes the rules governing the Democratic primary, meet and adopt the county unit system as part of its machinery.

Then, he says, the legislature could meet and scrap the law. However, Gov. Arnall—constitutionally barred from a second term—has shown no indication he is inclined to do this.

The issue of Negro suffrage and the prospect of a red hot gubernatorial campaign has brought about unprecedented registration in Georgia in recent months. Any number of organizations are behind the movement. Tuesday

House Speaker Roy V. Harris, of Augusta, who has been regarded as a possible candidate for governor, has like Talmadge urged an early session of the legislature and the Democratic State eecutive committee to take action. 4-2-46

Poll Tax and the Vote

Editor Constitution:

Gov. Arnall, in Washington to-day, declined immediate comment on the Supreme Court's refusal to consider the litigation. That does not mean I will not have any comment, but there will be none until I have read the court's opinion," he told a reporter. "Right now I am tied up in the legislature and to vote, taken until after the Supreme court acted in the case.

Chairman Lon Duckworth of the State committee said only Saturday, however, that a call for the meeting of his committee would not be issued until after the Supreme Court passed on the Muscogee County case.

Gov. Arnall, likewise, had said that no steps looking to a session of the legislature would be taken until after the Supreme court's decision in the case. Politicians will now get to it (the court's decision) play for the Negro vote.

The papers say that the court all because of the abolition of the poll tax, which was imposed by the wisdom of the great men of Georgia. Was 3-13-46

The Negro Primary Vote

Evidence that Dougherty County Negroes apparently were carefully coached before they marched to the polls more than 2,000 strong in last week's Democratic primary may be found in the returns.

In the governor's race, they threw 2,042 votes to Carmichael, none to O'Kelley, 14 to Rivers and only 2 to Talmadge. They gave Frank Gross 1,832 ballots in the lieutenant-governor's race, while his five opponents received a total of 118. Congressional candidate Neely Peacock received 1,906 Negro votes, Eugene Cox 42.

And so it was all down the ticket. Even in the state official races, one man was earmarked for an almost solid Negro vote. For example: Ben Fortson, in his race for Secretary of State, won 1,855 Negro votes in Dougherty County while his opponent, Camilla's Napier Burson, garnered a handful of 58.

It is understandable that Negroes would vote against Mr. Talmadge, who made a white primary his platform plank No. 1, and Mr. Cox, through whose efforts the Fair Employment Practices Commission bill has been kept bottled up in the House Rules Committee. But neither Mr. Fortson or Mr. Burson had made any mention of a white primary, or had referred to the FEPC bill or any other controversial racial subject in his campaign. They were just two men seeking office, and if either had a platform the average voter didn't know it. That leaves just one answer. Not only was the Negro instructed in the mechanics of casting his ballot; he also was told for whom to vote. Otherwise, the losing candidates would have received more votes.

This is a rather lamentable state of affairs. "Block voting" is basically undemocratic.

The Negro who allows himself to be told how to vote is forsaking the very right which United States Supreme Court decisions have insisted he must be allowed to exercise.

Talmadge Promises Negroes Won't Vote

The News Birmingham, Ala.
Wed. 10-9-46

MACON, Ga., Oct. 9—(AP)—Gov.-Nominate Eugene Talmadge promised the Georgia Democratic convention today that Negroes would not again be permitted to vote in a state Democratic primary.

Talmadge, still in a Jacksonville hospital for treatment of a stomach ailment, sent his speech to be read by his son, Herman.

Talmadge insisted, "The Negro has not demonstrated his capability of casting intelligent ballots." He asserted this was proved in the recent Democratic primary, when "despite the fact that there were four candidates for the office of governor, one candidate received 99 per cent of the Negro vote."

"Such block voting by an uneducated group does not further the cause of good government and is not in accordance with the wishes of Georgia Democrats."

Talmadge said all candidates for governor campaigned on essentially the same platform, except for one plank—white supremacy. "I am very happy," he said, "that the majority of the white Democrats of Georgia agreed with the platform that I advocated and gave me more than 100,000 majority vote of the white Democrats of this state."

(Talmadge polled 305,777 popular votes, compared with 314,421 for his principal opponent, James V. Carmichael. His supporters claim that approxiamtely 100,000 opposition votes were cast by Negroes.)

Negroes in Fulton Discuss Candidates

By The Associated Press

Fulton County Negroes are holding mass meetings to discuss candidates in the July 10 Democratic primary when they will vote for the first time in a state primary.

Approximately 25,000 Negroes are registered to vote.

The Atlanta World said an approved list of candidates from governor down to members of the Legislature was read Monday night at the meeting in the Central Methodist Church. Editor C. A. Scott, of the World, declined to make public the list as established by the Citizens Democratic Club whom he heads as president.

Georgians Go To Polls Next Week As Mass Suffrage Comes South

The Birmingham News
Birmingham, Ala.

BY HENRY LESESNE

ATLANTA, Ga., July 10—(AP)—The prospect of mass suffrage, including a large Negro vote, for the first time in the Deep South, has whipped up unprecedented interest in Georgia's gubernatorial primary next week.

Registration has just closed and about 1,000,000 Georgians have written their names in the books to vote July 17 in the Democratic primary, the actual election in the Solid South.

This is well more than double the customary registration. Only about 120,000 Negroes are registered, but they are voting in a Georgia "white" primary for the first time.

While such a large potential Negro vote has never materialized in the Deep South until now, an equally important factor is the vote of several hundred thousand teen-aged, who have registered in mass numbers.

Wed. 7-10-46

Georgia was the first, and so far the only, state to reduce the voting age from 21 to 18.

* * *

THE CAMPAIGN finds two veteran Georgia politicians, ex-Govs. Gene Talmadge and E. D. Rivers, seeking a comeback. The Arnall candidate is 35-year-old James V. Carmichael, wartime bomber plant manager and ex-legislator.

Arnall couldn't run for renomination. A new constitution adopted in his administration prohibits a governor from succeeding himself.

Arnall led a dramatic and surprising legislative battle last year which ended in the repeal of Georgia's poll tax. The Supreme Court of Georgia, in effect, held, in effect, some months later held, in effect, that Negroes could vote in the primary.

The Ku Klux Klan was revived in Georgia about the time the campaign began. Arnall asserts its aim is mainly political. The state has a suit pending to revoke the Klan's charter.

Talmadge has made an open bid for Klan support. Rivers, himself accused of Klan leanings in his administration, recently said Arnall once boasted of being a Klansman—a statement Arnall emphatically denied.

Wed. 7-10-46

The Georgia primary is expected to bring out a vote extraordinarily large for a Southern state.

NEGRO VOTE

There are several very interesting angles to the present political question in Georgia, not the least important of which is the trends that will be established by at least two and possibly three groups that are new to voting or not controlled or coordinated voting.

The first and least understood is the negro vote, which is coming into action for the first time in any quantity. There are said to be some hundred thousand voters among the negroes of the state, although the reports have been exaggereated in some sections. They are expected by some politicians to vote as directed by the CIO or some other organization of that type. The most able and worthy of them will take no such voting dictums but will try and express their own convictions and show faith in their best friends on earth, the responsible people of the South. Just how many will vote and how many will not wish to exercise the franchise even after being railroaded or persuaded to get on the list is not known.

The next most important element will be the labor vote and this is said to be outlined to support a candidate for governor. It may be Rivers. It certainly will not be Talmadge and it now looks as if it will not be Carmichael. Labor will vote independently in Georgia

Negro Vote ... Near Bond Issue Talk

An enthusiastic gathering of 1,500 Negro voters at the Booker T. Washington Stadium heard leaders of the drive for the Greater Atlanta $40,400,000 bond issue explain the issue's importance to all Atlanta's population Monday night.

Numerous speakers, including Mayor Hartsfield and public-spirited citizens, explained how the issue not only would make Atlanta a more prosperous, comfortable city, but is direly needed for the sake of the population's health and general welfare, "and not to push Atlanta ahead of the times, but to bring it up from 20 years behind."

NEGRO WINS VOTE BY QUOTING LINCOLN

Elderly Georgian, Who Would Give His Right Hand for His Government, Also Qualifies

ATLANTA, July 12—Efforts to strike Negroes from the vote registration lists for Wednesday's Democratic primary continued in Georgia today although halted in four southern counties by a temporary restraining order issued in Federal Court at Brunswick.

Reports indicated that "from 20 to 50 per cent" of registered Negroes were being disqualified as voters in some counties.

Recital of words of Abraham Lincoln and the asertion of a 76-year-old Negro that he would give his right hand to his Government, if necessary, attracted interest at today's proceedings here in Fulton County.

"What is a Democratic form of government?" 7-13-46

"Government of the people, by the people and for the people," was the answer.

Although the attorney seeking disqualification asserted that America had a Republican rather than a Democratic form of Government, the deputy registrar ruled that the young Negro's knowledge of Lincoln qualified him.

John Baskin, who walked with a cane and spoke with difficulty, said he did not know under what form of Government the nation operated but he declared that he owned property and had always paid his taxes. Asked what his obligations to his Government were he held up his right hand and stated: 7-13-46

"To give that hand to them, if they need it."

The deputy registrar ruled that he could vote.

A woman was disqualified, however, because she could not define a Republican form of Government other than to say that her obligations to such a Government were to vote, obey its laws and send her sons to the Army.

Negroes Place 120,000 Names On Ga. Books

ATLANTA, Ga., July 9.—(AP)—The prospect of mass suffrage—including a large Negro vote, for the first time in the deep South—has whipped up unprecedented interest in Georgia's gubernatorial primary next week.

White Registrants Lead Negro Voters by Nine and Half to 1

White voters outnumber Negro registrants by a ratio of seven to one, a survey of registration lists throughout the State by the Associated Press has revealed. Excluding the five "big city" counties, the ratio is nine and half to one.

With the approaching July 17th state-wide Democratic primary being the first in which Negroes will have the right to vote, the survey showed 780,722 white persons registered, 116,345 Negroes for a total of 897,067.

Further registrations are possible in all counties except Fulton, the books in that county having closed June 5, a month before the deadline in other counties.

In these counties, the preponderance of white registrants to Negroes is approximately three and a half to one, with 188,717 white registrants, 55,187 Negroes for a total of 243,904.

The exclusion of these five counties from the list leaves the following figures for the other 154 counties of the State:

White	592,005
Negro	61,158
Total	653,163

This means that outside the "big city" counties, the white vote holds an edge of about nine and a half to one over the Negro vote. Slightly more than half the Negro vote is distributed between these 154 counties.

The five "big city" counties control 30 of the unit votes of the State's 410 in the primary election, leaving 380 for the other counties.

In only one county of the State does the Negro registration approach the number of white registrants. This is Liberty county, which reported 1,470 white registrants and 1,330 Negroes.

In six counties—Webster, Dawson, Fayette, Forsyth, Towns and Union—the survey showed no Negro registrants.

NEGRO VOTE BAN RUMORS ARE PROBED BY COWART

MACON, June 15. — United States District Attorney John Cowart said Saturday investigations were being made to determine whether Negroes seeking to register for voting in the Democratic White Primary have been disqualified illegally in some Georgia counties.

Explaining that he could make no specific statement at this time regarding such allegations, Cowart added:

"We are vitally interested in seeing that the rights of Negroes are protected."

Charges of disfranchisement of Negroes have arisen at intervals since the United States Supreme Court recently upheld their right to vote in Georgia primaries. County officials have denied the charges.

The United States Department of Justice has declared that any cases of Negroes being prevented from registering will be vigorously prosecuted.

Registered Voter Total In State Numbers 1,077,949

It has been announced by the office of the Secretary of State that the number of registered voters in Georgia now totals 1,077,949. Although registration closed before July 17, the official total was not disclosed until a few days ago.

Voters in the democratic primary totaled 691,881. Separate totals of white and negro votes were not figured.

Additional Challenges Prepared from Chauncey, But Notices Have Not Been Issued

In a two-to-one vote taken by the Dodge County Board of Registrars Wednesday, approximately 175 Negroes, registered for voting in the primary of July 17, have been left on the voters' list, following challenges citing their disqualification issued by Pondtown, Sandgrove and Milan white citizens last week.

Roscoe Nash, elected to the chairmanship of the board after his appointment last week, said Wednesday that both he and Matthew Bellflower voted to leave the Negroes' names on the list, and that Bart Harrell, third member voted otherwise.

Nash and Bellflower were appointed to the board of registrar by Judge Eschol Graham last week to fill the vacancies created by the resignations of Mrs. Pearl Pierce and Alf Burnham. The resignations were handed in after the challenges against the Negroes were issued last week.

More Challenges

Clearly a political move on the part of the Talmadge faction in Dodge county, and admittedly so more challenges were issued from Chauncey precinct this week. However, Col. Hal Smith, county attorney and counsel for the challengers, is holding the additional 76 challenges pending further developments in the matter.

Chairman Nash said that Col. Smith had said that if the board's action had taken such a turn, he saw no use is submitting the new challenges.

Col. Smith was contacted by The Times-Journal Wednesday afternoon for a statement, but he said he did not wish to make a statement for publication.

Nash stated that the board has adjourned until Monday.

In spite of the fact that notices to appear Monday of this week were issued to the 175 or more Negroes in Pondtown, Sandgrove and Milan precincts, not more than a handful appeared at the courthouse, it is said, and only two or three appeared before the board. No action was taken on these two or three. Testimony as to their disqualification was presented by challengers from these districts, but still the board would take no action in removing the names. Instead, they adjourned until next Monday.

Responsible for challenges issued last week are T. W. Harrell, John J. Conner, J. O. Stuckey, George C. Stuckey, Dalton Burnham, J. J. Hilliard and H. L. Fuller, all of Rhine or Pondtown; Zack G. Reaves of Sandgrove and Henry Farmer of Milan.

Members of the board of registrars revealed that there have been no challenges against the qualifications of any white person in the county.

Five points are brought out in the challenges. They deal with citizenship, residence, character, unable to understand duties of citizenship under republican form of government,, can't read or write or interpret paragraphs of constitution when read to them.

As was stated in this newspaper last week, the board of registrars hold the upper hand in the matter: they can or cannot question a person's qualifications, or they can throw the whole thing out of the window and let all the Negroes vote as they are now registered.

Talmadge Asks Chatham Group; Withdraws Bid

Herman Talmadge, son of Georgia's Democratic nominee for governor, told the Savannah Press Thursday that recently nominated Chatham County legislators had been asked to attend the State Democratic Convention as Talmadge delegates, but that the invitation later had been withdrawn.

The invitation was withdrawn, the younger Talmadge said, when it was learned the Chatham legislators "didn't want to come."

Earlier he told the Associated Press members of the Chatham House delegation "haven't been asked to serve."

He had announced Wednesday that telegrams had been sent to Democratic Committee chairmen in counties which Talmadge carried in the primary asking them to name nominees to the Legislature as delegates to the convention. He would not elaborate on his statement regarding the Chatham delegation. Chatham County went to Mr. Talmadge in the primary.

The Savannah Evening Press reported the three Chatham House nominees had been invited to serve as delegates to the convention, but had declined.

The Press said John J. Bouhan, chairman of the County Democratic Executive Committee, was compiling a list of the county delegates from a list submitted by friends of Mr. Talmadge. Included in the list were the names of R. E. Evans Jr., Malberry Smith Jr. and Herbert S. Skinner, candidates of the Citizens' Progressive League, who upset the Chatham political machine in the primary.

Their names were included in compliance with a telegram from Talmadge saying "I would likewise appreciate having all newly Assembly as delegates to the convention."

The convention which will nominate Mr. Talmadge meets in Macon October 9. Talmadge leaders plan to consider overhauling the state's primary set up at the convention to permit only white voters. The Press said Negro voters supported the Mr. Bouhan was in Atlanta Thursday, but could not be located for a statement.

Negro Vote Ends Cracker Party Rule In Georgia

Chicago Defender

Unity At Polls Defeats 'White Supremacy' Slate

Sat 4-27-46

By FRED ATWATER
(Defender Staff Correspondent)

ATLANTA, Ga. — The eyes of the nation watched Georgia last week as race hate — America's Frankenstein of disunity—was repudiated at the polls.

In Richmond County (Augusta) the strongly entrenched Cracker Party, despite an intensified campaign of Negro-baiting sponsored by it, was soundly trounced in the County primary last Tuesday. Independent candidates, representing the progressive policies of Gov. Ellis Arnall, were swept into office by an intelligent white electorate supported by almost 2,000 newly enfranchised Negro voters.

The 20-year domination of Richmond County by the Cracker Party ended in a rout as the Arnall forces defeated them by a nearly 2-1 margin.

Winners in the primary—tantamount to election—were: William S. Morris, publisher of the Augusta Chronicle, John B. Towill and Henry Eve, for the Legislature. The Independents also took over the County Commission with David Franklin, James Walker and Scott Nixon ousting the three Cracker Party incumbents, Frank Miles, Frank Hooper and Charles Pitts.

Morris Now Kingpin

Topping the list of Cracker politicians going down to ignoble defeat was Speaker of the House Roy Harris, a rabid white supremist who has drawn his pay checks as a politician for 24 years for monies paid by white and black Georgia taxpayers. Pierce King and W. W. Holley, were the other two Cracker legislators who whooped up the race question and lost to Independents.

Morris will succeed Harris as the county's most influential office-holder.

Richmond County Battle Ground

The Richmond County battle was regarded as the first phase of the struggle between Governor Arnall's law and order forces and the irreconcilables or hate-spreading faction of Georgia Democrats for control of the destiny of the state. The latter are led by Harris of the Cracker Party and former Gov. Eugene Talmadge.

Harris, bitter in defeat, further attempted to engender racial hatred when he charged his ousting to the Negro vote.

The official tabulation revealed that Morris received 1,994 Negro votes and Harris 437. Morris had a majority of more than 3,000 exclusively white votes over the Cracker Party candidate.

Cracker Party vote officials are said to have prevented more than 200 colored persons from voting in Augusta's Fourth ward by not providing a sufficient number of voting booths for the segregated Negroes and by employing dilatory tactics in accepting them at the polls.

Sat 4-27-46

Twenty-one thousand eight hundred twenty-five whites and 4,617 Negroes are registered as voters in Richmond County. Normal registration was said to have been previously numbered around from 12,000 to 15,000.

Talmadge Seeks Harris' Support

After admitting defeat, Harris renewed his effort to have the Legislature meet in extra-ordinary session for the purpose of "saving" the white primary.

Red-gallused Gene said that the Negro vote defeated Harris. The hate-spreading aspirant for Governor asserted that Harris' cause was the white man's cause, and that "you are either white or black on this issue. I chose the white side."

Continuing, Talmadge said: "You'll go to their (Negroes) homes, knock on their doors with hat in hand, shake hands with all of them, and kiss the babies if you want to be elected."

If elected Governor, he promises to wipe from the statute books laws which he contends have provided the way for the courts to uphold the Negro's right to participate in Georgia Democratic primaries.

At Savannah, white and Negro voters have banded themselves into a new movement known as the Chatham-Savannah Club, and claims a membership of approximately 4,000 qualified voters.

M. L. Arnau, white, Savannah druggist who heads the club, said that 2,300 white and 1,700 Negro voters are members. He declared that efforts are being made to increase the membership to a point where the group may be able to fulfill its program. The support of organized labor and 10,000 potential Negro voters is also claimed by the president.

One of the avowed purposes of the movement is to oust those who are classed as ring politicians of Chatham County's formidable machine-controlled political set-up.

Sat 4-27-46

The advisory committee members are: C. E. Elder, H. W. Waters, E. V. Williams, Henry Wilson, Marion Pitts and H. C. Dieda. Wilson and Pitts are colored.

Arnau said the club's creed is: "He isn't fit to be free who doesn't get fighting mad when he sees authority imposing on the helpless."

Pollard Funeral Home Packs 'Em In To the Last

Sat 5-4-46

They did it again Friday! For the third consecutive day this week all-time registration peaks for Fulton County were reached when 955 Negroes were added to the registration rolls. Registration Friday was conducted at the Pollard Funeral Home, 439 Fraser Street, special station set up by the Fulton County Registrar to relieve some of the pressure of registration at the Court House.

Meanwhile, registration of Negroes at the County Court House Friday continued without interruption. Again at 8 o'clock Friday morning upwards of 250 Negroes were present to greet the Registrars when the books open at 8:30. Registration will be continued at the Court House today, after which the books for the entire county will be closed. Some spokesmen for the All-Citizens Committee Friday evening expressed the hope that the books will remain open throughout the day today, in view of the fact that the law requiring the closing stipulated May 5, and since that day falls on Sunday. No definte conclusion on that joint had been reached here late Friday night. And Negroes who have not yet registered should not risk the danger of not getting registered depending upon the books remaining open all day instead of half the day.

POLLARD MACHINE

Long before registration got underway Friday, the smooth-clicking Pollard machine was in evidence. There was Rev. Wm. Jackson, the pastor of Bethlehem Baptist Church and Chairman for precinct B, who had handbills printed, calling attention to the special registration for Friday; opened his church doors to give rest and relief to nearly 1,000 citizens who milled in and out as they were assigned numbers which sent them across the Street to Pollard for Registration. Unlike Wednesday and Thursday at the special stations, not one person left the church because of impatience or inability to register. Let no one underestimate the service being rendered to the people of Summerhill and Pittsburgh by Rev. Wm. Jackson, the pastor of Bethlehem Baptist church and Rev. B. J. Johnson, pastor, Greater Mt. Calvary Baptist church.

WORKERS LAUDED

Nothing was more evident than the groundwork done by Mr. Pollard, Charels Greenlea, Warren Cochrane, James Hunter and David Watson. As a result, the stage was all set when the two o'clock hour came around. There tables from the Bethlehem Baptist church and Allen Temple AME church, Pollard had chairs enough to prevent anyone from standing more than ten minutes at a time. There were ink wells and pens. There was paper and every conceivable necessity for speeding up the registration tempo.

Sat 5-4-46

Charles Greenlea, USO Director, and Assistant Ward Leader, yanked out of the long lines several persons during the registration hours who were unable to read and write.

Here are the workers who gave noteworthy assistance to the Registrars, Rev. A. C. Peacock and F. Young Howell; Mrs. Camay Walker Mrs. Agnes Walker Washington, Miss Edna Hutchinson, secretary of USO and Mrs. Lena Sayles, Counsel of the Georgia Veterans League; Mr. John Wright Jr. and Albert Martin, World War II veterans; Miss Annie Wright student of Clark College, and the following students of Morris Brown College working under the leadership of Dr. R. O. Johnson; Alfonso Jesse, Leonard Summers, Charles McAffee, Herbert Craig, Robert Threet, John Thomas, James Green, Morris Morgan, Clayborn Edwards, James Phillips, Roy Cowell and Marvin Brown. And there are many others, including Rev. Peacock and Mr. Howell, the two registrars, who gave all they had in the way of patience, speed and understanding intelligence to cooperate in the registration campaign. Even the heavens smiled upon the vote drive. For if the downpour had come one hour earlier, say about 4:30, the results indeed would have been so different. And instead of ending with 955 it is altogether possible that there would have been around 600, since the people could not leave home in the rain and hail.

Negroes Register 4 to 1 White In Augusta

Constitution

Atlanta, Ga.

Sun 4-30-46

Constitution State News Service.

AUGUSTA, April 29—For the first time in the history of the city of Augusta, a predominant white ward now has more Negroes registered in it than white. This, the Third Ward, shows 1,420 Negroes registered as against only 1,262 white persons.

At the close of registration for last week, Negroes registered at a ratio of approximately four to one white persons in both city and county registration places. Unofficial tabulations compiled by Chronicle reporters showed 5,461 Negroes eligible to vote in the city primary without Saturday's total included. Official county figures announced by Tax Collector J. Bland Goodwin showed 1,573 Negroes registered in the Third Ward for county and state elections as against 1,363 whites.

The official total registration in the county up to date is now 22,241 whites and 6,049 Negroes. Unofficial totals in the city shows a total registration of 23,000, which includes the 5,416 Negroes.

In the Second and Fourth Wards, Negro registration has almost reached the level of white persons and may pass it at the City Hall with continued steady lines expected Tuesday, which will be the dead-line for registration as preparations must be made by city officials for the city primary sometime in July. Seven councilmen are to be elected.

CRACKERS MAY WITHDRAW

Sun 4-30-46

An independent advisory committee directed a letter to the city Democratic Executive Committee urging the committee to set the date for the city primary in the latter part of June. Members of the independent committee were reported holding regular meetings and progressing with the work of selecting candidates from each ward for the Independent ticket.

It is problematical whether the candidates already named by the Cracker party will run or not. There is some talk, not official, the the Cracker party nominees might withdraw and let the Independents have the field.

Swinging into the final week of the campaign to secure 25,000 registrants into every available Negroes on the rolls in Fulton County, the Committee is making an effort to enter their names on the registration rolls. Thursday, May 2, from 2 to 5 p.m., University Recreation Hall

Friday, May 3, from 2 to 5 p.m., Pollard Funeral Home, 439 Fraser St., SE.

The All-Citizens Committee, despite this discrimination in service, is urging all Negroes who have not already registered to take advantage of these additional registration stations and get registered this week. The campaign for 25,000 registered voters is distressingly short of its goal. The last minute report on registration figures, place the number of Negroes at 18,700. This means that with all the available and additional stations registering Negroes, the campaign must be stepped up to a pace of over 800 per day in order to reach the goal.

RENEW EFFORTS

Ward leaders, precinct, census tract and block workers are urged to renew their efforts to get the people in their areas registered. During the past week, a sprinkling of Negroes registered at several of the stations established at Five Points. Sun. 4-28-46

Group workers are beginning the week with pep-meetings to spur on the registration drive. This afternoon at 4 p.m. the South Atlanta Civic League, headed by W. L. Rowe, is sponsoring a mass meeting at Bethlehem Center under the direction of Mrs. Ruth Hill. Excellent reports and results were achieved last week by Mrs. Eliza Winston and Mrs. Wilson.

At East Point, earlier this afternoon, there will be staged another big mass meeting at 3:30, spearheaded by the ministers, teachers and workers of College Park. W. L. Quillian is in charge of this program. This meeting will be held at the Siloame Baptist Church.

MASS MEET AT USO

At 8 o'clock on Thursday evening, May 2, there will be another mass meeting at the USO, with W. L. Calhoun, director. Ward 4 precincts A, B, C, and F are asked to attend in a group. The pledges of the Alpha Rho chapter of the Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity will make a house-to-house canvass under the direction of David Watson.

This evening at 8 o'clock a candlelight service will be held at the City Auditorium under the direction of Bishop Crockett for the benefit of the All-Citizens Committee on registration. Despite the fact that the new stations for Negroes have been announce, it is to be hoped that Negroes who have not already registered, will not wait for these stations to open. Keep on crowding into the Court House and get registered, leaders advise. We have only 6 more days in which to secure nearly 6,000 registrants, the Committee therefore pleads for everyone to go and take others along to get registered.

Members Alarmed Over Large Vote List In Fulton

Sun 5-3-46

In an effort to counteract the heavy Negro registration in Fulton County, the Democratic Executive Committee of the Fifth Congressional District has voted to abandon nomination of a Congressman by plurality and return to the county Unit System.

The committee voted eight to six Friday, defeating efforts of Congresswoman Helen Douglas Mankin and her attorney to maintain the plurality choice system.

The Negro issue appeared paramount in the minds of the committee members voting to change the system of selection. It had been rumored for some time that the committee would go back to the Unit plan to counteract the Negro vote in Fulton County. The committeeman expressed open concern over the large Negro registration

FULTON OUTWEIGHED

Under the Unit System in this district, Fulton and DeKalb Counties have six votes each and Rockdale County two votes. This means that DeKalb and Rockdale can outvote Fulton, a county with a much heavier population, in the Convention which makes the nomination. Sun 5-3-46

Mrs. Mankin lost her fight aganist the unit system in a test of strength. Murphy Chandler, of DeKalb offered the successful motion to revert to the unit voting. Mrs. Mankin submitted her appointment of State Senator Millican, as successor on the Committee of William Van Houten, deceased. Mrs. Mankin said she did so under the rules of the State Democratic Executive Committee. Former Representative William Schley Howard said the State Committee had no authority over the Fifth District Committee. Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, Secretary of the Committee, said that in her 20 years' service with it no vacancy had been filled except by the nominee following the Congressional Convention. Sun 5-3-46

Judge Shepard Bryan, Chairman then ruled that since Mrs. Mankin had been chosen in a special election and not in a Democratic Primary, she had no right to name Committee members. Ryburn Clay objected to the ruling and the Committee voted eight to six to uphold the Chairman's ruling.

The Fifth District Committee then decided to hold the Congressional Primary on July 17 the same day as the State Primary and to close entries at noon May 25.

Mrs. Mankin was elected to fill the vancancy of Robert Ramspeck, retired in a special election on February 12. The race proved a nip and tuck affair until Precinct B of Ward 3, located at Ashby Street School, reported, giving her a comfortable plurality over the nearest opponent in a field of seventeen candidates.

Bibb Negroes Ask White Help To Stop Buying Primary Votes

Reactionaries Hit Democrats' Move

Chicago Defender

By JOHN LE FLORE

(Defender Staff Correspondent)

ATLANTA, Ga.—Spurred by Gov. Ellis Arnall, the Georgia State Democratic Executive Committee officially ended the life of the traditional white primary elections in the state last week. Sat. 5-11-46

As a result of the democratic action, thousands of Negro voters will cast ballots in the state Democratic primary on July 17. In the city of Atlanta alone, more than 24,000 colored citizens are qualified to vote.

Climaxing a bitterly fought struggle against "white supremicists" in the state to franchise Negro voters, the Georgia governor's victory became assured last Thursday when he addressed the Democratic Executive Committee. In his speech, Governor Arnall declared that he would never be a party to defiance of constitutional law or court rulings.

"As long as I am governor," said Arnall, "everybody can vote who the law says can vote. There will be no extra session of the legislature to repeal the laws protecting state primaries from fraud and corruption so that the big city machines can control Georgia. So far, only three members of the House and one senator have petitioned me for an extra session."

Continuing, Governor Arnall defied the "white supremacy at any costs" crowd, which includes ex-governor Eugene Talmadge and recently defeated House Speaker Roy V. Harris, when he stated, "The white primary is gone! Whether you like it, or I like it or not, the law says that all citizens who can qualify can vote. The quacks and demagogues just can't stand the light of facts."

The Georgia governor urged the committee to be honest about the Negro's voting privileges granted by the federal courts. He said that any man not willing to uphold the law is not worthy of democratic citizenship. Sat. 5-11-46

Governor Arnall also stated that this year, Georgia has no poll tax and that there are more young voters registered than ever before. He pointed out that there are more women registered in the state than men.

He promised that the election this year will be the first in the history of the state "where our young people can really speak out and have a voice in the government of Georgia."

The liberal executive asserted, "Prejudice is dead and will be completely overthrown in the coming election. Regardless of what some candidates propose to do, that is a fact we must face."

On the other side of the political fence, Talmadge, who is a gubernatorial candidate on a "white supremacy" platform, spurred his usual race-baiting tirade against Negro voting. Sat. 5-11-46

Talmadge Attacks

Talmadge attacked Arnall's stand by charging that the governor has "lined up with the Negroes. He has gone back on the traditions of the state and the Southland."

Dragging an old familiar herring, Talmadge continued, "Arnall well knows that Henry Wallace is at the head of a movement of the Political Action Committee to take control of the voting strength of the South through the Negroes and to pass the Fair Employment Practices Bill."

Whistling in the dark, Talmadge declared, "There's ample law already on the statute books in Georgia to disqualify seven-eights of the Negroes now registered in the state." He added that, "This law will be carried out and the Negroes will not be allowed to assist Governor Arnall in selling out the state of Georgia to alien Communist agents from abroad." Sat 5-11-4

Probe of Georgia Ban on Negro Voting Reported

Macon News

Macon, Ga., June 16.—(AP): The Macon Telegraph and News says it has learned that a sweeping federal investigation of alleged discriminatory disqualification of negro voters has been launched in Middle Georgia.

Although U. S. District Attorney John Cowart of the Middle District court of Georgia declined comment, The Telegraph said its informant declared the investigation already is in progress.

The Telegraph story added: "The probe, launched at the request of regis- trars throughout this section of the state, even though the literacy tests provided for in Middle Georgia voting laws have been made for counties registrars have purged the last several weeks that in a all but a minor fraction of the negroes to take the tests before being put on the lists." U. S. supreme court has ruled under Georgia voting laws.

The Fulton Primary

Daily Herald

Colored Atlantans voted Tuesday for their first time in a Democratic Primary. Reports from the election managers show that their voting was orderly and no different from that of other groups in the population. They voted for or against candidates according to their individual convictions and in the light of information furnished them by Negro leaders and organizations interested in the personal qualifications and fitness of the various candidates. And an analysis of returns shows that their votes were, for the most part, rather evenly divided between the candidates, according to their previous records or the lack of it.

6-26-46 Times.

Of course, we think we should emphasize the fact that there were no great issues at stake. The issue of good government, they believed, would be served, no matter which of the candidates won. Basically, that line of reasoning was fairly sound and logical. No charge of being affiliated with the Ku Klux Klan was hurled at any of the candidates to frighten away Negro support. No charge of race-baiting or demagoguery was made, either of which would have been sufficient reasons why Negroes would have voted very differently. Atlanta, Ga.

We take this opportunity, therefore, to congratulate the winners and to commend the Negro organizations in giving intelligent and effective leadership to the new voters, indicating the unity of purpose so sorely needed in any group of the size and importance of that of the Negro.

Finally, we cannot refrain from an expression of regret that so few of the 24,000 or more registered Negroes took advantage of the opportunity of voting. To say that we have 24,000 Negroes registered in Atlanta and then to sit by and do nothing to help bring about badly needed reforms in government is no better than being without a voting right. We feel certain that this situation will be essentially different when July 17 rolls around when candidates for the gubernatorial race will be nominated.

Citizenship Schools

Daily World Atlanta Ga.

The series of educational forums and citizenship schools announced here this week by the Citizenship Committee of the NAACP and the Atlanta Civic and Political League, should be the source of much helpful information to those of us who make up the 24,000 registered voters in Atlanta and Fulton County. Under the plans, though operating in separate spheres, registered Negro voters will be permitted to avail themselves of useful and vitally inmportant information on the mechanics of the new voting machine, the important issues in the several elections slated to be held, the candidates seeking election and on what platfoms. In addition these forums will act as a clearing house of Negro opinion regarding the fitness and personal qualifications of those who seek office.

Sunday 6-23-46

These mass-meetings, which moved off to a fine beginning here Friday night at the Greater Mt. Calvary Baptist Church, will continue up to July 16th, culminating in a final gathering at several of the larger church auditoriums in Atlanta, Rockdale Park, College Park, Decatur and East Point.

Daily World

None of us can afford to miss the advice and information which may be secured at these meetings, absolutely free to anyone who wills to attend. Already, several of us have misplaced our blue cards which tell us what precinct and ward we are to cast our ballots. There are stationed at these meetings experts who will be prepared to answer these questions and to save us the trouble and delay in getting to cast our ballot on election day. There too, we shall learn to go about operating these new machines which may prove to be a handicap to us in getting out a large vote. Let everyone of us make it our business to toss aside every weight and hindering cause which may prevent us from getting out a strong and representative vote.

Ungrounded Fears

Daily World Atlanta Ga.

The comparative registration figures published recently, and showing the number of Negro to white voters in Georgia is sufficient evidence that there is considerably more talk about Negro domination than can ever be justified by the facts. For every qualified Negro voter in the state, there are ten whites. In six counties there are no Negroes registered at all. And in more than 25 counties there is considerably less than 100 Negroes registered.

Hence, to all intents and purposes, there is not the slightest possibility of Negro domination, even if we were inclined to think so foolishly. In other words, the registration figures indicate one unmistakable fact: the Negro vote up to this point is not even a factor in the state, although it is the subject of much comment, and we believe, manufactured fear. Tuesday 6-25-46

There is thus no occasion for the fears and alarm being sounded all over the state about the Negro and the dire consequences to whites unless they rise up now and challenge the courts, the law and public sentiment to keep the Negro under the heel of some white man in order to make him an underpaid hireling. Frankly, we do not believe that the better thinking white people who have been thrown into contact with Negroes will ever be fooled into believing this sort of baseless propaganda. 6-25-46

SUIT DISMISSED

Tribune - Savannah, Ga.

The suit brought by The Hub against the tax collector to make him stop practices in his office which thwarted the registration of Negroes, was dismissed because the practice complained of in the suit had ceased to exist. It is unfortunate that it was impossible to get a directive from the court which would restrict the tax collector from permitting obstructive measures against Negro or other registrants in his office. Even though the filing of the suit accomplished in a measure the purpose of the suit, we fear other devices will be used to accomplish the purpose of those who are interested in keeping Negro registration down. The same or similar devices could be used to keep the registration of any group down—Jews, Catholics, or "the outs." The newest device, already in use, is that of asking many impertinent questions. The following is illustrative of what takes place now at the court house:

Q.—What do you want?

A. I want to register.

Q.—Who told you to come here, your preacher? 5-28-46

A.—No. Savannah Ga.

Q. Why do you want to register?

A.—I want to register so I can have the same rights as you.

Q.—Well, you don't have to get too smart.

A.—I'm not trying to be smart. I am trying to answer your questions.

This sort of thing is one of the reasons why it takes so much longer to register Negroes than white people. There ought to be enough sentiment for decency and simple justice in this county to do what the filing of a suit failed to do. That sentiment ought to be on the side of law observance, both in spirit and letter. Instances of the sort mentioned above, should be called to the attention of the tax collector. It is altogether possible he does not know about such things. The fact that during the time between the filing of the suit and its trial things were very much better at the court house, shows that with a little effort, everybody can be treated with ordinary courtesy without hurt to anybody. We do hope it will not be necessary to go to court again.

Deny Negro Literates Refused Right To Register

Atlanta Constitution

Atlanta Ga. Constitution State News Service.

COLUMBUS, May 27—Denying charges by a Negro Citizens Committee that some literate Negroes had not been permitted to register, Muscogee County Tax Commissioner Sterling Dudley said Monday that the only literacy test required by his office was the reading and understanding of the "voter's oath." 5-28-46—Tues.

Minister Arrested On Vagrancy Score

Rev. Hollis Ellington, 59, of 1617 Lansing Street, in South Atlanta was arrested by Fulton County deputy sheriffs, Wednesday, in the Lobby of the Courthouse, and was later released under $200 bond.

Rev. Ellington stated that he was going to the Ordinary's Office on business, when two deputy sheriffs grabbed him. He quoted one of the sheriffs as saying that he was going to lock him up for hanging around the Courthouse, telling Negroes to register and vote. This same deputy added that Negroes did not have any business voting.

WARRANT SAYS "VAGRANCY"

According to Rev. Ellington, the officers took him upstairs to take out a warrant, but they were told that he could not be arrested for telling people to register. The clerk said that they could book him for vagrancy, however, and they did.

The warrant, sworn out by Deputy Sheriff O. C. Puckett says that Rev. Ellington "did wander and stroll about in idleness; was able to work and did not work; had no property to support him, and further said accused had no visible and known means for a fair reputable and honest livelihood."

CHARGES EVIDENTLY FALSE

These charges are evidently false, at least in part. The Atlanta Daily World learned Thursday that Rev. Ellington is not only an ordained minister, but owns his home and has a small farm.

He is the pastor of Floy Creek Baptist Church and devotes some of his time to farming. Then, occasionally, he visits the Ordinary's Office and performs marriage ceremonies for colored couples applying for licenses.

Negroes' Voting Rights In Georgia Investigated

MACON, Ga., June 15—(AP)—U. S. District Atty. John Cowart said today that investigations were being made to determine whether Negroes seeking to register as voters have been disqualified illegally in some Georgia counties.

Explaining that he could make no specific statement at this time regarding such allegations, Cowart added:

"We are vitally interested in seeing that the rights of Negroes are protected."

Charges of disfranchisement of Negroes have arisen at intervals since the United States Supreme Court recently upheld their right to vote in Georgia primaries. County officials have denied the charges.

The U. S. Department of Justice has declared that any cases of Negroes being prevented from registering will be vigorously prosecuted.

Sat. 9-7-46

By HAROLD B. HINTON

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 6—The theory that Negroes, if permitted to participate in Democratic primaries in Georgia, will cast their ballots as a block and thus exercise a balance of power in some communities is expected to be tested at the municipal primaries here next December. Local political analysts are still poring over the local results of the primary in July, which resulted in the nomination of Eugene Talmadge for Governor.

Chatham County, which is mostly Savannah, was the only large, or six-unit-vote county, Mr. Talmadge carried. In Chatham County the Negroes voted solidly for his opponent, James V. Carmichael. This is not surprising since Mr. Talmadge elected to wage his electoral campaign on the almost exclusive issue of "white supremacy" with sweeping promises to keep Negroes out of Pullman cars and in the back of interstate buses, if they elected to travel through Georgia.

Lest there be any wonder how it is known so positively for whom the Negroes of Chatham County voted, it should be reported that they cast their ballots in fifty separate voting boxes. The tally of those boxes is a matter of public record.

"Unanimous Vote" Cited

Although their practically unanimous vote (one observer estimated that not more than fifty ballots in all the Negro precinct voting places were marked for Mr. Talmadge) was not enough to carry the county for Mr. Carmichael, that the same block vote did elect three members of the State Legislature pledged to oppose repeal of Georgia's primary laws, as Mr. Talmadge advocates.

Repeal of State primary laws is the South Carolina plan, evolved in 1944, to keep Negroes from voting in Democratic primaries.

Thus far no Federal court has challenged the concept that the Democratic party, acting as a private organization and spending its own funds, can establish the qualifications of its membership and the methods of selecting its nominees without running afoul of the United States Constitution and its amendments.

Those Savannah citizens who fear the possible Negro balance of power in Democratic primaries point to July's results as evidence. In the Governor's race, they say, the white vote was so overwhelmingly in favor of Mr. Talmadge that the Negroes were in a clear minority. In the legislative race, however, the white vote divided along traditional lines of the ins versus the outs, and the Negroes, with their single issue of repeal of the primary laws, turned the scales.

Views of the Clergymen

On the other hand, some of those in Savannah who have been most closely associated with interracial activities and organizations (and their number includes some of the leading clergy) do not concur in the estimate of the professional politicians and observers.

They believe that the Negro vote in local matters will tend to divide along the same lines as the white vote, provided that no straight racial issue, such as that raised by Mr. Talmadge, is presented.

They point out that organized intolerance has found no foothold in Savannah, even though it has made some headway in other parts of Geogia, Savannah has always considered itself as a semi-autonomous republic, in relation to the rest of the State, and this frame of mind has extended to racial relations, according to these workers in the field. They claim there has been a minimum of tension here, even during the war.

The practical politicians, however, were professionally impressed with the excellence of the organization of the Negro vote in the July primary, which was the first time Negroes had been permitted to participate in Democratic party selections of candidates. The organization is known as the hub and has been highly effective thus far.

Leading spirits are prosperous Negro business men, including a grocer and several undertakers. They turned out the vote, by using the normal organization extending down to block captains, to a point where probably every eligible Negro in Chatham County was registered in time for the last primary, except for a few thousand who were challenged.

They turned them out to vote, as well. There is still some bitterness over allegations that as many as 9,000 Negroes were standing in line to vote when the polls closed at 6 P. M.

Election officials say that most of the Negroes, voting for the first time and confronted with a ballot longer than a column in a newspaper, took longer to mark their ballots than experienced white voters. Some Negroes claim that arbitrary delays were enforced so that all the Negroes would not get a chance to vote.

On Attracting Votes

Whatever they think about the merits of that discussion, the politicians saw that the Negro vote can be attracted to the polls, at the moment, in greater proportions than the white vote.

The demonstration was all the more striking because of the 60,000 registered voters in Chatham County, under the new rules which include abolition of the poll tax and lowering of the voting age to 18, 20,000 are Negroes.

The under-cover unrest of local municipal office-seekers has reached a point where one faction is reported to be considering letting the city primary in December go by default.

If these politicians should decide on such a course, their decision would be based on the hope that the incoming Talmadge administration, which will take office in January, will be successful in repealing the primary laws and restoring the "white primary" for Georgia.

Consider Negro Policemen

Another practical school of thought is said to be evolving a scheme to train a few Negroes for the police, then a few more for the Fire Department, and finally to admit Negroes to the Department of Public Works.

The underlying philosophy would entail allaying possible Negro block voting by getting the Negroes interested, by participation, in the city Government.

The possible importance of these local maneuverings must be assayed against the watch cries of Mr. Talmadge and Senator Theodore G. Bilbo of Mississippi. They agree that any deviation from the "white primary" might result in a balance of power by a block Negro vote, with rival white candidates competing for its support. That is the spectre they have successfully dangled before the voters of their States this summer.

Letter To The Editor

Atlanta Daily World

GIVES "NEXT STEP" IN POLITICAL BATTLE

Atlanta Dn.

To The World Editor:

Negroes of Atlanta have taken the first two steps towards their political emancipation. They are well on the way to first-class citizenship because they have registered and voted in the Democratic Primary.

These steps have not been won easily. For twenty years the movement to get large numbers of our people registered has been slowly moving to the recent climax when nearly 25,000 names were on the books of the Registrar's office. The pioneers and hardest workers in the drive for registration were the Atlanta Branch of the NAACP and the Civic and Political League. The NAACP, under the directorship of Professors Logan and Bacote conducted Citizenship Schools in the early days when we needed to be educated in the necessity of registering as a preliminary to voting. The main battle in this drive for a large registration was the All Citizens Committee on Registration which less than one year ago accepted the challenge and accomplished the task of registering 25,000 Negroes so that they could be ready to vote in the Democratic Primary of July 17. The bulwark of the movement to make us politically conscious has been the Citizens Democratic Club of Fulton County which was organized less than three years ago and whose officers and members have been most active in all efforts to increase the registration of our people.

The second step, that of voting in the Democratic Primary was also the combined efforts of all public-spirited citizens of Atlanta. When the national office of the NAACP won the decision from the U. S. Supreme Court in the Texas Primary cases, Negroes in Georgia as elsewhere realized that the time for action was at hand. The Citizens Democratic Club was organized for the primary purpose of organizing Negro Democrats and preparing them to participate in the Democratic Primary of Georgia. The Club backed one of its members in the suit entered against T. E. Suttles, Registrar and Tax Collector in order to require him to submit the names of registered Negroes to the poll managers so that they could vote. Before the second suit, also entered by members of the Club and sponsored by the organization, was filed, a similar group of Negroes won a decision in the famous Macon case which re-established the right of all registered Democrats to vote in the Democratic Primary.

But these two steps are preliminary to the real fight. The next is the organizaiton of a large group of Negroes in a permanent Democratic Club, whose power will be felt in state and local Democratic circles The Citizens Democratic Club of Fulton County must join with other similar clubs in Georgia to perfect an organization on a state-wide basis so that interest in government will be increased and the Democratic Party will work for all democrats. We are all Georgians and must be active members of the party which controls the government in our state and in our counties and cities. A two-party system is desirable in a democracy but when such a system is absent we must become an integral part of the party which controls our government. Various court decisions have declared that the Democratic Primary in Georgia is tantamount to the state government. The Primary is controlled by the State Democratic Committee.

Negroes must have representation on this committee if we are to be sure that our voice will be heard when decisions are made and plans are formulated. We are concerned with better health, school and police conditions in each city, town and county of Georgia. In order to get these counties we must work with local Democrats.

There is great danger that the enthusiasm which we now have will be stunted in our growth now because we are not rapidly pass away in the face of hard work. We will orderly, quiet and effective organization of our people into Democratic Clubs and become active in the club's program. That is with public-spirited officers and members our next step and we must take enthusiastic members and women, the Negro, young in whose one objective is the greatest battle. We must not become strong Democratic Clubs. Every Negro who has not done so must immediately join his local Democratic Club and become active in the club's program. That is our next step and we must take it if we would be politically free.

That is our next step and we must take it if we would be politically free. We must become an integral part of the party which controls our government. Negroes Enfranchised Only To Vote Republican Ticket?

He is 80 years old—and as black as negroes ever grow.

In our office Saturday he let it be known that the race problem as recently developing in politics has been giving him concern. He asked this reporter for some point on which he might reason with the people of his color as to the wise course for them to follow in a peaceful habitation with the white people upon whom they are largely dependent for the carrying forward of the worthwhile matters of government.

This reporter assured Gilmore that he was at his wit's end for a solution himself as to how best to live to maintain peace and harmony and the best that life offers.

Then Gilmore submitted a proposition which seemed to have some element of reason—and about which he was absolutely certain. He discussed the 14th amendment to the constitution which gave freedom to the negroes and made them citizens. He was familiar with the fact that Abraham Lincoln was credited with this transaction, and further with the fact that Abraham Lincoln was a Republican.

Then Gilmore asked this question: Abraham Lincoln represented the Republican party; he spoke for that party when he enfranchised the negroes, and he authorized them to become Republicans. Even since then for eighty years negroes have been Republicans by virtue of that authority—they were invited and welcome into the Republican party.

The Democrats, said Gilmore, have not invited the negroes—therefore they have no right to force themselves in where they are unwanted. The Democrats of Georgia have organized a white Democratic primary for their own purposes and procedures; it doesn't invite negroes nor Republicans, therefore, said Gilmore, I tell my people they have no right to force themselves by law into places which they have not been given by the 14th amendment. Lincoln permitted them to be negro Republicans, but he didn't have the power to make them white Democrats, did he?

We didn't answer Gilmore, because we recognize our lack of skill at law. We wonder if that eighty-year-old negro preacher has raised a worthwhile point?

We are transmitting this to the powers that quibble for whatever it is worth. Let them thank Gilmore for it if they will. Gilmore thinks the right to vote and live in discord with one's neighbor is a thing of small value as compared with the right and opportunity to live peaceably with the neighbors upon whom one must depend for safety and co-operation.

All Colored in Town District Vote Courthouse

Mason, Ga.
Progressive Argus

All Negroes quaified to vote in the July 17 primary, and residing in Jackson militia district, will cast ballots at the courthouse in Jackson, it has been decided by members of the Butts County Democratic Executive Committee.

Jackson district has two precincts, Pepperton and Jackson, and separate booths will be maintained for white and colored voters at the Jackson precinct. 7-4-46

No Negroes will be permitted to vote at Pepperton, it has been decided, but will be sent to Jackson courthouse where plenty of clerical help will be available.

This is the first time that Negroes have been permitted to vote in a primary in many years and the committee is anxious to do everything possible to avoid friction an see that the election is carried out in a smooth and legal manner.

Most of the Negroes in the county are registered in Jackson district, with a considerable sprinkling at Indian Springs and some of the other districts.

If the decision of the committee is followed and voters wil show the proper restraint and caution there is no reason why the primary cannot be conducted in a satisfactory manner.

County-by-County Tabulation Shows 1,072,543 Registered

The Constitution Atlanta, Ga.
Wed. 7-17-46

Constitution State News Service.

More than 1,072,543 (the unofficial total) Georgians are qualified to exercise their right of ballot at the polls today, the largest registration in the history of the State. Of this number, 136,615 are Negroes.

In 1940, only 540,401 persons were registered. And of this number, 355,068 voted.

The Constitution prints below the county-by-county tabulation of registration for today's primary election, together with the number of Negroes who are listed as registered in each county. The registration is unofficial due to the fact only approximately 100 counties have reported their registration totals to the Secretary of State's office.

What Sacred Rights?

SOME WEEKS AGO there appeared in this newspaper a sort of semi-news story describing the visit of an aged negro man to this office and outlining something of the philosophy which he shared with us as to the right of negroes to vote in the white Democratic primaries.

William Gilmore, a negro minister past 80 years of age, had suggested, among other things, that friendly relations among neighbors—white and black—are more to be valued by the people of his color that the mere right to cast a ballot for men for office whom they knew little or nothing. What Gilmore said about this right as applied to negroes, may, as you will admit, likewise be applied for men and women of all color—that ruptured friendships among neighbors are an injury to society which far outweighs the profit which comes from the exercise of franchise in matters wherein there is little or no opportunity to make wise choice.

Well, quite a good many of our readers commented to us pleasantly upon the merit of Gilmore's philosophy, and apparently they talked to him along the same line, for this aged negro philosopher strolled into our office again a few days ago and spoke rather happily of the fact that in all the eighty years of his life he had never hand any trouble with any neighbor, white or black. And then Gilmore commented, "The law gives me, when I drive a car, the right to occupy one-half the road. I find it pleasant and agreeable to exercise that right most of the time; but sometimes I meet a fellow—white or black—who seems unwilling to recognize my right. Then I give him the whole road. The law has given it to me, but it does not require me to exercise that right. If I insisted I render some of my rights." That was the philosophy which eighty-year-old William Gilmore laid before us when he was in our office a day or two ago. Is that a philosophy worthy of any white man or negro Isn't it a great satisfaction to know that one is not required to exercise those personal rights the exercise of which would do him more harm than good!

Separate Voting Booths To Be Provided For Negro Voters In Baxley Precinct

In an announcement today, Judge Alvin V. Sellers, chairman of the Appling County Democratic Executive Committee, stated that a separate entrance to the court house and a separate room for voting would be provided for Negro voters of the Baxley district. A majority of the registered Negro voters are registered in the Baxley district.

Judge Sellers also announced that ballots have been prepared to care for all voters and that with an unprecedented registration all polls will open at 7 a. m. and close at 6 p. m. in order that everyone has an opportunity to vote. Voters are urged by him to cast their ballots early to avoid the last minute rush.

The voting status of some 500 Negroes was still undecided today as a headstrong Talmadge - dominated Board of Registrars searched for any pretext to remove them from the Voters' List. In the face of an appeal to U. S. Attorney General Tom Clark in Washington by white citizens interested in law and order, the board has summoned practically, if not all Negroes to appear. First hearings were set for 200 Negroes this morning, two hours before Eugene Talmadge and his followers were to arrive in Baxley for his speaking engagement. To prevent a possible clash between the two groups, Mayor Hovis Floyd requested the board to postpone today's hearings until Friday. The board, which announced to a committee of citizens supporting Mr. Floyd's request that the board would adjourn at 10:30 for Mr. Talmadge's speech was unable to satisfactorily explain how 200 Negroes could be heard in an hour an a half.

It was learned today that the summoned Negroes have obtained the services of one of Savannah's leading attorneys to represent them against the blanket charges brought by L. E. Varnadore, Dewey J. Brown and C. H. Land. It is expected that the hearings before the local board will be nothing more than a farce and that the board by reason of a Talmadge majority will do the bidding of Talmadge henchmen who have come into Appling county to take charge. It is also believd by a majority of Appling county citizens, who favor a few Negroes exercising their constitutional right to vote in preference to their county affairs being turned over to Talmadge-hired henchmen from neighboring counties, that state and federal officials will not countenance wholesale disregard of state and federal laws.

Although the News-Banner again requested statements of the local Board of Registrars and offered to publish their signed statements in full and B. O. Googe promised a signed statement this week, none has been forthcoming.

Georgia Code, section 34-401. The next section of the Code, 34-402 says that no name shall be removed from the voter's list except on sufficient 'legal proof.' Sun 7-7-46

Apparently encouraged by the determined frustration and threats to the U. S. Supreme Court decision by the Talmadge forces in Georgia, Race-baiting Theodore Bilbo, who won renomination to the U. S. Senate this week, recommended a special session of the Mississippi Legislature to prohibit Negroes from voting. Carefully-Coached Negroes Jam Albany Polls

There is something new under the sun—Negroes voting in a white gubernatorial primary in Albany, Ga. It happened Wednesday in the Albany municipal auditorium, where two voting places were set up.

A few of the Negroes who voted Wednesday had previously voted in general elections, but most of them had never voted in their lives

However, with around 3,000 registered in the county, they had arrived at the auditorium by the scores by seven o'clock Wednesday. Two lines reached for down the lawn toward the corner. For the most part, the women and girls were "all dressed up" as though going to church, and the men, too, were mostly in neat attire.

The voting tables, presided over by the election officials were set up in the side hall of the auditorium, in alphabetical sections The Negroes went by the tables as their turn came. There was a little hesitancy and uncertainty on the part of most of them—the same hesitancy that anyone feels when starting in something they have never done before.

We watched for some time, and it seemed that each Negro voter tried hard to follow instructions. Some seemed nervous, but at each door, a Negro man stood and directed them to the tables to receive their ballots.

All Ages

They were there in all ages. There was the aged Negro mammy in her white hair, dressed in her "Sunday best." There was lean Annie, and Fat Cassie, along with the painted-faced, curly-haired college girl. There was middle-aged Fan, telling a funny joke to one in line ahead of her. Some of the girls looked just eighteen, but while we were there, the most of them were touching the 25-45 age groups.

There were the old men and the young men, but here, too, it seemed that most of them were of the younger middle-age group. though we did see some gray-haired men—the kind you call "Uncle Joe."

Most voters, when asked their name by election officials gave it readily. But there was the young black girl—she looked not more than 18—who stammered as though she had a great lump in her throat, and said "Sallie—I mean Mary."

We noted that there were few booths arranged, considering the number of voters. By noon, 1150 had voted, and the inside of the hall contained six or eight voting booths, and a few booths had been set up inside of the minor Auditorium.

And here's something for study—there was a small table on the floor of the minor auditorium. Three voters—women when we saw them—would sit down at the table together. They marked their balots, but we couldn't call them secret ballots in every case. We saw them consulting with one another at the table before they marked.

Marked Ballots?

Another thing we saw—some of the Negroes reached into their pockets or purses and took out one of those sheets of paper upon which were listed those candidates as endorsed by a Negro "Democratic Club" said to have been organized here. They would look at the the sheet and then mark ballots . We were not near enough, of course, to see if the ballots were marked in accordance with the printed sheets, besides we believe that how a person votes is his own business, and didn't try to see for whom anyone voted. But we did see well enough to recognize the printed sheet, as we had previously seen one like it.

At the end of one place, where only three voting booths were set up, there was a table half-way up the stairs, and this was used by some. Others went on up to the bend of the stairs, completely out of sight of the voting managers. There they gathered around the stair rail to mark their ballots. We did no tsee any voters consulting with one another at this place.

We asked one of the white men who was showing the voters where to place the ballots after they were marked why they were voting out of sight up the stairs, and at the tables together, and he said, "because the officials did not plan enough voting booths, and they have to vote somewhere."

Smooth and Quiet

We talked with the policeman who stood near the door, and he said, "everything has been smooth and quiet."

Outside on the lawn, the Negroes gathered in little groups throughout the day. They talked and laughed. We heard them mentioning the names of various candidates, but some of them were talking about things entirely foreign to the election. Most of the women who voted went on about their business after a little while.

Thoughts On The Morning After

It was a good day . . . yesterday.

Americans celebrated 170 years of independence, won in a six-year struggle as hard and bitter as any ever fought.

A new nation emerged on the scene.

The Philippine Islands, after centuries of cruel Spanish rule and after less than half a century of improving existence as a United States possession, yesterday became the Philippines Republic.

This emergence of a new nation on the present scene of international uncertainty, distrust and confusion is an encouraging stimulus to freedom-loving people everywhere.

It was a good day.

Independence Now it is July 5. Let us do a little independent thinking about our own, immediate problems.

Let us calmly examine into the facts.

Shall this State be made one of tensions and turmoil, driving away new business and investment which will bring industrial plants and jobs to our people? Bringing, too, a greater market for farm products? Shall our schools and institutions again be thrown into constant political interference and our institutions upset?

Shall Georgia go ahead in decency and good will?

Or not?

Let us think independently.

"Mixing" Mr. Eugene Talmadge does not really believe it himself, but for the sake of votes, he charges that unless he is elected Negroes will go to our schools, will fill offices, and so on.

Well, let us look. But, let us also keep in mind that he said four years ago that if Ellis Arnall were elected Negroes would, before his term was up, be attending white schools. At least we know that has not happened.

Virginia is a Southern State.

I assume none will say it is not one of the most Southern of States.

Yet in all these years no one, white or colored, has so much as suggested that there be any mixing of the races in schools or elsewhere.

For more than 25 years Negroes have voted in North Carolina's Democratic white primary.

You can get in your car and drive from Georgia into North Carolina. It is our next-door neighbor.

You may go see there has been no change in their school or bi-racial system. It is just like Georgia's.

Negroes always have voted in neighboring Tennessee's primary.

They have voted for about two years in Texas and in Alabama.

No responsible white or colored person anywhere or in any of these States has suggested a mixing of the races in schools.

How about the Texas case? Fri. 7-5-46

A returned Negro war veteran who wanted to study law had to take the legal step necessary. Texas has no law school for Negroes. The Southern States have laws declaring the races shall be separate but shall have equal school facilities. Since we have not always done so, this is a problem Southern States must work out and it is a problem our educators now are engaged in working out. The Negro race needs more Negro doctors and dentists and other professional men. Texas will now arrange, as does Georgia and other Southern States, to send this boy to a law school. All Southern States have been doing this for years. Mr. Talmadge made exact arrangements in the past. It is not honest for him to use this Texas incident as something different.

As long as the Democratic party is the only party in Georgia it is not possible to keep the sort of primary we had. It was always vulnerable. For the past 50 years nomination in its primaries have meant election. The general elections that followed our primaries were mere formalities. So long as the primary controls and determines the elected officials; so long as the general election is meaningless, no primary plan, even the one proposed by Mr. Talmadge, will be legal. His continued announcement that South Carolina has solved it is simply not true. The Democratic party in that State already has publicly been advised by its legal advisers their plan of wiping out all the laws has not solved their problem. The courts ruled against the primary not at all because it was a white primary, but because its nominees never had opposition in the general elections. We all know that to be true.

Even the most timorous can hardly have reason to be afraid with about 10 white votes for every Negro vote. We do not need to launch on a foolhardy course of defying Federal courts and the Constitution of the United States.

Let us preserve our Democratic majority, our common sense, our decency and our own self-respect as well as the respect of others.

Your Highest Duty

Atlanta Daily World

TODAY, July 17th, citizens, white and colored alike are called upon to go to the polling places and cast their ballots for the candidates whom they believe to be the best to carry forward the high and orderly functions of government for another term. The latest official tabulations place the total number of registered voters at 1,017,026. Of this number there are 134,351 Negroes qualified to vote.

Both of these figures represent an impressive stirring of the spirit and enthusiasm in good and progressive government. Atlanta Ga.

But there is a world of difference between having our names on the qualified list and in casting an active ballot. The first step is to get registered. The second and by far the most important, is to vote. We believe that there will be no shirking of this, our highest duty and most sacred responsibility. Wed. 7-17-46

The highest court in the land, supported by our local federal district courts and by local public sentiment, has declared Negroes have a right to vote under the provisions of the 13th, 14th and 17th amendments to the U. S. Constitution, and that as such, no person or group of persons can deny them of this right. Hence, Negroes throughout Georgia will vote, without fear or intimidations. In many firms and businesses throughout the state, employers have been urged to grant to their workers a day, or a half day, or at least, "time necessary," in which to go to the polls and cast their ballots. But, whether employers grant any time off for that important function or not, nothing should stand in the way of registered voters doing their duty in tomorrow's election. For Negroes, the election is the most important in their entire history. They cannot and must not pass up this sacred obligation.

No one who has read this paper since the announcement of the candidates for governor should have any doubt as to where we stand in this contest.

We have stated in these columns before and we repeat now that considering the questions and issues involved in this campaign and the past records of the two former governors—Talmadge and Rivers—it is our sincere and strong conviction that the election of Hon. James V. Carmichael will be to the best interest of our state. The Negro, a minority group, of necessity must always stand on the side of decency and law and order.

In the Congressional race, on the basis of her record in the legislature and the time she has been in Congress, we believe Mrs. Helen Douglass Mankin is entitled to a full term

Above all, GO VOTE TODAY, and Vote your honest conviction. Wed. 7-17-46

WRONG AGAIN

The Savannah Tribune Savannah Ga.

Those who prophesied that Negroes in Chatham County could not get together and follow leadership, must have thought the sight that greeted them Wednesday morning was a nightmare. Those who bolted the understandings of the Citizens' Democratic Club must have had a rude awakening as they viewed the long lines of voters who scorned their persuasions and turned in a vote which was a repudiation to their disloyalty. As we stated prior to the election, there was only one issue at stake for Negroes. The side they agreed to support was in the interest of their political future, and we do not see how any of them could have reasoned otherwise. The inadequate provision made for their voting, the inefficiency manifest in carrying out these inadequate provisions were an earnest of what could be expected if the administration ticket had won. The irony of the situation was that the "bolters" were giving energetic support to the effort to defeat the very purpose and intention and desire of the hundreds of voters who stood in lines for hours, many of whom did not get a chance to cast their ballots. It is difficult to believe that the placing of voting locations at points far from residential centers was not deliberate. This was reminiscent of practice of reconstruction times when the polls were placed at most inconvenient locations so as to make voting by Negroes difficult. In those days it was not unusual to place the polls on the other side of a river and deny Negroes the use of means with which to cross. It is commonly reported that "stoppers" were placed at intervals in the lines to slow up voting by taking from ten to fifteen minutes to vote. There were eye-witnesses to this practice. At least three of the "bolters" were parties to this practice. While, as the returns indicate, the "bolters" had little influence with the voters we believe Negro voters will insist that the executive committee purge itself of these men. This is no time for unfaithful leadership. To retain them in places of leadership is to invite disunity and failure for the aims of the club. Thur. 7-25-46

Progress in Georgia

The News and Courier Charleston, S. C.

The action of the Talmadge convention in Georgia recommending to the legislature the repeal of laws relating to the primaries, which will doubtless be adopted by Georgia's legislature, means that thousands of negroes in Georgia will be unable to sell their votes to scalawags, as thousands of negroes of Harlem sell their votes to white bosses. Mon. 10-14-46

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

By Earl Brown

New York Amsterdam News

Any Tammany district leader, particularly those in Harlem, should take a lesson from the Negro leaders in Georgia who were instrumental in getting more than 160,000 colored citizens to register and more than 100,000 of them to vote in the primary election there on July 17. The work of these leaders and the enthusiasm and determination of the colored people throughout the state to register and vote is one of the most beautiful stories of civic and racial interest I have ever seen or heard of.

Back in 1944, Primus King of Columbus, Ga., filed suit in the U. S. District Court in Macon, Ga., to allow Negroes to vote in the Democratic (lily-white) primary. The court ruled in his favor and then the state appealed the decision to the U. S. Circuit Court at New Orleans. The Circuit Court upheld the lower court, and when the State of Georgia carried the case to the U. S. Supreme Court, it refused to hear it, thereby exhausting every legal step by the state to prevent Negro Georgians from voting in the state Democratic primary.

When the Supreme Court made known last April 13, from that date until the first week in July more than 150,000 Negroes registered to vote in Georgia. There were about 15,000 already registered, mostly in Atlanta.

New York, N.Y.

Fight Was Organized

Two Negro organizations—the Atlanta Citizens Democratic Club and the Georgia Association of Democratic Clubs—led the organizational and vote drives. In Atlanta, for example, Democratic Club investigated and determined every house in which a Negro family lived and then sent workers around to appeal to them to register and vote. Mrs. Grace Towne Hamilton, secretary of the Atlanta Urban League, and Prof. Clarence A. Bacote of Atlanta University, were among the leaders of this register-and-vote drive. While the leaders were working in Atlanta, those who headed the Georgia Association of Democratic Clubs in their respective whistle stops, villages, towns and cities elsewhere in the state were laboring equally hard.

Furthermore, neither organization—the Atlanta Democratic Club and the Ga. Ass'n of Dem. Clubs—accepted a dime from any one to help them in their efforts. Each club in the Ga. Ass'n was taxed so much money for the register-vote drive and the leaders—teachers, doctors, lawyers, business men, etc.— contributed according to their ability. Thousands of dollars were donated by day laborers, farm hands, maids, cooks, etc. In fact, the leaders found that the masses of colored Georgians were ready to give until it hurt as well as to vote.

Because they anticipated hostility on the part of the whites if it became known that they had organized Democratic clubs to put on registration and voting drives among the colored people, the leaders kept their activities secret as far as possible. A week before the election 75 Negro Democratic leaders from all over the state assmbled in Atlanta, and spent 10 hours comparing notes as to what was happening back home in Jeff Davis County, DeKalb County—in every one of the 159 counties in the state. This was at the height of the purge of Negroes from the voting lists for all kinds of absurd reasons. The leaders told of hiring white lawyers (there are no colored ones in Ga. outside of Atlanta and a few other big cities) to defend Negro voters at purge hearings in the courts, and many other laudable deeds. Many white lawyers refused to take the cases.

Bucks the KKK

In spite of threats by the Klan, Talmadge and others, the colored voters held their ground, fought to keep their names on the voting lists and finally went to the polls and voted to tune of more than 100,000. When it is remembered that no more than 300,000 people ever voted before in Ga. in any election and that 95 percent of the 100,000 Negroes who voted in this one voted for the first time, it is obvious that the colored people of Ga. accomplished a whale of a job.

All this was done not for selfish political gain by any one, but solely for racial progress in one of the most backward and Negro-hating states in the union. As a result of their work, Negroes in Ga. will vote in large numbers from now on. Indeed, as soon as white candidates learned that Negroes had registered in large numbers they came around asking for their votes. Even Judge James Davis, a notorious Kluxer who defeated Congresswoman Mankin in the primary, asked some colored leaders in Ga. if he could visit them to talk over getting their support.

We Ought To Wake Up

If the Negro politicians—Republicans and Democrats—in New York and other Northern cities would show one-tenth as much civic interest as the brave colored people in Ga. demonstrated in the last three months, maybe the people in Harlem and other colored districts of Northern cities could get somewhere. The colored folk of Ga. have proved that it can be done.

Negroes Outnumbered 8 To 1, AP Check Of State Lists Reveals

Cartersville (Ga.) Tribune-News

July 11, 1946

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Atlanta, Ga.—(AP)—Registraiton has just closed and about 1,000,000 Georgians have written their names in the books to vote July 17 in the Democratic primary, the actual election in the Solid South.

This is well more than double the customary registration. Only about 120,000 Negroes are registered, outnumbered 8 to 1 by whites, but they are voting in a Georgia "White" Primary for the first time.

An equally important factor is the vote of several hundred thousand teen-aged, who have registered in mass numbers.

Georgia was the first, and so far the only state to reduce the voting age from 21 to 18. The change was accomplished by outgoing Gov. Ellis Arnall, the nation's youngest chief executive.

THE CANDIDATES STATE THEIR ISSUES

The campaign finds two veteran Georgia politicians, ex-governors Gene Talmadge and E. D. Rivesr, seeking a comeback. The Arnall candidate is 35-year-old James V. Carmichael, wartime bomber plant manager and ex-legislator.

Cartersville, Ga.

Arnall couldn't run for renomination. A Constitution adopted in his administration prohibits a governor from succeeding himself.

Arnall led a dramatic and surprising legislative battle last year which ended in the repeal of Georgia's poll tax. The Supreme Court some months later held, in effect, Negroes could vote in the primary.

The Governor refused to have any part in an abortive movement to get the Legislature in session to remove the Democratic primary from state control and leave it regulated only by itself, as in South Carolina.

KLAAN MADE ISSUE IN CAMPAIGN

Talmadge has promised to do this if elected. Rivers has painted himself as the "middleman" between two extremes on the race issue. Carmichael, however, has emphasized a belief in the southern tradition of segregation.

The Ku Klux Klan was revived in Georgia about the tmie the campaign began. Arnall asserts its aim is mainly. The state has a suit pending to revoke the Klan's charter.

Talmadge has made an open bid for Klan support. Rivers, himself accuused the Klan leanings in his administration, recentlyy said Arnall once boasted of being a Klansman—a statement Arnall emphatically denied.

The Georgia primary is expected to bring out a vote extraordinarily large for a southern state. Under Georgia's county unit system, However, the big city vote counts for little.

PERVERTED PROPAGANDA

The Savannah Tribune

During the recent Democratic primary campaign several efforts were made to confuse the colored voters in order that there would be no solidarity, especially in supporting the Citizens Progressive League. Despite these efforts the leaders were determined to give proper direction to prevent any advantage being taken and the inexperienced voters be led into strange camps by unscrupulous workers who were void of that principle leading to race betterment. Efforts will be made to continue this betrayal. We now have nearly twenty thousand registered voters. Efforts should be made to make it at least five thousand more. Attempt must be made to induce the ones who were unable to register, before the books were closed for the state primary, to do so now. Preparation must be made for the coming city primary and election. The effective organization of The Hub and other interests should continue. The Citizens Progressive League has shown its inclination to be friendly toward our group. No doubt this interest will be continued so far as the city campaign is concerned. Already the efforts are being made to diffuse the minds of the less staunch by telling them that the C. P. L. were ardent supporters of Talmadge during the primary. The Talmadge supporters were the ones who kept hundreds of our men and women standing in the sun all day and preventing thousands of registrants from casting a vote. This must be remembered when the time comes for the city election. Thur. 7-25-46

Daily World Atlanta, Ga Wed 4-3-46

Meeting at the Friendship Baptist Church last Tuesday evening, The Atlanta Civic and Political League heard a review of the outcome and significance of the Primus King Primary ruling granting Negroes their right to vote; a renewed plea for increased registration, in Atlanta and over the state, with leaders roundly scoring the undemocratic attitude of Georgia House Speaker Roy V. Harris, in his calmor for a special session of the Legislature so as to devise some means whereby Negro voting may be circumvented in the State. Speaker Harris, it will be recalled, has been the most outspoken opponent of the decision which extends to Negroes the right to participate in all elections.

John Wesley Dobbs, President reported a combined registration of nearly 11,000 Negroes thus far in the campaign. The League's committee on transportation reported negotiations with Power Company officials, the final results of which would be terminated Thursday morning when another meeting is scheduled.

Wed 4-3-46

The meeting was adjourned to meet again two weeks later as the guest of the Greater Mt. Calvary Baptist Church, Rev. B. J. Johnson pastor, Tuesday evening, April 16, in order to check results and to review future developments in the drive.

Voters' Education Forum Well Attended

Atlanta Daily World Sun. 6-30-46

Atlanta Ga.

The second in the series of voters' education forums, conducted under the auspices of The Atlanta Civic and Political League, was held here Friday evening at the West Hunter Baptist Church, with nearly 500 in attendance.

John Wesley Dobbs, President of the league, conducted the meeting and gave a comprehensive interpretation of the issues in the present campaign for governor; outlined the duties and responsibilities of Negroes taking an active part in the July 17th primary election, and then discussed the qualifications and fitness of the several candidates, including Governor, Commissioner of Labor, Attorney General and all others to be elected.

Sun. 6-30-46

Melvin Gaston, also active in the registration of Negroes, called upon the large gathering to learn everything possible about the voting machines so that when election time comes it will be relatively easy to cast a vote. W. A. Smartt, labor leader, described the woes and sufferings he has endured from threats of the Ku Klux Klan and told the audience about the comments our people are making over the support some of our so-called leaders are giving to candidates whose names are tied in with the Klan. Others who made brief talks included W. J. Shaw and Clark Noble. Sun. 6-30-46

LAUDS WORLD

Mr. Dobbs, who challenged his hearers to continue their interest in good government, took occasion to commend a story in The Atlanta Daily World last Thursday, in which it reported a meeting of E.D. Rivers Negro chieftians last Monday at the Hanley's Ashby Street Funeral Home. "That was a swell job," declared Mr. Dobbs, "because it gives Negroes a chance to know the difference between honest leaders who possess integrity and a love for only those things designed to benefit the masses, and those who are out seeking loaves and fishes. There is a difference, and I have nothing but contempt these so-called leaders—some of them even boasting about their education—going about selling their people down the river. Thank God, if education is what they have, we can at least say we have integrity, "and character."

Negro Registrants Challenged In Greensboro

Atlanta Daily World
Thur. 7-11-46

On Saturday, July 6, every Negro registrant in Greene County was asked to appear before the board of registrants to determine his or her eligibility for voting in the July 17 election.

There seems to have been one mistake made or at least one that was overlooked by the board of registrars and this was that Negroes who are known to be eligible to vote were asked to appear Such persons as David Neal, prominent young business man and insurance agent; Rev. W. P. Carter, pastor of the Ebernezer Methodist Church and Principal of the Siloam High School; Samuel Williams, principal of the Jones Central school; Eli Jackson, principal of Union Point High School; H. E. Tate, principal of the largest high school in the county Greensboro, Georgia, and one who has tried to promote goodwill between the races; Mr. Jackson of Jackson's funeral home and Mr. Barnhart, all prominent citizens and people known as eligible to vote.

When the Negroes were asked to come to the review by the board of registrars, they set out to employ a lawyer. Beginning Saturday night after 11 p.m., some prominent Negroes were approached by leading white citizens of Greene County and were told that unless they could employ a lawyer that over two-thirds would be proved ineligible to vote. The Negroes knew what this meant, so without changing any words the Negroes began the task of collecting money to employ a lawyer. On Sunday at 5 p.m. $500 had been collected in order to pay a lawyer to see that they would get a fair review by the board of registrars.

One leader said, "All that the Negro in Greene County is asking is that he will be given a fair chance to vote as all other citizens, a chance to show that he too can be a man worthwhile to his community and to his country. Until yet we have not heard of any white friends having been challenged by the board of registrars and it is known that a good many cannot read or write. The Negro in this county does not believe that a man should be assumed superior because of his color or race, but only because he can prove himself to be superior. Thur. 7-11-46

"The Negro in Greene County does not believe that Georgia or any other state belongs to the white man, but that it belongs equally to all men from any land as long as they can abide by the laws of Georgia. These are the things that the Negro in Greene County believes in and these are the things that they will protect and preserve. We hope that this will be a challenge to Negroes in every county in Georgia and that they will take some type of a stand for these things that they are rightfully entitle to."

DISMISSAL WORTH SUIT IS SOUGHT

Twenty Negroes Charge Disfranchisement

ALBANY, Ga., Sept. 19 (AP).—The Worth County Board of Registrars asked the Federal District Court here to dismiss a suit by 20 negroes charging illegal disfranchisement of negroes in the recent Democratic primary.

The request was in an answer to the suit filed by the negroes here August 30. Also named in the suit, which charged that thousands of negroes were denied voting rights, are the registrars of Mitchell, Early and Baker counties.

The Worth registrars, R. B. Pollard of Sylvester, J. J. Heredith of Sylvester and George Tatum of Grady, said the charges are untrue. They said they complied fully with the law requiring that a person be given a hearing before disqualification from voting and that they "neither officially or individually discriminated between the races, nor struck en bloc, all or practically all of the voters of any race or class from the voters' list of said (Worth) county, and it is not true that no name was left off or removed from said list of voters by reason of race, color, or previous condition of servitude."

The registrars said all persons held to be disqualified from voting were notified in time and given an opportunity for "an adequate remedy provided by law" and failed to comply with the law by appearing for a hearing.

The negroes asked that the registrars be prevented from removing them from the list of voters.

250 Petitions Are Filed by Group in Georgia District

GAINESVILLE, Ga., July 3 (AP)—The qualifications of all Negroes registering to vote in the July 17 Democratic primary will be challenged in the Gainesville district, Frank B. Stow, lawyer, said today.

Two hundred and forty challenges already have been filed with the Hall County Board of Registrars. Mr. Stow said that about 825 Negroes were registered in the district. Thurs. 7-4-46

The lawyer said he represented a group of citizens who were challenging qualification of Negroes on points laid down in the new State Constitution. These cover age, residence, character, and ability to read and understand a paragraph of the United States or State Constitution. The challenges bore signatures of twenty citizens.

Asked why all Negroes were being challenged, Mr. Stow said only about one-eighth of those applying for registration could qualify as voters.

Negro Voter Probe Begins

A sweeping federal investigation of alleged discriminatory disqualification of Negro voters has been launched in Middle Georgia, the Macon Telegraph and News learned yesterday.

Although District Attorney John Cowart of the U. S. Court for the Middle District of Georgia, declined to issue any statements regarding the probe, the Telegraph informant said the investigation already is in progress.

This informant also said federal law enforcement officials engaged in the probe probably would issue a formal statement regarding their activities the first part of next week.

BROAD SCOPE SEEN

The probe, launched at the time when most boards of registrars throughout this section are getting into full stride in their work of purging voting lists for the July 17 primary, is expected to extend into virtually every county served by the district court here.

Charges have been made for the last several weeks that in a number of Middle Georgia Counties Negroes are being prevented from registering, even though the U. S. Supreme Court has ruled they are legally entitled to cast ballots in the Democratic primary, which is tantamount to election in Georgia.

Charges also have been leveled and are being probed that in some counties registrars have purged all but a minor fraction of the Negro registrants from the lists by discriminatory application of the literacy tests provided for under Georgia voting laws.

ONLY NEGROES TESTED

Although state voting laws provide the literacy tests for both white and colored, it has been charged that in some counties in which large numbers of Negro registrants have been purged the registrars are requiring only Negroes to take the tests before being put on the lists.

In several counties, notably those having heavy Negro populations, it is an open secret among residents that few valid Negro ballots will be cast in the primary.

LARGER COUNTIES LENIENT

A recent survey of Georgia by the Associated Press indicated that registrars in the larger counties are operating with greater leniency in testing the qualifications of Negro voters than those in the smaller counties.

This survey pointed to Sumter County as an example of the percentage of Negro registrants being purged from the lists. In Sumter, only 92 of 650 Negro registrants have been approved for voting.

All phases of alleged discrimination against Negro registrants will be checked during the federal probe, the Telegraph informant said, and indications point to court action in a number of counties, because the U. S. Department of Justice has announced it will vigorously prosecute all such cases.

Ware County Registrars Quit Over Negro Purge

WAYCROSS, Ga., July 4—(AP)—Two members of the Ware county board of registrars have quit in protest against the purging of Negroes on the county's voting lists.

They are Mrs. T. E. Sams and Mrs. E. A. Clary. Judge Walter Thomas of the Waycross judicial circpit appointed O. M. Hires and Mrs. Sam Walker, Sr., to replace them.

In a statement Mrs. Sams said she resigned because she did not favor the purging of the Negro list unless the white voters' list also was purged. In addition she said a list of the Negro registration had been circulated outside the board's office without the unanimous consent of its members.

The purge of Negro registrants in Fulton County stopped abruptly Tuesday. Several cases had been set for 3:30 p. m., but not a single challenged voter was on hand for the hearings.

"There will be no hearings today and as far as I know now, there will be no subsequent hearings," Deput Registrar McClelland stated. Court adjourned without comment from Attorney Bruce of the challenger Horace H. Scoggins.

32 DISQUALIFIED Wed. 7-17-46

A total of 107 registrants appeared before the deputy registrar since the hearings got underway on Monday, July 8, and of this number 32 were disqualified, while 75 were ruled 'qualified" by Mr McClelland. A large majority of those disqualified admitted convictions on charges of felonies.

The attorneys for the challenger refrained from disclosing the total number of challenges issued. It is a matter of record, however, that several registrants failed to answer the challenges and as things now stand, these persons are still on the voter's list and are eligible to vote. Wed 7-17-46

Had the hearings scheduled for Tuesday been held, it was extremely doubtful that additional names would be dropped. The fact is, the official voter's list was prepared Monday for today's primary election.

Plea to Block Negro Voters To be Heard

Challenges contesting the right of several hundred Negroes to vote in Fulton County primaries have been registered with Tax Collector T. E. Suttles, who is also registrar.

The first of a series of hearings will begin Monday at 9:30 a. m. in Judge John S. McClelland's courtroom.

Ellis McClelland, a brother of the judge, has been appointed a deputy registrar and will act as judge in the inquiry. He said Saturday that he wasn't sure that all the challenges were against Negro voters, but that he understood they were.

He said the challenges were preferred by Horace H. Scoggins Sr., as a citizen of Fulton County.

Other hearings will be held at the same time Tuesday and Wednesday, he said.

He said most of the challenges attack on all of the six main qualifications of citizenship. All contend that the registrants are "not persons of good character who understands the duties of citizenship under a republican form of government."

Voters Must Reply Tuesday To Challenges

Fulton Countians registered to vote in the July 17 primary whose qualifications have been challenged, Monday were given until Tuesday at 9:30 a. m. to answer the challenges or be disqualified.

The first of 56 challenges entered by Horace H. Scoggins Sr. was prima facie evidence that they were being discriminated against and that an attempt was being made to deprive them of their civil rights.

He contended that the absentees were not guilty of contempt of court or "malicious disrespect" in failing to appear, and that before their names could be struck off the challenged voters must appear at the hearing and ruled that the challenged voters were Negroes was based on evidence that tax collector, T. E. Suttles, struck the names of the Negroe absentees from the lists.

Charges Discrimination

A. T. Walden, Negro attorney who said he was retained to defend the challenges by the Citizens' Democratic Club of Fulton County, contended that the mere fact that all the defendants named were Negroes was being conducted on some 3,000 individuals or be stricken from the qualified voters' lists.

Hearings Begin

Charles G. Bruce, representing Mr. Scoggins, urged Mr. McClelland, appointed deputy registrar Ellis McClelland, failed to appear as to the legality of disfranchising the question arose as to the challenged voters.

the lists "that the burden of proving them disqualified rests upon the state." Until then, he asserted, the fact that they are on the voting lists on the basis of their sworn statements is prima facie evidence of their qualifications.

Mr. Bruce, in asking that they be disqualified by default, pointed out that in most of the cases he would be able to prove their disqualification "only by and through" examination of the defendants, especially in establishing such citizenship prerequisites as the ability to read and write and the ability of understanding and defining "a representative and Reublican form of government."

He declared that if a ruling is made prohibiting judgment by default, it will be impossible for him to establish disqualifications of the voters, and asserted that all of them would "maliciously flout the court (of inquiry) and block the intent of the laws with respect to registration of disqualified persons."

Battles Continue Over Vote Purge Despite U. S.

Battles over the efforts to strike Negro voters from the registration lists in 41 Georgia counties continued Saturday despite the announcement that the United States Department of Justice is investigating complaints filed by Atlanta Negro leaders.

The Atlanta Negroes, who had protested to United States Attorney General Tom Clark, were advised to turn their information over to United States District Attorney M. Neil Andrews, in Atlanta. The wire also advised that the purges in 40 other counties are being investigated.

In United States District Court at Brunswick Saturday Federal Judge Frank M. Scarlett made permanent a temporary restraining order against a wholesale purge of Negro voters in Atkinson County. He continued until Monday a hearing on temporary restraining orders issued against registrars in Coffee and Pierce Counties. The judge ordered the personal appearance in court of the man who filed the charges against Coffee County Negroes.

Judicial Lynching

Aaron Kravitch, Savannah lawyer, characterized the mass disfranchisement of 550 Negroes in Appling County as "a judicial lynching," and Judge Scarlett ordered the registrars of Appling County to appear before him Monday to explain their action.

At Macon Saturday Federal Judge T. Hoyt Davis continued a hearing on a temporary restraining order to prevent the Ben Hill County registrars from purging Negro voters. Judge Davis said it was his information that the registrars had adjourned until September and therefore there would be no more purging before the election.

In Moultrie Superior Court Judge O. H. Dukes removed C. E. McLendon, Colquitt County Democratic Committee chairman, from the county board of registrars "to expedite hearings on Negro vote challenges." Mr. McLendon was charged with saying that he would not vote to disqualify anybody, whether they were qualified or not. The court appointed Herman Green, a farmer, to the board of registrars, and ordered the hearings to proceed.

Later Judge Dukes issued another reinstating Chairman McLendon and ordered a hearing to be held in Valdosta on Tuesday, the day before the primary.

Approximately 800 of the 1,000 Negroes registered in Colquitt County have been challenged, but only six of 21 whose cases have been heard were disqualified.

In Jeffersonville Sheriff W. E. Hamrick charged that D. Y. Califf, chairman of the Twiggs County registrars, had refused to give him access to the registration lists, and secured an order from Superior Court Judge R. Earl Camp, of Dublin, for access to the lists.

Chairman Califf said he had not furnished the sheriff with a list of Negroes registered because he did not think it was right to purge an entire group of persons from the registration lists, while Sheriff Hamrick said he just wanted to see how many people were registered in the county.

Tax Commissioner J. H. Vaughn announced that the registration books were in his office and could be seen by any person interested in them. The Appling County registrars gave as their reasons for striking Negro registrants that they had not taken the oath as required by law.

Negro Leader Urges Good Conduct at Polls

Declaring that voting is a high privilege as well as a sacred duty, A. T. Walden, Atlanta Negro attorney and president of the Georgia Association of Citizens Democratic Clubs, Saturday urged the state's Negro voters to be exemplary in their conduct when they cast ballots in the July 17 primary.

"It is to the everlasting credit of both our white and black citizenry that studied efforts to arouse hatreds and animosities between the two races have fallen on fallow soil," he said. "Negroes, therefore are specially cautioned to go peaceably, quietly, and soberly to the polls, cast their ballots in an orderly and becoming manner, and then go promptly about their business, letting nobody provoke them into controversy."

His message, which was directed to all the state's registered colored voters, stressed that Negroes must not become embroiled in disputes, and he pointed out that the law affords ample redress for the violation of the citizens' civil rights.

"Our people are reminded that voting is a high privilege as well as a sacred duty of the good citizen," he said, "and in the exercise of the same no consideration should influence him, save his honest belief as to what is best for the welfare of his state."

The attorney also asked that white citizens show sympathetic co-operation and patience with colored voters in the latter's efforts to become worthwhile citizens," so that they will be able to make an increasingly larger contribution to the welfare of heir beloved Georgia."

Only Ten Voters Disqualified Here

Efforts of Horace H. Scoggins Sr., of Stonewall, to challenge 3,000 Negro voters before the July 17 primary in Fulton County seemed doomed to failure Wednesday. After the court of inquiry had recessed until Thursday morning after two days in which only 10 Negroes were ruled disqualified.

When the inquiry, conducted by Deputy Registrar Ellis McClelland, recessed early Tuesday afternoon, less than 50 registrants had been examined.

Seventeen Negroes Of 46 Disqualified

GAINESVILLE, Ga., July 8 —(AP)—Seventeen of the first 46 Negroes whose right to vote has been challenged have been disqualified by the board of registrars.

Frank B. Stow, Gainesville attorney representing a group challenging 825 Negroes, filed 240 challenges last week. Registrars ordered 100 Negroes to appear for a hearing Saturday but only the 46 were present.

The 46 Negroes were among 100 ordered to appear before registrars last Saturday. The others did not answer the board summon.

U. S. Attorneys Probing Purge, Negro Says Here

The United States Department of Justice is investigating complaints that Negroes have been purged from the registration lists in 31 Georgia counties, including Fulton, it was announced Saturday by Negro leaders in Atlanta.

C. A. Scott, editor of the Atlanta Daily World, a Negro newspaper, made public the following telegram he had received from Theron L. Caudle, assistant attorney general of the United States:

"Re wire concerning discrimination against Negroes in the registration process in Georgia. Please immediately furnish United States Attorney M. Neil Andrews with all avalable information on subject. Complaints mentioned in your wire regarding other Georgia counties now having attention."

Scott, president of the Negro Democratic Club in Atlanta, and C. L. Harper, president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, asked United States Attorney General Tom Clark to investigate alleged purging of Negroes from the voting lists in Fulton and 30 other counties.

Meanwhile former Governor Eugene Talmadge, candidate for governor, continued to warn Negroes that they had better not try to vote in the Democratic primary next Wednesday, and added a warning to the United States district attorney in this state. In a speech at Cochran he said:

'Maybe it would not be inappropriate to warn some of these fellows to be careful, since one of these days, in the not distant future, there is going to be one of the greatest house-cleanings of bureaucrats the country ever saw, now that Henry Wallace and his gang are on the run. What is it but intimidation when United States attorneys constantly issue warnings of what they are going to do. Two million white Georgians are willing to die to defend their state from carpetbaggers and renegades.'

Negro Registrants Are Challenged in Colquitt County

MOULTRIE, Ga., July 8—(AP)—Registration of 304 Negroes was challenged today by some 12 individuals who signed protests filed with the Colquitt County Board of Registrars.

The mimeographed challenges made no specific allegations but listed qualifications for voters in the July 17 Democratic primary.

Names of Negroes Are 'Purged' from Enrolment Books

Spartanburg, July 28.—(AP): The names of negroes on Spartanburg county Democratic primary enrolment books have been stricken by order of the county executive committee.

An unofficial committee report sai dnames of 14 negroes were on the books. State Democratic party rules limit membership to whites.

Anderson, July 28.—(AP) Chairman A. E. Holman of the Anderson county Democratic committee said today the names of a "small" number of negroes who had enrolled for the August 13 primary had been "purged" from the books in compliance with a state party rule limiting party membership to white persons.

ATTEMPTS MADE IN GEORGIA TO BAR NEGRO VOTE

ATLANTA, June 17.—(U.P.)—Charges that Negroes—and sometimes whites—are being arbitrarily stricken from registration lists in some Georgia counties came from three sections of the state today as the gubernatorial race moved into the final month.

At Americus, in Sumter County, a group of Negroes planned to institute civil liberties proceedings against the county board of registrars on grounds they were illegally denied the right to vote.

In Atlanta, U. S. District Attorney Andrews said he was investigating complaints that registration lists are being arbitrarily purged. Andrews said that if there was evidence of federal law violations, his office could institute criminal proceedings.

At Rome, City Solicitor Terrell was reported to be challenging the names of many of the 1200 Negroes registered in Floyd County. Terrell was quoted as saying he was seeking to determine if the Negroes "had criminal records."

First 150 Negro Vote Challenges Filed by Terrell

Petitions challenging the right of 150 Negroes to vote in the Democratic primary July 17 were filed with the Floyd County Board of Registrars Saturday by Vaughn Terrell, Rome attorney and Solicitor of Floyd City Court.

Mr. Terrell announced that he plans to file 150 similiar petitions each day until the total of approximately 1,200 Negro registrants have been challenged. At the same time, he disclosed plans to check criminal records for 50 years back and to ask that the registrant be stricken from the list of voters.

Mr. Terrell stated that he will ask the Board of Registrars to notify the individual Negro registrants named in the challenges to appear, and if the challenge and contest is sustained that the name of such registrant be stricken from the list of voters.

As Election Draws Near:

District Attorney Threatens Prosecution Of Anyone Prohibiting Voting of Negroes

MACON, Ga., July 9 (AP)—U. S. District Attorney John P. Cowart asserted today that "qualified Negro citizens of Georgia have a right to vote in the Democratic white primary" and he would prosecute any "conspiracies" to disfranchise them.

Cowart, who is the prosecuting attorney for Middle Georgia, said he had received "numerous complaints from various counties" in his district that "illegal and mass purges are being undertaken to prevent Negroes from voting in the July 17 primary."

"Numbers of these complaints have come from members and chairmen of boards of registrars," he added in a formal statement.

Georgia Negroes are voting for the first time this year in the primary. There are approximately 120,000 Negroes in the total of 1,000,000 Georgians who have qualified.

More than a half dozen counties now are holding hearings on challenges of Negroes to their right to vote with about 3,000 challenges forecast for Fulton county (Atlanta).

Cowart said he had advised officials consulting him to contact their local attorneys relative to purge hearings "in a legal manner and without discrimination."

"I cannot close my eyes to the numerous complaints being registered with my office of alleged conspiracies by mass challenges of the Negroes' right to vote and of alleged illegal actions on the part of certain boards of registrars," Cowart said.

"I will in the pursuit of my duties exercise the full power of my office to unearth and prosecute any violations of Section 51 of Title 18 of the U. S. code or any conspiracies to disfranchise qualified Negro voters by the above or any other means."

Six of 10 Negroes challenged at today's hearing in Atlanta were ruled qualified to vote but failure of 24 others to appear resulted in their being stricken from the list. They are subject to reinstatement if they appear at a later hearing.

At Moultrie, challenges were filed against 259 additional Negroes, bringing to 553 the number filed there. The new challenges were filed by W. E. Aycock, member of the Eugene Talmadge for Governor club. Talmadge has based much of his campaign on "white supremacy" and argued that Negroes should not be allowed to vote.

More than 600 challenges have been filed in Gwinnett county where a hearing is set for July 22—five days after the primary. Other counties where challenges have been filed in large numbers include Floyd, Appling, Hall and Ware.

Justice Division To Sidestep Georgia Negro Vote Purge

By LORRAINE NELSON,
Constitution Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, July 13—Responsibility for prosecuting registrars and others who instigate illegal purging of Negro voters in Georgia will be left up to United States district attorneys. The department of Justice itself will not intervene directly in the State, it was learned authoritatively here Saturday.

While determined to pursue a "hands off" policy from the top, the Justice Department has thrown the full weight of its support behind all efforts of its district attorneys to prevent disenfranchisement of qualified Negroes, a reliable source revealed.

It has authorized participation of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in all investigations of alleged illegal actions on the part of certain Boards of Registrars.

The FBI and representatives of the Civil Rights Division will appear at hearings before Boards of Registrars who challenge Negro registrants and whomever else they are directed by the district attorneys, a source disclosed.

The Justice Department's strategy in Georgia, it was said, is somewhat the result of the recent elections in Mississippi, when Sen. Theodore (The Man) Bilbo was renominated. Attorney General Tom Clark officially entered that contest when he announced that his department would afford protection for all who sought to exercise their right of ballot, after Sen. Bilbo threatened Negroes in his campaign speeches.

However, Clark will not likely repeat this in Georgia, where it is charged, those in league with ex-Gov. Eugene Talmadge are conspiring to scratch all Negroes from registered voters lists.

The Department of Justice will continue its fight to punish violation of civil rights, said a source, but in Georgia, as it learned in Mississippi, it must do so while keeping in mind the eccentricities of the South.

Effort Made to Get Negroes Off Voters List in Atkinson County

An effort by Talmadge supporters to purge the Atkinson County registration list ran into a snag here this week.

The entire list of 143 Negroes registered in this county was challenged by H. E. Lastinger at a meeting of the Board of Registrars Monday. Summons were issued and served at county expense, to the 143 Negroes, demanding their appearance before the Registrars Thursday morning, to answer charges as to why their names should not be removed from the voters list.

In the meantime, some of the leading Negroes got busy and through their attorney, R. A. Moore, of Douglas, filed an injunction temporarily restraining the Board of Registrars from disqualifying the Negroes. This injunction was served on the three members of the Board, K. L. Griffis, Otis Paulk and H. R. Tanner, early Thursday morning. A hearing has been set for Saturday morning before Judge F. M. Scarlett of the U.S. District Court, in Brunswick.

Names of the three Negroes appearing in the injunction were Homer Roberts, S. M. Gordon and James Gordon.

Efforts to remove the names of Negroes from the registration lists have appeared in many counties in Georgia, among them being Ben Hill, Coffee, Pierce and Colquitt.

At Brunswick, Attorney Moore charged a "conspiracy" to deprive Negroes of their onstitutional rights, and asked a court order restraining registrars from disqualifying Negroes. Moore said Negroes were being challenged in blocks, but that qualifications of no white persons were being questioned.

Reasons given for the challenges were for being under 18 years of age, non-residence in the county for six months, not being legal residents of Georgia, and not being competent to vote.

Mr. Lastinger, who challenged the Negroes in Atkinson County, says he will not give up now, but may cause the county not to hold an election on July 17. Just how he would do this he did not explain to the Tribune. He has employed several attorneys, among them being Leon Courson and Harry Jackson of Nashville and Aubrey Williams of Douglas.

The Board of Registrars have employed as their counsel O. C. Mingledorff, of Douglas.

Wholesale Purging of Negro Voters in Georgia Brings Federal Court and Other U. S. Actions

Atlanta, Ga. Jly 14, 1946

Atlanta, July 13.—(AP)—The Federal courts and the Justice Department moved today to consider the mass purging of Negroes from the voting lists in politically embroiled Georgia.

Hundreds of Negroes registered for the first time to vote in the July 17 Democratic primary—the actual election—have been qualified. The purging in some counties is still under way.

The latest unofficial figures show that 134,351 Negroes have registered to vote for the first time in Georgia. This compares with a white registration of 1,017,936. Whites outnumber Negroes 2 to 1 in Georgia.

Judge Orders Halt

Federal Judge Frank M. Scarlett ordered a halt to wholesale disenfranchisement of Negro leaders in Atlanta charge that Negroes have been purged from lists in 31 counties. The Negro spokesmen say in all about 20,000 Negroes have been challenged and no white persons.

C. A. Scott, editor of the Atlanta Daily World, Negro newspaper, said in a telegram he received from Theron L. Caudle, assistant attorney general of the United States, saying the complaints were being considered.

Meanwhile, Talmadge, Ex-Gov. Gene form calling for restoration of the "white primary" in Georgia, warned Negroes to stay away from the "white folks" primary.

Opposing Talmadge, thrice governor of Georgia, are Ex-Governor E. D. Rivers and James V. Carmichael, young wartime bomber plant manager, who has the backing of Governor Ellis Arnall.

In one of these counties, Appling, 600 Negroes were disqualified yesterday. Injunction proceedings affecting Ben Hill County were continued indefinitely because the board of registrars had adjourned until September. U. S. District Judge Hoyt Davis said this action automatically prevented further purgings.

In Colquitt County the chairman of the board of registrars protested against mass challenges of Negro registrants and

Negroes Given Literacy Tests in Some Counties

Macon Ga. Telegraph
June 9, 1946

ATLANTA, June 8—[AP]—Negroes registering to vote for the first time in a Georgia white primary are being given literacy tests in some counties, and the larger cities are qualifying a larger proportion of Negro voters than other districts.

Under Georgia's county unit system of voting, the smaller counties hold the balance of power in state elections.

In Fulton County [Atlanta] only 100 Negroes of the 24,000 registered have been purged from the voting list because of illiteracy.

92 QUALIFIES

In Sumter County [Americus], only 92 of the 650 Negroes who applied for registration, were considered qualified.

In Muscogee County [Columbus] Tax Commissioner Sterling W. Dudley said only about ten percent of the 2,940 Negroes who registered were purged because of illiteracy.

Practically none of the Negroes applying for registration in Floyd [Rome] were disqualified. T. E. Clemmons, Floyd tax collector said industrial areas such as Rome had fewer illiterate Negroes than country districts. That county qualified 1,200 Negroes among 17,200 voters.

DeKalb County [Decatur] reported it kept no record of the number of Negroes being disqualified for illiteracy or other reasons but that 1,300 Negroes were registered out of the total of 35,520.

NO FIGURES

Chatham County [Savannah] also had no figures on the number of Negroes disqualified. Registration there totals about 36,000, compared to only 16,000 two years ago. Separate card files are kept but the number of Negroes registered has not been totalled.

Many counties are giving broad interpretation to educational requirements set up in the state constitution and leaning toward leniency in qualification tests. The constitution gives the ballot to "persons who can correctly read in the English language any paragraph of the constitution of the United States or of this state and correctly write the same in the English Language when read to them."

The Muscogee commissioner said "we are being as lenient as possible with Negroes. We give them the benefit of the doubt. The registration law, of course, applies to both whites and Negroes."

In Dougherty County [Albany], 3,000 of the 13,000 applying for registration are Negroes. Dougherty lists have not yet been purged and the final registration will not be determined for several days.

Negroes Purged From Rolls, Two Ware Registrars Resign

With Negroes already purged from Georgia's registration rolls, two Ware County registrars have resigned, Marvin Griffin's campaigners as well as Eugene Talmadge's headquarters are working to strike Negroes from the voting lists, and a Gainesville editor has soundly denounced a Hall County purge.

In Waycross yesterday, Superior Court Judge Walter Thomas announced he had appointed O. M. Hires and Mrs. Sam Walker, Sr., to the Ware County Board of Registrars to succeed Mrs. T. E. Sams and B. F. Thornton, resigned.

Mrs. Sams said she quit because she understood a list of Negroes registered had been circulated outside the Board without unanimous consent of the Board, and because she was not in favor of purging the Negro list unless the white list also were purged. Thornton said he resigned because of business reasons.

CLERK RESIGNS

Mrs. E. A. Clary resigned as Clerk of the Board stating that if the Negro list was purged, she was in favor of the white list being purged simultaneously.

Hires estimated that between 500 and 600 Negroes have been challenged. He said no white registrants have been challenged.

At Perry yesterday, it was disclosed that the Houston County Board of Registrars is purging large numbers of Negroes daily, and it was estimated that a total of 600 of the 700 Negroes registered would be stricken from the rolls.

Dan L. Grant, of Perry and Atlanta (868 E. Rockspring Road), who is campaigning for the election of Marvin Griffin as Lieutenant-Governor, signed challenges on all the Negroes.

GRIFFIN'S CAMPAIGN

Griffin is campaigning on a "white primary" plank identical with that of Talmadge's, but the former executive secretary to ex-Gov. Rivers has denounced both Talmadge and Rivers, as well as Carmichael.

The Houston Home Journal said Talmadge headquarters furnished the Houston Board of Registrars with subpoenas for challenging the Negro vote. Chairman S. L. Norwood, of the Board, said he had not yet used the Talmadge subpoenas, and that he did not know where the subpoenas he is using came from.

DENOUNCED BY EDITOR

At Gainesville, Editor Austin Dean, of the Gainesville Eagle, condemned the challengers of several hundred Negro voters filed with the Hall County registrars.

Said Dean: "This challenge is a mean trick of the Talmadge forces which should react to the injury of the Wild Man of Sugar Creek's race. It is an obvious effort to disqualify these voters for no other reason than it is known they will not vote for a man who has low-rated and reviled them. There are whites in Hall County who can neither read nor write, and they probably outnumber the illiterate colored people more than two to one. Yet, these unfortunate people are not challenged. The Carmichael and Rivers forces are not indulging in a sorry subterfuge in an effort to strengthen their cause. Talmadge has challenged the entire voters' list by his trick, and the voters should accept the challenge in no uncertain terms."

Hearings Continue in Several Georgia Cities on Negro Vote

Valdosta, Ga. Daily Times
July 9, 1946

ATLANTA, July 9—(AP)—Hearings continued today in several Georgia cities on challenges filed against hundreds of Negroes, questioning their qualifications as voters in the July 17 Democratic primary.

Approximately 3,000 challenges were reported drawn against Fulton county voters. As the hearings got under way yesterday, Ellis McClelland, deputy registrar, ruled that persons failing to appear would be disqualified.

McClelland overruled a protest by A. T. Walden, attorney for the Citizens' Democratic Club, representing Negro voters, who contended that absence of the registrants did not make them guilty of contempt of court. Walden argued that the burden of proving disqualification rested on those filing the challenges.

The first of the Fulton county challenges were filed by Horace H. Scoggins, Sr. He questioned qualifications of 56 Negroes.

Scoggins, replying to a charge of discrimination against Negroes, said he would file 3,000 challenges by the date of the primary and that the number would include names of white registrants.

In the first cases heard in Rome six Negroes were challenged on the ground that vocal oaths had not been administered when they applied for registration. The Floyd County Board of Registrars ruled that the oath printed at the top of each page of the registration books was sufficient for qualified registration.

In Gainesville 17 of the first 46 challenged were disqualified. More than 800 Negroes have been challenged there but only 46 of the first 100 called for a hearing, appeared.

At Moultrie, mimeographed forms were used to challenge 304 Negroes. Twelve citizens signed the challenges. The forms did not specify grounds on which the challenges were based.

In Sumter county, where a large percentage of the Negro registrants have been stricken from voting lists, Eugene Horne, Americus attorney, resigned as clerk of the county board of registrars.

GEORGIA RACIAL ISSUE SPREADS

Charlotte, N. C. Observer
July 12, 1946

Federal Court Asked to Halt "State-wide Conspiracy" Against Negro Voters.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., July 11.—(AP)—The Federal court was asked today to halt a "state-wide conspiracy" to disfranchise Negroes in Georgia's July 17 Democratic primary in which the racial issue, fanned by former Governor Eugene Talmadge, has become red-hot.

Talmadge, seeking his fourth term in the governor's chair under his old "white supremacy" banner, says that Negroes can be excluded from the white primary despite a United States Supreme Court decision allowing them the ballot.

To accomplish this end, he proposes repeal of the State primary law to permit a "white man's primary" subject only to rules of the Democratic party.

OPPONENTS DISAGREE

His opponents, James V. Carmichael, young war-time Bell aircraft executive; former Governor E. D. Rivers, and Hoke O'Kelley, a newcomer, says a White primary not backed by the law would encourage fraud. Carmichael has the backing of Governor Ellis Arnall.

Today's court action was filed by Attorney Rufus Moore of Douglas, Ga., representing voters of four South Georgia counties. He charged a "conspiracy" to deprive Negroes of their constitutional rights, and asked a court order restraining registrars from disqualifying Negroes. A hearing was scheduled for Saturday.

Moore said that Negroes were being challenged in blocks, but that the qualification of no White person had been questioned.

One man in each county has challenged the Negro voters, Moore's petition said. The attorney listed reasons given for the challenges as being under 18 years of age (Georgia permits 18 year olds to vote), non-residence in a county for six months and not being legal residents of Georgia.

NEGROES PROTEST

Coincident with the action here, two of Georgia's Negro leaders made public in Atlanta a letter to United States Attorney General Clark asking an "investigation of the disgraceful purges of Negro voters."

The letter was signed by C. A. Scott, editor of the Atlanta World, Negro daily, and C. L. Harper, president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Atlanta unit, who estimated over 20,000 voters had been challenged.

Approximately 120,000 Negroes have registered since the supreme court decision permitting them to vote in the White primary. The State has a total registration of nearly one million. Georgia had a 1940 total population of 3,123,723, with 1,084,927 Negroes.

MANY NEGRO VOTERS PURGED IN GEORGIA

Negro Leaders Charge Conspiracy Saying No White Voters Are Challenged

By HENRY LESESNE

ATLANTA, July 13. (AP)—Hundreds of Negroes who have registered for the first time are being purged from the voting lists in Georgia a scant few days before the Democratic primary.

Georgia has more than 150 small rural counties. The situation varies from one county to another. An over-all picture while the purge is under way is difficult.

Negro leaders estimate that 20,000 Negroes have been challenged. Any citizen can challenge a registrant. The Negro leaders charge a conspiracy, saying no white persons are being challenged.

The hearings before boards of registrars—which act as courts in these matters—are going on in many counties. In some counties few Negroes have been disqualified; in others, the challenged registrants have been written off the books in blocs.

About 120,000 Negroes are registered by vote in Georgia for the first time. This is by far the biggest prospective Negro vote any southern state has been faced with this year. Yet it is only about a ninth of the total registration.

About a third of Georgia's population is Negro.

An attorney for voters in four South Georgia counties has filed a petition in federal court charging a statewide conspiracy to ban Negroes from voting in the July 17 primary, the equivalent of the election in Georgia.

He was granted a temporary order restraining the registrars further disqualifying Negroes. A hearing for a permanent injunction is docketed for today.

The challengers are generally identified as supporters of red-gallused Gene Talmadge, seeking a fourth term in the governor's mansion on a platform of "white supremacy" and 'restoration of the white primary."

Talmadge would circumvent a U. S. Supreme Court decision that Negroes can vote by removing the Democratic primary from state control. He has warned in his campaign speeches that "wise" Negroes will stay away from the polls.

The Spalding county board of registrars yesterday dismissed challenges aaginst 200 registered Negroes. It said the charges were too general. It said the complainant admitted he didn't even know the Negroes he was challenging.

In Appling county as estimated 500 Negroes were disqualified by rulings of the board when the Negros and their attorney failed to show up for a hearing after the board gave the attorney only five hours to prepare the defense.

The 120,000 potential Negro votes in Georgia are concentrated mainly in the populous counties. Under Georgia's county unit system the vote of the big counties doesn't count for much. But in many counties 100 votes often swing that county's unit vote.

Qualifications Of Negro Voters Questioned In Hall

GAINESVILLE, GA., July 4—(AP)—The qualifications of all negroes registering to vote in the July 17 Democratic primary will be challenged in the Gainesville district Frank B. Stow, attorney, said today.

Two hundred and forty challenges already have been filed with the Hall county board of registrars. Stow said about 825 negroes are registered in the district.

The attorney said he represented a group of citizens who are challenging qualification of negroes on points laid down in the new State constitution. These cover age, residence, character, and ability to read and understand a paragraph of the U. S. or State contsitution. The challenges bore signatures of 20 citizens.

Asked why all negroes were being challenged, Stow said only about one-eighth of those applying for registration, could qualify as voters.

More than 11,000 white voters are registered in the county, double the normal number.

Judge Boyd Sloan of the northeastern circuit, named three additional registrars to hear cases of those challenged. Stow said the three registrars already serving have as much work as they can handle. A date has not yet been set for hearing on the challenges.

Registration closes July 5 and Stow said it probably would be the day before the primary before the list of qualified voters is completed.

ALL NEGRO VOTERS IN CAMDEN CHALLENGED

HEARING OF CASE BEING CONDUCTED IN WOODBINE COURT HOUSE TODAY

Whether or not approximately 700 negroes will be permitted to vote July 17 in adjoining Camden county will be decided at a hearing being conducted today by the board of registrars of that county at Woodbine.

The hearing was started at the Camden Court House at 11 o'clock this morning and had not been completed early this afternoon.

C. J. Cogdell, loal attorney, employed to represent the colored voters, left for Woodbine this morning. However, he was employed only yesterday, it was stated, and was not familiar with all facts in the county-wide challenging of negro voters.

It was reported that practically every negro on the registration list in Camden had been challenged and had been notified to be at the court house in Woodbine, the county seat, at 11 o'clock this morning to show cause why their names should not be stricken from the Camden list. It is understood various reason were given, principally, it was reported, that the negroes were not eligible. It was a blanket charge against all of them that they were not qualified voters.

Under the law, it was pointed out, any person has the right to challenge a registered voter, and order him to show cause why his name should not be removed from the registration list. The voter, it was stated, must be given written notice, and also he must be given at least one day's notice of the date of the hearing. Most of the Camden negroes, it was reported, were notified yesterday that their votes had been challenged.

The News was advised this afternoon that the court house at Woodbine was packed with voters and others interested, and it was also stated that the hearing today was only informal and that the formal hearing will start later. It will continue for two or three days. Today the cases are being heard individually.

The Georgia Association of Citizens Democratic Clubs has interceded on behalf of the negro voters, and it was that organization which employed Mr. Cogdell to represent the voters. The registrars are represented by H. P. Martin. Members of the Camden board of registrars are A. R. Whitford, chairman, Robert Lewis and M. A. Brown.

NEGRO VOTERS ARE CHALLENGED IN PIERCE CO.

Hearings In Progress At Courthouse

45

Negro registrants in Pierce County this week are being challenged as to their right to vote in the July 17 Democratic primary.

Sheriff L. L. Taylor is serving the challenges, which were signed by Henry Baxter, well known Talmadge supporter in Pierce County.

Hearings have been in progress at the courthouse each day this week with the negroes appearing to answer the challenge before the board of registrars.

Various reasons are given for the challenges, among them questions of character, citizenship, and being able to understand the Constitution of the United States.

The challenges are being served at county expense of $1 each.

Approximately 350 negroes have been reported registered in Pierce County.

Baxley Group Asks FBI Purge Probe

Atlanta Ga. Constitution

The United States Department of Justice has been asked to investigate a "conspiracy" to deny voting privileges to Negroes in Georgia in the Democratic primary July 17.

This was one of the fast-moving developments Saturday in purging of Negroes from the registration lists. July 7, 1946

Mayor Hovis Floyd, of Baxley, and 11 other citizens asked the Department of Justice to probe the "conspiracy" against Negro voters in that South Georgia city. They wired Atty. Gen. Tom Clark that a member of the Board of Registrars assisted other persons in obtaining names of Negroes from registration records at night when the Board's office was closed. On the following day, the telegram said, the Board member presented other members formal challenges of qualifications of some 500 Negro registrants.

The telegram was signed by G. J. D. Rich, retired member of the Board; Albert S. Jenkins, editor of the Baxley Banner; E. D. Whisonant, Baxley School Superintendent; Dr. H. C. McCrackin, W. L. Boone, T. J. Barnes, W. R. Strozier, C. L. Hamilton, C. A. Whitaker, E. E. Griffin and W. C. Legget.

In Washington, Asst. Atty. Gen. Theron Lamar Caudle said the matter had been referred to Dist. Atty. J. Saxton Daniel at Savannah. Daniel declined any comment.

Challenges of the qualifications of some 700 Negroes in adjoining Ware County were withdrawn Saturday, following a visit to Waycross by a Savannah attorney who was employed by a group of Negro organizati[illegible] to inquire into reports of dis[illegible]imination.

Other challenges contesting the right of several hundred Negroes to vote in Fulton County have been registered with Tax Collector T. E. Suttles, and hearings on these will begin Monday.

The Board of Registrars at Sandersville struck "a large number of Negroes" from the voters' list Friday and Saturday, but did not say how many were disfranchised.

At Blackshear, Henry Baxter, Talmadge supporter, was ready to sign challenges against Negro registrants of Pierce County. Sheriff L. L. Taylor said challenges were being prepared by the Board of Registrars for him to serve. Pierce County has 30 Negroes registered.

As the Department of Justice was asked to investigate at least one Georgia County, Henry Troutman, of Atlanta, prominent Georgia attorney, predicted that the Federal Government will prosecute County Registrars who arbitrarily take Negroes off the voters list.

Troutman said, in an interview that registrars who are striking off Negroes without also purging white voters are flirting with terms in the Federal penitentiary.

He also warned that persons who file challenges against Negroes purely for the purpose of frightening them away from the polls are courting Federal prosecution.

VOTERS FRIGHTENED

"If the story is right that it is a part of the plan of such challenges to frighten the Negro voters from appearing and defending their right to vote, those who participated in such a conspiracy would be guilty of violating Section 51 of the Criminal Code of the United States, which provides that if two or more persons conspire to injure or oppress, threaten or intimidate any citizen in the free exercise of any rights secured by the Constitution or laws of the United States shall be fined not more than $5,000 and imprisoned not more than 10 years," the attorney pointed out. "Notice that this section says fined and imprisoned. It requires a prison sentence be given."

Troutman said that no sort of excuse or pretense can protect those guilty of intentional discrimination in preparing a voters' list. The United States Supreme Court has held, in interpreting the Federal Constitution, that any discrimination with respect to voters on account of color or race is a violation of the Civil Liberty Statutes and involves a criminal liability.

"If the county registrars in any county are undertaking to purge the list by questioning only Negroes, it is self-evident that their action is based on race and color no matter what excuses or pretenses they might offer," Troutman continued.

FEDERAL OFFENSE

He cited Section 52 of the Criminal Code of the United States which provides a fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment of not more than one year, or both, for any person who causes anyone to be deprived of the rights or privileges protected by the Constitution and laws of the United States because of his race or color.

Informed that some registrars are saying that a large number of challenges have been presented to them as to Negroes, but no challenges have been presented as to white people, Troutman said he did not think this would protect the registrars from Federal prosecution. He added that, of course, it would depend upon the way the registrars handle these protests.

"The Georgia law provides that where a voter's name appears on the list taken from the voters' book, this is evidence of his right to vote," the attorney stated. "This is set out in the Georgia Code, Section 34-401. The next section of the Code, 34-402, says that no name shall be removed from the voters' list except on 'sufficient legal proof.'

"The story as to some counties is that hundreds of challenges of Negro voters are being filed, that the notice is being given to the voters as required by law, but through intimidation or otherwise, many of the voters are afraid to answer these notices and that the registrars plan to take the names off the list because no legal appearance is made by the voter.

"The registrars have absolutely no right to do this, as the presumption is that the voter whose name appears in the voters' book is entitled to vote and any challenging him must present sufficient legal proof. If the registrars acted in the case of Negroes without sufficient legal proof, and I mean legal proof, the Federal Court would undoubtedly hold that the registrars were violating the criminal laws of the United States," Troutman believed.

Nearly All Registered Negroes Fail To Meet The Voting Requirements

Representative James M. Dykes stated today that of the large number of Negroes registered in Bleckley county all but approximately fifty failed to meet the requirements of law. Their failure to meet the requirements resulted from the investigations made by the Registrars following the issuance of challenges by Mr. Dykes and his attorney.

Mr. Dykes made this statement in connection with his stand for White Supremacy and the Democratic White Primary:

"Some people have the idea that I believe in mistreating Negroes. That is not true. I believe that they should be well treated and I have always done so, but I do not believe that the old traditions of the South should be thrown aside. I do not believe that they should have any part in our Primary and I do not believe in the so-called 'social equality' that voting in our Primary leads to."

Indications are that Bleckley will have the largest vote in its history next Wednesday. According to the latest information about 3,800 persons are registered, with the prediction that at least 70 per cent will vote. The outcome of the election cannot be predicted; however, there are rumors that many bets have been made, with support for both Talmadge and Carmichael not lacking.

All Negro Registrants To Be Challenged By Representative

Representative James Dykes issued a statement today in respect to legal action that will be started immediately to remove all negroes from the registration lists in Bleckley county.

Forms have been prepared and will be served according to Mr. Dykes, on each and every negro who is registered in this county, which will be followed up by proper legal procedure, as provided in the existing laws.

Similar action has been taken in many of the other counties in Georgia, according to Mr. Dykes, and "our contests have been sustained in a great majority of cases."

"I will," Mr. Dykes stated, "file a challenge in each and every instance, which challenge will be served by the sheriff and thereafter further legal action will be taken to safeguard our Democratic White Primary."

Mr. Dykes is a candidate for re election as Representative in the General Assembly from Bleckley county and one of the main planks in his platform is the preservation of White Supremacy, The Democratic White Primary and the retention of the County Unit System.

Additional Registrars Appointed; Negro Registrants Challenged

Irwinton Ga. News July 5, 1946

Irwinton, July 5. At the request of Dr. W. M. Puckett, chairman of the Board of Registrars of Wilkinson County, Superior Court Judge George S. Carpenter has appointed three additional members to the Board of Registrars to pass on the qualifications of the largest list of voters in the history of Wilkinson County.

Puckett requested the additional members on the grounds that the present Board could not handle the job in the short time available.

A. L. Branan of Toomsboro, H. B. Stuckey of Danville, and H. A. Fountain of Gordon are the three new appointees. Present members of the Board are Dr Puckett, H. A. Mills of Toomsboro and Otis Etheridge of Gordon.

The enlarged Board met for the first time Wednesday, and plan to hold hearing on the qualifications of challenged voters beginning Monday of next week.

Two taxpayers of Wilkinson County have filed legal challenges of the qualifications of the large member of registered negro voters in this county, and Sheriff George Hatcher will begin serving the notices on those challenged to appear before the Board of Registrars and prove their qualifications, or else be stricken from the list of voters

Purging of Negro Voters Draws U. S. Attention

Sun. 7-14-46

Atlanta, July 13 (AP)—The Federal Courts and the Justice Department moved today to consider the mass purging of Negroes from the voting lists in politically embroiled Georgia.

Hundreds of Negroes registered for the first time to vote in the July 17 Democratic primary—the actual election—have been disqualified. The purging in some counties is still under way.

It would not be a tremendous upset if Jimmy Carmichael should defeat Eugene Talmadge in Georgia's gubernatorial primary Wednesday, George Burt, writing from Atlanta, says on Page 1 of The Passing Show.

134,351 Negroes Register.

The latest unofficial figures show that 134,351 Negroes have registered to vote for the first time in Georgia. This compares with a white registration of 1,017,-036. Whites outnumber Negroes 3 to 1 in Georgia.

S. A. Scott, editor of The Atlanta Daily World, Negro newspaper, made public a telegram he received from Theron L| Caudle, assistant attorney general of the United States, saying the complaints on disqualification of Negroes were being considered.

Federal Judge Frank M. Scarlett at Brunswick ordered a halt to wholesale disenfranchisement of Negroes in Atkinson County in south Georgia. Registrars of three other south Georgia Counties were ordered to appear for a hearing Monday.

600 Disqualified.

In one of these counties, Appling, 600 Negroes were disqualified yesterday. Injunction proceedings affecting Ben Hill County were continued indefinitely because the Board of Registrars had adjounren until September. U. S. District Judge Hoyt Davis said this action automatically prevented further purgings.

In Colquitt County the chairman of the Board of Registrars protested against mass challenges of Negro registrants and a group of citizens is seeking his removal. A hearing is set for Monday.

Negro leaders in Atlanta charge that eNgroes have been purged from the lists of Georgia's 159 counties. The Negro spokesmen say in all about 20,000 Negroes have been challenged.

Georgia Courts Rule On Negro Voting Rights

The Courier-Journal Louisville, Ky.
July. 7-9-46

Atlanta, July 8 (AP)—The hearing of challenges against hundreds of Negroes whose right to vote in the July 17 primary is contested began in Georgia today and brought a variety of legal rulings.

In Rome, the Floyd County Board of Registrars ruled that no name would be stricken from the list of registered voters merely because no oath had been vocally administered at the time of registration.

Vaughan Terrell, solicitor of Floyd City Court, had challenged the right of six Negroes to vote because no oath had been administered vocally.

3,000 Negroes Challenged.

Meanwhile in Atlanta, hearings opened on the first of an estimated 3,000 Negroes whose names have been challenged, and Deputy Registrar Ellis McClelland ruled that persons failing to appear would be disqualified.

Of the 17 Negroes who appeared before Registrar McClelland, 15 were qualified and two were disqualified. Many summoned to the hearing failed to show up. McClelland said if they failed to show up again tomorrow he would disqualify them.

A. T. Walde, attorney for the Citizens' Democratic Club which is representing the defendants, had protested that absence of the defendants did not make them guilty of contempt of court.

With 118,387 Negroes registered in the state to vote in the primary for the first time, other Georgia counties also challenged their qualifications.

At Gainesville, 17 of the first 46 challenged were disqualified. Some 825 Negroes are being challenged there, but only 46 of the first 100 ordered to a hearing appeared to answer the protest.

Negroes Seek To Keep Names On Voting List

Tues. 9-10-46

ALBANY, Sept. 9—(AP)—A petition to enjoin the removal of Negroes from voters' lists in four Southwest counties has been filed here with the clerk of the U. S. Court, Middle District of Georgia.

Brought against the boards of registrars in Mitchell, Worth, Early and Baker Counties by a group of 20 Negroes, through their attorney, Aaron Kravitch, of Savannah, the petition alleges that the plaintiffs "and thousands of other Negroes have been illegally disfranchised in Georgia by a conspiracy to intimidate, harass and prevent thousands of Negroes from voting in the July 17, 1946, primary."

45e 1946 Georgia (Purge)

GEORGIA PURGE

Convinced Now There Are Mean Men Who Lie Awake Nights Planning Evil

By BENJAMIN E. MAYS

The Courier Pittsburgh, Pa. Sat. 7-27-46

I SAT in court last week. I saw with my own eyes and heard with my own ears what was going on in the Fulton County Court House where sinister and evil forces were at work to disqualify Negro voters. Let me take you into my confidence and tell you what I saw and heard and give you my interpretation of it. As I sat there, I was convinced once again that some men are evil and that they lie awake at night and deliberately plan ways and means of accomplishing their wicked objective.

Mr. Mays

The purge which sprang up last week all over Georgia was and is directed only at Negroes. This fact alone proves that it is discriminatory and cannot stand in a Federal court. If those who challenge the right of Negroes to vote on the basis of good character and literacy were honestly interested in good character or literacy, they would challenge white registrants as well as Negro registrants. Everybody knows that there are some white people who have criminal records and that some of them cannot read and interpret the Federal Constitution. The discriminatory character of the purge is so obvious that it must be embarrassing to every decent white person in Georgia. It sounds like Talmadge.

IT IS CLEAR that the court record was the basis of procedure in Fulton County; otherwise the prosecuting attorney would have done a better job. He made so many mistakes that it was disgusting. For example, a Negro girl, age 18, was brought into the court. Her vote was challenged because in 1931 she was charged with shoplifting. A girl 18 in 1946 was only three years old in 1931. She was dismissed and qualified because she was the wrong person. A graduate of one of the Atlanta colleges was brought in who had never been in anybody's court before. She had the same name as that of another person but was not that person. She was qualified and dismissed. Another Negro was challenged because of a criminal record. The accused Negro did not answer the description made in the charges. The picture of another man was produced in an effort to convict him. Still not convinced, the prosecuting attorney had the Negro finger printed only to find that the finger prints of the Negro being challenged were not the finger prints of the criminal who had previously been convicted. He was qualified and dismissed.

An effort was made to disqualify a woman on the charge of bigamy. The prosecuting attorney tried to prove conviction by producing the woman's picture. It was the picture of another woman. The deputy registrar trying the case ruled that the picture presented was of a woman much fairer than the girl under question. She was qualified and dismissed.

ALTHOUGH the prosecuting attorney has the right to question the voters on their knowledge of the duties of citizenship, the basis of the challenge in Fulton County has been on the basis of character. Failing to disqualify on character, the prosecuting attorney questioned the Negroes on the Federal Constitution and the duties of citizenship. So many Negroes knew the duties of citizenship that the prosecuting attorney tried to prove that Negroes were conducting a school outside while they were waiting to be called and that the Negroes learned the duties of citizenship after they arrived. The deputy registrar ruled that the attorney could not prove when the Negroes learned the duties of citizenship and further that if he could prove it the time element was irrelevant. A. T. Walden, able Negro attorney, is doing a magnificent job defending the Negroes challenged.

But, fortunately there is a sense of justice in this purge. The deputy registrar has been fair. Not more than one-fourth have been disqualified and fewer than a hundred have been examined. I believe any judge would have disqualified those whe were disqualified. But no white persons are being challenged. Negroes and white friends of justice have appealed to the Department of Justice. The Department of Justice has authorized the district attorneys to exercise the function of their offices to prevent the disfranchisement of Negroes. Federal injunctions have been put into operation and on July 13 in Brunswick, Ga., District Judge Frank M. Scarlett ordered a halt to the wholesale disfranchisement of Negroes in Atkinson County in South Georgia. Election officials of several other counties where purges have been charged have been ordered to appear before him. In Macon, Judge T. Hoyt Davis, the judge who handed down the first decision in favor of Negro voting, has ordered indefinite continuance of injunction proceedings against registrars of Ben Hill County. A few members of local committees have resigned their posts rather than be a party to the wholesale effort to purge Negroes.

OF COURSE the danger is that these proceedings may frighten the more timid Negroes away from the polls on July 17 which is no doubt what the enemies of democracy want. It is also sad to learn that one of the prosecuting attorneys was a Jew. Evidently he has forgotten the Nazi purge of Jews in Germany.

ATLANTA, July 16.—The Federal Government stepped in to insure the civil rights of Negroes in tomorrow's Georgia Democratic primary boiling with the heat of a "white supremacy" cry, charges of out-of-State meddling and a CIO-PAC issue.

About the time the FBI announced it was probing the primary, in which hundreds of Negro registrants have been stricken from the voting lists, a U. S. judge ordered 600, "purged" in a block in Appling County, restored.

The judge, Frank M. Scarlett, at Brunswick, also enjoined Pierce County election officials against "illegal disqualification of any Negro from voting." Tues 7-16-46

Red-gallused Gene Talmadge, who has been governor of Georgia three times in the past, has issued a warning to "wise" Negroes to stay away from the polls. He is opposed for the governorship by ex-Gov. E. D. Rivers and James V. Carmichael, 37-year-old wartime bomber plant manager, who has the blessing of Gov. Ellis Arnall.

Talmadge had promised that if elected he will restore the "white primary" to Georgia by taking the primary out of state control and having it regulated by the Democratic party. He contends that in this way the U. S. Supreme Court decision can be circumvented.

Charge Negroes Intimidated.

MACON, Ga., Sept. 10.—(AP)—A charge that intimidation kept "thousands" of Negroes aaway from the polls in the July 17 Georgia Democratic primary will be heard in Albany October 9 by Macon's Federal Judge T. Hoyt Davis. The charge was contained in a suit filed in behalf of 20 Negroes in the Georgia middle district Federal court to stop removal of Negroes from the voting lists of Mitchell, Worth, Early and Baker counties.

Atkinson Enjoined From Purging Negroes

Constitution Atlanta, Ga.

BRUNSWICK, July 13—(AP)—U. S. Judge Frank Scarlett Saturday ordered the Atkinson County Board of Registrars to halt their wholesale disfranchisement of Negroes and postponed rulings on three other counties until Monday when election officials were ordered to appear before him.

The court made permanent its temporary injunction in Atkinson County after a brief hearing. It forbids wholesale purging of Negro names from voter registration lists—a practice underway in several counties where Negroes are voting for the first time July 17 in the democratic primary.

In the Coffee County case, the court ordered the man filing challenges against Negroes to appear before him Monday morning when the hearing is continued. "I want that man in court," the judge said. 7-13-46 Sat.

Atty. Rufus Moore, of Douglas, who has filed complaints charging a "conspiracy" to deprive Negroes of voting in the four South Georgia counties, had asked for continuance of the hearing since he was unable to subpoena some of his witnesses. Julian Bennett, attorney representing a member of the Board, moved to set aside the temporary injunction but this was denied until Monday when the hearing is re-opened. Sat. 7-13-46

Registrars of Appling County, where 600 Negroes were disfranchised yesterday, were ordered to court Monday after Aaron Kravitch, attorney of Savannah, said their action was a "judicial lynching." Kravitch appealed to the court for an order to show the Negroes were qualified. Such an order could be followed by a petition for court enforcement.

Registrars for Pierce County, appearing before the judge, said they had not had time to obtain an attorney and their hearing was also postponed until Monday.

Registrants Without Criminal Records Are Quizzed

Sunday 7-18-46

The Fulton County purge hearings continued Monday with 32 challenged Negro registrants appearing before Deputy Registrar Ellis McClelland. Of this number, 11 were disqualified and 21 ruled eligible to vote in tomorrow's primary election.

Without exception, those disqualified had been convicted of crimes involving moral turpitude. Attorney A. T. Walden conferred with the defendants before they took the stand, and in cases where they admitted convictions for serious crimes, advised them not to contest the challenges.

ATTORNEYS CLASH

The proceedings Monday followed the same routine, with Attorney Charles G. Bruce and his assistant Attorney Isaac M. Wengrow leading the registrants in a manner designed to make them incriminate themselves.

When one defendant admitted to Attorney Walden that he had been convicted of a felony, the deputy registrar was informed that he would not contest the chailenge.

Attorney Wingrow protested vigorously, insisting that the defendant be forced on the stand. but Attorney Walden objected, asking the challenger's counsel what was his motive. Attorney Wingrow became irked again when a registrant who had been convicted on a misdemeanor charge of assault and battery was qualified.

NO CRIMINAL RECORD

In several instances Monday the challenged voters had no criminal record, yet the attorneys for the challenger followed through with their test on government, the duties and obligations of citizenship. Then there were cases in which the registrants had been picked up for late hours, using profane language and fighting. When these defendants passed the citizenship test, Attorney Wingrow complained about what he termed stereotyped answers.

The hearings will be resumed at 3:30 this afternoon. Indications are that the hearings will not be concluded today, so all challenged voters should contact Attorney Walden regarding their status for tomorrow's election.

The first priority in Metropolitan Atlanta's traffic improvement program is construction of a wide belt highway around the entire downtown section of the city, it was decided Monday at a meeting of city, county, state and federal engineers at the State Highway Department Monday.

The engineers also named as a priority the construction of another viaduct west of the present Spring Street viaduct connecting on th north with Techwood Drive and on the southwest with Chapel Street

Tues. 7-17-46

The Fulton County purge got underway, Monday morning, when Horace H. Scoggins contested the qualifications of the first group of registrants of the basis of character and lack of understanding of the duties and obligations of citizenship in a republican form of government.

Approximately 35 Negro registrants are slated to appear before Deputy Registrar Elis McClelland, Room 220-B, Fulton County Courthouse at 9:30 this morning to answer challenges designed to deprive them of their rights as American citizens.

Since the hearings opened, the fact that only Negroes have been challenged has been substantiated, which makes it unmistakably clear that the move to disenfranchise these registrants in Fulton County is a part of a sinister plot that seems to be spreading over the State like an epidemic.

disqualified. In challenging the rights of these persons to vote, Scoggins used criminal records. In several instances, the registrants who had received subpoenas had no criminal records at all, but strangely enough, after admitting that he had the wrong person, Attorney Charles G. Bruce, representing Scoggins continued with his quiz on the duties and obligations of citizenship.

Appling Board Is Ordered To Restore 600 Names

Tuesday 7-16-46

The Federal Bureau of Investigation was reported Monday as probing attempts to intimidate Georgia Negroes with a view of preventing their participation Wednesday in the statewide Democratic primary. 7-16-46

The investigation is being conducted at the request of the U. S. Attorney General's office, according to FBI Agent John F. Troet. Action of the Department of Justice in stopping the "shameful" purge of Negro registrants from voters' lists in a large number of the 159 counties of the state was requested last week.

Meanwile, Monday at Brunswick Federal Judge Frank M. Scarlett ordered the registrars of Appling County in South Georgia to return to the list of qualified voters for the primary the names of 600 Negroes who had been stricken in a block.

600 NAMES REMOVED

The Appling Board of Registrars had removed the 600 from the list of eligible voters on July 13 after the majority of them failed to appear before the board, which summoned them to answer challenges of their right to vote. Several who appeared before the board were disqualified.

The registrars were given by Judge Scarlett until Tuesday to put the 600 Negroes' names back on the list and certify the list to the proper county authorities.

In the case of Coffee County, Judge Scarlett ordered the registrars to complete their list of eligible voters to the proper county authorities also by Tuesday Tuesday 7-16-46

In another case from Pierce County, Judge Scarlett issued an injunction preventing the "illegal disqualification of any Negroes from voting," between now and the primary Wednesday.

LENGTHY HEARING

Tuesday

Judge Scarlett's ruling in the Coffee County case was preceded by a lengthy hearing during which members of the Board of Registrars and persons who had filed challenges against 103 Negroes in the county were questioned. The Coffee board chairman, T. V. Williams, claimed he had only done his duty in accepting the challenges because the cards on which the Negro registrants took the voters' oath had not been filled out correctly. 7-16-46

The FBI was understood to be probing into the possibility of Negroes' civil rights in several sections of the state. Major William E. Spence, of the Georgia Highway Patrol, said his office did "not anticipate any disorders" when Negroes go to the polls for the first time to vote in a Georgia primary.

Over 134,000 Negroes were registered to vote. An issue of their voting had been made by Gubernatorial Candidate Eugene Talmadge, who advised them not to vote. However, the more than a million registrants in the state were prepared to go to the polls Wednesday to vote on a governor, 10 congressmen, state house officials, legislators and numerous other candidates for state posts.

A few threats to Negro voters were reported.

CRUDE SIGNS

At Locust Grove, a crudely lettered sign was thrown at the door of a pressing club. The sign wanted Negroes to "stay in this week" and was signed "K. K. K." The Mayor E. B. Daniel attributed the sign to a youngster's prank and said he knew of no Klan in the community.

In Fitzgerald, sign warnings were posted on the doors of seven Negro church warning against voting. The names of 700 out of 900 Negro registrants in Ben Hill County already had been stricken from the voters list.

According to information from several sections, many counties are setting up separate voting places for whites persons and Negroes. Adequate booths for Negro voters were promised by county Democratic officials in those cases where the separate idea was to prevail.

The four candidates for governor are slated to speak together in a special Radio Station WSB broadcast tonight from 8 to 9 o'clock.

Negroes Bring Civil Action To Get On Voters List

Baltimore

A civil suit in the United States district court for the Middle district, Albany division has been launched against the registrars of Mitchell, Baker, Early, and Worth counties by a group of colored citizens, through their attorney, Aaron Kravitch, of Savannah, Ga., to secure an injunction against the Registrars to prevent the removal of the names of colored registrants from the voters list.

Summons was served on the individual registrars as defendants. to appear in Federal court on October 9, before Judge Hoyt Davis, along with an order to produce registration books, voters lists, the complaints filed and other records of the meetings of the Board of Registrars.

The defendants in the case are: B. T. Burson, John Collins, and Clovis Turk of Mitchell county; J. F. Ethredge, J. O. Irvin and S. H. Sheffield, of Baker County; Gaston Cannon, J. M. Cowart, and O. F. Thompson, of Early County; R. B. Pollard, J. J. Merritt and George Tatum, of Worth County.

Petitioners charge for "themselves and thousands of other negroes who have been illegally disfranchised in Georgia; that prior to the primary election, a general conspiracy in violation of law had been conceived and formed for the illegal purposes as hereinafter set out, by diverse and sundry persons unknown to your petitioners but believed to be well known to the defendants, the scheme being to disfranchise, intimidate, harras and prevent thousands of negroes in Georgia from participating in said primary on July 17, 1946, and in pursuance of said conspiracy overt acts were committed in Baker, Worth, Mitchel, and Early counties directed from some central place in the State of Georgia, the effect of which was through said defendants in their legal capacity as registrars to remove illegally and without just cause or reason, thousands of names of negro registrants.

The petitioners ask reinstatement of all negroes to the voters list—Camilla Enterprise.

ABOUT 4,500 ON CITY REGISTRATION LIST

PURGING OF WHITE VOTERS HAS BEEN COMPLETED BOARD OF REGISTRARS

There are approximately 4,500 voters on the city registration list, eligible to participate in the primary to be held on October 22, but how many of them are still residents of Brunswick remains to be seen.

The board of city registrars has completed purging the list of white voters and it was announced today there are 2,950 qualified. Work of purging the colored list is now in progress, and it is estimated there are between 1, 500 and 1,600 registered, all of whom will be eligible to vote in the primary.

It was explained, however, that many voters principally white, have registered during the past several months who were defense workers, and who decided to qualify as voters. How many of these remain there is no way for the registrars to determine, therefore they will remain on the list even if they have returned to their former homes.

The city registration laws provide that no one shall be removed from the registration list until they have missed voting in two elections, therefore there will be no way of arriving at the number now qualified who are no longer residents of the city. An estimate was made today, however, that it is believed at least 1,000 of the total are not now in the city.

The registrars, Claude Dart, J. C. Stiles and B. Padrosa, with C. E. Wingate as clerk, will complete the entire list within a few days, it was stated, and a new certified list of voters will then be filed with the city clerk and it will be used in the approaching primary.

Meanwhie, the several candidates for places on the city commission are now engaged in a quiet but active campaign. Friends of the various candidated are holding conferences and sizing up the situation and the contest may become more active shortly, as the primary is to be held in about three weeks.

Plot To Ban Negroes From Polls Charged

The Birmingham News
Birmingham Ala

BRUNSWICK, Ga., July 12—(AP)—A petition charging a statewide conspiracy to ban Negroes from voting in Georgia's July 17 Democratic primary election was filed in U. S. District Court yesterday.

The suit was filed by Rufus Moore, of Douglas, Ga., representing voters in four South Georgia counties. He asked that registrars in the four counties be restrained from further disqualification of Negroes.

Fri. 7-12-46

The petition was the latest development in a heated Georgia campaign for the gubernatorial nomination with former Gov. Eugene Talmadge waving the banner of "white supremacy."

He is opposed by James V. Carmichael, backed by outgoing Gov. Arnall; former Gov. E. D. Rivers and Hoke O'Kelley, war veteran.

A recent U. S. Supreme Court decision gave Negroes the right to vote in the Georgia primary and about 120,000 have registered.

Judge Frank M. Scarlett temporarily enjoined registrars in three of the counties from further disqualification of Negroes pending a hearing on the suit Saturday.

Moore's petition said hundreds of Negro voters had been sent notices to appear before registration boards and show cause why they should not be disqualified.

Negroes File Action Against Registrars

George W. Lumpkin, J. T. Ayers, R. G. Braswell, E. Kirk and Robt. Wynn, all of Worth county, and fifteen other negro residents of Baker, Mitchell and Early counties, on August 30th brought action in the U. S. District court at Albany in which they claim there has been a statewide conspiracy upon the part of registrars of the four counties and a number of others in the state to disfranchise them and thousands of other negroes.

The petitioners claim that the registrars of these four and other counties of the state entered into a statewide conspiracy and in pursuance of that conspiracy, they did without cause or reason, remove the names of thousands of negroes from the registration lists without a hearing and without any reason other than that they were negroes.

The petitioners claim that in each of the four counties named two persons challenged th ote of all negroes and that said challengers did not know 95 per cent of the persons so challenged.

They ask the court to order the registrars to restore their names on the registration lists of said four counties.

Judge Hoyt Davis has set Oct. 9th as the date for a hearing on the petition at Albany.

The registrars are required to file their answer to the action on or before September 23rd.

Separate Polling Place for Negroes

A separate polling place for Negro voters will be set up for the coming Democratic Primary next Wednesday, July 17th by the committee of registrars.

This poll will probably be placed in the Negro section of Cochran, it was stated.

Of approximately 200 Negroes registered, only 64 have been found eligible following the challenge by James Dykes, representative to the General Assembly, on the grounds of "illiteracy and so forth." A large number failed to appear before the Registrars and were disqualified automatically.

Negroes Seek To Keep Names On Voting List

Albany, Ga., Sept. 10—A charge that intimidation and harassment kept "thousands" of negroes away from the polls in the July 17 Georgia Democratic primary was made Monday in Federal Court.

The charge was contained in a suit filed in behalf of 20 negroes in the Georgia middle distirict federal court to stop removal of negroes from the voting lists in Mitchell, Worth, Early and Baker counties

Attorney Aaron Kravitch of Savannah filed the suit, which alleges:

"The plaintiffs" and thousands of other negroes have been illegally disenfranchised in Georgia by a conspiracy to intimidate, harass and prevent x x x negroes from voting in the July 17, 1946 primary."

Putnam's Negro Vote Challenged

Constitution State News Service.

EATONTON, July 6—The right of each of Putnam County's 230 registered Negro voters has been challenged, W. S. Hooten, Chairman of the County Board of Registrars, announced Saturday. Hooten stated that representatives of the various County districts made the complaints and signed the individual challenges to the voters in their respective districts.

The date for the formal hearing has been set for July 11. The notices, which were given to Sheriff J. L. Paschall for service, notified the voters that their right has been challenged and for them to appear at the hearing to show cause why their names should not be stricken from the list.

The challengers said they have obtained the services of an out-of-town attorney to represent them at the hearing. Of Putnam's approximately 2,500 registered voters, there are 230 Negroes on the list. The Board of Registrars is composed of W. S. Hooten, R. R. Spivey, and J. H. Vining.

Vote Purge On Negroes Mount All Over State

"Stop-Negro Move" Blankets Whole State, Say Leaders

Daily Herald

In an effort to halt the discriminatory practice of purging Negroes from the voter's list in Coffee, Pierce and Atkinson Counties, a petition was filed in the Federal Court, at Brunswick, Thursday, by Attorney Rufus Moore.

This petition was filed to prevent these counties from further disqualifying Negroes, pending the permanent hearing Saturday, when Judge Hoyt Davis will hear the Ben Hill County case.

Fri. 7-12-46

This was the second move on the part of Negroes, seeking Federal intervention. Negro leaders at Atlanta, Wednesday, called on United States Attorney General Tom Clark to investigate the "disgraceful purges of Negro voters" in the state.

Atlanta, Ga.,

STATEWIDE CONSPIRACY

The petition filed at Brunswick characterized the challenges as a part of a "statewide conspiracy to deprive Negroes generally and particularly in these counties of their right of franchise as guaranteed them under the constitutional provision pointed out. It was also pointed out that the challenges were signed by one man in each county.

Reasons for the challenged varied, but practically all Negro voters were notified to appear before their respective Boards of Registrars and show cause why their names should not be dropped from the lists. The estimated number of qualified Negro voters in these counties is as follows: Ben Hill, 500; Coffee, 700; Pierce, 350; and Atkinson, 67.

Fri. 7-12-46

ADDITIONAL COUNTIES

It has also been reported that one individual has filed a blanket charge against the 322 Negro registrants in Barrow County. The challenges were mimeographed and signed by the challenger.

Atlanta, Ga.

The Atlanta Daily World learned late Thursday, that a move is underway in Meriweather County to disfranchise more than 287 qualified Negro voters.

Gainesville Challenges Negro Primary Voters

GAINESVILLE, Ga., July 3 (AP)—The qualifications of all Negroes registering to vote in the July 17 Democratic primary will be challenged in the Gainesville district, Frank B. Stow, attorney, said today.

Two hundred and forty challenges already have been filed with the Hall County Board of Registrars. Stow said about 825 Negroes are registered in the district.

The attorney said he represented a group of citizens who are challenging qualification of Negroes on points laid down in the new state constitution. These cover age, residence, character, and ability to read and understand a paragraph of the U. S. or state constitution. The challenges bore signatures of 20 citizens.

Mitchell To Fight Negro Injunction

From The Camilla Enterprise

In a civil suit in the United States District Court for the Middle District, Albany Division, brought by a group of negroes through their attorney in Savannah and launched against the Board of Registrars of Mitchell, Baker, and Worth counties to secure an injunction against the Registrars to prevent the removal of the names of colored registrants from the voters list, members of the Mitchell County Board of Registrars will be represented by two attorneys hired Tuesday at county expense by the Mitchell County Board of Commissioners.

B. T. Burson, Jr., chairman of the Board of Registrars of Mitchell county, appeared before the Commissioners at their regular monthly meeting here Tuesday and reported that the suit had been filed. Burson stated that he had been appointed to the Board of Registrars by Judge Carl E. Crow, had together with the two other members of the Board, Clovis Turk and John Collins, handled the multitudenous work of the Board prior to the July 17th election at county expense (cost of summoning and conducting individual hearings for each of the negroes on the list challenged by a group of local citizens) and had felt all the time they were serving, that they were performing a service to the people of the county just as any county officer.

Burson told the Board of Commissioners that he felt it was not his obligation or any other Board member to hire at his own personal expense a lawyer to represent him, and other Board members, in the Federal Court suit. "I believe this is a county matter and you can rest assured that I do not propose to spend my own money to defend this action in court. I have nothing to lose personally if I do not show up that day in court but if I don't show up, go up there and try to defend this action. it will affect every citizen in this county. The only thing that would happen if I fail to answer this suit would be that the negroes would win the suit by default and automatically the names of the fourteen hundred some odd negroes who were struck off the voting list in this county would go back on the list."

Burson reiterated several times his belief that the individual hearings given each negro in the Mitchell County voting list had been conducted in a fair and impartial manner and had been conducted strictly according to Georgia Law concerning the challenging of any person's name on a voting list and the subsequent required individual hearings by the Board of Registrars of each challenged registrant.

Robert Culpepper, Jr., of Camilla, and O. B. McElvey, of Pelham, were hired by the Commissioners to defend the Board of Registrars in the suit, following the Commissioners hearing of Burson's re-

COUNTIES SUBJECT TO LITERACY TESTS NEGRO REGISTRANTS

ATLANTA, Ga., June 8.—(AP)—Under Georgia's county unit system of voting, the smaller Negroes registering to vote for counties hold the balance of power in state elections.

In Fulton county (Atlanta) only the first time in a Georgia white primary are being given literacy tests in some counties, and the 100 Negroes of the 24,000 regis- larger cities are qualifying a largtered have been purged from the voting list because of illiteracy.

In Sumter county (Americus), only 92 out of the 650 Negroes who applied for registration were considered qualified.

In Muscogee (Columbus) Tax Commissioner Sterling W. Dudley said only about ten per cent of the 2,940 Negroes who registered were purged because of illiteracy.

Practically none of the Negroes applying for registration in Floyd (Rome) were disqualified. T. E. Clemmons, Floyd tax collector, said industrial areas such as Rome had fewer illiterate Negroes than country districts. That county qualified 1,200 Negroes among 17,200 voters.

DeKalb county (Decatur) reported it kept no record of the number of Negroes being disqualified for illiteracy or other reasons but that 1,300 Negroes were registered out of the total of 35,520.

Chatham county (Savannah) also had no figures on the number of Negroes disqualified. Registration there totals about 36,000, compared to only 16,000 two years ago. Separate card files are kept but the number of Negroes registered has not been totalled.

Many counties are giving broad interpretation to educational requirements set up in the state constitution and leaning toward leniency in qualification tests.

The question of separate polling places for Negroes and whites is not dealt with in Georgia statutes. An unofficial opinion by the attorney general cited a code section limiting voting precincts to one in each militia district, except districts lying in whole or in part in incorporated municipalities.

Clark Assistant Says District Offices Can Act

Justice Dept. Will Back Up Any Prosecution

Daily World
Atlanta, Ga.
7-13-46

The Department of Justice in Washington, D. C., Friday acknowledged receipt of a complaint from Atlanta citizens charging a statewide conspiracy to bar colored registrants from voting in the July 17 primary and requesting Attorney General Tom Clark to order an investigation of the "disgraceful purges" of colored voters in 31 counties.

The acknowledgement of receipt of the complaint was received in a telegram to Editor C. A. Scott of the Atlanta Daily World, from Theron L. Caudle, assistant Attorney General. Mr. Scott and C. L. Harper, president of the Atlanta Branch NAACP telegraphed Washington for immediate action in the voter purge. Mr. Caudle advised the Georgians to furnish U. S. District Attorney M. Neil Andrews with all available information on the discriminatory purge. The telegram said that complaints from other Georgia counties were now having the attention of the Department of Justice.

PURGE UNDER STUDY

In Washington a spokesman for the department said the matter of voter purging is under study and that U. S. attorneys in Georgia are watching developments and have full authority to institute prosecutions for any violations of federal laws. The Justice Department, it was added, will back the Georgia federal attorneys fully in any prosecutions they may initiate.

The request for U. S. investigation of the Georgia purge was made with a view of bringing criminal prosecution of any conspiracy to deprive Georgia Negro citizens of their vote rights.

Negroes in every section of the state were advised Friday to contact their nearest Federal District Attorney and give him full information on any disqualification from voting in the continuing purges, which have been laid at the doorsteps of Talmadge henchmen.

Meanwhile the effort to strike all Negroes from the registration lists for the primary seemed to be bogging down throughout the state Friday, following a temporary restraining order issued in Federal Court at Brunswick, Thursday against the registrars of four south Georgia counties. 7-13-46

RESTRAINT ACTION TODAY

The restraining orders, affecting Atkinson, Coffee, Ben Hill and Pierce Counties, will be passed upon finally in Federal Courts at Brunswick and Macon today.

In Lamar County, Raymond R. Davis, chairman of the board of registrars, announced that Negro voters who do not answer a summons to appear before the board in that county will be left on the registration list unless competent evidence is introduced to disqualify them. Davis was advised that this action is legal and correct by U. S. District Attorney John T. Cowart, of Macon. Cowart said that disqualification of voters for failure to appear before the board would be a violation of federal law.

Under a ruling of Chairman Lon Duckworth of the Democratic State Executive Committee, the Polk County board of registrars ruled the challenging of 499 Negro voters in that county to be illegal. T. K. Davitt, Talmadge campaign leader, had challenged the Polk countains of color.

Meanwhile, in Eatonton, W. S. Hooten, chairman of the Putnam County board of registrars, reported about 20 percent of the county's registered Negroes had been disqualified. Challenges were issued on grounds of ncompetence, due to lack of education, intelligence or character.

Spalding County board of registrars called a meeting for Friday to consider challenges against 180 Negroes. In Schley County, at Ellaville, registrars were reported to have disqualified about 50 per cent of the 200 registered Negro citizens.

Purges continued in a weak form in some other Georgia counties.

Hearings To Be Resumed Monday For Other Negroes

Saturday 7-13-46

BY JOEL W. SMITH

The hearings at the Fulton County Courthouse, Friday, followed the same pattern that characterized hearings, Monday, Tuesday and Thursday, with Attorney Charles G. Bruce, representing the challenger asking a long list of irrelevant questions in an effort to trap the Negro registrants and deprive them of the rights guaranteed American citizens by the United States Constitution. Of the twenty registrants who appeared to answer the challenges, seven were disqualified by Deputy Registrar Ellis McClelland.

Since the hearings got underway Monday, 75 Negroes have presented themselves for the disgraceful proceedings. Through Friday, the total ruled disqualified stood at 21, while 54 were ruled qualified to vote in the forthcoming primary. votein the forthcoming primary election on Wednesday, July 17. The majority of those disqualified admitted convictions of crimes involving moral turpitude, punishable by the laws of this State with imprisonment in the penitentiary.

CHALLENGER MUM

Throughout the hearings, Attorney A. T. Walden, representing the registrants attempted to get the challenger, Horace H. Scoggins on the stand, hoping that he would be able to uncover the underhand motives for the challenge. During Friday's hearings he was successful in getting him on the stand and that was all. Some of the questions fired at Scoggins by Attorney Walden were as follows: How do you account for the use of a rubber stamp? Do you know this defendant? How many challenges have you filed? Why were all challenges filed against Negroes. 7-13-46

As soon as each question was asked, Attorney Bruce jumped to his feet as if he were on a bouncing-board, yelling "objections," and the objections were sustained by the deputy registrar. Then came the $64 question: "Isn't it true that these challenges are a part of a scheme? At this point Attorney Walden was stopped by both the prosecutor and the deputy registrar, who claimed that the question was irrelevant. Attorney Walden insisted that since the challenges had been filed on a wholesale basis, he had a right to question the motive, but he was again overruled. 7-13-46

SOUND ARGUMENTS

Since Monday, Attorney Bruce has made every possible effort to have absentee registrants disqualified by default. He re-stated this motion Friday. In arguing this point Attorney Walden took the floor and presented an argument based on sound principles of law. He stated that the court did not have the power to arbitrarily disqualify them. He made it clear that the burden of proof was on the challenger, asserting that before they could be disqualified, there must be sufficient legal proof to convince the deputy registrar. Deputy Registrar McClelland concurred with Attorney Walden on this point. Saturday

Practically all of the registrants appearing before the deputy registrar, Friday, had failed to show up Monday, Tuesday or Thursday, so they were served with new copies of the challenge and a subpoena was attached. When asked why the failed to answer the first summons, a few said they were out of the city, while others explained they were ill. An aged gentleman who had been challenged walked with the aid of a walking cane.

Attorney Walden also questioned the legality of attaching the subpoenas to the challenges. He stated that with their vital fundamental rights at stake, the registrants could not be forced to take the stand and testify against themselves. The deputy registrar stated that the purpose of the challenge was to ascertain the validity of the challenges and this would be difficult in the absence of the person challenged. Later, Deputy Registrar McClelland explained significantly, that there was very little law on the subject, because in the past there had been so few persons challenged.

Meriwether Denies Registration To Six Negroes at Hearing

MANCHESTER, Ga., June 21—Six Negro registrants were dis qualified and 19 others were foun qualified to vote in a hearing con ducted here Wednesday by th Meriwether county board of reg istrars.

The hearing was conducted following a challenge filed by A. H. Nesmith, a citizen of Meriwether county. Under Georgia law, hearings on qualifications are conducted only when the registrant is challenged in a sworn statement, Fred Durand of Woodbury, chairman of the board, said Friday.

Mr. Durand said the board will conduct another hearing at Greenville at 9 a. m. Monday. He said more than 100 registrants will be examined. Other hearings are slated, he said, but dates have not been set.

Approximately 6,000 whites and 400 Negroes are registered for the July 17 Democratic primary thus far, Mr. Durand said.

The hearing Wednesday consisted of oral and written examinations. Mr. Durand said some Negroes were disqualifield on the grounds of illiteracy, while others failed the "good citizenship" test.

Negroes Ask Reinstatement On Voters' List

The Constitution
Atlanta, Ga.
Fri. 10-4-46

Constitution State News Service.

ALBANY, Oct. 3—D. C. Campbell, Jr., Clerk of the U. S. District Court here, announced Thursday a suit by a group of 20 Negroes against the registrars of four Georgia counties would be heard in April. 45c

The suit, in which the Negroes asked that registrars of Worth, Mitchell, Early and Baker Counties be prevented from removing their names from the voters' list, originally had been set for hearing Oct. 9.

The original petition had been filed in the Albany Division of Federal Court the week of Sept. 1. The Negroes filed the suit through Aaron Kravitch, a Savannah attorney.

"These 20 Negroes," the petition stated, "have been illegally disfranchised in Georgia by a conspiracy to intimidate, harass and prevent thousand of Negroes from voting in the July 17 primary." The petition ased that the Negroes be reinstated to the voters' list.

J. F. Ethredge, J. O. Irwin and S. H. Sheffield, Worth registrars are: R. B. Collard, J. J. Merritt and George Taylor, and registrars from Mitchell County are: Clovis Burson, John Collins and Early County are: Gaston Cannon, J. M. Baker County registrars are: Savannah.—Committees of negroes are being set up to assist the B. T. Chatham county registrars in purging the voting list.

Baxley Citizens Ask U. S. Probe Negro Vote Purge

BAXLEY, Ga., July 6.—(AP)—Mayor Hovis Floyd of this south Georgia city and 11 other citizens Saturday asked the Department of Justice in Washington to investigate what they called a "conspiracy" to deny voting privileges to Negroes in the July 17 democratic primary.

A telegram to Attorney General Tom Clark charged that a member of the Board of Registrars assisted other persons in obtaining names of Negroes from registration records at night when the board's office was closed.

On the following day, the telegram said, the board member presented other members formal challenges of qualifications of some 500 Negro registrants.

Signers of the telegram included C. J. D. Rich, a resigned member of the County Board of Registrars: Albert S. Jenkins, editor of the Baxley News Banner; E. D. Whisonant, superintendent of Baxley Schools; Dr. H. C. McCrackin; W. L. Boone; T. J. Barnes, W. R. Strozier; C. L. Hamilton; C. A. Whitaker, E. E. Griffin and W. C. Legget.

In Washington, Theron Lamar Caudle, assistant attorney general, said the matter had been placed in the hands of U. S. District Attorney J. Saxton Daniel, of Savannah. Daniel declined any comment.

Challenges of the qualification of some 700 Negroes in adjoining Ware County were withdrawn Saturday, following a visit to Waycross by a Savannah attorney who was employed by a group of Negro organizations to inquire into reports of discrimination.

George Miller, chairman of the Ware County Democratic Executive Committee, resigned Saturday in protest of "the challenging of Negroes registered in Ware County without challenging whites registered." He has been succeeded by L. J. Cooper.

The executive committee by unanimous vote has gone on record as supporting in full Mr. Miller's protest on the challenging of Negro voters.

Miss Florence Beaton, Speir Collins and H. A. King are newly elected members of the county executive committee. Miss Beaton and Collins are leaders of the Young Voters' unit of Ware County.

The text of the telegram asking an investigation here follows:

"We the undersigned citizens of Appling County Georgia have reliable evidence that a member of the board of registrars of this county is conspiring with others here in an effort to deny all Negroes the right of voting in the state Democratic primary, election to be held on July 17; that he assisted such other persons in getting from county registration records at night when the board was not in session and when no other member of the board was present a list of all Negro voters in the county; that on the following morning he presented to his fellow members formal challenges as to qualifications of some 500 Negro registrants; that these challenges were signed by several persons, who, it would appear, have little if any knowledge as to qualifications of the persons challenged.

"It appears, nevertheless, that it is the purpose of the majority of this board of registrars to lend their cooperation to this scheme of wholesale disqualification of Negroes by methods never employed as to white voters. We urge an investigation by your department and if made promptly, are quite sure that ample evidence is available of flagrant and wilful violations of federal voting laws. We pledge you our cooperation in such investigation."

Pierce County Registrars Plan to Serve Challenges

BLACKSHEAR, Ga., July 6.—(AP)—The Pierce County Board of Registrars is preparing challenges to be served by Sheriff L. L. Taylor to Negro registrants in this county. Judge Harvey D. Griffin, chairman of the local Democratic executive committee said the challenges would be signed by Henry Baxter, well-known Talmadge supporter in Pierce County. Whether all of the estimated 30 Negro registrants in Pierce County will be challenged is not yet known Sheriff Taylor said. The challenges are to be served at county expense of $1 each.

Wholesale Challenging Meets Registered Negroes In Georgia

The Birmingham News

BY HENRY LESESNE

ATLANTA, July 13—(AP)—Hundreds of Negroes who have registered for the first time are being purged from the voting lists in Georgia a scant few days before the Democratic primary.

Georgia has more than 150 small rural counties. The situation varies from one county to another.

Negro leaders estimate 20,000 Negroes have been challenged. Any citizen can challenge a registrant. The Negro leaders charge a conspiracy, saying no white persons are being challenged. Sat. 7-13-46

The hearings before boards of registrars, are going on in many counties. In some counties, few Negroes have been disqualified; in others, the challenged registrants have been written off the books in blocs.

About 120,080 Negroes are registered to vote in Georgia for the first time, by far the biggest prospective Negro vote any Southern state has been faced with this year. Yet it is only about a ninth of the total registration.

* * *

ABOUT A THIRD OF GEORGIA'S population is Negro.

An attorney for voters in four South Georgia counties has filed a petition in federal court charging a statewide conspiracy to ban Negroes from voting in the July 17 primary, the equivalent of the election in Georgia. Sat. 7-13-46

He was granted a temporary order restraining the registrars from further disqualifying Negroes. A hearing for a permanent injunction is docketed for Saturday.

The challengers are generally identified as supporters of red-gallused Gene Talmadge, seeking a fourth term in the governor's mansion on a platform of "white supremacy" and "restoration of the white primary."

Talmadge would circumvent a U. S. Supreme Court decision that Negroes can vote by removing the Democratic primary from state control. Sat. 7-13-46

Talmadge, defeated four years ago by Gov. Ellis Arnall, is opposed by two principal candidates. Arnall-backed James V. Carmichael, young wartime bomber plant manager, and ex-Gov. E. D. Rivers.

In Appling County an estimated 500 Negroes were disqualified by rulings of the board when the Negroes and their attorney failed to show up for a hearing after the board gave the attorney only five hours to prepare the defense.

The Polk County Board at Cedartown Friday dismissed challenges against 499 Negroes.

The Lamar County Board at Barnesville told challenged Negroes they didn't have to answer questions unless they wanted; that the burden of making specific charges and proving them rested on the complainant. Sat. 7-13-46

At Griffin, C. R. Fossett signed all the challenges against the Negroes. Chairman J. P. Manley said Fossett challenged them on "blanket grounds including all six charges," including age, residence, character and education.

THIS ONE WILL VOTE

ATLANTA, July 13—(AP)—A 76-year-old Negro who testified he would cut off his hand for his government if necessary won the right to vote at next Wednesday's Democratic primary election in Georgia. Sat. 7-13-46

John Baskin, walking with a cane and speaking with difficulty, was one of many Negroes whose registration is being challenged at hearings before the Fulton County (Atlanta) registrar.

Answering questions, he said he did not know under what form of government the nation operates but that he owned property and had always paid his taxes. Asked what his obligations were to his government, the aged Negro held up his hand and declared proudly:

"To give that hand to them if they need it."

'Am Willing To Take Case To Supreme Court' Says Manley

The Spalding County Board of Registrars ruled Thursday to disregard and dismiss the challenge of nearly 200 registered Negro voters here.

The Negroes' right to vote had been challenged by C. R. Fossett, a white man who is said to be a supporter of former Governor Eugene Talmadge whose main plank in his platform for reelection is white supremacy.

Although Fossett is said to be a Talmadge supporter and has attended several meetings of the Spalding County Talmadge Club, Ernest Carlisle, president of the club, said that the club is taking no part in challenging voters here.

"Fossett is acting as an individual only and the club has no part in the challenging," Carlisle said.

J. P. Manley, chairman of the board of registrars, said today that the challenges had been dismissed because Fossett failed to specify what charges he wished to challenge the voters on.

Manley said that Fossett challenged them on "blanket grounds including all six charges possible."

He said that, "Fossett admitted to me that he had not examined any of the Negroes he was challenging and said that he went over the registration lists and selected those who wrote a bad hand."

The six grounds on which a voter's right can be challenged include proof that:

1. The person is not a citizen 18 years old or older;

2. The person has not lived in Georgia at least one year;

3. The person has not lived in the county where he is registered for six months or more;

4. The person is not of good character;

5. The person cannot read and write the English language;

6. The person cannot properly interpret a paragraph of the American Constitution.

The charges brought by Fossett included all six of the reasons for challenge and did not specify any single charge he wished to press.

Chairman Manley, a former superintendent of Spalding County schools, said that "I am willing to take this thing to the supreme court if it's necessary."

State law, he said, clearly states that persons challenging another person's right to vote must specify any on what charges the challenge is made.

"Mr. Fossett did not specify anything," he said.

Other members of the Board of Registrars are W. M. Parker of Vaughn and Mrs. George P. Weathers of Griffin.

Wrong Criminal Records Fall In Hands Of Purgers

BY RUTH L. CORNELIUS

The Fulton County purge of Negro registrants moved into its third day Thursday when 14 Negroes presented themselves to answer the challenges before Deputy Registrar Ellis McClelland. When court adjourned 14 cases had been heard and four registrants had been disqualified.

Again Thursday the prosecuting lawyer, Charles G. Bruce, had criminal records that did not apply to the persons in court ;nevertheless, he continued with the examination on the form of government and the duties and obligations of citizenship under the republican form of government in all cases except one. He continued his policy of trying to make the witnesses ineriminate themselves, however, he was not very successful.

FINGERPRINTS TAKEN

One registrant, who was not the person whose record was in the hands of the prosecutor was subjected to uncovering a part of the body to prove that there was no scar; he was told to leave the stand and wait outside until the prosecution could produce a photograph of the man identified in the records. When the photograph came down, the registrant had to sit posed so that officials of the court could examine his features and those of the picture closely, in an effort to determine if the registrant were the subject of the picture in hand. It was decided that he was not the subject of the photograph.

Then the court asked what other means could be used to identify him, the answer was fingerprints. The registrant produced his fingerprint as it appeared on his honorable discharge from the United States Army. This print was not conclusively accepted; as a result, his fingerprint was taken anew in the court room The new print was accepted as conclusive evidence that the registrant was not the man described. However, he had to take the examination on the form of government and the duties and obligations of citizenship. He was finally qualified.

WRONG PERSON AGAIN

An employe of 32 years in the postal service and a registered voter for 20 years appeared in answer to his challenge and ably proved that he had no criminal record as he had never been arrested. He was not questioned further.

A young 19-year-old woman who was challenged would have been three years old at the time of a crime on a record held by the prosecutor. She had no criminal record as she has never been arrested. The examination on the form of government and the duties of citizenship under the republican form was given her. She qualified.

Drama reached its height Thursday shortly after 12 o'clock when a 73-year-old woman was called to the stand and asked questions relative to a criminal record in the hands of the prosecutor. She was ill and had just left her doctor but she had come to the courthouse because she wanted people to know that she was "a woman of good character" who tries to live right. Testimony revealed that this person had volunteered her services to social agencies in her community. She qualified.

MOTION TO DISQUALIFY

Attorney for the prosecution made a motion to the court that the names of persons who had failed to appear after having been checked from Monday to Tuesday, then to Thursday, be stricken from the registration list.

Deputy Registrar McClelland replied:

"I want to give these people every opportunity to come and prove themselves. It is true that some stayed away after receiving challenges, therefore, I shall attach subpecnas to those challenges going out for Monday's apearance. This matter requires the presence of the one challenged. I have the right to issue subpoenas and require presences.

'In this hearing I am acting as a referee and I am doing the best I can toward conducting an impartial query."

The hearing will be resumed this morning at 9:30 in Room 220-B at Fulton County courthouse.

4,672 Voters On List Eligible To Vote In Primary

City registrars yesterday afternoon completed the work of purging the registration list for the primary to be held October 22, and announced that there were 4,672 voters on the list. This is slightly above the estimate made yesterday before the board completed work on the negro list.

Of the total, 2,950 are white and 1,722 colored.

This is the largest number of voters to be on the city registration list in recent years, in fact for several years the total has averaged between 1,300 and 1,800. This small registration during past years was due to the fact that a numbers of years ago a bill was passed establishing a permanent registration list in the city, and which provided that all names be stricken and voters were required to re-register, and for years hundreds of them did not do so. However, during the city and county-wide registration campaign early this year, many who were eligible did register in the city, which is responsble for the big increase.

Negroes Bring Civil Action To Get On Voters List

PETITION FEDERAL COURT TO HAVE ALL NEGROES PURGED BY BOARD OF REGISTRARS REINSTATED TO REGISTRATION BOOKS.

A civil suit in the United States district court for the Middle district, Albany division, has been launched against the registrars of Mitchell, Baker, Early, Worth counties by a group of colored citizens, through their attorney, Aaron Kravitch, of Savannah, Ga., to secure an injunction against the Registrars to prevent the removal of the names of colored registrants from the voters list.

The group of colored people bringing the petition through their attorney are as follows: Josh Williams, Milton Miller, Rev. Says Conspiracy at Work

Georgia Mayor Asks Negro Voting Rights

BAXLEY, Ga., July 6.—(AP)—Mayor Hovis Floyd of this South Georgia city and eleven other citizens today asked the Department of Justice in Washington to investigate what they called a "conspiracy" to deny voting privileges to Negroes in the July 17 Democratic primary.

A telegram to Attorney General Tom Clark charged that a member of the board of registrars assisted other persons in obtaining names of Negroes from registration records at night when the board's office was closed.

On the following day, the telegram said, the board member presented other members formal challenges of qualifications of some 500 Negro registrants.

SIGNERS OF TELEGRAM

Signers of the telegram included G. J. D. Rich, a resigned member of the county board of registrars; Albert S. Jenkins, editor of the Baxley News Banner; E. D. Whisonant, superintendent of Baxley school; Dr. H. C. McCrackin; W. L. Boone; T. J. Barnes, W. R. Strozier, G. L. Hamilton, C. A. Whitaker, E. E. Griffin and W. C. Leggett.

In Washington, Theoron Lamar Caudle, assistant attorney general, said the matter had been placed in the hands of U. S. District Attorney J. Saxton Daniel of Savannah. Daniel declined any comment.

*Challenges of the qualification of some 700 Negroes in adjoining Ware county were withdrawn today, following a visit to Waycross by a Savannah attorney who was employed by a group of Negro organizations to inquire into reports of discrimination.

Other challenges contesting the right of several hundred Negroes to vote in Fulton county (Atlanta) have been registered with T. E. Suttles tax collector, and hearings on these will begin Monday.

The Registrars Quit

Daily World Atlanta Ga

There is something great about the men and women in Georgia who are rising up against the "stop the Negro" vote by quitting their jobs as members of the Board of Registrars rather than become parties to the statewide conspiracy to purge Negroes from the qualified voters' lists solely on account of race and color. Some of these men and women have served their communities for 15 and 20 years, some have served longer terms. And it is but natural that they would relinquish their post with a feeling of regret. Nevertheless, their sense of moral decency and fairplay would not permit them to violate the ruling of the highest court in the land by running willy-nilly over the rights of Negroes to cast their ballot in a Democratic Primary.

Sunday 7-14-46

That the federal government will handle these conspiraors in due time, is not to be doubted. But we rise to pay our highest respects and kind personal appreciation to these men and women, our friends in Georgia, who at the proper time in the future, will be remembered and properly rewarded for their service, their spirit of fairness and notable concern for our interests at a time when it counts most. It takes courage to do what these Registrars have so nobly done.

The Voting Purge A Farce

Atlanta Daily World

The notorious and vicious voting purge of Negroes that was advocated in Former Governor Talmadge's paper several months ago and which has been in effect against Negroes over the state finally reach Atlanta Monday when some twenty-five of fifty-six Negroes whose names had been challenged appeared at Fulton County Courthouse.

Before the hearings got underway it was obvious to an observer that the spirit of Talmadgeism permeated the atmosphere as far as the challengers were concerned.

Atlanta Ga.

Attorney Ellis S. McClelland who is conducting the hearings as a Deputy Registrar, overruled a question put to Registrar Suttles, inquiring as to the number of persons who had been challenged and whether or not any white voters were challenged. No white voters were challenged as we could observe.

Attorney A. T. Walden, representing the Citizens Democratic Club and the challenged voters, requested that the challenger, one Horace H. Scroggins, Sr., a white man who is allegedly supporting Talmadge, take the stand. The trial Attorney, however, overruled this request.

1. That all the challenges of the Negro voters were signed by a stamp bearing the name of Horace H. Scroggins. Certainly he does not know the approximately 600 Negroes he has challenged? Then who are the others who are conspiring with him to disfranchise these citizens?

2. That only about half those challenged showed up and that the Trial Attorney admitted he had no power to demand that the citizens report for the hearing.

3. That he had no legal right to purge from the voters list any challenged citizen with out legal proof of justification. In other words, the only way a person's name could be legally dropped from the voters' list is with the presentation of proof that he has been convicted of a serious crime as provided by the State Constitution. Conviction of minor crimes such as drunkenness, disorderly conduct or speeding, and etc. are not sufficient cause to deny one the right to vote

4. However, later in the hearing the Trial Attorney decided he would disqualify any citizen challenged who did not report for a hearing.

Georgia Code says that no person's name can be removed from the voters' list except with legal proof of dis qualifications.

That the State Constitution specifically states the appearance of a person's name on the voters' list is prima facie evidence that he or she is a qualified voter.

We consider these vote challenges of Negroes part of theTalmadge program intended to intimidate embarrass and harass the Negro voters. It is trying on the most patient person, especially one who stood in line a half-day or longer to get registered and then be required to hang around the Courthouse another day or so to have someone ask him a lot of irrelevent questions about his or her past personal life. Jue 7-9-46

Therefore, in the light of the above facts and the obvious spirit that is behind these attempts to purge Negro voters, we hope in the name of justice and good interracial feeling this purge business will stop And furthermore, it is a needless waste of the tax payers' money.

257 Negro Registrants Heard On Challenges Before 3-Man Board During First 4 Days

ATTORNEY STATES HE WILL ALSO CHALLENGE SOME WHITE VOTERS BEFORE ELECTION

A total of 257 Negro registrants have been heard in their own behalf by the three-man board of registrars appointed for the purpose, since hearings were begun at the Hall county courthouse Saturday on over 600 challenges filed against registrants in the Gainesville box.

No announcement has been made by the board as to the number disqualified, but a majority of those examined have been qualified, according to Joe K. Telford, board member. He stated that no official opinion had been rendered disqualifying anyone.

One hundred have been summoned each day, and will continue to be until all the challenges are heard, it is announced.

On Saturday, 47 of the 100 summoned appeared; Monday, 71; Tuesday, 64; Wednesday, 75. Those who have not appeared on the day summoned will be given an opportunity to do so Saturday, it is stated.

Frank B. Stow, Gainesville attorney, who states he represents a group who are challenging the Negro voters registered in the Gainesville box, announced Wednesday that he also plans to challenge some white voters, but would not challenge all Negro voters registered in the county.

Judge Telford announced today that in the event white voters are challenged, their cases will be interspersed with those of the colored. He also stated that more of the registrants were being qualified during latter days of the hearings than at first.

W. V. Lance, another Gainesville attorney, who states he represents a group of citizens interested in fair play, appeared in behalf of the challengees. Hearings on Saturday were begun at 3 p. m., but each day since then have started at 2 p. m., which schedule will be maintained, it is stated.

Monday afternon the attorney for the challengees brought up the question of "good faith" in challenging one group of voters and not another, but no action was taken by the board on the plea.

Middle Georgia Probe Begins

Atlanta Daily World Atlanta Ga.

MACON, Ga. — (SNS) — John P. Cowart United States District Attorney of the Middle Georgia District declared Tuesday that he would investigate alleged illegal purging of Negro voters in many counties of the district. He warned that he would institute criminal prosecution against registrars or others against whom he finds evidence of violation of the law.

Cowart said that his office could not ignore the numerous complaints of the wholesale purging of Negroes. He issued the followng state ment. Jue. 7-11-46

"This office is receiving numerous complaints from various counties in the Middle District of Georgia that illegal and mass purges are being undertaken to prevent Negroes from voting in the July 17 primary. Numbers of these complaints have come from members and chairmen of boards or registrars. I have advised these boards to consult their attorneys and local attorneys relative to conducting the hearings on the purging of their voters' lists in a legal manner and without discrimination.

"DUTY TO UPHOLD"

"As a public official it is not plot" and part of a conspiracy through which Communists seek to "achieve final power."

ON OTHER SIDE

He issued a warning to attorneys serving labor, progressive and minority groups that "they are on the other side" and urged the Bar Association that "those too brilliant brothers of ours" should be taken "to the legal woodshed for a definite and well-deserved admonition."

Clark's attack on person's protesting violations of civil rights, CRC says is paralleled by the recent verdict of a Federal Grand Jury in vestigating charges that police in

CRC also criticized Clark's excusing the Department's lack of action based on "false grounds that the Department is powerless to terming Clark's address "an incitement to violence against labor and progressive people of our country" the Congress urged that President Truman remove Clark from the Attorney Generalship and appoint a man who will "act zealously to defend the civil rights of the American people."

The Talmadge Purge Of Negro Voters

The Courier-Journal
Louisville, Ky. Mon. 7-15-46

A DESPERATE attempt by Georgia's former Governor EUGENE TALMADGE to win his way back to the mansion in Atlanta is behind the news stories of Negroes being purged from Georgia registration lists.

This is the first time in Georgia history when Negroes are specifically entitled by United States Supreme Court decision to vote in the State's Democratic primary. Because Georgia is a one-party State, a citizen who cannot vote in the Democratic primary has, in effect, no vote at all. One Negro, PRIMUS KING, contended that denial of his right to vote in the Democratic primary actually denied him totally the right to vote. He employed lawyers, OSCAR SMITH and HARRY STROZIER, and went to court. There he was upheld on the basis of Supreme Court decisions on similar cases in Louisiana and Texas.

As a result, some 118,000 Negroes are registered to vote next week in the Democratic "white" primary. TALMADGE, campaigning on the race issue with an avowed pledge to keep Negroes out of the party primary—Supreme Court notwithstanding—is so afraid of the Negro vote that he has urged all registration officials with whom he is friendly to use any means to remove Negroes from the registration lists. He has gone further, and in his Independence Day campaign speech at Gainesville, he urged the "red-blooded white men" to keep Negroes away from the polls on election day. His incitement to violence was hardly less pointed than that of Mississippi's BILBO.

Some registration officials, doing TALMADGE'S bidding, have stripped practically all the Negroes from their lists. Some have used pretexts that the Negroes were ineligible because they couldn't write, couldn't "interpret" the constitution, or weren't "good citizens." In one county a Negro registration of 900 has been reduced to 90.

Negroes in four South Georgia counties have filed suit in U. S. District Court seeking protection against "a state-wide conspiracy to deprive Negroes . . . of their right of franchise." Negroes in another county have retained a lawyer for similar action. He felt that action prior to the primary would play into TALMADGE'S hands by providing fuel for further incendiary racial prejudice. He therefore advised delay until after the primary, believing that immediate action in the courts would be too slow to restore the disfranchised voters anyway.

One of the cleverest and wickedest means of "purging" has been to summon several hundred Negro registrants to the County court house on a certain day to "show why they should not be stricken." Many of them are laborers and either cannot take a day off to go to the County seat, or can do so only at great inconvenience. The registration officials interview perhaps a half dozen of the several hundred, and instruct the rest to come back the next day. After a few days of that the registrants give up and the officials strike their names because no reason was shown why they should not be stricken.

These tactics, plus TALMADGE'S open espousal of the iniquitous revived Ku Klux Klan, are a dead giveaway of TALMADGE'S opinion of civil rights. If he is elected, as he may be, there can be but one conclusion: That Georgia still is unreconstructed after almost 80 years, and that democracy is to Georgians something to talk about but not to live.

Citizens of Baxley, Georgia, Ask Probe Negro Vote Challenge

The Tribune and Courier
Charleston, S. C.
Sun. 7-7-46

Baxley, Ga., July 6.—(AP): Mayor Hovis Floyd of this south Georgia city and 11 other citizens today asked the department of justice in Washington to investigate what they called a conspiracy to deny voting privileges to negroes in the July 17 Democratic primary.

A telegram to Attorney General Tom Clark charged that a member of the board of trustees assisted other persons in obtaining names of negroes from registration records at night when the board's office was closed.

On the following day, the telegram said, the board member presented other members formal challenges of qualifications of some 500 negro registrants.

Signers of the telegram included G. J. D. Rich, a resigned member of the county board of registrars; Albert S. Jenkins, editor of the Baxley News Banner; E. D. Whisonant, superintendent of Baxley schools; Dr. H. C. McCrackin W. L. Boone. T. J. Barnes, W. R Strozier, C. L. Hamilton, C. A Whitaker, E. E. Griffin and W. C Legget.

In Washington, Theron Lamar Caudle, assistant attorney general said the matter had been placed in the hands of U. S. District Attorney J. Saxton Daniel of Savannah. Daniel declined any comment.

Challenges of the qualifications of some 700 negroes in adjoining Ware county were withdrawn today, following a visit to Waycross by a Savannah attorney who was employed by a group of negro organizations to inquire into reports of discrimination.

Other challenges contesting the right of several hundred negroes to vote in Fulton county (Atlanta) have been registered with T. E Suttles, tax collector, and hearings on these will begin Monday.

"We the undersigned citizens of Appling county, Georgia, have reliable evidence that a member of the board of registrars of this county is conspiring with others here in an effort to deny all negroes the right of voting in the state Democratic primary election to be held on July 17; that he assisted such other persons in getting from county registration records at night when the board was not in session and when no other member of the board was present a list of all negro voters in the county; that on the following morning he presented to his fellow members formal challenges as to qualifications of some 500 negro registrants; that these challenges were signed by several persons, who, it would appear, have little if any knowledge as to qualifications of the persons challenged.

"It appears, nevertheless , that it is the purpose of the majority of this board of registrars to lend their cooperation to this scheme of wholesale disqualification of negroes by methods never employed as to white voters. We urge an investigation by your department and if made promptly, are quite sure that ample evidence is available of flagrant and wilful violations of federal voting laws. We pledge you our cooperation in such investigation."

Four More Are Disqualified In Fulton 'Purge'

Atlanta Daily World
Atlanta Ga
Wed. 7-10-46

Hearings Show Sinister Plot Behind Activity

The hearings, challenging the right of Negroes to exercise their political rights continued in Fulton County, Tuesday, with four persons being dropped from the voter's list and 13 ruled qualified by Deputy Registrar Ellis McClelland.

After Tuesday's session, hearings were posponded until 9:30 Thursday morning. During the first two days 41 registrants appeared before the deputy registrar and of this number ten have been disqualified. Several defendants who were absent Tuesday were checked over until Thursday morning.

PURELY DISCRIMINATION

As the hearings entered the second day, it became increasingly clear that this move is purely a case of discrimination, based solely on color. Horace H. Scoggins, the challenger arbitrarily contested the qualifications of the defendants on the basis of their character and understanding of the duties and obligations of citizenship in a republican form of government.

Attorney Charles G. Bruce, representing Scoggins who became irked Mon., when several defendants gave similar answers to his question on the duties and obligations of citizenship put Attorney Willard T. Bethany on the stand Tuesday. Attorney Bethany testified that he heard some dafendants rehearsing for the quiz, while waiting outside of the court room.

PRAISES EVENING SCHOOLS

In successfully defending his clients, Attorney A. T. Walden informed the court, "it so happens that we have some fine evening schools in Atlanta, and that the teachers stress citizenship." Attorney Walden wa sassisted by Attorney Walden was assisted by Attormorning.

The implications of Attorney Bruce were that the defendants were drilled through refresher courses prior to the hearings. In spite of the fact that the content of civic textbooks throughout the country, is more or less the same, he could not understand why most of the registrants listed payment of taxes, voting, observance of laws and fighting for one's country as duties and obligations of citizenship.

CITIZENS INDIGNANT

Atlantans become more indignant as the purge hearings proceed. Contacted Tuesday by a World reporter, Dr. Benjamin F. Mays, president of Morehouse College made the following statement:

"We need the Atlanta Daily World to expose the injustices and discriminatory practices that are now going in in Room 220-B at the courthouse. We need Negro attorneys to do what A. T. Walden is doing to defend Negro registrants against the malicious and vicious effort being waged to intimidate and disqualify Negro voters.

Wed. 7-10-46

"If the people who are pushing this purge were interested in democracy or justice or in good character, they would be looking up the criminal records of white persons as well as those of Negroes because some white people have court and criminal records too. But no attempt is being made to hunt out white people who have criminal or jail records.

TRIAL INTERESTING

"It is interesting to watch the trial. When the prosecuting lawyer cannot convict a registrant on the basis of crime or disqualify the voters by proving they are unfit for citizenship, he tries to prove that the registrants are too ignorant to vote by asking them questions on citizenship and political science, or by testing them on the constitution.

The prosecuting lawyer tried to convict a woman by producing the picture of another woman, once convicted, which the deputy registrar himself had to admit was not the picture of the woman being tried.

"Most of the questions the prosecuting lawyer asked are irrelevant. For example, if the person being examined gives the correct answer on citizenship, he shifts immediately and tries to prove that the person has been coached in the hall or in the room where the Negroes are sitting — just as if the time when a person learned something is relevant to the issue under discussion.

"There is one ray of hope, the man, the deputy registrar, who has been appointed to hear the case is trying to deal with them fairly. Most of the persons examined thus far have been qualified. It is clearly an effort to intimidate Negroes with the view of keeping them from the polls. Attorney Walden is doing a magnificent job. It is nevertheless unfortunate that such can happen in Atlanta, one of the most enlightened cities of the South."

WEATHERSPOOL'S COMMENT

Dr. W. W. Weatherspool, pastor of Mount Olive Baptist Church, made the following comment after attending the morning hearing:

"The right to vote is sacred; it is the high point in anyone's citizenship. No duly qualified persons should be deprived of voting by subterfuges regardles of race, creed or color. The United Supreme Court has spoken on the right of Negroes to vote in Georgia primaries. Any attempt to keep Negroes from voting in this primary is vicious and unholy. This challenge purge attempting to keep Negroes from voting anywhere in Georgia should not be treated lightly."

Registrars Deny Race Discrimination

R. B. Pollard and George Tatum, representing the Board of Registrars of Worth county, through their attorneys, R. B. Williamson and P. B. Ford o f Sylvester and S. B. Lippitt of Albany, have filed an answer to the action brought in Federal District court asking that they be required to restore to the registration list the names of hundreds of negroes who were purged from the list after a hearing here a few days before the Democratic primary election.

In their answer the Worth county Registrars contend that they complied fully with the state laws requiring that a person challenged be given a full, complete and open hearing before action in each individual case, and that they, the registrars, neither officially nor individually discriminated against anyone because of race, color, etc.; that all persons so challenged were notified in time and were given an opportunity for a ful hearing, an adequate remedy provided by law.

The case is set for hearing before Judge Hoyt Davis, district judge, in Albany Oct. 9th.

St. Simons Island, Ga., Georgian July 19, 1946

State-Wide Conspiracy Charged—Judge Scarlett Orders Names Replaced—Suggests FBI Inquiry

In a hearing before Judge Frank M. Scarlett in the U. S. District Court in Brunswick last Monday, the boards of registrars in Appling and Pierce counties were given one day in which to replace names of colored voters stricken from the registration lists in those counties. A similar ruling was made in a case in which the registrars from Coffee county appeared as defendants, and a previous temporary injunction granted July 10th was made permanent by Judge Scarlett preventing further disqualification of negro registrants in that county. In each of the three cases, the board of registrars were ordered to replace on the registration lists all names peviously removed and that correct lists be delivered to election managers in advance of last Wednesday's democratic primary.

Six hundred names of negro registrants had been stricken from the Appling county list.

Conspiracy Charged

Appearing as attorney for negro defendants in two of the counties, Aaron Kravatch, Savannah attorney, charged that the arbitrary dropping of negro registrants from the lists was part of a "state-wide conspiracy to disfranchise negro voters." Kravitch called the attention of the Court to the challenge forms being used in twenty or more counties and stated that they had been printed with the same machine, and were exact duplicates in every detail. Questioned regarding the source of the challenge forms used in Coffee county, R. V. Williams, chairman of the registrars, stated he didn't recall where he got them, but he thought they had been received from an Atlanta printer. He admitted distributing some of the forms in an adjoining county.

The challenge issued in Coffee county against 117 negro registrants were signed by Albert Kirkland, who admitted on cross-examination that he didn't know what he was signing, did not know all of the registrants he challenged, and that the list of names was given him by Williams. Michael Vickers, justice of the peace, said he signed four of the challenges.

In passing judgment on this case, Judge Scarlett recommended that the U. S. District Attorney, and the Federal Bureau of Investigation look into the matter.

Other Boards Told To Appear In Court Monday

Daily Herald, Atlanta, Ga. 7-14-46

Federal Judge Scarlett Makes Stern Ruling

Tuesday

The Board of Registrars of Atkinson County was ordered to stop their wholesale purge of Negroes from the voter's list, Saturday at Brunswick, by United States Judge Brank Scarlett. After the brief hearing the court made the temporary injunction permanent.

In Coffee County, the challenger was ordered to appear in court, Monday when the hearings are to be continued. Julian Bennett, attorney for one of the board members moved to set aside the temporary injunction but the motion was denied.

Registrars of Appling County, where 600 Negroes were stricken from the voter's list, Friday were ordered to appear in court, Monday after Aaron Kravitch, a Savannah attorney appealed to the court for an order to show the Negroes were qualified. Such an order could be followed by a petition for court enforcement. 7-14-46

HEARINGS TO CONTINUE

While hearings in the state-wide purge of Negro registrants are slated to continue Monday in 28 counties, mass challenges have been dismissed by the Board of Registrars at Griffin, (Spalding County), and at Cartersville, (Polk County).

In dismissing challenges against 200 Negroes, the Spalding County Board took the position that the challenger admitted that he did not know the individuals whose right to vote he was contesting.

Challenges were dismissed against 499 Negroes in Polk County, where the Board of Registrars ruled that the Tax Collector had carried out his duties when he qualified the voters. It was also stated that it would be impossible to serve the subpoenas and conducted the hearings in the limited time.

NOT FORCED TO ATTEND

Challenged Negroes in Lamar County were informed by the Board of Registras at Barnesville, that attendance at the hearings was not compulsory and that they did not have to answer the questions unless they desired to do so. Chairman Raymond Davis stated that it was assumed that these voters were legally registered when they signed the voter's oath.

As the hearings got underway at Baxley, the attorney for 400 challenged Negroes requested the four white challengers to state their cases. Counsel for the challengers ammended the complaint, moving that all Negroes by stricken on the grounds that they failed to take the proper oath of registration. When the attorney asked postponement in view of the amended complaint, he was given five hours. Then when the attorney and the challenged voters failed to return, the Board ordered the registrants who registered before June 24 to be stricken from the list.

Hearings were suspended at Moultrie when Bert Clark, a member of the Board resigned. C. E. McLendon who had previously termed the challenges as "nothing but political pressure and prejudice," stated that the examination could not continue until a new Board member was named.

MUST PROVE GUILT

At Barnesville, Chairman Davis stated that he was not willing to compel the defendants to prove their innocence until the challengers made some effort to prove their guilt. He also indicated that the burden of proving a Negro disqualified rests entirely upon the challenger, as the registrants was presumed to be qualified when the voter's oath with tax collector.

When the challenger J. M. Sims a Talmadge supporter, appeared before the Board, he stated that he had filed blanket charges against the entire Negro registration, without specific evidence except in a few cases.

FULTON PURGE CONTINUES

The purge will continue in Fulton County, Monday when more than 40 Negroes registrants are suppose to appear before Deputy Registrar Ellis McClelland.

FBI to Back Negro Rights In Georgia

Times-Dispatch, Richmond, Va.

'Purged' Registrants Ordered Restored

Tue. 7-16-46

ATLANTA, July 15 — (AP)—The Federal government stepped in today to insure the civil rights of Negroes in a Georgia Democratic primary boiling with the heat of a "white supremacy" cry, charges of out-of-State meddling and a CIO-PAC issue.

About the time the FBI announced it was probing the primary, in which hundreds of Negro registrants have been stricken from the voting lists, a United States judge ordered 600 persons who were "purged" in a block in Appling County restored.

The judge, Frank M. Scarlett, at Brunswick, also enjoined Pierce County election officials against "illegal disqualification of any Negro from voting" between now and the primary Wednesday.

The announcement of FBI scrutiny was made by agent John T. Frost, who said he was acting on Justice Department orders to back up a Supreme Court ruling that qualified Negroes be allowed to vote. Tue. 7-16-46

The "white supremacy" cry was raised in the gubernatorial race by iron-jawed, former Governor Eugene Talmadge, who has warned "wise" Negroes to stay away from the polls. Red-gallused Talmadge also has charged "Moscow-Harlem zoot suiters" with trying to grab control of politics in Georgia.

Riot Inciting Charged

The Talmadge battle call brought a charge from two of his three opponents that he was trying to stir up race trouble and riots. These two are James V. Carmichael, wartime bomber plant manager, who has the blessing of youthful Governor Ellis Arnall, and E. D. Rivers, former Governor.

The CIO-PAC was thrust into the primary controversy by Solicitor-General Charles H. Garrett, who charged that thousands of marked ballots listing PAC-sponsored candidates were being distributed in the Macon area to influence Negro voters.

The State prosecutor branded the distribution of marked ballots "illegal and criminal," and said he was investigating.

At Atlanta, State PAC chairman C. C. Matthias said he didn't "know anything about it."

A million persons—twice as many as ever before—are registered for the red-hot primary. Included are about 135,000 Negroes and some 100,000 teen-agers enfranchised by the Arnall administration.

Congressional seats and various State offices also will be filled. So far, however, the deep interest has centered in the Governor's race.

Federal Courts Halt Georgia Negro Purge

ATLANTA — (AP) — The federal government stepped in yesterday to insure the civil rights of Negroes in a Georgia Democratic primary boiling with the heat of a "white spuremacy" cry, charges of out-of-state meddling and a CIO-PAC issue.

About the time the FBI announced it was probing the primary in which hundreds of Negro registrants have been stricken from the voting lists, a U. S. judge ordered 600 persons who were "purged" in a block in Appling county restored.

THE JUDGE, Frank M. Scarlett at Brunswick, also enjoined Pierce county election officials against "illegal disqualification of any Negro from voting" between now and the primary Wednesday.

The announcement of FBI scrutiny was made by Agent John T. Frost, who said he was acting on justice department orders to back up a supreme court ruling that qualified Negroes be allowed to vote.

The "white supremacy" cry was raised in the gubernatorial race by iron-jawed, former Governor Eugene Talmadge who has warned "wise" Negroes to stay away from the polls. Red-gallused Talmadge also has charged "Moscow-Harlem zoot suiters" with trying to grab control of politics in Georgia.

The Talmadge battle call brought a charge from two of his three opponents that he was trying to stir up race trouble and riots. These two are James V. Carmichael, wartime bomber plant manager who has the blessing of youthful Gov. Ellis Arnall, and E. D. Rivers, former governor.

The fourth candidate is Hoke O'Kelley, a newcomer in politics who has done little campaigning.

The CIO-PAC was thrust into the primary controversy by Solicitor General Charles H. Garrett who charged that thousands of marked ballots listing PAC-sponsored candidates were being distributed in the Macon area to influence Negro voters.

Reinstate Purged Voters In Appling, Judge Orders

Constitution Atlanta 7-1-48

Meanwhile, the Federal Bureau of Investigation announced in Atlanta yesterday it has launched an investigation into Georgia's Democratic Primary. While Special Agent John F. Trost, of the Atlanta FBI office, would not say what his office is investigating, Maj. William Spence, of the Georgia State Patrol, said he understood the FBI was looking into the possibility of violations of Negroes' civil rights in several counties.

Federal Judge Frank M. Scarlett, at Brunswick, yesterday ordered registrars of Appling County (Baxley) to return to the list of qualified voters for the primary tomorrow the names of 600 Negroes knocked off in a mass purging.

The names were stricken when a majority of the Negroes failed to appear before the Board of Registrars, which had summoned them to answer challenge of their right to vote. Several of the group who did appear were disqualified. Judge Scarlett gave the registrars until Tuesday to put the Negroes' names back on the list and certify the list to the proper county authorities.

The judge also ordered registrars of Coffee County (Douglas) to complete their list of eligible voters and turn it over to the proper County authorities by Tuesday.

Judge Scarlett Saturday enjoined the mass purging of Negroes in Atkinson County.

Federal District Attorneys Neil Andrews in Atlanta, John Cowart in Macon, and J. Saxton Daniel in Savannah have announced they received numerous complaints of alleged violations of Negroes' civil rights.

Maj. Spence of the State Patrol said he anticipates no disorders when the Negroes go to the polls Wednesday.

Another half dozen Negroes were disqualified from voting yesterday by Fulton County Deputy Registrar Ellis McClelland, and it appeared likely that, so far as the July 17 primary is concerned, no more would be marked off the lists, since the lists must be in the hands of the precinct managers by tonight.

Of the 28 disqualified out of 81 challenges heard, all but six were marked off because of criminal records. Attorneys Charles Bruce and Ike Wengrow questioned those challenged yesterday.

The total number registered to vote in Fulton County yesterday was 122,119, of which 22,765 are Negroes.

Young Liberals Ask For a Better Georgia

Constitution
Atlanta, Ga.

I went to a strange meeting the other night. A group of about a dozen young men and young women from different sections of the State gathered here with stars in their eyes and idealism in their souls and decided to do something about the political mess in Georgia. Their sole ambition is to do something not from their own or anyone else's personal political advantage, but for the advancement of this State. They want to develop new leaders in Georgia politics. They want to clean up politics. They want to make government more efficient. They want to install more liberal leaders.

The Young Voters of Georgia—for that is their name—are practical enough to realize they cannot wield much influence in this summer's primary. They are taking the long view on Georgia's future. They are not concerned with one election or one candidate. They are writing a platform by which they will measure candidates in elections for years to come. As an organization, the Young Voters of Georgia will be non-partisan. It will not indorse nor condemn any particuluar candidate. But it will encourage its members, acting as individual citizens, to measure all candidates by the organization's constitution and then vote for the one who, in the individual's opinion, is the best fitted to give the city, county, or State the best government. It will encourage its members to exercise their duties as citizens and become a voting generation. It also will encourage its members to run for offices themselves—but without expectation of getting the indorsement of the non-partisan organization as a group. Sun 4-14-46

That is the program these young men and women out of college only a few years, or still in college, hope to sell to upwards of a half-million potential young Georgia voters. Leaders of the Young Voters of Georgia are confident that young people believe sufficiently in Georgia to donate their time and energies to improving its government and citizenship.

Skeptic Is Convinced Having watched hotel room maneuvers of Legislators and seen political candidates plant student organizations in schools to promote their candidacies, I watched the leaders of the Young Voters of Georgia very carefully for some indication as to "what and who is back of this high-sounding movement." I heard of the plans for its organization two weeks before the group met. I investigated the chief leader, J. D. Cherry, a former school teacher and a Navy veteran. I found no political tie-up between him and any potential candidate. When the organizational meeting was called, it did not follow the pattern a more experienced political gathering would have followed. It would have been more natural for the leaders to have held a caucus and decided what they wanted to do, without being watched by outsiders. But Cherry invited representatives of all the press to the first meeting, and the session was wide open.

If I were a political figure supporting this organization, even from behind the scenes, I would have made it possible for the young people to have been dinner guests. This was not done. The young idealists paid their own transportation fares from their home towns to Atlanta and met at a dinner hour without a table laid.

You should have heard their discussions on finances. A cynic would have sworn they still believed in Santa Claus. First, they discussed putting up $1.50 to pay for the stamps for the news releases they were mailing to the newspapers. That doesn't sound like they had a sugar daddy in the background somewhere. Then they talked about the possibility of dues. They mentioned $1 a year. But some thought that would discourage the masses of young people in the country from joining. They knew the young people would contribute their time and energies, because they had that. But they weren't sure but what the youths would hesitate to put up a dollar for such an intangible thing as improving Georgia citizenship and government. So, one lad mentioned the possibility of accepting contributions from older business leaders. Sun 4-14-46

The idealists acted like a bombshell had been dropped in their meeting. They didn't want to be tainted by filthy lucre. They didn't want to be bought, either directly or indirectly, by any businessman or prospective candidate for office. They want the young people to be independent. They instructed their constitution drafters to write it in the organization's rules that the Young Voters of Georgia will be financed by young members.

That's what I have learned of this new organization. If it should come out and indorse any candidate, I will be greatly shocked. I would be more inclined to think that some political figure had slipped in and stolen the group, rather than that the group was organized from its inception as a tool of some political figure. It will be interesting to watch its development.

Voters Out in I

Iowa Register

Iowa citizens surprised the most optimistic by turning out in large numbers to vote in the primaries Monday. Gov. Blue, seeking nomination for a second term rolled up a substantial lead over George Olmsted; most incumbents at the state house except Secretary of State Ropes won by handsome majorities. Des Moines Iowa.

The Republicans may well take comfort in the large number of votes cast, thus indicating that Iowa has made little change in its political complexion. Ther. 6-6-46

There is further encouragement to the almost immediate pledge of George Olmsted that he would abide the decision of the voters and support the Republican ticket this fall.

Cites Negro Veteran Training Which 'Ignores Expansion of Industry and Commerce'

By GEORGE STREATOR

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 27—The return of the Negro veteran has not "upset the apple cart in Louisiana," Negro leaders said today.

In spite of the separation of more than 22,000 Negro veterans from the services in New Orleans alone, neither the industrial nor the political patterns have been changed, Clarence A. Laws, executive secretary of the New Orleans Urban League declared.

"The soldier looked to the citizenry to open up opportunities for the veterans," Mr. Laws said.

"New Orleans Negroes apparently expected the returned service man to push vigorously for economic and political rights. Both sides have cause for disappointment."

Mr. Laws, who served in the armed forces overseas and returned with the rank of captain, said that only 5,000 Negroes of more than 100,000 potential voters were registered for the Democratic primaries.

Says Discrimination Continues

"The Negro veteran does not appear to be interested in politics, probably convinced that the community is not interested in him. Job discrimination continues, and the training program that we heard so much about before V-J Day has certainly not materialized in New Orleans."

About 600 Negro veterans are in training and these "for the traditional jobs," he continued. "Barriers have not been broken down in any jobs previously closed to us. The training program for Negroes has ignored the expansion of industry and commerce. The Louisiana State Department Service continues to ignore the Negro's capabilities."

In some of the classes, he said, veterans and high school students are being trained in the same classes. Courses in carpentry, bricklaying, automobile mechanics—which absorbs over half the trainees—shoe repair, barbering, painting and printing "are good in themselves, but not adequate for our industrial needs," he said.

Monroe T. Stringer, assistant business manager of the AFL construction workers union, said that membership dropped from 11,000 to 3,000 at the end of ship building. White membership which declined from half to less than 10 per cent during the war, now numbers about 15 per cent.

Several AFL Unions "Mixed"

He said that AFL unions in New Orleans have "improved," although the plumbers, steam fitters, electricians, machinists, sheet metal workers and the typographical trades still barred Negroes. Several AFL unions are "mixed," he said. He named the bricklayers, who have a Negro president, the plasterers, teamsters, cement finishers, rodmen, latherers, roofers, tugboat men and the ladies' garment workers as "satisfactory."

The ship carpenters, which were mixed, and the boilermakers, which had an auxiliary lodge for Negroes, have both "disappeared" as far as Negroes are concerned, he added.

He said that Negro union members "on the whole, are willing to go down the line with John L. Lewis."

A. W. Dent, president of Dillard University, said that veterans returning this year "are no problem, since most of them either studied here before the war or planned entering college when called into service." A total of 542 students are enrolled in Dillard, of whom 199 are men. Of these, 118 are veterans, he said.

Louisiana Negroes Vote In Primary, But Lack Leadership

The Informer Houston, Texas

NEW ORLEANS—The departure of Negroes from traditional political party affiliation was definitely shown here on January 22 when more than 3,000 Negroes voted in the Democratic primary which selected the nominees for municipal offices. It was proved on that day that Negroes of this city who had previously cast their lots with the Republican Party are beginning to realize the advantage of using the right of franchise as a medium of exchange in order to attain the goal of full citizenship. And it proved that Negroes are not immutably committed to any one party but will consider each party's offerings and affiliate where most benefits are likely.

It is also significant that while 3,000 Negroes voted in the municipal Democratic primary, which in this city is tantamount to election, the winner was elected by a scant 2,048 majority. This means that Negro Democrats--had they been solidly organized--could have swung the election either way thus, for the first time in the history of New Orleans, Negroes held the balance of power in a Democratic primary. But they were not organized. 2-16-46

Here in New Orleans, an organization of white Democrats, the Choctaw Club, more popularly known as the "Old Regulars", had been so solidly organized that since 1925 it has named those who govern the city. The success of this organization was unity of purpose. Despite many disputes within its ranks, the Old Regular organization always managed to present a solid front to the general public and when election days came its followers "went down the line" for whatever candidate the group have chosen to support. In addition to having controlled the city government since 1925, this group had, with the exception of four years, been in power since 1912. But in 1945, internal strife entered the ranks of the group with such fury that the public came to the conclusion that the organization was no longer solid. Leaders overconfident of the group's ability and influence, considered other candidates of little importance despite the record-breaking registration and its possibilities. And so when the counting of ballots for the Democratic primary was concluded, the Old Regulars were out and the Independents of Progressives were in the City Hall.

Whether Negroes are Republicans, Democrats, Socialists on Independents, they should be organized; should have definite aims policies, and LEADERS. In the recent primary, the back doors of the City Hall and political headquarters were cluttered daily with self- styled leaders of the Negro Democrats. More than half-dozen self styled leaders went about the business of promising to deliver the Negro vote bag and baggage. In fact, it was learned that one of the self-styled leaders was not even registered as a Democrat-nor was he registered AT ALL. But seeing the opportunity to lead "his people", he did not let such a small factor as registration stand in the way of his ambition. Unconfirmed reports, too, were that much money changed hands in consideration of certain services; that the payoffs were "backhanded," of course, and in cash so that there wouuld be no records. These reports are numerous but are, naturally, hard to prove.

It cannot be denied that there was no unified leadership of Negro Democrats and it is no secret that Negro votes in the primary were not cast along any definite plan nor with any definite point in view. Each of the self-styled leaders of the Negro Democrats, it is likely, had some ulterior motive. But, it is not significant that not one of those prominent during the campaign had ever before been publicly identified as a Negro Democratic Leader?

In a democracy, it is admitted that there is not even need of any groups within the accepted political parties. Then, too, any group or party formed along racial or religious lines in repulsive and contrary to Americanism. But, it is a known fact that in this section of the country such practices are popular and considered by some as indispensable. It is, therefore, necessary that Negroes, excluded for no fault of their own from these already-organized groups operating within political parties, should definitely organize if they wish to make their voting strength felt and if they wish to obtain the greatest possible benefits.

To do this, there should be a definite leader chosen. This business of having a half-dozen self-styled leaders, each working for personal recognition, and promising to deliver the Negro vote is not only wholesome but casts an unfavorable light on the entire race and was one of the reasons that hastened the disfranchisement of Negroes in Louisiana just around the turn of the century.

Unions Help Negroes Vote

P. M. New York, N.Y.

Thurs 7-4-46

Special Correspondence

NEW ORLEANS, July 4.—The People's Defense League, sponsored by local CIO and AFL unions, has launched an intensive drive to register 50,000 New Orleans Negroes for the Louisiana primaries in September.

According to Ernest J. Wright, league director, already 2000 Negroes are on the rolls. The League is maintaining 10 "voter schools" to instruct Negroes on how to surmount the barriers erected in their path by many local registrars.

The most troublesome requirement encountered thus far, Wright said, has been the demand that a new voter be accompanied by two registered voters from his own ward and precinct.

He said that many registrars, by invoking technicalities, hope that the applicant will give up. If a Negro fails to fill out a questionnaire to the precise satisfaction of the registrar, Wright said, he is rejected. Thurs 7-4-46

As an example, he pointed out that the questionnaire contains the statement: "My color is ——." The correct answer is "Col." If the applicant fills in "Negro" or "black" or "brown," Wright charged, he is disqualified.

Urge Negroes To Register Here

Louisiana Weekly New Orleans, La.

It takes more than a Supreme Court decision to guarantee the right to vote. Before a large number of Negroes can exercise the privilege they have got to be registered, and registering in the south is a complicated process especially when a generous portion of prejudice is added. 6-22-46

To make sure that the recent fight to outlaw discrimination will not go for naught several organizations are assisting those who want to register. The NAACP has long urged that every one register. They have given help to many who sought instruction.

What promises to be the most effective registering aid, however, is the various project organizations like the Lafitte Civic Association which averages 25 registrations per week. The Association, under the direction of R. B. Delahoussaye, Association president and active member of the NAACP, has divided the Lafitte project into six blocks. Two or more tenants who are familiar with registering methods are in charge of each block. The Association has 100% registration of eligible project tenants as its goal. Sat 6-22-46

Similar plans are under way in the other projects. The one in the Calliope project, under the direction of C. J. Williams, president of the Calliope Community Association, is aiding not only project tenants but anyone in the community who seeks help. Altogether the four projects hold about seven or eight thousand prospective voters. 6-22-46

Even with such effective organizations as these it will take a long time to develop the voting habit. Not until the majority of southern Negroes really want to vote and are willing to face and overcome the delays and inconveniences resulting from the prejudice of white registrars will the weight of this vote be felt.

In New Orleans 2,000 persons out of a total colored population of 165,000 have registered. In Florida 32,000 Negroes voted, in Alabama 23,000 exercised their constitutional right. These figures represent a substantial gain, of course, but not until ten times this number of people realize the importance of the vote will the Bilbos, Eastlands, and Rankins be ousted.

'We Are Our Leaders'

Referred to NAACP For Legal Assistance

While the war was still being fought a good deal of talk circulated about the part the returned veteran would play in politics. Ten million men would be united by a common bond stronger than that had ever been known before. They would not accept complacent leadership. They would fight for clean politics. With the war almost a year old these predictions seem to be coming true if the "election" battle in Tennessee recently is any indication of things to come.

Last week four veterans who were being given the run-around at the Houma, Louisiana, registration office were told to seek advice from their leaders. They replied cooly, "We are our leaders."

The four men were Harold and Roy Ringo, Eddie Lewis and Silas Green. When they tried to register they were asked such questions as, "Who is the vice-president of the United States?", "Who is our congressman from Louisiana?", "Who is the judge of Orleans Parish?", "Did your father vote?" When the men didn't answer these questions the registrar told them they could not register and tore up their cards.

They were sent to the sheriff who said he had no jurisdiction and sent the men back to the registration office accompanied by a deputy. They were told to talk to their leaders. The registrar probably referred to the reactionary Houma church leaders who told their congregations not to incur it will by trying to register.

The veterans have since contacted the Peoples Defense League. League director Ernest J. Wright has referred them to the NAACP for legal aid.

The action of these men followed close on the heels of huge riots in Tennessee where hundreds of white veterans backed up their demands for a clean administration with guns and bombs. These men had organized themselves and found leadership among their own ranks. They knew what they wanted and they knew how to get it. The Weekly

Progressive leaders realize this determination on the part of veterans to solidify the things for which they fought. They realize, too, the great hypocrisy in denying these things to veterans who happen to be Negroes living in the south. Senator Alben Barkley, speaking to an Ohio audience last week said: New Orleans

"The United States should be setting an example to the rest of the world, but until every man who fights for his country, regardless of race, color or creed or what part of the country he lives in, has equal employment and voting rights with his fellow men, we are failing in our duty as leaders."

Party to Fight Negroes' Suits

(Reprinted Fr ... tion)

Baton Rouge, La., July 2.—(AP)— The Louisiana Democratic State Central Committee today formally approved the action of its officers in employing counsel to defend a voting registrar in a suit brought by a Negro, and voted authority for future employment of attorneys "as necessary."

Action on employment of counsel followed a speech by State Representative Sevier, of Madison, a member of the committee, in which he said that "every registrar of voters in Louisiana sooner or later will have to defend a lawsuit."

"These officers posts, with a second primary October 15 if necessary. The committee continued. "This committee should assume the responsibility of raising all necessary funds."

The committee set September 10 as the date of a primary for nomination of candidates for Congress, and other officers, and voted to do so personally." The general election is November 5.

Why They Are Opposed

The Informer
Houston Texas Sat. 9-28-46

From New Orleans in recent weeks have come news items about the steady increase in registered Negro voters and also about the jitters which are being built up in some white quarters, lest the Negro should become a fully enfranchised citizen. One of the hate-mongering newspaper articles even had the audacity to complain because New Orleans Negroes "for the first time" had been permitted to use the tax-built and tax-supported city auditorium. Said the hate article: "For the first time since it was constructed some 15 years ago, the New Orleans Municipal Auditorium was used Sunday night, August 18, for an all-Negro entertainment."

That tips their hand and shows why these hate-mongers are opposed to having Negroes as a part of the enfranchised electorate of the community. In a word they want the tax dollars of New Orleans and other Southern places to be spent not for the benefit of the entire community, but for that particular part of the community which they want to enjoy these benefits. They know that, if the Negro votes, he will in time have access to city auditoriums and other community benefits that come from spending the tax dollars of the community. And the hate-mongers just don't want Negroes to have any equal share in the benefits of these tax dollars, and that is why they are opposed.

Negroes To Test Vote In Louisiana Election

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Negroes, until recently barred by party rules from voting in the Democratic primary in the Far South, will test their strength at the ballot box in Louisiana next Tuesday in a congressional primary.

But the Negro vote in Louisiana as in the July 2 Mississippi primary, will be negligible by comparison with the white vote, since so few Negroes have qualified to vote.

A nearly complete estimate of the vote in the six Louisiana congressional districts, where contests will be staged in Tuesday's Democratic primary, showed only about ,000 Negroes registered among a otal of more than 400,000 registrations.

Daniel E. Byrd, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, estimated that the Negro vote would run "not over 7,000," in the combined districts, which normally poll more than 350,000 votes.

x Bridge, La., Sept. 30 (AP) ng negroes from partici- in Democratic primary is not a matter of ethics e in the opinion of Congressman James Domengeaux (D-La) of Lafayette.

Speaking here yesterday at a homecoming for veterans of World War II, he said:

"This is a practical question and not one of ethics or justice. It is obvious why a 10-year-old boy is not given the right to vote. A race having such adolescent development would endanger our civilization and retard our government for many years if the franchise rights were allowed them."

He added that the negro is "not yet ready for citizenship in Louisiana, and the right-thinking people, of all political factions, will see to it by legal means that the negro will not be allowed to participate in Democratic primary elections."

New Orleans Lags In Fight

By ENOC P. WATERS JR.

NEW ORLEANS—There is optimism here that Negroes will soon join the police force, but apportionment of other jobs and city supported facilities to Negroes is appallingly low.

Although the ratio of Negroes to whites in this town of half a million is roughly one to two, Negroes are allowed use of only one-tenth of all public recreational facilities. The inequities also are apparent in education, housing and other publicity services.

It is the opinion of most Negro leaders here that these disparities can be corrected through intelligent use of the ballot. Yet in no city I have visited on this tour has there been a poorer response to efforts urging Negroes to fight for votes.

Oddly enough New Orleans Negroes were among the firs. in recent times to launch a vigorous campaign to secure voting rights. In 1940, four years before the U.S. Supreme Court decision in the primary case, 500 Negroes under the leadership of militant Ernest Wright marched to the Orleans Parish Courthouse to register. Shortly thereafter the enthusiasm aroused by the demonstration was diverted by a strike that culminated in the arrest of Wright and Zack Ramsey, president of the United Office and Professional Workers Union (CIO) who had been active in the labor dispute. Before the attention of the people could be redirected to the necessity for registering, the war broke out. However, during the war, charges were filed in federal court by Ed Hall against T. J. Nagel, a registrar in St. John Parish who had refused to allow Negroes to register. Handled by A. P. Tureaud, Joseph A. Thornton, and Thurgood Marshall, NAACP attorneys, the case was carried to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals after the district court dismissed it. A recent decision on the appeal calls for a hearing of the charges in the district court.

According to recent estimates about 200 Negroes are registered voters in New Orleans. As is customary in a few places in the South, a token number of Negroes has always been allowed to qualify for for the ballot. The number of token voters here was 750 when the poll tax was abolished during the Huey Long regime. This means that hardly more than 1,250 Negroes have been registered since 1940. Even with the NAACP, the Urban League, the Knights of Peter Claver, the Peoples' Defense League, the two local Negro weeklies, the "Louisiana Weekly" and the "Sentinel," and other civic minded organizations conducting programs to arouse the masses to vote, the response has been slowed down.

It is estimated that 5,000 Negroes have sought to register here since 1940, but that only one out of every five has been permitted to qualify. Grady Farley, industrial secretary of the local Urban League, visited the registrar's office 20 consecutive days, each time filling out an application that was rejected with the explanation that it was not made out to the satisfaction of the registrar. Upon his return from a trip he again went to the office of the registrar who recognized him and inquired about his absence. "I concluded," Farley told him, "that I must be a pretty dumb man when I can't fill out one of these blanks, so I went to summer school to get some more education."

Farley Registered

The registrar gave him another blank, his 21st. Farley filled it out as he had all the others. After looking it over, the registrar informed him that it met with his approval and that his voting credentials would be mailed him.

Illegal techniques of registrars do not account in full for the low Negro registration. There is a noticeable apathy among Negroes themselves, and there are a number of reasons for this. According to leaders in the community, one is lack of forceful incentive, many say, because of the easy intercourse between the races.

It is also pointed out that Negroes here are victims of a civic paternalism through which they receive a minimum share of public facilities and services without having to demand them. The result is a peculiar personal relationship between some individuals and city officials. There has been a tendency to rely upon the influence of persons having an "in" rather than upon mass organization. I was told of "leaders" in the community who are convinced that a voting campaign would antagonize city officials and alienate some of the "good white friends."

Catholic Church Noncommittal

It is the belief of some here that the Catholic church, to which 30 per cent of the Negroes belong, could do much to stimulate registration. At present the Knights of Peter Claver are conducting registration classes with Raymond Floyd as instructor at Holy Ghost School hall and Fr. Vincent J. O'Connell, of Notre Dame Seminary, has evinced an interest in civic affairs. For the most part, however, the Catholic church has been noncommittal while several Protestant ministers have been very active. The individual credited with doing the best job in urging Negroes to register is Ernest Wright, CIO organizer for the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union. Wright has developed a mass organization of more than 3,000 persons known as the Negro Defense League which has voting as its chief objective.

NAACP Committee

The local NAACP has a registration committee headed by W. S. Augustine, that has been active, mostly in Protestant churches.

The Urban League, headed by Clarence Laws, has a stock of sample registration blanks that are used in its instructional program. The "Sentinel's" John E. Rousseau, and C. C. DeJoie Jr., of the "Weekly" have given full support to these efforts in addition to publishing editorials designed to awaken the people.

As this story was being written (June 29) renewed efforts were being made by all groups to intensify their drives. But no suggestion as yet has been made of a city-wide non partisan, undenominational committee that would cut across caste, class, religious and party lines to spearhead the movement.

Miss. Legislature Now Concerned Over Negro Vote

Atlanta Daily World, Ga.
Sat 3-2-46

JACKSON, Miss.—(SNS)—The State Legislature now in session here showed its concern over the prospects of Negro voting in the state by the appointment of a five-man committee last week to study remedies necessary to bring the constitution of the state in line with the recent decisions of the United States Supreme Court respecting Negro voting in the so-called White Democratic Primaries of the South.

The appointment of the Committee is said to have resulted from a petition presented to the Governor and the Legislature by a state-wide Negro Mass Meeting held in Jackson earlier in which reference was made to the continued denial of the right to vote to Negro Citizens of the state.

NEGRO VOTE RIGHT IN MISSISSIPPI PLEA

Age Herald

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25—(AP)—Edgar G. Brown, director of the National Negro Council, said today he had sent a telegram to President Truman asking that Mississippi Negroes be given the right to vote in that state's Democratic elections.

Brown said the telegram read in part: Tues 2-26-46

"We insist that 100,000 Negro veterans of Mississippi and their families have full opportunity to make certain thedefeat of Sen. Bilbo, who is campaigning for reelection in the coming primaries."

Negro Voting Is Object Of Mississippi Group

Birmingham Ala.

JACKSON, Miss., May 18—(AP)—Further plans to assure qualified Negroes the right to vote in Mississippi Democratic primary July 2 weer under discussion here yesterday at a meeting sponsored by the Mississippi Progressive Voters League. 5-18-46

More than two score Negro leaders, most of them from the delta and northeast area of the state, attended the two-day meeting. A nine-man committee was named yesterday to study a proposal to raise $20,000 to test in court any refusals of Circuit Court clerks to register qualified Negroes.

Percy Green, Negro editor of Jackson, told the meeting that the Negroes did not want to dominate the white race and could not if they desired. He said they merely want to join the white voters in giving Mississippi good government.

Another plan adopted provided for the formation of county units of the league in each congressional district, with the units to conduct voting schools to teach Negroes how and where to qualify to vote.

Any refusal on the part of a Circuit Court clerk to register qualified Negroes would be reported to the federal Department of Justice, the delegates were told. Sat. 5-18-46

NEGROES TO SEEK BIG PRIMARY VOTE

Birmingham Ala.

JACKSON, Miss., May 16—(AP)—More than two score Negro leaders laid plans today to assure qualified Negroes the right to vote in the Democratic Party primary July 2 and to teach others to become qualified.

They came mostly from the Delta and Northeast Mississippi, where the Negro population is in the majority, but there were a few from scattered points in the Southern section of the state.

A nine-man committee was named to study a proposal to raise $20,000 over the state with which to test in court any refusals by Circuit Court clerks to register qualified Negroes. The committee is to report tomorrow. Fri. 5-17-46

Percy Green, Negro editor of The Jackson Advocate, called on the group to act now to get Negroes registered so they can vote July 2.

He said the Negroes do not want to dominate the white race and could not if they desired, but merely want to join with the white voters in giving Mississippi good government.

Negro Says He Was Beaten

JACKSON, Miss., June 22—(AP)—B. B. Dansby, registrar at Jackson College for Negroes and a notary public, said today he had notarized an affidavit from Etoy Fletcher, Negro World War II veteran, to the effect Fletcher was beaten by unknown parties June 2 in Brandon, Rankin County, because he had attempted to register to vote.

Dansby said he did not recall all the details of the affidavit.

Justice Department Checks Mississippi Vote Complaints

Newark Star-Eagle
Wed 6-25-46

Washington, June 24.—(U.P.): Assistant Attorney General Theran L. Caudle revealed tonight that he is checking into complaints of anti-negro activities in connection with Mississippi's July 2 primary election.

He said that numerous complaints of racial abuses had been received and are being investigated to determine whether the justice department should take action. Newark

He made his statement after the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People submitted an affidavit by Etoy Fletcher, of Puckett, Miss., negro war veteran, who claimed he was flogged while attempting to register in Rankin county. Charleston S.C.

Two advocates of white supremacy are among the candidates up for reelection in the primary. They are Senator Theodore G. Bilbo, Democrat, and Representative John E. Rankin, Democrat, who recently recommended to Mississippi negroes that they remain away from the polls. Gadsden

Caudle's statement recalled that last Friday night Attorney General Tom C. Clark told the Chicago Bar association that they would use "every force at my command to see to it that in the primaries and forthcoming elections, no American citizen will be deprived of his vote because of his race or color".

Fletcher charged that when he went to the circuit clerk at Brandon, Miss., and asked to be allowed to register, he was directed by the clerk to the "gentleman in charge of veterans matters" Peoria

There, the affidavit said, Fletcher was told that "niggers are not allowed to vote in Rankin county, and if you don't want to get into serious trouble get out of this building and don't mention voting any more."

Later, while waiting for a bus, Fletcher said, he was forced into an automobile by four men who drove him into a wooded area, stripped him and flogged him with a heavy wire cable. Gua. 6-25-46

He said the men told him he would be killed if he again attempted to vote.

Negroes Ready for First Vote in Mississippi Primary

Times

By GEORGE W. HEALY Jr.

NEW ORLEANS, June 8—Mississipians are observing calmly, if not happily, the passing of their traditional "white primary." Sun.

For the first time, Negroes are preparing to vote in numbers in a Mississippi Democratic primary to nominate a United States Senator. The vote will be on July 2, and candidates are Senator Theodore G. Bilbo, Tom Q. Ellis, former Representative Ross Collins, former Lieut. Comdr. Nelson Levings and former State Senator Frank Harper. 6-9-46

Experts among the State's political observers predict a vote of 250,000 in the primary. Just how many of these voters will be Negroes is anybody's guess. It's not likely that the Negro vote will run into five figures.

Right now several organizations are making efforts to qualify Negro war veterans as Democratic voters, particularly in urban communities. Most active of these organizations is called the Mississippi Progressive Voters' League, which has been campaigning for a heavy Negro vote in Jackson, the State's capital and largest city.

A primary which had the earmarks of a dress rehearsal of the election of July 2 was Tuesday's balloting in Pass Christian, a resort city on the Mississippi gulf coast. About 10 per cent of the 800 Pass Christian citizens who voted in the city election were Negroes. One election commissioner, contending that he did not agree with other commissioners that Negroes should be permitted to vote, refused to serve. 6-9-46

Mississippi Voting Rumors Investigated

Birmingham News
Birmingham Ala.

WASHINGTON, June 28—(AP)—A double-barreled inquiry was under way today into reports that there are plans to deprive Negroes of their vote in Mississippi's senatorial primary, where Sen. Bilbo (D.) is running for renomination.

A meeting of the Senate privileges and elections committee was called for tomorrow to consider assertions that some elements in Mississippi would attempt to deny the polls to the Negroes, including war veterans. News

Sen. Smith (R., N. J.) told a newsman the Federal Bureau of Investigation also was inquiring into the reports and had agreed to pass its information along to the Senate group. Gua 6-28-46

Miss. Voters' Bid For Ballot May End Bilbo Reign

Bulletin

JACKSON, Miss. — The re-election hopes of Sen. Theodore Bilbo (D., Miss.) dimmed last week when Negro political leaders here announced that anyone attempting to prevent Negroes from voting in the July 2 Democratic primary will be challenged.

The announcement came after a meeting here last week for the Mississippi Chapter of the Progressive Voters' League. During the session, attended by some of the state's leading clergymen and newspaper editors, a committee was named to raise a $20,000 Negro vote campaign fund. Percy Green, editor of the Jackson Advocate, is chairman of the fund committee. He stated that the fund will be used to legally prosecute any election official who refuses qualified Negro voters the right to register for the primary, as well as to educate Negroes in the qualifications for voting. 5-25-46

T. B. Wilson, president of the Mississippi Chapter of the Progressive Voters' League, told delegates to the meet: "Let this issue come to a head in Mississippi as it has in other southern states." Chicago, Ill.

Bilbo Calls It "Doom"

Representatives of the Voters' League revealed that the state's requirement to register is that the applicant must be able to read and interpret any section of the Constitution to the satisfaction of the registrar. Asked if whites had to undergo such tests, they replied that the tests were intended to deny the ballot to Negroes. "Whites do not have to submit to educational quizzes," it was pointed out.

Hearing of the move afoot to unseat him, Senator Bilbo said in his opening campaign speech: "I am thoroughly alarmed over the doom threatening my white race."

Protests Deluge Clark Over Bilbo Threats

Daily Tribune
Chicago Ill.

Attorney General Thomas Clark has been deluged with demands that he act against Sen. Theodore Bilbo of Mississippi whose threat of violence against Negroes who seek to vote has aroused national indignation.

The Independent Citizens' Committee of the Arts, Sciences and Professions yesterday addressed identical telegrams to President Truman and Attorney General Clark inquiring "what action the federal government plans to institute to protect the voting rights of all Mississippi citizens in Tuesday's primaries." 6-29-46

Signed by Jo Davidson, chairman of the ICC, the telegram cited the case of Etoy Fletcher, a Negro veteran who was brutally assaulted when he tried to register at Brandon, Miss.

Clark, three days ago in a Chicago speech, warned of a crackdown on progressive - labor vice of his anti-union bills and the Truman's anti-union of his breaking of the inspiration of the rail strike. 6-29-46

The Independent Citizens Committee of the United Negro and Allied Veterans urged Negroes to vote in the Democratic primary next Tuesday, acting chairman of the Federal Communications Commission asking what steps were being taken against those radio stations which carried Bilbo's invitation to violence of the Democratic primary next Tuesday. On still another case, the murder last Saturday of the Ferguson brothers in Freeport, L. I., Clark was yesterday accused of failure "to act in a case of violation of the 14th ammend-

Reign of Terror in Mississippi

NEGRO WOMAN BEATEN; VET IS MISSING

JACKSON, Miss., June 27 (UP).—A Negro editor asserted yesterday that Negroes were living under a "reign of terror" in nearby Brandon, Miss., where a Negro veteran charged he was flogged for attempting to register to vote.

Percy Green, editor of the Jackson Advocate, charged that a Negro woman was beaten Sunday night by white men in "a second case" of recent violence in Brandon.

BARRED FROM THE STREETS

Green reported that the floggers told the woman, Matilda Pinckney, that "they were not going to allow Negroes on the streets after dark."

The sheriff's office in Brandon, however, said it has received no report of such a case.

The 43-year-old woman was so badly beaten, Green said, that she had to remain in bed in her Brandon home and could not be removed to a Jackson hospital.

Meanwhile, Green said he had joined Jackson College authorities in a personal search for Etoy Fletcher, 22-year-old Negro war veteran, who charged in an affidavit that he had been flogged with a cable for trying to register to vote in the Rankin County town, 12 miles from here.

Fletcher was said to have remained away from Jackson College, where he is enrolled, since the account of the affidavit was published last Saturday.

The newspaper editor said it now had become difficult to get any information from Brandon Negroes because of the "reign of terror" he claimed was in progress.

JACKSON, MISS.—(SNS)—

Protesting "the organized effort to prevent Negro citizens, including veterans, from registering to vote in the July 2 Mississippi Democratic primary elections," CIO Political Action Committee Chairman Sidney Hillman yesterday called on President Truman for speedy action to "halt this violation of the constitutional rights of American citizens."

Mr. Hillman, in his wire to the President, cited reports from Mississippi that Etoy Fletcher, Negro veteran, was denied the right to register and was severly beaten following his attempt to have his name placed on the roll of electors. The CIO PAC head further charged that the situation had been made worse by the "mad rantings of Senator Bilbo, who in a recent radio broadcast virtually appealed for mob action to prevent voting by Negroes." In the broadcast to which Mr. Hillman referred, Sen. Bilbo exhorted the "red-blooded Anglo-Saxon" men of Mississippi to "resort to any means" to keep Negroes from the polls.

Mr. Hillman also dispatched telegrams to U. S. Attorney General Tom C. Clark, stating that "election officials and others in Mississippi . . . are resorting to violence to prevent registration and voting by Negro citizens, including veterans" and urging that "immedaite steps be taken to apprehend those who tamper with our democratic electoral system," and to Federal Communications Commission Chairman Charles R. Denny, Jr., stating that Sen. Bilbo's broadcast was an "abuse of the radio" and requesting a thorough investigation "to protect the people of Mississippi against such inflammatory statements in the future."

The texts of the wires follow:

To President Truman:

"Reports from Mississippi indicate organized effort to prevent Negro citizens including veterans, from registering to vote in Democratic primary on July 2nd. According to these reports Etoy Fletcher, Negro veteran, was denied the right to register at Brandon and was severely beaten following his attempt to have his name placed on the roll of electors. The situation in that state has been further complicated for mob action to prevent voting by Negroes. In view of the Supreme Court decision outlawing the "white" primary, I respectfully urge prompt action to halt this violation of the constitutional rights of American citizens. If this defiance of the law of the land is not promptly suppressed we may expect a reign of terror in Mississippi and other states where effort is being made to circumvent the Supreme Court decision."

To U. S. Attorney General Tom C. Clark:

"Defying the authority of the United States government, election officials and others in Mississippi, prompted by the mad rantings of Senator Bilbo and Congressman Rankin, are resorting to violence to prevent registration and voting by Negro citizens, including veterans. In view of the constitutional guarantees and the Supreme Court decision outlawing the "white" primary may I urge you to take immediate steps to apprehend those who tamper with our Democratic electoral system. The right to vote is basic. The responsibility for upholding that right is the federal government's."

To Charles R. Denny, Jr., Federal Communications Commission chairman:

"According to reports published in Sunday's papers, Senator Theodore Bilbo has used the radio to broadcast a speech calculated to incite white Mississippians to violence against Negro citizens to prevent them from voting in Democratic primary on July 2. The senator's speech as reported is a clear appeal to the lynch spirit. If violence flares anew in that state, Senator Bilbo should be held accountable. I urge you to make a thorough investigation of this abuse of the radio and to take steps to protect the people of Mississippi against such inflammatory statements in the future."

ment to the constitution."

The charge was made by the New York Committee for Justice in Freeport.

"Facts disclosed by the investigation did not reveal the violation of any Federal Criminal Statute," Clark had said.

The Freeport Committee cited the case of a Negro killed in Baker County, Georgia by Sheriff Screws. In a decision handed down in May, 1945, the Supreme Court ruled that the sheriff was guilty under Federal statutes, because the Negro was deprived of his life without due process of law.

Dorothy Langston, executive secretary of the Freeport Committee informed Clark the Committee would continue its campaign for pressure on Dewey and on Clark to correct this "miscarriage of justice."

A protest by Sen. Glen Taylor (D-Idaho) against Bilbo's incitement to violence resulted in a decision of the Senate Privileges and Elections Committee to hold a special meeting today. The Committee will decide whether to send an investigating committee to Mississippi.

Mississippians Start Drive To Organize Voters

Jackson, Miss., May 29.—The Mississippi State Voters League adjourned a two-day session here recently and urged all Negroes of Mississippi to register at once at the office of the circuit clerk in their county before June 17, and thereby be ready to vote in the Democratic primary, which will be held in Mississippi on July 2.

All GIs, both white and colored, can vote now in Mississippi without paying any poll tax. All GIs need to do is to go to the circuit clerk's office at once and register before June 17 and carry their discharge papers, also carry their discharge papers with them when they go to vote on July 2, but all GIs must register before June 17.

All other Negro citizens of Mississippi who are not GIs, both men and women, who have paid their poll tax for the last two years are also urged to register at once prior to June 17, and go to the polls and vote on July 2.

Those who have never voted in Mississippi are told to just go to the ballot box on July 2 and ask for a ticket and go into the little booth and put a cross mark in the little block or square space opposite the name of the person they want to vote for, and fold the ticket and hand it to one of the men in charge of the ballot box. All who want to vote must have registered, though, 15 days prior to July 2, 1946.

Ministerial Group Urges 'Qualified' Negroes to Vote

The Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance, colored, in a statement Saturday said at a call meeting of members it was voted to "urge every qualified negro citizen of Mississippi to go to the voting place at your home July 2nd and cast your vote for the candidate of your choice."

The statement was signed by Rev. C. F. Odom, president, Rev. C. A. Greer, vice-president; Rev. J. D Wheaton, secretary, and nine other persons.

Mississippi Showdown Near On Negroes In Demo Primary

By KRIS KREEGER

JACKSON, Miss., June 28—(AP)—The state of Mississippi, population almost half Negro, is moving tensely toward its first major contest at the polls since the U. S. Supreme Court ruled Negroes could vote in all primaries.

The contest next Tuesday features the effort of Theodore G. Bilbo, outspoken advocate of white supremacy, to obtain his third Democratic nomination to the Senate—the equivalent of election in this one-party state.

Bilbo has defied the federal government to back up the Justice Department's announcement that it will enforce the Negro's right to vote. He has called upon "all red-blooded Anglo-Saxons" to prevent Negro voting, and has offered his "legal services to anyone who gets in trouble."

Actually the Negro can form only a small percentage of perhaps 200,000 ballots expected to be cast Tuesday. Although there are more than 1,000,000 Negroes in Mississippi—49.2 per cent of the population, according to the last census—very few have registered.

The highest estimates have placed Negro registration at little more than 5,000 in the state.

Only one act of violence has been reported. Etoy Fletcher, war veteran and student at Jackson College for Negroes, signed an affidavit charging white men flogged him for attempting to register in Rankin County.

Demand Grows For U.S. Action

More demands for Federal intervention in today's Mississippi's Democratic primary were made yesterday by Negro and civil rights organizations.

Emanuel Bloch, investigator for the National Civil Rights Congress, asked U.S. Attorney General Tom Clark and Sen. James Mead (D-

The all-Negro town of Mound Bayou will vote in a Democratic primary for the first time in its history, says its mayor, B. A. Green. He predicts 200 ballots will be cast.

"I don't say go to violence," he admonished in a campaign speech here last night, "but remember the best way to keep the Negro from voting is to see him before."

Where Negroes insist on going to the polls, he said, they should be challenged on the basis of a Mississippi law which says no one is eligible to vote in a primary who has not been "in accord with the party for the preceding two years."

Mississippi GI's Pledged to Reconstruct Southland

Baltimore Md. Sat. 7-13-46

By RALPH MATTHEWS

JACKSON, Miss.—Twice in less than six months I have kept a rendezvous with revolution.

A few months ago I was led down winding, narrow streets thruogh dark areaways to a wine merchant's storeroom in Port-au-Prince, Haiti, and there listened to wild-eyed students flush with victory, explain how they had just overthrown a president.

Here in Jackson in the heart of benighted Mississippi, I was reminded of them when after winding through other dark streets I listened to equally excited young students lay their plans to tackle another despot—Theodore Bilbo the Dixie Hitler, the following day.

Brings Message

Without knowing it or where I would find them, I had unconsciously been looking for these young men ever since that night in Haiti. I had a message for them.

"Please carry our felicitations to the revolutionary youth of America," was the parting word the young Haitian students told me, but at the moment I could not think of any movement among colored youths equivalent to their own.

Mentally, I deplored the fact that our youth unfortunately were more concerned with jitterbugging and playing it safe in the way of their fathers than in dynamic political action.

But the young men I met in Mississippi Monday night changed my mind. World War II veterans, attending Jackson College under the GI Bill of Rights, these young men have a vision that is inspiring. "We are going to remake Mississippi in our time. We have a long range program," they explained, "but we fire the first shot tomorrow." The Afro-American

Ready to Die

"Bilbo has threatened us with violence if we attempt to vote. One of our comrades has already been beaten up for attempting to register, but if they kill us all, we are going to vote against Bilbo tomorrow and we are going to vote at the polling place in his own house." Baltimore, Md

We agreed on an hour to meet and they all showed up on time, two carloads and they voted. As they lined up for their ballots, a number of whites got up in a huff and walked away mumbling something under their breaths about refusing to vote with n---rs. Nobody said a word as they stalked away. Sat. 7-13-46

But the attitude of these young veterans is even more inspiring than their actions.

"Friends of ours," they explained, "have given us the d for coming back to Jackson c lege to continue our education. This is a teachers' college and under the GI Bill we could have elected to be doctors or lawyers or have gone north to big white universities, but that would not fit into our plans.

Caught New Vision

"We are not concerned with entering professions where we can make a lot of money. We caught a new vision over there in the foxholes and we don't think it's right to leave the whole job of teaching the young people of the South to women, matters not how low the pay.

"We believe more young men with vision should enter the field of education and go into our rural schools and help prepare the next generation to carry on the fight against the Bilbos and the Rankins.

"After fighting this war, getting away from here, seeing what America and the world is all about, we realized that if things are going to be better in Mississippi, we have got to make them better right here.

"We can't depend on Northern whites nor Northern colored people to do it. We GI's from Mississippi have got to come home and do it ourselves and we cannot solve the problem by running away seeking escape only for ourselves.

Going Into Hinterlands

"That's why we came back to Jackson Teachers' College and that's why we are going out into the hinterland and sacrifice, if necessary, to put our idea over.

"Our job won't stop at the classroom, but we are going to carry our ideas into the communities in which we work. We are going to spread the 'doctrine of desire.'

"If we do nothing more than inspire each person we come in contact with to want something very badly—a decent home, an automobile, maybe an urge to be a big shot—matters not what it is, just so he has ambition and is willing to work to accomplish it, we feel we shall have done our jobs."

It was three a.m. as I left these young men and wandered back to my hotel and I had the feeling of a wet nurse leaving the scene of birth—I knew I was seeing a new South being born.

I got out my memo pad and scribbled a note to my young revolutionary friends in Haiti, "The youth of America join you in your struggle for freedom. Viva, Haiti!"

Primaries Next Summer, It Is Held, Will Show Effect of the Bilbo Inquiry

Sun. 12-8-46

By HAROLD B. HINTON

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 7—Political talk around the Capitol here, in and about the Federal Building and in the streets today was mostly on the effect that the Bilbo hearings will have on Negro voting in Mississippi. The first test will come next August at the primaries for all State and many local offices.

So far as white politicians in this city are concerned, Senator Theodore G. Bilbo won a sweeping victory in the defense he put up before the Senate's Campaign Investigating Committee against charges of having incited the intimidation of Negroes during his primary campaign last spring. The hearings, under the chairmanship of Senator Allen J. Ellender, Democrat, of Louisiana, closed on Thursday. Memories of the inquiry, however, will linger for some time in Mississippi.

With the exception of one Roman Catholic priest and one rabbi, not a white man took the stand to find any fault with Mr. Bilbo's campaign oratory of last June, preceding the primary election on July 2. The Senator's counsel wisely elected to call only political enemies of "the man." One of them testified that he had not been on speaking terms with Mr. Bilbo for four years. Another said he had opposed him every time he ran for public office.

An Old Mississippi Tradition

Their intra-mural differences, however, led to no conflict of opinion relative to the thesis that the Democratic party in Mississippi belongs exclusively to the white voters. They all agreed that Negroes have no moral right to participate in Democratic primary elections, when the party chooses its candidates. Some of them advanced what they claimed to be sound legal reasons under the State's statutes.

The State's law governing primary elections, as applicable to all parties which choose that method of naming candidates, requires that any qualified elector seeking to vote in any party's primary must have been in accord with that party for at least two years preceding the election in which he offers to vote. Under this provision, the legalists claim that Negroes in Mississippi have traditionally voted for Republican candidates for the Presidency and cannot, therefore, offer themselves as Democrats.

Negro witnesses who were heard during the inquiry maintained they were Democrats. Most of them were veterans of World War II who had never voted. The older witnesses said, however, that they had been converted to the Democratic party since the advent of the New Deal in 1933.

A second legal ground that has been advanced for the barring of Negroes is a provision in the statutes that electors offering to vote in a primary must be resolved to support, at the succeeding general election, the nominee selected by the primary in question. The white political leaders held that the Negroes would not do this.

Political Opinion Offered

Some Negro witnesses confirmed this estimate, in part, although unwillingly. A handful of them had voted in the primary of July 2. Mr. Bilbo's counsel, Forrest Jackson, asked all of them if they had gone back to vote for Mr. Bilbo, the successful nominee, in the general elections on Nov. 5. They admitted they had not. As a matter of fact, practically no white voters bothered to go to the polls on Nov. 5, as there was no Republican or other opponent in the field against Mr. Bilbo. His nomination in July had assured his pro forma election in November.

White witnesses, however, took the position that the Negroes had not gone through the form of voting in the general election because they disliked the Democratic nominee and were not prepared to support him.

The extreme right wing of political thought here today appeared to believe that the result of the hearings will be to put white people on their guard throughout the State against the alleged menace of Negro voting in Democratic primaries. It is contended that next summer's primary elections will drive home to every white citizen in Mississippi the immediate problem which, it is held, is involved. Sun. 12-8-46

In a number of towns and counties in Mississippi, Negroes outnumber whites by wide margins. For the State as a whole, there are only a few thousand more whites than Negroes. It would be theoretically possible, therefore, for Negroes to be nominated for sheriff, constable and other local offices if they voted for members of their race in the Democratic primary. The Republican party nominates its candidates by convention in Mississippi, so that the question of Republican Negroes voting in primaries does not arise.

NAACP Files Charges Against Mississippi Political Figure

The Courier Pittsburgh, Pa.

Sat. 6-22-46

PASS CHRISTIAN, Miss.—Acting in behalf of eighty local veterans of World War II who were deliberately denied the right to vote in a Democratic primary election here Tuesday, June 4, Daniel E. Byrd, president of the Louisiana NAACP branches, and Atty. A. P. Tureaud, legal counsel for the New Orleans NAACP. filed formal charges last week with U. S. Attorney General Tom C. Clark in Washington, D. C.

Charged with intimidating the veterans was Eaton Garriga, a candidate for city marshal, who was singled out in notarized affidavits with insisting that the veterans' votes be enclosed in envelopes with the names of the voters signed on the outside. Signees of the three affidavits were Peter and Louis G. Manuel, Elmer Armstrong, Arthur Barbine, Arnold Venable Jr., Joseph A. Saucier, John G. Coleman, Lionel F. Fields, Horace B. Labat, Emile D. Landry Sr., James J. Frederick Joseph R. Venable, Daniel C. Charlot Jr., Leonard H. Fields, and the Rev. Father George T. J. Strype, SSJ., of St. Philomena Catholic Church in Pass Christian. The affidavits were notarized by C. R. Jones, justice of the peace and notary public.

CHARGE INTIMIDATION

The Rev. Father Strype specifically pointed out that the men voted in the June 4, Democratic primary, however, a majority of them was told that they could not vote June 11, because they were registered as Republicans. When the men protested that they were registered Democrats, John Farrell, the city tax collector, wired the Mississippi State Attorney General in Jackson to find out if registered Republican could vote in the Democratic primary, the affidavit reveals, yet no reply was received. Sat. 6-22-46

The Rev. Father Strype's affidavit further points out that Mr. Garriga, much to the disgust of the better class of whites, campaigned via a mobile loud speaker as the "white man's candidate," thus injecting racialism into the campaign. Mr. Garriga also declared, the affidavit discloses, that if the election were close the veterans' votes would be counted, but if the votes did not change the election results, they would not be counted.

the pattern of the deep South.

Tuesday morning, two days before the nation celebrates Independence Day, the citizens of this State will go to the polls to decide whether Theodore Bilbo, America's No. 1 race baiter, will be returned to the Senate or be repudiated by reconstructed body politics.

Reign of Terror On

Bilbo has successfully stirred up a reign of terror and intimidation throughout the State to prevent colored citizens from voting in compliance with a recent ruling of the Supreme Court.

Moreover, his disciples are conforming with his admonition to keep colored people away from the polls in many forms ranging from outright violence to the more subtle means of persuasion and balanced threats. Sat. 7-6-46

The city of Jackson is reasonably calm with the exception of provocative caravans which parade throughout the colored sections bearing hugh banners calling for the re-election of Bilbo.

Youth Taking Up Fight

Up to a late hour Monday, flying squadrons, representing the South- still distributing hand bills, urging ern Negro Youth Congress, were veterans to register and vote.

The pamphlets read:

"You who laid old Hitler low,
Don't be scared of old Bilbo;
Just like Hitler's friend, Tojo,
Bilbo, too, has got to go."

Some idea of the effect of the reign of terrorism, however, is seen in the fact that some veterans, after reading the pamphlets, ran after the distributors and handed them back, afraid to be caught with such inflammatory material on their person should they fall in the hands of the local Gestapo.

No Choice, All Bigots

In spite of urgings, there was little activity in the county courthouse, Monday, where last minute registrants were seeking to qualify.

While intimidation is an underlining cause for the lack of interest, a part of the lethargy on the part of colored voters is also due to the lack of choice among the candidates.

All are campaigning on a white supremacy platform, differing only in degrees, with Bilbo taking the lead in his vituperative attacks on colored people.

Commander Favored

Veterans have been quietly taking as the lesser of the five evils offered them, former Naval Commander Nelson Levens who, while no outstanding liberal by Northern standards, is the least objectionable of the candidates.

Older colored voters lean toward Tom P. Ellis, former clerk of the Supreme Court.

Most reports of intimidation come from the smaller county seats.

Investigation Almost Vain

Emmanuel H. Bloch of Washington, former FEPC counsel and now attorney for the Civil Rights Congress, is in the city with a small staff of investigators whom he is dispatching to the outlying county seats to take affidavits of intimidation.

Bloch complained on Monday, however, that he was unable to get many volunteers to co-operate in the investigation from local organizations.

It is disheartening, he said, that with a campaign of such momentous proportion in progress, many of those interested in the welfare of the colored man were apparently disinterested and unco-operative.

Most NAACP leaders, instead of being here in the midst of the biggest fight, are still in Cincinnati attending their convention, many complain.

Plea to Executives

A telegram, signed by Mr. Bloch, was sent to President Truman, Tom Clark and Senator James Meade on Monday. It read:

"On-the-spot investigation reveals that Senator Bilbo's exhortations to white people to resort to any means to keepcolored people from exercising their Constitutional rights to vote in Tuesday's primary for federal reasons, have spread a blanket of terror and apprehension over colored people of Mississippi, constituting over one million people, about 50% of the State's population.

"Wholesale incidence of intimidory acts, threats and assaults against colored people, particularly veterans, have occurred; documentary evidence is available.

Infringements Clear

"No colored people have been committed to register in a large number of counties. Clear and convincing cases of violations of Section 51 and Section 52 of the Civil Rights Law are numerous. Conspiracy exists to exclude colored people from the polls, and public officials acting under color of law, are willfully engaging in illegal acts.

Call for Immediate Action

"Federa lintervention today and tomorrow is imperative to safeguard the purity of elec tions and to protect colored pople from bodily harm.

"It is further a proper subject for investigation by Senate committee on elections.

"It is also necessary ot procure immediate pronouncement by Attorney General Clark that the Federal Government will protect any citizen in his civil liberties and constitutional rights and prosecute vigorously any offender."

Employer Intimidated

Meanwhile in Greenwood, Miss., there are charges that leading businessmen called in a prominent insurance man and faced him with the fact that all of his employees, plus other outstanding colored citizens, had registered.

He was given a list and ordered to persuade them not to vote and report his developments back to a white businessman who met him in his office along with the mayor.

Records Opened Somehow

In many counties this technique is being followed with white businessmen capable of bringing strong economic pressure against colored businessmen or urging them to discourage other colored people from voting. It is hinted that strong reprisals will be taken against them unless they are successful.

How these white businessmen are given the secret records of all voters will be a subject of investigation.

Methodist Minister Said A Signe

Although the names of the signe were not released, spokesmen sai among white citizens signing th petition was the Rev. Joseph A Smith, McComb Methodist pasto and member of the state colleg board during the Conner adminis tration.

Representatives of the Civil Right Congress aided in preparing th petition which was sent to a specia sub-committee to investigate campaign expenditures headed by Senator Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana Other members of this committee include Senators Eubanks of South Carolina; Johnson, Colorado; and Styles Bridges, New Hampshire Bridges, is a Republican; Senato Green of Rhode Island is chairman of the full committee.

Filed With Committees

The original copy was filed with the special committee to investigate senatorial campaign expenditures and a duplicate was filed with the Senate privileges and elections committee.

The compliant alleges that Senator Bilbo "incited the white population of Mississippi to commit acts of violence and intimidation against the Negro population" during his campaign for re-election prior to the July 2, Democratic primary election.

The petition alleges further by his campaign speeches, Senator Bilbo has "violated his oath of office," and therefore "cannot reasonably be relied upon in the future to honor the oath of office required to be made by the United States senators." It further charges that the senior senator is a member of the Klu Klux Klan and that he subscribes to the Klan principles.

"Except for the fraud, duress, illegality, force and violence" a negro vote would have been cast against Senator Bilbo sufficient to assure his defeat, the petition said.

Bilbo, Justifying Attack, Charges Reds Behind Attempt to Use Ballot

NEW YORK—The latest victim in the campaign of terrorism to keep colored citizens from exercising their newly conceded right to vote, Etoy Fletcher, World War II veteran, following his attempt to register on June 12 for the July 2 Mississippi Democratic primary, was abducted by a mob, carried into the woods, near Puckett, Miss., and severely beaten with a heavy cable wire.

An account of the beating was disclosed by Fletcher Saturday in an affidavit forwarded to the national office of the NAACP.

Sen Theodore G. Bilbo (Dem. Miss.) runing a desperate campaign for re-election, when told of Fletcher's charges in Washington, began a long tirade against Communists, whom he accused of encouraging colored citizens to vote. He uttered not a single word of condemnation of the mob which had perpetrated the act.

Fletcher, who was given an honorable discharge from the Army on April 23, 1946, in his affidavit told how he had approached the circuit clerk of Rankin County, Miss., in Rankin, asking to be registered.

Sent to 2nd Floor

The clerk, according to the affidavit, told him to go to the second floor of the courthouse, where he would find a man in charge of all "veterans'" affairs.

On reaching the room, Fletcher said he found one man seated at a desk in the corner. Before he could state his mission, Fletcher said the man began cursing him, ending with: "N—rs are not allowed to vote in Rankin county, and if you don't want to get into serious trouble get out of this building and don't mention voting any more."

Leaving the building, Fletcher said he was waiting on the street for a bus to carry him to Jackson, Miss., where he is attending school, when an automobile containing four men drove up.

The door was opened, Fletcher said, and he was ordered to get in. The car in which he was riding was followed by another filled with red-faced white men.

Reaching a point 3 or 4 miles from town deep in the woods, Fletcher said he was ordered out of the car and directed to remove his clothing.

Beaten Mercilessly

Forced to get on his hands and knees, Fletcher said the men began beating him mercilessly across his naked back with a large cable wire. The eight men, he said, would each take turns in the flogging until they became tired.

His back, shoulders and sides, painfully bruised and bleeding, Fletcher said he was then loaded back in the car and carried to the residence of another white man, who was asked by members of the mob if he didn't want to beat him some too.

This man, Fletcher's affidavit said, replied, "Well if you have already beaten him to your soul satisfaction we will just let that do."

Carried back to the edge of Brandon, Fletcher said he was released with the warning that if he ever returned and attemptel to vote, he would be killed.

Fletcher, who said he is still wearing large whelps and deep bruises from the flogging, expressed in the affidavit the belief that he will remain permanently injured.

Sworn in Affidavit

The affidavit was sworn to by Fletcher at Jackson, Miss., on June 15, 1946, and a copy of the charges were forwarded to the national office by the Jackson branch of the NAACP.

Attorney General Tom Clark was called upon to take immediate action in the case by the Negro Newspaper Publishers' Association, which heard of the flogging, while in annual convention here.

Citing Sen. Bilbo's call for unity among all Mississippi candidates to discourage the participation of colored voters in the primary, the publishers urged the attorney general to take steps at once to end all intimidation of colored persons, who seek to register and vote in Southern primary elections.

Bilbo, taking to the radio, urged the "red-blooded Anglo-Saxon" men of Mississippi to "resort to any means" to keep colored citizens from exercising their newly conceded right to participate in Democratic primaries.

"And if you don't know what that means, you are just not up on your persuasive measures," he added.

The nation's number 1 race baiter, plainly alarmed over the registration of hundreds of colored veterans avowed to defeat him on the July 2 primary, sought to rouse white Mississippians against their colored neighbors.

His contention was that if a few colored voters were allowed to vote in the Democratic primary this year, more would vote in 1947, "and from then on it will grow into a mighty surge."

"The white people of Mississippi are sleeping on a volcano," the rabble rouser asserted, "and it is up to the red-blooded men to do something about it. The white men of this State have a right to resort to any means at their command to stop it."

Senate Disturbed Over Bilbo's Race Ravings

Detroit

JACKSON, Miss. — Red-blooded Anglo-Saxons, whipped to fever pitch by their ranting, race-baiting King Bilbo, this week sealed their ring of terror around the Mississippi polls.

Farm-bound white primitives, in a pre-victory Bilbo salute, last week shot and clubbed another attempt to do so.

one Leonus Durr, Negro, of Magee, Miss., as a final piece in their pattern of terror. Mt. Olive police have refused to arrest his assailants. Durr remains in a critical condition.

On the eve of this senatorial primary, Bilbo is confident that "my peckerwoods" will "contact" all potential Negro voters up to and including the night before the election, July 2. Sat. 7-6-46

Senate Prepares Action

On the eve of this election also, the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections and the U. S. Department of Justice prepared to launch investigations into complaints that Negroes were being terrorized in an attempt to keep them from the polls.

The long sought Senate and Justice Department action is seen by individuals and organizations across the nation as praiseworthy, but much too late.

From rural areas throughout the state reports indicate that Negroes have been successfully intimidated and have been afraid to register. Less than 2,000 are expected to venture to the polls. Chicago

T. B. Wilson, of Jackson, president of the Mississippi Progressive Voters' League, says that every effort will be made to have all Negroes who were denied the right to register and vote file charges with the Department of Justice. Sat 7-6-46

Last week the bragging Dixie king, seeking Senate renomination and speaking in his own behalf, defied the U.S. Attorney General, the Department of Justice and the FBI to try to keep the white people of Mississippi from running the Democratic primaries as "we think they should."

This week, after the matter had received nationwide attention, Sen. Glen Taylor (D., Idaho), urged the Senate privileges and elections committee to conduct a special meeting to look into reports that Bilbo has urged "red blooded Anglo Saxons to use any means to keep Negroes from voting in the state's July 2 primary."

Accusing Bilbo of borrowing "Hitler tactics" in an effort to obtain Senate reelection, Sen. Taylor urged the privileges and elections committee to launch a full scale investigation into the matter.

Taylor told the Senate, "Ours is the duty as well as the privilege of passing on the credentials of our members. We cannot disregard charges such as these without serious loss of prestige."

Justice Dept. 'Checks'

In a similar statement Assistant Attorney General Theron L. Caudle revealed that he is checking into complaints of anti-Negro activities in connection with the Mississippi July 2 primary.

Caudle said that many complaints of racial abuses had been received and are being investigated to determine whether the Justice Department should take action.

This week, replying to a United Negro and Allied Veterans of America request that troops be sent to Mississippi during the July elections, Caudle stated.

Justice Department Ready

"This matter is receiving the careful attention of the Department of Justice, and prompt action will be taken with respect to any interference with the rights of qualified Negroes to vote in Mississippi."

Caudle instructed Kenneth C. Kennedy, UNAVA national commander to observe the functioning of the Mississippi primary election on July 2 and to report immediately any violation of the civil and voting rights of citizens, Negro or white. The Defender

Senator H. Alexander Smith, (R., N.J.), called on the justice Department to supply him with all the information it has on the incident. A member of the privileges and elections committee, Sen. Smith described the Bilbo tirade as "a terrible thing if it's true," and added "if it's true we'll have to move in on it." Chicago, Ill.

Fletcher, who since the rabble rousing Bilbo speech has disappeared, stated that he attempted to register June 2, at Brandon, Miss., and was told by the man in charge: "Niggers are not allowed to vote in Rankin County. If you don't want to get into serious trouble get out of this building and don't mention voting any more."

His affidavit says he later was flogged by four white men and threatened with death for attempting to vote. Sat. 7-6-46

His affidavit says he was later flogged by four white men and threatened with death for attempting to vote.

Sen. Taylor, referred to Bilbo but did not use his name when asking a Senate probe of affairs in Mississippi.

"We cannot disregard these charges without investigation," he said, asking the Senate committee to look into the matter "so no people will be deprived of the right to vote."

Bilbo Confident

But Bilbo, confident that his farm bound backers would meet his demands, kept saying things "his people" wanted to hear, the way they wanted to hear them.

Apparently referring to a recent Justice Department statement that it would prosecute any state or party official who attempted to keep any person from voting because of color alone, he declared:

"In the first place, they'd have to get a grand jury of Mississippians to indict a man. And second they'd have to get a jury of 12 good and true Mississippi white men to convict him.

"I'm a damn good lawyer. I've defended people in 11 murder cases in my life and got them all free."

BILBO—THE COWARD MOUNTEBANK

The Defender Chicago, Ill.

Theodore Bilbo has at last given the Negro a clear-cut issue of incontrovertible meaning with which to force the fight for full citizenship to the attention of the nation and the nation's law makers.

The senator in a public campaign speech for reelection urged "all red-blooded Anglo-Saxons to use any means" to keep the Negro from the polls in Mississippi's July primary. He urged race warfare. The senator screamed for violence. The senator yelled for a Nazi putsch. Sat. 7-6-46

Like most fascists, the senator is a coward. It is not brute courage, which leads him hysterically to advocate physical combat — even for others. Rather it is a wild fear that the unrepresented minority which has kept him in the senate until now will collapse in the face of the militant determination of the Negro to grasp and wield a franchise against him.

Like most acts performed in fear and hysteria, Bilbo's statement stupidly overstepped the limits within which he hoped to get away unscathed. He all but used the word "fascism" in his hate-tirade.

Nothing could have been better for the cause of the Negro. The Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections, with embarrassed haste, began an investigation of the incitement to riot by their filthy-mouthed colleague. So did the U. S. Department of Justice.

Errant as is the white press in its duty to tell the story to the people of the Negro's battle, on this occasion hardly a paper failed to take notice of Bilbo's flat defiance of federal law, and human decency.

Of course, Bilbo has always been what he revealed himself to be in his recent spewing. It is unfortunate that action by the government will be too late to aid the gallant Negroes of Mississippi who fought so bravely for the vote in this primary to defeat a petty tyrant. It is entirely likely that the Negro vote will be held to a minimum and Bilbo renominated which is tantamount to reelection. In the long view however, this is not so tragic as it may seem. Bilbo is a completely worthless, stupid and vicious man. For that very reason he is the perfect symbol of bigotry and bias which typifies the fascist wing in the U. S. politics, both above and underground. His consistent opposition to all legislation in the interests of the masses, creates an ideal personification of the inescapable connection between the problem of the Negro and all progressive action in the country. This is a lesson in political action and unified interest which neither the Negro nor the liberal white can learn too well.

Bilbo stands today a naked filthy sore on the face of America. Now is the time to hit him and through him the deep roots of fascism from which he grows.

Miss. Editor Bares Terror of Bilboism

The Afro-American Sat. 7-27-46 Baltimore, Md.

By RICHARD DIER AFRO Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—Defying numerous threats of bodily harm, Percy Greene, 46-year-old World War I veteran and editor of the Jackson (Miss.) Advocate, Wednesday bared for the first time the vio- Greene was in New York for a conference with leaders of the Civil Rights Congress, which yers and investigators since the primary, to unearth evidence against Mississippi race-baiters' campaign of violence and intimidation.

The evidence gathered formed the basis of a petition filed with the Senate Committee on Campaign Expenditures on July 16, seeking to deny Bilbo a seat in the Senate.

Many Whites Sign

Mr. Greene, who was a leader in the Mississippi campaign to unseat the reactionary Senator, stated that the petition was submitted after he had consulted with Senators of both political parties; and that its signers included influential whites.

"The campaign was one of the most violent in the history of the State," declared Greene." "Only between 3 and 4 thousand colored people actually qualified to vote out of a normal potential vote of 1,250,000.

"Of these, only 2,000 or more actually voted. Most of them were from the cities, and practically none from the rural areas.

"There was one case of a colored voter who was called into the office of the Mayor of Greenwood. The Mayor had an attorney there, who gave the voter a list of 30 eligible colored voters in town and told him to visit them personally and see that they didn't get to the polls—or else! Well, his man called on them and gave them the instructions. They did not vote!"

Veteran Beaten

He told of an incident in which a veteran went into a polling place to vote. He was called "a damn n—r" and beaten on the head and face, and not allowed to exercise his right.

On stumbling outside after the merciless beating, he was arrested by the police and taken to County jail, where he was again hit and kicked in the stomach and head and knocked unconscious. When he came to, he was locked up.

"There was another case in Louisville, where two or three persons went to the polls to vote. The whites there told them that if they did vote, 'we'll see you tonight about this.' So they just picked up and left the place, not voting."

Writing New "Mein Kampf"

The publisher said that Bilbo is writing a new "Mein Kampf" book called, "Segregation or Mongrelization"; and that if this book is allowed to circulate while he is still in office, it will have the same effect upon this country as Hitler's book did on Germany, and lead it down the same disastrous trail.

"I feel that Bilbo would have carried the State with a far larger majority had not our campaign against him been carried on," he continued.

"Nothing can be done for the South if the people who come down compromise with the status quo. I don't want people to believe that all the whites in Mississippi are like Bilbo.

"Many are fine, progressive liberals, just like those in New York. Mississippi is an American problem. There is no such thing as an outsider. Mississippi and the South are not isolated from the U.S. The South is part of America.

Appealed to Prejudices

"Bilbo appealed to the existent prejudices in the State and tried to intensify them."

Mr. Greene has often been singled out in Mississippi as the greatest menace against "interracial harmony." He is not a gradualist, and doesn't believe conditions in the South will change gradually. He is for doing things right now.

"I believe the color question has become a world problem, and not only affects the people in America internally, but also on an international scale. Those people who clamor against giving us equal rights will lead us into international disaster.

"I don't believe 120,000,000 whites will stand to lose anything by giving 15,000,000 colored people their equality, which they are entitled to under our Constitution.

"As a matter of fact," he pointed out, "I am not for colored people leaving the South and coming to New York as a solution to their problems. They should stay where they are and where they want to be, and keep building up the Southland."

World War I Veteran

The publisher is 46, and was born and reared in Mississippi. His weekly, one of the three standard colored papers in the State, has a circulation of 5,000. He founded the Jackson Advocate in 1939, and has served as its publisher and editor since that time.

A clerk and a deacon in the Jackson AME Church, he served in the U.S. Army during World War I, and is a member of the American Legion and of the Masonic Order.

When Tom Clark was appointed Attorney General, Greene wrote an editorial in his paper, citing the immense good the new official could do for America in fighting for justice for all peoples. The following day, an editorial appeared in a daily warning Greene to watch his step if "he wanted to remain healthy."

The Civil Rights Congress is pressing for an investigation of Bilbo's campaign between now and the opening of the new Congress. Its purpose is to make every Senator who will be called on to vote Bilbo in or out to understand the sentiment of the people.

Reign of Terror Uncovered; NAACP Asks Federal Probe

B-U-L-L-E-T-I-N!

JACKSON, Miss.—In an extraordinary session here Saturday, the State Democratic Committee officially declared Theodore (The Man) Bilbo renominated to the U. S. Senate for his third six-year term. Bilbo had a total of 97,820 votes, while his four rivals picked up only 93,986 of the 191,806 ballots cast in the election. The committee declined to take action on a protest registered by one of Bilbo's opponents, Nelson Levings, who charged that "The Man" accepted $25,000 from a private Mississippi firm for his campaign.

By LUCIUS JONES, Louisiana Bureau

NEW ORLEANS, La.—Although Negroes voted without incident in some parts of Mississippi during the Democratic primary election Tuesday, July 2, a "reign of terror" held sway in many sections of the State, particularly the Gulf Coast area, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People here learned last week, through its militant young executive secretary, Daniel E. Byrd, who was an eyewitness to some of the voting in Mississippi and has affidavits, photographs and other concrete data in the NAACP files as evidence that hosts of white Mississippians took Senator Theodore G. Bilbo at his word when he urged them to "resort to any means to keep the Negroes from voting."

Despite radio broadcasts heard and news stories published throughout the South, and, doubtless, all over the Nation, to the effect that Negroes voted peaceably in the primary election, NAACP investigators, sent into the State by the national organization's New Orleans headquarters, reported Friday to the local colored press that three colored men and a woman who tried to vote in Gulfport, Miss., were severely beaten by irate whites "on guard" at the polls, while scores of others were browbeaten and refused the right of franchise at Pass Christian, Miss.

JUSTICE DEPARTMENT GIVEN FACTS

Information brought the NAACP here by its investigators has been rushed to Walter White, head of the national organization in New York City, by Byrd, as well as to the U. S. Department of Justice by the Rev. Father George T. J. Strype, S. S. J., pastor of St. Philomena Catholic Church in Pass Christian. Sat 7-13-46

Speaking of the vicious and undemocratic acts in Gulfport and Pass Christian, Mr. Byrd said to The Courier during a week-end interview: "The violence heaped upon Negroes in the Congressional Primary in the Gulf Coast area of Mississippi, instigated and encouraged by Theodore Bilbo, has brought the Federal Government to the position long dreaded, either that Bilbo and his ilk will run not only the Department of Justice but the entire Nation as well, with total disregard for the rights of citizens under the Constitution or the Federal Government will have to put all the Bilbos out of business . . . Bilbo's seat must be challenged. The representation of Mississippi in Congress must be reduced in accordance with Article XIV, Section 2, of the U. S. Constitution. If our Government refuses to live up to its obligation towards all citizens, then it is time for America to admit to the world that democracy has failed."

MANY NEGROES FEARED BRUTALITY

Sat. 7-13-46

The largest number of Negroes actually voting in the primary election, the local NAACP learned through its investigators, was at Mound Bayou, the all-colored town where Mayor A. B. Green estimated that more than 200 cast ballots. Jackson, Miss., with more than 500 colored registered voters, had the second highest total voting, it was reported. According to Percy J. Greene, editor of the Jackson Advocate, weekly newspaper, at least 150 voted with the response being especially brisk in the Thirty-first Precinct. The third largest number of voting Negroes was reported in Vicksburg.

Afraid of brutality, intimidation and acts of reprisal, few of the State's more than 5,000 registered voters tried to cast ballots in the smaller counties, the NAACP informants stated. It was also disclosed that in many counties, Negroes were not even allowed to register because they could not "satisfactorily interpret the Constitution."

NEGROES CHALLENGED AT POLLS

In a widely published syndicate news story, Walter Sillers of Rosedale, speaker of the Mississippi House of Representatives, admitted that every Negro vote cast in Bolivar (his home county) was being challenged. He said he had talked with election officials in Adams (Natchez) County, who stated that they, too, were challenging all colored votes, the grounds being (1) whether the Negro voter had been in accord with the Democratic Party the past two years, and (2) whether the voter would support the party nominee in the general election.

Sillers, oldest of the 189-member Mississippi Legislature in the point of service, was quoted by the press service as saying a white citizen was stationed at every polling place in his county to challenge Negro voters on the said points. He also admitted that most Negroes when asked would they vote for renomination of Bilbo said firmly "No."

THREATS LOWERED BALLOTING

Estimates received by the NAACP investigators indicated that, in addition to the heavier balloting in Mound Bayou, Jackson and Vicksburg, about eighty Negroes voted in Pass Christian municipal primary recently, but none last week there or in Gulfport and Hattiesburg. A "few" voted in Greenville and Central Biloxi, it was revealed.

"Whereas the posting of white person "on guard" was a curbing technique widely used in some counties, an equally prevalent stratagem, The Courier was informed, was the "earmarking" and placing in special envelopes of the ballots of Negroes, so that they could be contested on points of "party loyalty," if necessary to assure Bilbo's renomination.

TECHNICALITY RAISED AGAINST BILBO

One of his rivals challenged Bilbo's renomination on the allegation that the race-baiting Senator had accepted $25,000 for his campaign from a private Mississippi firm, a syndicate press release stated. It also quoted T. B. Wilson, prominent colored real estate man of Jackson and president of the Progressive Voters League, as saying he was "generally pleased" with the response of Negroes in the primary election, but that hundreds of Negroes "were denied the right to register in most of the counties of the State. We have affidavits to that effect."

Information to The Courier, through the NAACP, discloses that V. E. Collier, 36-year-old veteran and prominent Gulfport businessman, and his wife, Mrs. Ernestine Collier, a school teacher; J. T. Hall, well known mortician, and R. E. Daniel, another 36-year-old war veteran of Gulfport, were all beaten Tuesday, July 2, when they attempted to vote in the election. All have resided in Gulfport most of their lives. Sat - 7-13-46

REPORTED FBI INCIDENT

Other information is that the Gulfport incident was reported to the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Jackson and protection asked the same day the incidents took place, but that the FBI agent said it was his duty to "investigate, not protect."

A dozen colored war veterans signed an overall affidavit describing how they were denied the right to vote in Pass Christian. The sworn statement was notarized by C. R. Jones, white justice of the peace residing there. Its signers were Eugene H. Roberts, Daniel C. Charlot Jr., Edward Watson Jr., Steve Hunter Jr., Joseph R. Venable, Thomas E. Guyot Jr., Leon E. Brady, Edward M. Benoitz, Godfrey W. Benoitz, John J. Cotton, Harock B. Labat and Thomas Spencer.

WAR VETERAN DENIED FRANCHISE

The affidavit charged that the veterans had appeared at the City Hall in Pass Christian to vote in the election for U. S. Senator and sundry offices, but were met at the doors by Eaton Garriga, the bailiff, who turned them away, saying that no Negroes would be allowed to vote.

It was learned that in Gulfport, Collier and his wife went to the City Hall between noon and 1 o'clock in the afternoon on election day to try and cast their ballots, whereupon they were directed to the east wing of the building by a police officer. In the corridor, about fifteen unkempt white men were standing and when the couple approached, the men spread out fan-wise to block them, NAACP investigators reported, adding that the Colliers were told, "You people don't vote here today; you come back tomorrow; that's your voting time."

WAR VET, WIFE BEATEN

But before Collier had a chance to reply, the NAACP investigators said, he and his wife were attacked by the whites who began beating them to the porch, finally dragging them to the street. The police officer stood by and made no effort to stop the assault, the NAACP was informed.

It was further reported that Collier had a badly swollen face and one eye was practically closed. The day after the election, Collier was attacked by a mob from trailers and knives and the couple had to run to keep the mob from trailing them.

The day after the election, Collier was also beaten for trying to vote and was jailed after reporting the SEPARATE BALLOT BOXES FOR NEGRO VOTERS IN MISSISSIPPI—It was estimated that at least 1,500 Negroes ignored Senator Bilbo's threats and voted in some sections of Mississippi during the State primary election July 2. Most of the Negro votes were cast in Jackson, Miss., Hinds County. Separate ballot boxes were set up for colored voters. Observers said this system was used in order that ballot counters could check Negro votes, if it became necessary. Ed Holt (left), secretary of Local 311, Plasterers and Cement Finishers, AFL, was the first Negro to cast a vote in the Thirty-first Precinct, Hinds County. Several fearless and civic-minded citizens are shown casting their votes in middle photo. At right, a woman resident of Jackson drops her ballot into the box. Quite a few women voted.

fact to the chief of police, it was learned. He was charged with drunkenness and disturbing the peace, the informants also revealed. Sat. 7-13-46

BEATEN AND JAILED

According to descriptions given the NAACP investigators, Daniel, who spent forty months in the armed forces, went to the polls and was told to use a side door, after which he was asked if he had voted before and if he had voted the Democratic ticket. He was told to go the Ward School to vote after he said that he had voted previously, but, as he started out of the building, he was approached by a group of white men who struck him and told him never to enter the building again with his hat on.

On leaving the building, the information further revealed, Daniel was approached by still other white men, accompanied by a policeman, and then was placed under arrest, taken to the Harrison County jail and beaten again so severely about the head that his hearing may be permanently injured. He was beaten into unconsciousness, the NAACP learned, and then kept in jail until 11 o'clock at night and eventually released on a $250 bond with a charge of being drunk and disorderly against his name on the records. Sat. 7-13-46

AWAIT TRIALS

According to the information, Hall and Daniel are to face trial Saturday of this week. Fearful of reprisal, Hall and Daniel declined themselves to give information concerning their misfortunes. NAACP investigators had to get the facts from uninvolved Negroes who either saw or learned the developments shortly after they took place. As a precautionary measure, the NAACP is withholding the identity of all its informants, Mr. Byrd told the New Orleans Newspaper Council.

Hundreds Brave Threats To Vote

B-U-L-L-E-T-I-N!

JACKSON, Miss. — Indignant because 1,500 Negroes were permitted to vote in the primary last week, Senator Theodore G. Bilbo Saturday called upon his home State of Mississippi to revise completely its election laws to "keep primaries all white." He said he would support a special session of the Legislature to revise the State's election laws.

By PERCY J. GREENE

JACKSON, Miss. — (Special to The Courier) — Negroes voted in the Mississippi Democratic primary election Tuesday, July 2, in all sections of the State. At the same time, there were many counties, towns and villages, where no Negroes attempted to vote, due to fear and apprehension caused by the tension during the campaign. The number of Negroes actually voting have been variously estimated as being from one to three thousand, although Mississippi has more than five thousand colored persons registered and eligible to vote.

DAILY CITES HOWARD'S PRO-BILBOISM

Aside from fear of reprisal, another factor which held down colored voting, the Jackson Daily News hinted in a statement attributed to Perry W. Howard, National Republican Committeeman for Mississippi, was Howard's appeal to Negroes of the State not to vote in the Democratic election. According to the article, Senator Bilbo, during his campaign speech-making, constantly referred to Perry Howard as "one of my best friends." Sat. 7-13-46

Ellis, Bilbo's strongest rival, did no mud-slinging during the campaign, but he made it clear that he too is an advocate of "white supremacy."

Bilbo cast his own vote at Alliance Hall in Pearl River County, then returned to his home at Juniper Grove there, where he listened to the election returns. Renomination in Mississippi, like in other Southern States, is tantamount to election, and Bilbo is assured of another six-year term in the U. S. Senate. It will be his third term. Bilbo has been a stormy petrel of Mississippi politics thirty-eight years, most of which he has preached "white supremacy" and consistently fostered efforts to "keep the Negro in his place." At one time, he advocated a "back to Africa" movement for Negroes of America. Recently, on the floor of Congress, he assailed the record of the all-colored Ninety-second Division overseas. In this campaign, he resurrected the "race issue" and said Mississippi white people should resort to any means to keep the Negroes from voting. Even if they voted, he urged that their votes be challenged unless their loyalty to the Democratic Party for the past two years were established. Sat. 7-13-46

INTIMIDATING SIGN POSTED

In one Mississippi voting district, a sign read, "All Negroes Vote at Your Own Risk Here." Even so, at this point, Central Biloxi, to be exact, nearly twenty Negroes did vote before noon of primary day.

Commenting on the election, T. B. Wilson, president of the Progressive Voters Lague of Mississippi, said that when the first Negro vote was cast in the election in bold defiance of threatened violence, intimidation and reprisal, it put Mississippi on the road to a new day for democracy. He said he was "generally pleased" over the fact that hundreds of colored persons, throughout the State, braved all threats and voted anyway.

There were a few reports of incidents involving intimidation, but, on the whole, Negroes who had the courage to cast their ballots did so unmolested.

Dr. S. D. Redmond, prominent Mississippi Republican leader, said, "The election brought a new challenge to the Republican Party of Mississippi."

Here in Jackson, Negro voting was especially brisk in the Thirty-first Precinct. I cast my own vote here and the white people in charge of the precinct headquarters could hardly have been nicer. They accepted all Negro voters with courteous resignation and no unpleasantness has been reported.

BILBO GETS TWELVE VOTES IN ALL-NEGRO TOWN

In the returns from Mound Bayou, an all-colored town, Bilbo ran last, but did poll twelve votes.

Mayor B. A. Green of Mound Bayou said Sheriff W. E. Kent of Bolivar County had challenged 200 votes. After a first challenge was overruled by the three election judges of the community, they were challenged again on the party harmony ground, and this time the ballots were segregated for determination later as to their validity. Sat. 7-13-46

White leaders in LeFlore County, the rich delta county land, made a drive the day before the primary to persuade colored people not to vote.

Four colored persons were challenged in Natchez on the ground that their names did not appear on the poll list.

A lone colored man at Meridian was not allowed to vote because he did not present his certificate of exemption from paying the poll tax. Veterans who were out of Mississippi during their war service need not pay the tax.

NO EVIDENCE OF FBI

Walter Sillers, Speaker of the Mississippi House of Representatives, said he had joined in challenging the votes on the ground that Mound Bayou's population was Republican and did not intend to support the Democrtic nominee in the general elections.

Federal law-enforcement agents were not in evidence, but Federal authorities asserted they were in close touch with the situation in the State. J. M. Lopez, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation at Jackson, referred comment on the primary situation to Attorney General Tom Clark in Washington. Sat. 7-13-46

Bilbo Calls On Home State To Take Action Against Negro Ballot

The Birmingham News Birmingham, Ala. Fri. 7-12-46

Senate Primary Winner Declares 'Mississippi's Enemies' Are Defeated

JACKSON, Miss., July 12—(AP)—Sen. Theo G. Bilbo, presiding at a "victory celebration" here last night, called for a special session of the Legislature to change the election laws so as to keep Negroes from voting, took barbed verbal shots at his political opponents, and welcomed all voters "back into the fold."

Bilbo said the celebration was staged not "to crow," but to mark "the greatest victory of our lives because we have defeated our enemies outside of Mississippi — the enemies of the South and all the South stands for—the South's enemies from Maine to San Francisco, from the Great Lakes to the Gulf."

The senior Mississippi senator, who won renomination in the July 2 primary, said that in the campaign "We did something that our fathers could not do—we whipped the damnyankees."

Bilbo said his election was a victory over "the Drew Pearsons, the Walter Winchells, Jim Dombrowskis, of the so-called Southern Conference for Human Welfare; Aubrey Williams, of the Southern Farmer; the PAC-CIO; the magazines Life, Saturday Evening Post, Time, Collier's The (Memphis) Commercial Appeal; The (New Orleans Times-Picayune; The St. Louis Post-Dispatch; The Philadelphia Record; Washington Post; The Chicago Defender; Pittsburgh Courier; Old Lady Roosevelt; Harold Ickes and Hank Wallace, together with all the Negroes, Communists, Negro lovers and advocates of social equality who poured out their slime and money in Mississippi." Fri. 7-12-46

* * *

Turning to his proposal for a special session of the State Legislature, Bilbo said:

"I want to urge the governor of this state to immediately call a session of the Legislature to enact such laws as will not violate the decisions of the Supreme Court but at the same time will perpetuate the plans and purposes of the state constitution of 1890 that has kept the ballot box clean and white for 56 years. Fri. 7-12-46

"We can retain our white control and white supremacy and we must do it at once.

"The clock has already struck and if any renegades, traitors or scalawags attempt to block our efforts, ostracize them, drive them out, and if there be any Negroes in Mississippi who are just hell-bent on voting, politely ask them to either go North or move to Liberia, the only all-Negro republic in the world.

Bilbo Questions Negro Voting In Mississippi

By MARTHA COBLE

Jackson, Miss., June 25—(UP)—Sen. Theodore G. Bilbo (Dem., Miss.) today challenged the right of the Federal Government to tell Mississippi it must allow Negroes to vote in next Tuesday's Democratic primary.

Bilbo's defiant statement was prompted by an announcement in Washington that the Justice Department was making preparations to protect Negroes who desire to vote in the primary during which Bilbo, an ardent white supremacy advocate, is running for renomination.

In a campaign speech last night Bilbo flatly challenged Atty. Gen. Tom Clark, the Department of Justice and the FBI to "try and keep the white people of this state from running the white Democratic primaries as we think they should be run."

Numerous complaints of Negroes being denied the right to register for the primary have been received by the Justice Department.

One Negro war veteran, through the National Association of Advancement of Colored People, has filed a copy of an affidavit contending he was flogged by four white men when he attempted to register at Brandon, Miss.

"We are checking these complaints very carefully to determine whether federal action should be taken," Assistant Attorney General Theron L. Caudle, head of the criminal division, said.

Joining Bilbo, Rep. John E. Rankin (Dem., Miss.) last week advised Mississippi Negroes to stay away from the primaries if they desired to maintain a peaceful relationship with the whites. Rankin drew in the Communist threat and charged they sought to divide the people of his state.

State Supreme Court Clerk Tom Q. Ellis, one of four candidates opposing Bilbo, also took sides with "The Man" in demanding that Negroes be kept from the polls.

"The Southern white man congratulates the Negro on his progress since he emerged from the bonds of slavery," he said. "The thinking white man realizes the injustice he has done . . . but the Southern leaders of the Negro race realize these matters can be adjusted only within our bounds."

Any action which the Justice Department might initiate would come under the civil rights statutes. Speaking to the Chicago Bar Association Friday night, Attorney General Tom C. Clark said:

"I, as attorney general, will use every force at my command to see to it that in the primaries and forthcoming elections, no American citizen will be deprived of his vote because of his race or color.

"I have already instructed the U. S. attorneys and interested federal agencies to be especially alert and forceful to prevent and prosecute violations of the law."

The affidavit filed by the NAACP was that of Etoy Fletcher, Puckett, Miss., veteran. Fletcher's affidavit said that when he went to the Brandon circuit clerk to ask to register he was directed to "gentlemen in charge of veterans matters."

The advisers, the affidavit added, told him "niggers are not allowed to vote in Rankin County, and if you don't want to get into serious trouble get out of this building and don't mention voting again."

While he was waiting for a bus after leaving the building, the affidavit said, Fletcher was forced into an automobile by four men who drove him to a wooded section where they stripped and flogged him with a heavy wire cable. It said that he was told he would be killed if he again attempted to vote.

Twice the Supreme Court has ruled that Negroes have a right to vote, its latest decision being one of April 1 where it ruled on a Georgia case. The Augusta, Ga., primaries of April 16 were conducted without incident.

In no instance has the Supreme Court ruling affected such voting restrictions as poll taxes and literacy tests which are within the province of state regulatory powers. But it was firm in its belief that Negroes should not be barred because of their color.

Where violations do occur, an official convicted of barring a Negro from voting because of color, would be subject to maximum penalties of $1,000 fine, or a year's imprisonment.

Committee Decides Against Probing Mississippi Voting.

WASHINGTON, July 1. — (AP) — Senator Maybank, Democrat of South Carolina, said today the Senate campaign investigating committee has decided against sending investigators to Mississippi to look into tomorrow's Democratic primary election.

Mississippi Negroes Defy Threats; Vote in Primary

Daily Worker

New York, N.Y. Wed 7-3-46

Mississippi Negro voters going to the polls defied threats of violence by Senator Bilbo and Rep. Rankin, two fiery advocates of "white supremacy," in the primary yesterday.

United Press reported that many ballots were immediately challenged by registrars. The ballots were placed in segregated envelopes which will not be counted until the Democratic County Committees pass on the rights of the Negro voters to participate. This occurred in Mound Bayou, all-Negro town of 1,000 population in the Mississippi Delta. It was the first time since the community was founded 43 years ago that Negroes there had voted in a Democratic primary.

Other reports indicated that on the Gulf Coast, a few eligible Negroes were permitted to vote but the majority were barred from the polls.

Walter Stillers, speaker of the State House of Repersentatives, said that "no coercion" was being used to keep Negroes from the polls at Natchez and Mound Bayou, but that their ballots were being marked and would be thrown out later if the Negroes were found not qualified. Stillers, who served as an election official at Mound Bayou, said he challenged all ballots on the ground that Negres were not members of the Democratic Party and would not support the nominee.

Voting was reported moderate throughout the State. Only known violence reported was at Tupelo, where Rep. Rankin assaulted a photographer and seized his camera.

Both Bilbo and Rankin's campaign for a third term was based on an appeal for white supremacy. Bilbo was opposed by former Naval Commander Nelson Levings, Supreme Court Clerk Tom Q. Ellis, former Congressman Ross Collins, and Frank Harper, a tree salesman. Bilbo violently attacked "northern yankees," and appealed to red-blooded Anglo-Saxon Mississippians to "give me the greatest victory of my life." Wed 7-3-46

A survey of the state indicated that most of the Negro voting was at Jackson. Another site of Negro voting was Vicksburg. No Negroes voted at Tupelo, Clinton, Pascagoula, Brandon, Poplarville and other towns. No Negroes had registered at Poplarville, county seat of Bilbo's home county. About half of Mississippi's two million inhabitants are Negroes.

Mississippi Will Vote Tuesday After Bitter Racial Campaign; Senate May Probe Election

Times Dispatch Richmond, Va.

JACKSON, MISS., June 30—(AP)—Mississippi's bitter congressional campaign, marked by stress on the race issue and reports of possible Federal investigation, ends Tuesday when the State's Democrats nominate a United States Senator and seven Representatives.

Unless there is a runoff primary, the vote will be equivalent to election, Mississippi being virtually a one-party State.

But before the voting starts, the Senate Elections Committee is due to consider whether a formal investigation is warranted by published charges that eligible Negroes might be kept from casting their ballots.

Action Deferred

The group met in Washington Saturday, but deferred action till tomorrow. 7-1-46

Last week Senator Taylor (R-Idaho) called upon the Senate to investigate reports that a Senator had said he would do all in his power to prevent a group from exercising its right to vote.

He did not identify the Senator or the incident, but Senator Theodore G. Bilbo (D-Miss.) running for his third nomination to the office, has called upon "every red-blooded Anglo-Saxon in Mississippi to resort to any means" to keep Negroes from voting.

Bilbo has called upon his four opponents to join him in "requesting" Negroes to refrain from voting. Representative John E. Rankin, seeking renomination from Mississippi's First Congressional District, has urged "all law-abiding Negroes" to remain away from the polls.

Surveys have shown that Negro registration is a small percentage of the total, and in many counties there is none at all. But Bilbo claims it will increase with each election until it means "an end to white supremacy." Negroes form 49.2 per cent of the State's population, according to the last census.

The campaign has been largely one of personalities rather than political organizations. There is no State-wide political group in Mississippi, except the Democratic party, and candidates usually rely upon individual appeal.

Other major officeholders have held generally aloof this time. Governor Thomas L. Bailey has made no public comment on the primary.

Tuesday's Candidates

Here are Tuesday's candidates:

For Senator—

Bilbo, 69-year-old lawyer and farmer, of Poplarville, fiery debater, who has held public office almost continually since he was elected to the legislature in 1908. He served twice as Governor.

During his first term impeachment proceedings against him were defeated by one vote. He has been in the Senate since 1934.

Ross A. Collins, of Jackson, 66-year-old lawyer, who served nine terms in the House of Representatives. He has been a candidate for the Senate three times before without success. His chief campaign plank has been a charge that Bilbo has not championed white supremacy strenuously enough.

Tom Q. Ellis, 55, of Jackson, Supreme Court clerk, who claims he was chosen to that office with the largest vote ever given a State-wide candidate in Mississippi. He is the only senatorial candidate to avoid name-calling. He has called his campaign "a crusade for dignity and honor in high places."

Nelson T. Levings, of Gulfport, 44-year-old naval veteran and former bank vice-president. His only previous try for office was an unsuccessful race for Lieutenant-Governor in 1939. He has addressed his plea chiefly to the veterans, and has claimed white supremacy is not an issue.

Frank Harper, former State Senator and peachtree salesman, who has hitchhiked over the State in his campaign. Claims he cast the deciding vote to kill the impeachment proceedings against Bilbo when he was in the legislature.

For Representatives—

First District: John E. Rankin, of Tupelo, incumbent since 1920; Claude F. Clayton, Charles G. Hamilton.

Second District: Jamie L. Whitten, incumbent, unopposed.

Third District: Will M. Whittington, incumbent, unopposed.

Fourth District: Thomas G. Abernethy, incumbent, unopposed.

Fifth District: Arthur Winstead, incumbent; J. O. Hollis.

Seventh District: Dan R. McGehee, incumbent; Stewart C. Broom, C. A. Sullivan, John Bell Williams.

Senate Investigation Asked

WASHINGTON, June 30—(AP)—Edgar G. Brown, director of the National Negro Council, called today for an immediate investigation by a Senate committee of Mississippi's Democratic primary in which Senator Bilbo is seeking nomination.

In a letter to Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.), acting chairman of the Elections Committee, Brown cited Bilbo's appeal to "every red-blooded Anglo-Saxon in Mississippi to resort to any means" to keep Negroes from voting in the primary Tuesday.

The committee decided yesterday to defer until tomorrow a decision on whether to look into Bilbo's campaign.

Brown's letter was similar to a message he sent to President Truman yesterday urging that Federal troops be sent into Mississippi to "protect the polls."

He wrote Johnson that the Senate committee "would render an incomparable public service" if it would recommend Bilbo's expulsion from the Senate.

2000 Mississippi Negroes Vote, Rankin Scratches AP Photog For Vote

N.Y. Times 7-3-46

Negroes voted for the first time in Missippi's Democratic primary yesterday as Sen. Theodore G. Bilbo and Rep. John E. Rankin, ranting advocates of "white supremacy," sought renomination. No violence against Negroes was reported and estimates were that about 2000 voted—not enough to change election results but a sizeable turnout in a State that has only about 5000 registered Negro voters.

In a few isolated instances, Negroes were denied their right to vote as Democrats, and Negro leaders at Jackson conceded they saw no indication of intimidation or trickery. At Biloxi, a red-lettered sign was posted at a Main St. intersection: "Warning to all Negroes: Vote at your own risk."

Only violence reported was at Tupelo where Rep. Rankin assaulted a Associated Press photographer. Allen W. Snipes, who had snapped Rankin's picture outside a voting booth. Rankin ripped off the man's shirt, scratched his neck and hands and shouted: "I'll kill you, I'll kill you." Snipes, a big fellow, refrained from striking back in deference to Rankin's age (64) and small stature.

¶ In Oklahoma, an unexpectedly heavy vote was indicated as voters balloted on a Governor, eight Congressmen and various State officials. Unless the high man in each race gets a majority, the two highest will go into a runoff primary July 23 to determine part nominees for the November election.

Negro Allegedly Beaten For Vote Bid Vanishes

Courier-Journal Louisville, Ky. Mar. 6-27-46

Jackson, Miss., June 26 (AP)—Etoy Fletcher, Negro veteran who Saturday said he had been flogged June 12 after attempting to register as a voter in Rankin County, "has disappeared amid the usual rumors in a case like this," a spokesman for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said here today.

He said efforts to locate the Negro veteran of World War II at his rooms here and at the Brandon at night."

Brandon, seat of Rankin County, was beaten last week end "because his father in Puckett, white men who told her they home of his father, white men who told her they Rankin County, had been unsuccessful. were "not going to allow Negroes on the streets of Brandon after dark," the spokesman said.

Woman Reported Beaten.

The N.A.A.C.P. spokesman said also that the association had received a report that a Negro woman, Matilda Pinkney, of Brandon, N.A.A.C.P. is urging Negroes in Mississippi to continue to register as voters, and those who succeed in qualifying, to vote in the July 2 Democratic primary.

MISSISSIPPI NEGROES INVADE WHITE PRIMARY; NO VIOLENCE

Blue dispatch

Oklahoma City, Okla.

Intimidation Practiced Largely in Rural Sections of State

BILBO'S THREATS UNHEEDED

Sat. 7-13-46

JACKSON, Miss.—(NNPA)—Racial and political traditions were shattered Tuesday, July 2, apparently without violence, as colored electors in Mississippi defied Senator Theodore G. (The Man) Bilbo and voted in the so-called Democratic "white" primary for the first time since adoption of the state constitution in 1890.

Singly and in groups colored electors quietly went to the polling places and cast their votes in the hotly contested primary, in which victory is tantamount to election.

Throughout the day no cases of physical violence had been reported, although many of the colored electors were challenged and many instances of intimidation were reported. One report said 2,000 colored persons had voted.

Reports from the outlying parts of the state indicated that the colored vote in the rural districts, where intimidation was strongest, was light or non-existent. But here in the state capital and in some of the larger communities they flocked to the polls in increasing numbers as the day wore on.

That any dared vote at all in a Democratic primary, and that none were apparently molested, was a history-making event in Mississippi.

The quietness with which the precedent against colored citizens voting in a Democratic primary was broken surprised even Mississippians. In Jackson, colored persons who could qualify for voting appeared to be handled no differently from white voters at the polling places.

Challenges were chiefly on the grounds of failure to pay the poll tax, for failure to have been in harmony with the Democratic party for the past two years, and for inability to satisfy the circuit clerk that the prospective voter was familiar with the Constitution. Sat. 7-13-46

A state law provides that a voter in a party primary must have been in harmony with the party for the two-year period; in other words, nobody must have been in harmony with the party for two-year period; in other words, nobody who voted Republican during the time could qualify. Another state law gives the circuit clerk of each county the right to examine a vote on his knowledge or understanding of the Constitution.

The challenged votes of colored persons were not counted in the unofficial tabulation, but were placed in sealed envelopes to have their validity passed upon by the Mississippi State Democrat Executive Committee.

Some instance of challenges were reported because of a negative answer when the voter was asked if he or she would support Bilbo in the November election if he is the nominee.

In the returns from Mound Bayou, said Sheriff W. E. Kent of ran last, but did poll twelve votes.

Mayor B. A. Green of Mound said Sheriff W. E. Kent, of Bolivar County had challenged 200 voters. After a first challenge was overruled by the three election judges of the community, they were challenged again on the party harmony ground, and this time the ballots were segregated for determination as to their validity.

White leaders in LeFlore County, the rich delta county land, made a drive the day before the primary to persuade colored people not to vote. Sat. 7-13-46

Four colored persons were challenged in Natchez on the ground that their names did not appear on the poll list. Sat. 7-13-46

A lone colored man at Meridian was not allowed to vote because he did not present his certificate of exemption from paying the poll tax. Veterans who were out of Mississippi during their war service need not pay the tax.

Walter Sillers, Speaker of the Mississippi House of Representatives, said he had joined in challenging the votes on the ground that Mound Bayou's population was Republican and did not intend to support the Democratic nominee in the general elections.

The Circuit Court building in Jackson was crowded late in the morning and afternoon by both white and colored persons seeking to register. Many of the colored persons, learning that they could register right through July 5, and possibly qualify to vote in the July 2 primary as the November 5 general election, hurried to the circuit clerk's office, and then made a bee-line for their polling places. These included a number of veterans.

Federal law-enforcement agents were not in evidence, but Federal authorities asserted they were in close touch with the situation in the state. J. M. Lopez, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation here, referred comment on the primary situation to Attorney General Tom Clark in Washington.

In view of Senator Bilbo's call to the "red-blooded Anglo-Saxons" of Mississippi to use any means whatever to prevent colored people from voting, it was ironical to see a line of sixteen colored persons standing on the porch of the Senator's former home in Jackson, waiting to vote at a polling place on the porch where Senator used to sit. Sat. 7-13-46

At the corner of Robinson and Eastview Streets, in the beautiful residential section of West Jackson, several cars filled with colored persons had just drawn up. The house, built by the Senator in 1933, just before he became Governor for the second time, is a private resident now, and was the polling place for the 29th Precinct.

Two middle-aged women and a man, all white, sat at two card tables on the veranda, shaded by large trees. Colored persons, some of them veterans and their wives, others, white-haired men and women, formed a line before the tables. All carried poll tax receipts or veteran certificates exempting them from payment of poll tax.

With politeness on both sides, these papers were examined, the ballots and dropped them in the box. Then they quietly left. The same scene was repeated at many other polling places around here, although at some there was less politeness, and after the colored voters had left, downright cussing.

Many Mississippi Negroes Vote; Rankin Assaults AP Photographer

The Constitution Atlanta, Ga. Wed. 7-3-46

JACKSON, Miss., July 2—(UP) Despite warning of bloodshed, several hundred Negroes voted without molestation Tuesday in Mississippi's Democratic primary in which two hot-tongued advocates of white supremacy, Sen. Theodore G. Bilbo and Rep. John E. Rankin, sought renomination.

Negro leaders had feared trouble and had appealed for Federal protection at the polls.

Angry because Associated Press Photographer Allen Snipes had snapped his picture outside a voting booth, Rankin ripped off his shirt, scratched his neck and hands, and shouted, "I'll kill you, I'll kill you."

Bilbo, whose campaign for a third term was based entirely on an appeal for white supremacy, was opposed by former Naval Cmdr. Nelson Levings, Supreme Court Clerk Tom Q. Ellis, former Rep. Ross Collins and Frank Harper, a tree salesman.

Bilbo had violently attacked "Northern Yankees" who he said were trying to defeat him, appealed to red-blooded Mississippians to keep Negroes from the polls and had called on the 150,000 to 200,000 white voters to "give me the greatest victory of my life."

All four of his opponents also stood for white supremacy but not so violently.

A survey of the State indicated that most of the Negro voting was at Jackson.

Of the first 2,700 voters at Jackson, 110 were Negroes, and it was expected that 300 or 400 would ballot by the time the polls close.

A half dozen or so Negroes voted at Vicksburg, a few at Pass Christian and some 200 at Mound Bayou, an all-Negro town of 1,000 population in the Mississippi Delta. It was the first time since the community was founded 43 years ago that Negroes there had voted in a Democratic primary.

However, Sheriff W. E. Kent, of Bolivar County, in which Mound Bayou is located, said some of the votes would be challenged.

A survey Tuesday afternoon indicated that no Negroes had voted at Tupelo, Clinton, Pascagoula, Brandon, Popularville and other towns. No Negroes had registered at Popularville, county seat of Bilbo's home county.

At Meridian, one elderly Negro tried to vote, but was told he was not qualified. At Corinth, a Negro was turned away because he was too young. Officials said he was only 19.

About one-half of Mississippi's 2,000,000 inhabitants are Negroes.

Rankin was opposed by former Circuit Judge Claude Clayton and Charles Hamilton, Minister and School Teacher.

Three other Congressmen had oppositon. Rep. Arthur Winstead was opposed by J. O. Hollis in the Fifth District; Rep. William Colmer was opposed by Grover Dogett in the Sixth and Rep. Dan McGehee in the Seventh District was opposed by John Bell Williams, Stewart C. Broom and Arthur Sullivan.

JACKSON, Miss. — Negroes not only voted in Mississippi, but Bilbo's house was the polling place and Negroes voted in Bilbo's own home in Jackson, Mississippi! 300 to 500 had voted at one o'clock Tuesday. Negroes voted without any molestation, and the polling places were exceptionally courteous. The only challenges ever hurled were on the question of whether they were Republicans or Democrats. Indications at one o'clock were a possible run-off between Bilbo and Nelson T. Levings. 7-6-46

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—The Department of Justice announced last Tuesday that the Federal Bureau of Investigation will investigate charges of intimidation of colored persons who sought to register to vote in the Democratic primary in Mississippi Tuesday, July 2. About 5,000 colored persons, mostly in cities, were said to have been qualified to participate in the July 2 primary.

The announcement followeed submission of a photostatic copy of an affidavit made by Etoy Fletcher, a veteran, of Puckett, Mississippi, who alleged that he was unmercifully flogged by four white men after he had attempted to register in Brandon, Mississippi.

Press dispatches from Jackson, Mississippi, quoting Senator Theodore G. (The Man) Bilbo, who was seeking nomination for a third term, calling on white voters in Mississippi to "see to it" that colored persons did not vote in the Mississippi primary, was also brought to the attention of the Justice Department.

At Laurel, Mississippi, on the night of June 22, Bilbo called on "every red-blooded Anglo-Saxon man in Mississippi to resort to any means to keep Negroes from the polls uly 2." Sat. 7-6-46

"And," he added, "if you don't know what that means you are not up on persuasive measures.

"The white people of Mississippi are sleeping on a volcano, and it is left up to you red-blooded men to do something about it. The white men of this state have a right to resort to any means at their command to stop it."

Bilbo was opposed by Ross Collins, Tom Q. Ellis and Nelson Levings, who campaigned against him intensively. It was believed in political circles here that a runoff primary will be necessary to determine the winner.

JACKSON, Miss.—The Democratic primary elections held throughout Mississippi on Tuesday may be probed by the United States Senate, it was indicated early this week in a statement by Edgar G. Brown, director of the National Negro Council, Washington, D. C., following campaign speeches by Senator Theodore G. Bilbo urging whites to use any means to keep Negroes from voting, and after at least two Negroes were reported flogged for attempting to register in the past two weeks.

Percy Green, editor of the Jackson Advocate, said in a statement to United Press, that a reign "of terror" was on in one section of Mississippi last week and the Negro voting issue warranted a congressional investigation.

While campaigning, Senator Bilbo made white supremacy the main plank of his platform.

In Washington, Senator Glen Taylor, Democrat of Idaho, asked that the Senate committee on elections and privileges investigate a published statement by Bilbo calling on "every red-blooded" Mississippian to see that Negroes are kept away from the polls in the primary.

Taylor, without calling names, cited Bilbo's published campaign statement, and added: Informer

"We cannot disregard these charges witho an investigation."

The senate committee should look into the situation, he said, "so that no people will be deprived of their right to vote." Houston Texas

Attorney General Tom Clark announced earlier last week that a federal investigation of the situation in Mississippi might be undertaken. But Bilbo immediately challenged the Justice Department and the FBI. Sat. 7-6-46

Percy Green, the newspaper editor, reported that the town of Brandon, where Etoy Fletcher, a Negro war veteran, flogged, was in the midst of a reign of terror last week. Green said he had learned of the second flogging to occur in that community in which Mrs. Matilda Pinckney, 43-year-old woman, was so badly beaten that she could not be removed to a hospital.

The sheriff's office said it had received no word of the alleged flogging which Green said took place last Sunday night. He said the alleged attackers told the woman they "were not going to allow Negroes on the streets after dark."

Bilbo charged that "well organized" outsiders were stirring up trouble among Negroes and encouraging them vote.

The last survey taken before the election showed that only a small number of Negroes would be eligible to vote but the smallness of the potential Negro vote did not diminish in importance to Bilbo who said in his closing campaign speech: it will be two handsful next time "If you let a handful vote this time, and four the time after, and soon white supremacy will be lost."

The low figures on Negro registration were blamed by T. B. Wilson, president of the Progressive Voters League, on ruse and intimidation by some circuit clerks.

The first flogging reported was that of Etoy Fletcher, a war veteran, who told of being beaten by four white men with heavy wire because he had attempted to register at Brandon, Mississippi.

An attempt was made to offset Fletcher's statement on Friday when Dr. C. P. Matranga, a white physician who treated Fletcher after his injuries on June 13, signed an affidavit saying Fletcher had told him that he had been beaten by a group of Negro boys. 7-6-46

In connection with Mrs. Pinckney's flogging, it was learned from reliable source that two men has been apprehended and charged

And regardless of the final tabulations of the election, it is likely that the senate committee will conduct a probe into the Mississippi situation, it was predicted on Sunday.

MISSISSIPPI POLITICIANS ASK NEGROES REFRAIN FROM PRIMARY VOTING

Washington, June 22—(AP) — Rep. Rankin (D-Miss) today joined Senator Bilbo (D-Miss) in urging "law-abiding" Mississippi Negroes to refrain from voting in the state primaries.

In a statement, Rankin said:

"I simply appeal to the law-abiding Negro of Mississippi to refrain from attempting to participate in the white primaries.

"I know that the Communists are trying to stir up race trouble all over the South, just as they did in Columbia, Tennessee, and they don't care how much the Negroes or the white people of the South suffer as a result. What they want is to stir up friction.

"They know, and everyone else knows, that their activities will result in untold injury to the Negroes of the South by stirring up friction between them and the white people among whom they live, and upon whose good will and friendship they must depend for their future peace, happiness and prosperity."

Taylor told the committee it "must act fast" if it is to act, but then offered a suggestion which put possible action off—to refer the situation to the special committee on campaign expenditures.

UNAVA national commander, said:

"This matter is receiving the careful attention of the Department of Justice and prompt action will be undertaken with respect to any interference with the right of qualified Negroes to vote in Mississippi."

Senator Says Bilbo Plots to Break Law

Daily Worker New York, N.Y.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Sen. Theodore G. Bilbo was charged before a Senate committee today with engaging "in a widespread plan to break Federal laws." The committee, however, passed the buck to another body and declined to investigate.

On the eve of the Mississippi Senator's "white supremacy" bid for renomination, Sen. Glen H. Taylor (D-Ida), told the Privileges and Elections Committee that Bilbo had raised an issue which, "in the minds of millions of our citizens, tests the sincerity of our Senate."

"It is as important to the future of our republic as any problem which has come before us this session," Taylor said. "We cannot duck it. We cannot avoid it. It is before us." Sun 7-2-46

Bilbo told Mississippi election meetings to "use any means" to prevent Negroes from voting. He promised to defend any person arrested for so doing, adding that he had defended 11 persons on murder charges, all successfully.

Mississippi Faces Negro Vote Problem

JACKSON, Miss., June 29. (AP)—The Negro voting question today turned the national spotlight, and perhaps a Senate investigation, upon Tuesday's democratic primary election in Mississippi, but only a corporal's guard of Negroes, at most, can cast ballots.

A last survey showed that the Negro registration is only a tiny percentage of the total number of names on the books. Many counties have no Negro registrants, and in the state's largest county, Hindu, there are only about 500 Negroes registered as compared with 25,000 white voters.

But the smallness of the potential Negro vote did not diminish its importance as an issue in the eyes of Senator Theo G. Bilbo, who has stressed white supremacy in his campaign for re-nomination.

"If you let a handful vote this time," Bilbo has said, "it will be two handfuls next time and four handfuls the time after, and soon white supremacy will be lost."

The low figures of Negro registration have been blamed by T. B. Wilson, Negro president of the Progressive Voters League, on "ruse and intimidation" by some circuit clerks. He claims clerks have prevented registration by such means as feigned absence from their offices, or by pretending that the deadline has passed.

Meanwhile, the Senate elections committee in Washington was considering whether a federal investigation of the Mississippi primary was warranted, and the National Negro Council asked President Truman to send troops "to guard the polls."

Election Committee Defers Action

At least four of the senatorial candidates will continue vigorous campaigning right up to the eve of the primary. Bilbo, who has called upon "all red-blooded Anglo-Saxons" to prevent Negro voting "by any means," will climax his speaking program with a radio address Monday night over "all radio stations in Mississippi and one in Tennessee."

Nelson T. Levings of Gulfport, naval veteran who has asked other ex-servicemen to help him "end the Bilbonic Plague," likewise will end his campaign in Jackson, with a outdoor rally which also will be broadcast.

Supreme Court Clerk Tom Q. Ellis closes his tour with talks Monday in three smaller towns. Ellis, alone of the five candidates, largely has steered clear of personalities.

Former Representative Ross Collins, will wind up in Meridian. Collins has addresses traveled on his hitchhiking campaign tour by

Negro Registration

Moultrie Ga. Observer
June 20, 1946

Negroes in reasonable numbers are registering throughout the state, but there is no grand rush or unseemly eagerness about the way they are registering. It will be a new experience for the Ngroes to vote in the white primary this year. In the larger cities they have registered in considerable numbers, but throughout the state the registration is not large in proportion to the number who are entitled to register. A lot of white people of the state, stirred by sensational political speeches, have been expecting that the colored people would immediately get into politics and in counties and districts where they have a majority there would be Negroes offering for office. The Observer had hoped that this would not come to pass and have counseled that we give the Negro a chance and if he behaves in the primary voting as we believe he will behave himself, we will have gained a new citizen and a new voter and will have done no one any harm.

If it should be found that the Negroes were over ambitious and sought to take charge of things in some areas it would then be time enough to experiment with new methods of maintaining white supremacy. We have a few counties in Georgia that have more Negroes than whites. An encouraging thing is the fact that in these counties where there are large numbers of colored people living in rural districts they are paying least attention to registering and to plans for voting. It may be that after all the Negro at the ballot box will be no problem. At least, it is a bridge that we can afford to wait and cross after we get to it. It will be much better if the state can ease into these inter-racial primaries and elections without stirring up strife and bitterness and without getting into long drawn out litigation. We may find solution in a way that we had not anticipated. Give the thinking people of both races a chance to work it out and find something that is both satisfactory and legal.

JUST PLAIN LYING

The New York headquarters of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, a notorious social equality-seeking organization, has made public an affidavit signed by Etoy Fletcher, a Rankin county negro, claiming that he was taken from the court house at Brandon by four men and flogged with a heavy wire cable because he had offered to register as a voter in that county.

All evidence thus far available indicates that Fletcher is an unmitigated liar and that his affidavit is a plain frame-up secured for the purpose of influencing negro votes in Northern states.

Fletcher says the flogging took place on June 2nd. Four days later he came to this city and underwent physical examination for admission as a student at Jackson College. College records do not show that his body bore any marks of a flogging, which would certainly have been the case if he had been severely whipped as claimed.

Fletcher was not available for questioning Saturday after his affidavit was made public in New York. He is not now available. Nobody at the college seems to know anything concerning his whereabouts.

D. V. Gayden, circuit clerk and registrar of Rankin county, says he does not recall that any negro answering Fletcher's description has ever offered to register. The sheriff's office says it has not received any complaint on the subject.

The National Association for Advancement of Colored People is notorious for its malicious mischief-making and strife-breeding propaganda. Fletcher's hair-raising story may be sanely dismissed as another incident of that sort.

Bilbo in the Lead as Negroes Vote in Mississippi Primary

Some Are Challenged on Legal Grounds, but There Is No Disorder as They Cast Their First Ballots

Wed. 7-3-46

By The Asso

JACKSON, Mss., July 2—Senator Theodore G. Bilbo, vociferous advocate of white supremacy, led his four opponents in early returns tonight from Mississippi's first mixed democratic primary. He had a majority with more than 10 per cent of the votes counted.

He was seeking his third term in a primary in which Negroes were allowed to vote for the first time. A few were challenged at the polls, but for the most part those who could qualify were permitted to cast their ballots peacefully.

Unofficial returns from 276 out of the 1,713 precincts gave Bilbo 20,296; Ross Collins 3,733; Tom Q. Ellis 12,302; Frank Harper 250; and Nelson T. Levings, 2,625.

A red-lettered sign at a main Biloxi business intersection said "warning to all negroes, vote at your own risk." Four negroes who approached a Biloxi polling place and said they came to vote were turned away by a bystander.

And Eaton Garriga, who served as a bailiff at Pass Christian where 18 negroes participated in a municipal primary several weeks ago, said that election commissioners there voted before the polls opened this morning to deny the ballot to negroes today.

But for the most part, reports indicated that registered Negroes who sought to vote were challenged only for legal cause, such as non-payment of poll taxes or questioned adherence to the Democratic party. Only a thousand Negro ballots were cast, in all, but the number represented a good proportion of the total registration.

Negro leaders at Jackson said they saw no indication of intimidation or trickery. 7-3-46

Each hoping to force Mr. Bilbo into a run-off primary, the Senator's four opponents closed their campaigns with expressions of confidence. All conceded that he would be high man in the race, but all predicted that he would not obtain the outright majority needed for nomination in today's voting.

Mr. Bilbo's opponents were Ross A. Collins, veteran of nine terms as representative in Congress; Tom Q. Ellis, 55-year-old clerk of the State Supreme Court; Frank H. Harper, former State Senator, and Nelson T. Levings, who served as a lieutenant commander in the Navy during the war. Times

Three representatives in addition to Mr. Rankin had opposition. Representative Arthur Winstead of the Fifth District was opposed by his former Campaign Manager, J. O. Hollis. In the Sixth District Representative William M. Colmer was opposed by Grover C. Doggette. Three opponents of Representative Dan R. McGehee in the Seventh District were Stewart C. Broom, C. A. Sullivan and John Bell Williams. New York, N.Y. Wed. 7-3-46

Negro Voting Overshadows All Issues in Mississippi

Times Dispatch Richmond, Va.

JACKSON, MISS., July 1—(AP)—The red-hot question of Negro voting overshadowed all other issues tonight on the eve of a Mississippi Democratic primary election in which Congress' most outspoken advocates of white supremacy—Senator Theo G. Bilbo and Representative John E. Rankin—seek return to office.

Backed by a Supreme Court opinion and a Justice Department warning, Negroes already have voted in primaries in other one-party Southern States.

But they never before have cast ballots in a Mississippi primary, and Bilbo has called upon "every red-blooded Anglo-Saxon in the State to use whatever means are necessary" to keep them from the polls tomorrow. 7-2-46

Rankin, since 1920 the Representative of the First District which embraces Northeast Mississippi, urged "law-abiding" Negroes to refrain from voting.

Instructions to Vote

On the other hand, Negroes have been instructed by their own organizations to make an effort to vote, but to come away peacefully if the ballot is denied. Mayor B. A. Green said that about 200 votes will be cast in the all-Negro town of Mound Bayou, where citizens have voted before in general elections but never in Democratic primaries.

No accurate estimate was possible as to the number of Negroes in the State who have registered, but it is only a tiny proportion of the eligible white vote. The 1940 census showed that Mississippi's population was 49.2 per cent Negro.

The tense situation brought repercussions from out of the State.

Senator Taylor, Idaho Democrat, asked the Senate elections committee to investigate the accuracy of reports that Bilbo had made his call to "every red-blooded Anglo-Saxon.

Taylor told the committee that it should "gather all of the facts of this case, while the evidence is still available, in order to build up a file for future reference in the event that a candidate's credentials are challenged before his seating next January."

The Idahoan expressed the belief that President Truman should sent troops to Mississippi to protect the Negroes' right to vote "if that is the only way that their rights can be assured."

Director Edgar G. Brown, of the National Negro Council, already had asked the President to send troops into the State to "protect the polls."

The supercharged Negro voting issue came to the fore near the end of a name-calling senatorial campaign in which Bilbo, seeking a third term, was the storm center.

Opponents Blast Bilbo

Three of Bilbo's four opponents directed their fire against him. The fourth, State Supreme Court Clerk Tom Q. Ellis, steered clear of personalities, and based his appeal for votes on a pledge to fight the Fair Employment Practices Commission, and to obtain favorable veterans' legislation and better farm legislation. 7-2-46

Ross A. Collins, veteran of nine terms in the House of Representatives at Washington, charged that Bilbo had been lax in his champion of a white supremacy. He accused Bilbo of seeking repeal of Mississippi's poll tax, and of responsibility for the appointment of a Negro to a political office in the State, Washington.

Nelson T. Levings, a Navy lieutenant-commander during the war, charged that Bilbo had stirred up personalities, and based his appeal for votes on a pledge to fight the Fair Employment Practices Commission, and to obtain favorable veterans' legislation and better farm legislation. 7-2-46

Ross A. Collins, veteran of nine terms in the House of Representatives at Washington, charged that the Negro voting matter as a Bilbo had been lax in his campaign measure. Levings said there is no issue that white supremacy is because we have it in Mississippi and intend to keep it."

Frank H. Harper, former State Senator and peacetime Fifth District Representative Arthur Winstead is opposed by his former campaign manager, J. O. Hollis.

In the Sixth District Representative William M. Colmer has as opponent Grover C. Doggette, Laurel. 7-2-46

Four House Incumbents

Three Mississippi Representatives in addition to Rankin are opposed for renomination.

Rankin, who stayed in Washington during the campaign, is running against Claude F. Clayton and Charles G. Hamilton.

Mississippi Negroes Threatened, Says Bloch

JACKSON, Miss., July 1. (AP)—Charges of "wholesale" intimidation, "threats and assaults" to keep Negros from voting in tomorrow's Mississippi Democratic primary were made today just before U. S. Attorney General Tom Clark announced the justice department would back up their right to vote.

The charges came from Emanuel H. Bloch, counsel for the Civil Rights congress, New York, who asserted that "exhortations" by Senator Theo. G. Bilbo have "spread a blanket of terror and apprehension" over 1,000,000 Mississippi Negroes.

Bilbo and Rep. John L. Rankin, both outspoken advocates of white supremacy, are candidates for renomination in the primary.

Bloch telegraphed protests to President Truman, Attorney General Clark and Senator Mead (D., N. Y.), member of the senate committee on elections. He urged an investigation and an "immediate pronouncement . . . that the federal government will protect any citizen in his civil liberties and constitutional rights."

Clark said a few hours later that the full force of his department would stand behind any qualified Negro seeking to cast his ballot in the primary. A supreme court ruling "makes federal law in this question entirely clear," he added.

Senator Maybank (D., S. C.) said in Washington, however, that the senate campaign investigating committee would not send investigators because "it would be an insult to the people of Mississippi."

Maybank said the committee did not feel justified in acting since none of the candidates themselves had asked an inquiry. All such requests, he asserted, have come from "dabblers in Southern politics from the outside."

Bloch in his telegram said that documentary evidence was available that "wholesale incidents of intimidatory acts, threats and assaults against Negroes, particularly Negro veterans, have occurred."

Backed by a supreme court opinion and a justice department warning, Negroes already have voted in primaries in other one-party Southern states.

But they never before have cast ballots in a Mississippi primary, and Bilbo has called upon "every red-blooded Anglo-Saxon in the state to use whatever means are necessary" to keep them from the polls tomorrow.

Rankin, since 1920 the representative of the first district which embraces northeast Mississippi, urged "law-abiding" Negroes to refrain from voting.

Instructed To Vote

U. S. to Back Negro Voters In Mississippi

Senate Group Declines To Send Investigator

Richmond, Va.

WASHINGTON, July 1—(AP)—Attorney-General Tom Clark said tonight the full power of the Justice Department will back up the United States attorney's announcement in Mississippi that qualified Negro voters may vote in that State's primary tomorrow.

Clark said in a statement "the latest action of the United States Supreme Court makes Federal law in this question entirely clear."

Senator Maybank (D-S. C.) said today the Senate Campaign Investigating Committee has decided against sending investigators to Mississippi to look into tomorrow's Democratic primary election.

Tuesday

"It would be an insult to the people of Mississippi," Maybank told reporters after a meeting with some others of the investigating group.

Requests that the Senate committee send a representative were made by Senator Taylor (D-Idaho) and Edgar G. Brown, representative of the National Negro Council.

"Outsiders"

Maybank said there had been numerous requests and demands from "all over the country" but added that neither Senator Bilbo (D-Miss.), seeking re-election, nor any of his opponents in the primary had made such a request.

All requests for investigation, Maybank said, came from "dabblers in Southern politics from the outside," and were "wholly from outsiders."

"I am opposed and will not vote for any action to send investigators to Mi sissippi because outsiders ask for it," Maybank added.

"If, however, candidates within the State of Mississippi or any other citizens of that State complain, I am in favor of investigation. Otherwise it is not a Senate matter—not a Senate duty to send investigators to Mississippi upon request of outsiders absolutely."

Taylor's request for an investigation first was made to the regular standing committees on elections which referred it to the special investigating group.

Bar Negro Vote, Bilbo Entreats 'Red-Blooded'

JACKSON, Miss., June 22—(UP)—Sen. Theodore Bilbo, Democrat, Mississippi, Saturday night demanded that the "red-blooded men" of Mississippi bar Negroes from voting. His demand came a few hours after a Negro Army veteran charged that he had been beaten and flogged by four white men when he sought to register.

In one of his strongest white supremacy statements of his current campaign for renomination, Bilbo said at Laurel that if a few Negroes vote in the Democratic primary this year, more will vote in 1947 "and from then on it will grow into a mighty surge."

He called on every "red-blooded, Anglo-Saxon man in Mississippi to resort to any means to keep hundreds of Negroes from the polls in the July 2 primary."

"And if you don't know what that means, your are just not up on your persuasive measures," Bilbo added.

Bilbo's speech came after Etoy Fletcher, Army veteran attending school under the GI Bill of Rights, charged in an affidavit that he had been seized, flogged and beaten at Brandon, Miss., on June 2 when he attempted unsuccessfully to register. His charge was made in an affidavit made public by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in New York.

Use Troops at Polls, Oust Bilbo, Cry Negroes

CHICAGO, June 22—(UP)—Edgar G. Brown, Director of the National Negro Council, Saturday night urged President Truman to send troops into Mississippi for the July 2 election to enforce a Supreme Court decision giving Negroes the right to vote in "white" primaries.

Brown, speaking before the annual meeting of the National Sunday School and Baptist Training Union Congress, said that "if Mr. Truman could send troops to Gen. MacArthur to assure the right of the Japanese, our recent enemies, to vote, certainly he can do the same for our native Americans."

Some 17,000 delegates and guests, representing 4,000,000 Negro Baptists, signed petitions demanding the impeachment of Mississippi Sen. Theodore R. Bilbo.

Bilbo Renews Plea to Prevent Negroes Voting

LAUREL — (Special) — Citizens of Mississippi were again called on here Saturday by Senator Theo. G. Bilbo "to resort to any means" to keep negroes from the polls in the July 2 Democratic Primary.

"And if you don't know what that means, you are just not up on persuasive measures," said Senator Bilbo as he completed a week of stump speaking in South Mississippi.

"Spurred on by the CIO and PAC," the senior senator said, "negroes are going to make an all-out effort to vote next Tuesday week and if you don't know what that means you are not awake to the crisis ahead," he said.

"We are faced with the issue and 'it must be met and it must be met now.' If you let a handful go to the polls on July 2 there will be two handfuls in 1947, and from then on it will grow into a mighty surge."

"The white people of Mississippi can't afford to let this happen in a state where half the population is negro," Senator Bilbo added.

"The white people of Mississippi are sleeping on a volcano," he warned, "and it is left up to you red-blooded men to do something about it. The white men of this state have a right to resort to any means at their command to stop it."

Senator Bilbo said that "every day since the 14th of last October, negroes, foreigners and the scum of the north and east have alternated in picketing my apartment in Washington because of my fight against FEPC, and my refusal, as ex-officio mayor, to let the negroes take over in Washington."

"Since I have been back in the state seeking re-nomination, the CIO and PAC, through their paid agents—and you know who I am talking about—have undertaken a filthy, malicious assassination of my character and record in an effort to silence an expose of their social and political equality movement in Mississippi," he declared. "They doubtless will continue this smear campaign during the closing week."

Negroes Vote In Mississippi Election Today

JACKSON, Miss., July 2—(AP)—Backed by a promise of federal protection, Negroes joined white persons today in voting in Mississippi's Democratic primary election.

They were not molested.

The issue of whether Negroes could vote had been high-pointed during the campaign by an appeal by Senator Theo G. Bilbo, who seeks re-nomiation, to "every red-blooded Anglo-Saxon in Mississippi to use whatever means are necessary" to keep Negroes from the polls.

Twenty-five Negroes were among the first 45 persons to vote in the 31st precinct at Jackson. Across the street, in the 32nd precinct, one Negro was among 30 early voters.

Negro voters had the assurance of Attorney General Tom Clark in Washington that the justice department would back up the Supreme Court's ruling which, he said, "makes federal law in this question entirely clear."

Bilbo in campaign addresses has defied the federal government to enforce Negro voting rights and has offered his legal services to defend "anyone who gets in trouble" preventing Negroes from casting ballots.

Rep. John E. Rankin, who also has often spoken for white supremacy, has urged "law-abiding Negroes" to stay away from the polls. Rankin, chairman of the House committee on un-American affairs, is one of four representatives facing opposition in today's Democratic primary. The other three are unopposed.

National Spotlight Turned on Mississippi Primary Slated for Tuesday

JACKSON, Miss., June 29—(AP)—The Negro voting question today turned the national spotlight, and perhaps a Senate investigation, upon Tuesday's Democratic primary election in Mississippi, but only a corporal's guard of Negroes, at most, can cast ballots.

A last survey showed that the Negro registration is only a tiny percentage of the total number of names on the books. Many counties have no Negro registrants, and in the State's largest county, Hindu, about 500 Negroes compared with 25,000 white voters.

But the smallness of the potential Negro vote did not diminish its importance as an issue in the eyes of Senator Theo G. Bilbo, who has stressed white supremacy in his campaign for re-nomination.

NEGROES VOTE IN MISSISSIPPI PRIMARY ELECTION

Above are two negroes as they dropped their ballots in the poll box at precinct No. 31, located a 545 Rose street, Jackson.

Negroes Vote in State Primary Unmolested; Hit Over 100 Here

Although negroes voted in Jackson and at other points in Mississippi in Tuesday' Democratic primary, in mid-afternoon signs of violence were lacking. Early voters in Jack son included about 75 negroes, none of whom was molested.

A last minute rush to register developed at the Hinds county circuit clerk's office. Th office could make no estimate of the number of negroes applying. The majority of those applying were discharged service men who needed no poll tax receipts to vote. They stood in line with white registrants and without comment or demonstration applied for and received their registration certificates.

A check between 11 a. m. and noon showed that 2,702 votes had been cast in Jackson, where the total vote was 5,662 in the latest contest for the governship and other state offices. Polling places were swamped with a rush at noon.

By noon, 110 negroes had voted. Eleven others had their ballots challenged. In one ward, the challenge was on the ground that the negroes had not been in harmony with the Democratic party. In the other, election officials said simply "we are challenging their right to vote." About 40 negroes already had voted in one of the wards.

At one precinct, No. 31 located at the Sansing Refrigeration Service, 545 Rose street, more negroes than whites were voting during the period 8:00 until 9:15 a. m. The negroes came in ones or in pairs to discover their ballot was not to be challenged if they had properly registered.

Among those voting at the precinct was Percy Green, editor of the Jackson Advocate, negro newspaper, who paused at the doorway, entered slowly, signed the poll register, voted and as he dropped the ballot into the box, he stepped lively to the outside and said:

"I've got to call New York."

His remarks were addressed to Emanuel Blich, counsel for the Civil Rights Congress and former attorney for FEPC and others.

Meanwhile, across the street at precinct No. 32, the P. L. Hughes Grocery store, the negro balloting was noticably lighter.

One of the largest single groups of negroes to vote at any one period was at the precinct No. 30, the Bilbo home, corner of Robinson and Eastview street, where at noon a grup of approximately 20 voted. Negro photographers and reporters from out of state newspapers "covered" the occasion.

A record of voting in Jackson by precincts at noon showed:

SCORES BEATEN, INTIMIDATED, IN MISS. VOTING

Mass Fear Grips Negroes Frightened From Polls

Chronicle

JACKSON, Miss. — A story of terror and intimidation began to unfold in Mississippi this week as full reports of violence on election day were disclosed.

Although virtually no violence was reported on the actual day of election, when Negro citizens voted in the Democratic primaries for the first time in the history of the state, increasing reports of intimidation, violence and brutality and even death indicate that definite efforts were made to hold down the number of Negro voters.

Pat. 7-13-46

Bilbo Responsible

Most of these acts of violence are laid to Sen. Theodore Bilbo, who earlier urged the white people of the state to use any and all means at their disposal to keep the Democratic primary in Mississippi for white men only. By implication Bilbo condoned the use of murder.

Detroit, Mich

A candidate for reelection to the United States Senate Bilbo was joined in his violent race baiting, but in a lesser degree by the four other Senatorial candidates, Ross A. Collins, former U. S. Congressman; Tom Q. Ellis, State Supreme Court Clerk, Nelson Levings, World War II Navy Commander and Frank "Peachtree" Harper.

5,000 Qualified

The results of the election show Bilbo with a majority of slightly over 3,000 votes over the combined total of all his opponents. With a conservatively estimated 5,000 Negroes, including veterans qualified under a state law exempting them from paying poll tax, eligible to vote in the election. Had it not been for the actual violence and fear of violence on the part of Negro voters widespread over the State it appears certain now that there would have to be a second Senatorial Primary.

The reports of election day violence began with an account in one of the state leading daily papers of the shooting to death of F. C. Fowler, a Choctam County Negro citizen. Fowler was shot to death on election day by the town marshal. The marshal said he shot and instantly killed Fowler when he stopped a car Fowler was driving and Fowler got out and started toward him like he was fixing to draw a weapon.

One Killed

In Gulfport, leading city along the gulf coast section of the state a number of Negroes were beaten. There is fear that at least one Negro was killed. J. T. Hall, wealthy Negro undertaker, was arrested and lodged in jail on election day. Because of fear it is almost impossible to obtain information from any Negro regarding the election day incidents.

In Canton, just 25 miles from the state Capitol City of Jackson, a well known farmer, who is often deputized for law enforcement duties when anything happens involving Negroes, stationed himself at one of the polling places armed with a heavy club and when the first Negro appeared to vote, he began beating him with the heavy club. The man managed to escape with only a few blows. When the news spread rapidly over the town no other Negroes attempted to go to the polls and generally stayed in their home and off the street.

False Arrest

In McComb in the Southern section of the state, much in the news in recent weeks following the reported decision of the veterans' administration to locate an all Negro Veterans' hospital there, a 77-year-old Negro registered and qualified by exemption from the poll tax, was the first to attempt to go to the polls. He was met by a group of men. One of whom, after stopping and threatening him, had him arrested and charged with attempting to shove him off the sidewalk. Following the incident no other Negroes attempted to go to the polls.

Trouble Averted

In Natchez, bluff city by the Mississippi river in the southwest corner of the state a serious election incident was narrowly averted due to a hurried meeting of white and Negro leaders.

Negro Council Head Asks Primary Probe

WASHINGTON [AP] Edgar G. Brown, director of the national negro council, called yesterday for an immediate investigation by a senate committee of Mississippi's democratic primary in which Sen. Bilbo is seeking nomination.

In a letter to Sen. Edwin C. Johnson, acting chairman of the elections committee, Brown cited Bilbo's appeal to "every red-blooded Anglo-Saxon in Mississippi to resort to any means" to keep negroes from voting in the primary Tuesday.

The committee decided Saturday to defer until today a decision on whether to look into Bilbo's campaign.

Mississippi Negroes Vote In Primary

Commissioner Resigns But Negroes Vote

Pass Christian, Miss.—Approximately 80 Negroes, most of them World War II veterans, voted in the municipal primary election here on Wednesday despite the protest and resignation of one of the polling commissioners. The commissioner resigned because Negroes were allowed to vote in the election. According to residents it was the first time Negroes voted in a local election.

Francis Hurset, an ex-Seabee, was elected mayor of Pass Christian over the incumbent, Mayor William G. Simpson, in Wednesday's election. On the basis of returns, Hurset polled 492 votes against Simpson's 343.

The election was conducted orderly after John Ellis, a white railroad agent, said he resigned as an election commissioner because his fellow commissioners insisted on allowing Negroes to vote.

Ellis, who said he resigned and refused to take the oath of office when he learned that other commissioners would insist on allowing Negroes to vote, declared:

"I had written the attorney general and he had told me we should allow every qualified voter to vote, but I am a southern man and I did not feel that a Negro was qualified to vote in a white primary."

The election itself concluded a hot campaign, which local citizens regarded as a miniature of the recent clean-up mayoralty which led to the installation of the Morrison ticket in New Orleans.

William J. McDonald was named to replace Ellis after the latter refused to serve.

Approximately 100 Negro veterans—free of the state's poll tax because of their war services—were eligible to vote and also a few non-veterans who had paid their poll tax, Capt. C. C. Brandt, candidate for tax collector, said.

The offices of mayor, tax collector, town clerk, marshal, alderman-at-large and four ward aldermen were up for election last Wednesday.

All-Negro town casts 12 votes for Bilbo

MOUND BAYOU, MISS. — Twelve votes for the reelection of Sen. Theodore G. Bilbo were cast in this all-Negro community, an Associated Press dispatch said last week.

Mississippi May Pass Law To Ban Effectively Popular Negro Vote

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 31—(AP)—Mississippians, determined to maintain white supremacy in their state, where the population is nearly evenly divided between the white and Negro races, are watching the capitol to see what legislative action will be taken.

Indications this week, with Gov. Thomas L. Bailey recovered from an operation, were that the Legislature will be called into session between late October and mid-November.

Most observers favored the latter date, as the imminent Christmas season would tend to close the session in about 30 days, considered ample time to revamp the state election laws and attend to a number of other matters expected to come before the special session.

The plan to make Negro votes ineffective in general elections is to put the primary elections into the hands of the parties, making the parties the sole judges of qualifications of members.

State leaders seem unperturbed by the possibility this may encourage Negroes to form a party of their own—a party which conceivably could outvote the white Democrats.

For they quietly chuckle to themselves at what they consider the wisdom of old Sen. James Z. George, prime framer of the state constitution of 1890, who inserted a provision in the state constitution that says all state officials shall be elected, not by popular vote, but by electoral votes, with each county having as many electoral votes as it has representatives.

And when membership in the House of Representatives was apportioned, it was so worked out that counties with predominantly white populations have two, three or more legislators, while those with predominantly Negro population have only one.

Hence, though Negroes some day may cast the greatest number of popular votes in the state in a general election, they will never be able to elect a state officer.

Further, the House of Representatives is the sole judge of the qualifications of its members, and may refuse to seat any member elected by popular vote, so that if a Negro should be elected to the Legislature it is doubtful if he would ever be allowed to serve.

Mississippi Negroes Cast First Votes In Primaries

Both Parties In Oklahoma Select Candidates

By The Associated Press

Negroes voted for the first time in Mississippi's Democratic primary yesterday (Tuesday) as Senator Bilbo and Representative Rankin, who wanted Negroes barred, sought renomination. Voting was orderly despite preprimary indications of trouble.

A two-party primary was held simultaneously in Oklahoma where eight Democrats and three Republicans sought nominations for Governor. The State's two GOP Congressmen and five of its six Democratic House incumbents sought renomination. Representative Paul Stewart, Democrat, retired in the Third District because of ill health.

Victory in the Mississippi primary is the same as election although a run-off is set for August 27 for those not getting a majority in yesterday's tests. The United States Supreme Court had upheld the Negroes' right to vote.

Four of the State's Democratic Representatives had opposition. Representatives Whitten, Whittington and Abernathy were renominated without challenge.

Negroes voted in fair-sized numbers in some communities, but their total was only a small fraction of the white vote.

Some Challenged

Attorney-General Clark had promised that their rights would be protected after Bilbo called on "every red-blooded Anglo-Saxon in Mississippi to use whatever means are necessary" to keep the few qualified Negroes from casting ballots.

Some Negroes were challenged on legal grounds that they were not qualified Democrats or that their names did not appear on the poll list.

Bilbo's opponents were Ross Collins, former Representative; Tom Q. Ellis, State Supreme Court clerk; Nelson T. Levings, Navy veteran, and former State Senator Frank Harper.

Opposing Rankin, a leading member of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, were Claude F. Clayton, war veteran and former circuit judge, and Charles G. Hamilton, Episcopal minister.

Among the eight Democrats seeking the Oklahoma gubernatorial nomination to succeed Governor Robert S. Kerr, Democrat, barred from a successive term by State law, were Roy J. Turner, Oklahoma City oil man and rancher; H. C. Jones, former collector of internal revenue for the State; Dixie Gilmer, Tulsa County prosecutor, and William O. Coe, attorney and war veteran.

Olney F. Flynn, former Tulsa Mayor, had the inside track for the GOP governorship banner, according to State observers.

The World Today

By George S. Schuyler

Mississippi Negroes will make big news on July 2. They vote in the "white" Democratic primaries for the first time in many decades. Thus, it is you who do not like "the man," Bilbo, who will finally have a chance to make another choice for United States Senator. Unhappily, Bilbo's opponents are no better than he. Nevertheless, Negroes' voting in Mississippi is really big.

* * *

MORE AND MORE Negroes are voting each year in sections of the South, which many calamity-howlers have written off as a total loss. There will be more Negroes voting in these States each year, and the time will come when they will be holding local offices. If such a prediction seems far-fetched, we only have to contrast the deep South of today with that of A. D. 1906.

VOTE OF NEGROES IS PLACED AT 1000

Jackson, Miss., July 5.—Estimates of the number of Negroes who cast ballots in the Democratic primary election in Mississippi Tuesday ran from 1000 to 3000.

No official count was kept but reports received from poll holders who had made notes for their own information indicated the number ran closer to 1000 than to 3000.

It was the first time since the state adopted the constitution of 1890 that Negroes have cast ballots in a Democratic primary in which federal offices were involved, though in previous years a number of Negroes have voted in the general elections. Most of the latter group are reportedly members of the Republican party.

W. H. Anderson, secretary of the state Democratic executive committee, said today he had received no appeals from rulings of county Democratic executive committees on ballots challenged at the polls. However, he said, he had not received the official report from Bolivar county, where all Negro voters were reported to have been challenged. A large number of Negro votes were challenged at Mound Bayou, all-Negro town founded by a body servant of Jefferson Davis.

Mississippi Primary Near, Negro Voting Issue Comes To Fore

JACKSON, Miss., June 22—(AP)—The issue of Negro voting came to the fore in Mississippi Saturday, 10 days in advance of a Democratic primary election for the nomination of a United States senator and four representatives.

Developments came rapidly:

1—Etoy Fletcher, Negro veteran, of Pucket, filed an affidavit that he was flogged and threatened with death when he attempted to register at Brandon, Rankin County, June 2.

2. A survey of 48 of the states 82 counties showed few Negroes have registered.

3.—T. B. Wilson, Negro, president of the Progressive Voters League, declared "many reports have come in that circuit clerks by ruse and intimidation are keeping Negroes from registering."

4. Sen. Theo G. Bilbo, who seeks renomination, prepared a campaign speech in which he called upon "every red-blooded Anglo-Saxon in Mississippi to resort to any means" to keep Negroes from voting.

* * *

BILBO SUGGESTED, "if other means fail," that Negroes be challenged in the primary on the ground that they are not Democrats and have not supported the party in the last two years.

5. Rep. John Rankin, who asks return to Congress from the First District, joined Bilbo in urging "law-abiding" Negroes to refrain from voting in state primaries.

6. Nelson T. Levings, who seeks Bilbo's seat, charged in a campaign speech that Bilbo is responsible for Negroes voting in Mississippi.

Levings said Bilbo's supporters in the Legislature "blocked Speaker Speaker Walter Sillers' attempt to enact new primary laws at the last session. "Due solely to Bilbo we have the present conditions."

"In the second place, the official record shows that you, as 'Mayor Bilbo,' of Washington, actively convinced in appointing the Rev. Dr. Marshall Shepard, a Pennsylvania Negro preacher, as your recorder of deeds in the District of Columbia, a job that pays this Negro $8,750 a year and an office that has both white and black employes. Why don't you practice what you preach?"

Replying to a letter Bilbo sent to all candidates for Democratic nomination as U. S. senator, asking that they join him in urging Negroes not to vote, Collins said:

"In the first place, the wise provisions of the constitution of 1890 provide for payment of poll taxes as a prerequisite to voting. You have long and consistently sought abolition of the poll tax as a requirement for voting in the Democratic primary.

"Due solely to Bilbo we have the present conditions. Bilbo's endorsement of his idea is 'a rather odd invitation to come from you.'"

Collins Is With Bilbo On Negro Vote Stand

JACKSON, Miss., June 20—(AP)—Ross A. Collins has joined Sen. Theo F. Bilbo in asking Mississippi Negroes to refrain from voting in the July 2 Democratic primary. You have been asked to refrain from voting in the July 2 Democratic primary, but suggested Bilbo's request for endorsement of his idea is "a rather odd invitation to come from

Mississippi

Daily Worker New York N.Y.

ASSISTANT U.S. ATTORNEY GENERAL Theron L. Caudle has informed the United Negro and Allied Veterans of America that the Department of Justice will take "prompt action . . . with respect to any interference with the right of qualified Negroes to vote in Mississippi."

Many Negro and white spokesmen, including Senator Glen Taylor (D-Ida) have proposed that action be taken so that the words of the Department can be carried into deeds.

Senator Taylor urged that President Truman send troops to Mississippi today to protect Negro voters "if that is the only way their rights can be assured."

Yesterday, in a telegram to President Truman, the Daily Worker endorsed this demand.

Sen. Theodore Bilbo has issued repeated calls to "every red-blooded Anglo-Saxon" to do violence to American citizens exercising their constitutional rights. Bilbo dons a martyr's cloak, charging "northern interference," but already his actions have resulted in violence against Negro registrants.

Tues 7-2-46

Failure of the Justice Department to act can only result in encouraging the activities of the Ku Klux Klan and other subversive organizations and individuals.

We are not here dealing with a mob or "anonymous" state officials.

We are dealing with a Senator of the United States—unrepresentative though he be of the constituency from which he hails.The Senate Elections Committee is now preparing to investigate Bilbo's fascist calls to violence. If it fulfills its task it will recommend the impeachment of Bilbo.

All decent Americans should let the Senate Elections Committee know that they will not let their conscience rest with the presence of such a spectacle as Senator Bilbo in the nation's highest legislative body.

Bilbo's Thugs Defied

Daily Worker New York, N.Y.

NEGROES voted in Mississippi, despite "white supremacist" threats to violence by Bilbo and Rankin.

For the first time since the Civil War, qualified Negro voters exercised their right of franchise as a direct result of the Supreme Court's ruling abolishing the "white primary."

Half of Mississippi's two million citizens are Negroes.

Wed 7-3-46

A significant lesson can be drawn as we await election results: that the mass protest movement, including Senator Glen Taylor's (D-Idaho) call for federal troops to protect Negroes' voting rights, strengthened the determination of Negro citizens to go to the polls.

Now it is necessary to remind the U. S. Attorney General of his promise to protect the rights of Negro citizens and to take steps to guarantee that the "white supremacist" anti-labor crowd do not invalidate ballots cast by Negro citizens.

Mississippi and Poland

Daily Worker

IF THERE were any sort of logic in things, this would be the time for the United States to be getting a sharp note from the Polish government on our phony "elections" in Mississippi.

New York, N.Y.

The Polish government had its democratic referendum despite every effort of Britain and Washington to use their stooges in Poland to rough things up.

But down in Mississippi only several hundred Negroes dared to vote out of the 5,000 who dared to register.

Both Bilbo and Rankin "ran" on a thoroughly Nazi-like "race supremacy" platform. Bilbo threatened bloodshed. But the promises of Attorney General Clark to uphold the law against anti-Negro violence were treated with the same contempt by the Bilbos as they were by those in Washington who uttered them.

The United States now has a new Senator, or rather the old one, elected by 7 percent of the adult voting population. That's called "democracy."

Nevertheless, the traditional gang of cotton kings and plantation masters got quite a scare in this last election. Even the tiny trickle of Negro votes frightened them. They know that their rule is based on cruelty, robbery and oppression of a people which can vie with any in savagery.

The fight to smash that ancient oligarchy, which is backed today by Wall Street banks a thousand miles away, will grow hotter all the time.

Impeach Senator Bilbo

The Black Dispatch

It appears to the Black Dispatch that any senator who incites to riot and openly urges his constituency to "resort to any means to keep Negroes from voting" has violated his oath of office and is subject to impeachment. In taking such unlawful and unconstitutional position, Senator Bilbo offers loyalty to government by men rather than government by laws. He forgets that he lives in a democracy, which he as senator has sworn to protect and defend.

The constitution of the United States guarantees to every state a republican form of government, and in this connection we might point out that a republican form of government is a state where sovereign power is vested in the electorate. The war amendments made Negroes a definite and constitutional part of the electorate ,and yet Senator Bilbo, who has sworn to uphold the constitution of the United States, incites his political sub-division to riot and bloodshed, urging that certain citizens be denied fundamental rights in government.

Oklahoma City, Okla

The question is: Can Mississippi have a republican form of government, or will it have a fascist form of government, if any portion of the constitutional electorate is denied suffrage? The ancient Romans vested suffrage solely in the hands of aristocracy. Italian republics were later limited oligarchies, but since the days of the French Revolution and the Commune, society has seen the wisdom of extending the franchise to all citizens, regardless of race, creed or color.

The 13th amendment to the constitution of the United States gave the black man citizenship, and the 15th amendment reads as follows:

"The right of the citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States, or by any state on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude."

The 15th amendment thus makes it binding upon state government to guarantee the right to vote, and calls upon Congress to pass appropriate legislation for enforcement of this guarantee. Is it not passing strange that a thieving hypocrite and perjurer, in the person of Senator Bilbo, would, forgetful of his oath, and with guilty knowledge that he is denying citizens inherent rights, would call upon his constituency to unlawfully seize the polling places in Mississippi, terrorizing and intimidating Negro citizens, who seek to exercise influence upon government?

In the Texas White Primary cases, and again in the more recently declared decision at Macon, Georgia, the law was so clearly stated by the court that no fool could err. Senator Bilbo inadvertently admits this when he tells Mississippi white voters that if terrorism and frightfulness fails, they are then to resort to the law. To admit there is a law providing rules for Negroes voting, proves clearly that Senator Bilbo not only seeks election across a sea of broken oaths, but that he urges fellow Mississippians to commit murder, arson and cruelties of all character in order to preserve a nebulous something which he characterizes as "White Supremacy."

In his letter to Mississippians asking them to drive from the polling places, Senator Bilbo said:

"These Negroes have no right to do, and they must not and should not be permitted to vote."

But remembering that aside from the basic guarantee granted all citizens in his state to exercise the franchise, Negro soldiers could waive all of the ordinary obstacles thrown in the path of the blacks, the Senator continued:

"And if other means fail, Negroes who attempt to vote July 2 should be challenged on the grounds that they are not Democrats and have not supported the party in the past two years as required by law."

The Negro per se is not the sad and regrettable portion of the picture drawn above. Men submit to government in order to secure personal security. It is therefore extremely important that integrity become the corner stone of government. In the language of the ancient Portia, "Justice is a kingdom's strength." The day when the cancer of hypocrisy enters the portals of government, that is the day when organized society becomes dangerous, not for some people, but for everyone who comes within the influence of such impiety and faithlessness.

May Be Precedent for Other's Defeat

WASHINGTON—(ANP) — Republican and Democratic leaders here are studying a report on how Kansas City colored voters removed Rep. Roger C. Slaughter (Dem., Mo.), an FEPC foe, from office, during the Aug. 6 primary.

Forwarded here by D. H. Davis Jr., business manager of the Kansas City Call, the report covers voting in four wards and reveals the intention of voters not to return their enemies to Congress.

They recalled that Slaughter remarked: "I sure as hell opposed the bill for fair employment practices commission and I'm proud of the fact that my vote was what killed it."

Their Vote 'Kills' Him

Enos Axtell, Slaughter's opponent, polled 12,168 votes, of which nearly 7,000 were colored votes; while Slaughter polled a mere 2,053 votes in the first four wards.

Warning that colored voters will show the same resentment toward other members of Congress whose records are "bad," Davis termed Slaughter's defeat was "clearly attributed to the vote against him in the Fifth Congressional District."

Precinct Vote Tabulated

"In the first four wards," an article by Lucile Bluford, managing editor of the Call, set forth, "there are 30 precincts which are predominantly occupied by colored persons. These 30 precincts gave Axtell 3,964 votes.

"In addition, thee are 19 precincts which are about evenly divided between white and colored voters. These 19 precincts gave Axtell a total of 4,135. At least half of these 4,135 votes were cast by non-whites.

"Adding 2,067 votes from the 19 mixed precincts to the 3,964 votes received in the solid precincts, the Axtell votes cast by colored citizens go over the 6,000-mark.

Slaughter Vote Negligible

"Then, when the undetermined number of votes cast by colored citizens who work and live in the predominantly white South Side wards are added, along with the votes from the Westport District, the total for Axtell approaches 7,000.

"The vote for Slaughter in the predominantly colored precincts was negligible. The highest number of votes that he received in any precinct which is predominantly non-white was 35.

"In two precincts, the vote for Slaughter was 0. The Call cites these two precincts which did not give Slaughter a single vote as an example of what all other precincts should have done."

Collins Charges Intimidation At Harlem Polls

Daily Worker
New York, N.Y.
Fri. 10-11-46

The charge that Negro registrants are being harassed at registration booths in Harlem was made yesterday by ALP state vice-chairman Charles A. Collins, who is also candidate for New York state senate.

Collins stated that in several multiple polling booths in the 11th assembly district, election workers were sending Negroes to the wrong lines, plying them with questions about their political affiliations, and generally making it difficult for them to register.

He further charged polling places were not displaying their signs prominently.

Collins appealed to the voters of Harlem to upset a 169-year tradition by sending the first Negro to the state senate.

ELECTION NOTES

GOP AND THE NEGRO VOTE

Daily Worker
New York, N.Y.

By Ray Hansbrough

THE NEGRO VOTE in a number of districts can play a major role in helping to shape the next Congress. During Franklin D. Roosevelt's Presidency, the Negro vote shifted more and more to the Democratic column. Sat. 11-2-46

Since the 1944 National Democratic Convention at Chicago, there has however developed a growing dissatisfaction with the Democratic party among the Negro electorate.

Sections of the Negro press, progressives and labor leaders, have strongly advocated a third party, but in view of the absence of such a party, large sections of the Negro people are wavering on the very vital question of how to vote.

Such a situation foreshadows tendencies that may seriously endanger the election of pro-Roosevelt candidates. Certain sections of the Negro electorate may vote Republican, and others may boycott the polls.

The Republican party has resorted to the vilest demagogy. The Republicans place the blame for all the ills affecting the Negro people on the shoulders of the Truman administration, which they charge with being dominated by the Southern Democrats. The Congressional records prove it was the Republican-polltax-Democratic bloc that defeated legislation for a permament FEPC and for abolition of the poll-tax, and this bloc is responsible for the conspiracy to bring about the meat and food shortage and high prices.

1. Dewey sent Lorenzo Reed back to a Florida chain gang. He sent George Burrows back to a Mississippi chain gang.

2. To date, Dewey has failed to make public the list of 1,100 Ku Klux Klan members in the possession of the State Attorney General.

3. Dewey has upheld the whitewashing of policeman Romeika, who killed a Negro GI and a Negro veteran, the Ferguson brothers, at Freeport, L. I., on Feb. 5.

The Negro voters helped to defeat Dewey for the presidency in 1944. The Negro voters must be mobilized to go to the polls on Nov. 5 and help defeat Dewey and all reactionary Republican candidates throughout the country.

IN A NUMBER OF STATES, the Republican Party is running picked Negro candidates, another means of defeating pro-Roosevelt candidates.

In the 14th Congressional District of California, the Republican Party is running Frederick M. Roberts, a Negro candidate, against the incumbent, Congresswoman Helen Gahagan Douglas.

The incumbent, Powell of New York, Dawson of Illinois, and Gahagan of California, are all pro-Roosevelt candidates and as such are the target of reactionaries for defeat in the November election.

A strategy conference held in Washington was attended by the Negro candidates Grant, King and Roberts. Here Carroll Reece, the GOP chairman, raised the slogan, "Only Republican votes can break Bilbo-ism in the Congress of the United States."

THE NEGRO MASSES will remember that in the recent lynch trials, held in Tennessee, Reece's home state, Reece did not raise a finger against the lynchers, nor did he come to the aid of the 25 Negroes whom the lynchers attempted to railroad to long prison terms and possible death sentences.

It was recently exposed, at Washington, that Democratic boss Ed. Crump and Senator McKellar of Tennessee, were conspiring with Carrol Reece and Senator Taft of Ohio, to deliver Tennessee to the Republicans in 1948. Taft is a possible Republican candidate for president in 1948. Should this combination capture the government in 1946 or 1948, Bilboism would become the official policy of the government. 11-2-46

A recent report released by the CIO Political Action Committee on the marginal character of the Negro vote in 58 non-Southern Congressional districts shows that "Negro voters hold the margin of victory in 58 non-Southern Congressional districts . . . that the 58 districts are part of 100 marginal areas where the incumbents could have been defeated in 1944 by a switch of five percent or less of the total vote."

In a number of states, the Communist Party has nominated both Negro and white candidates for various state offices. Every effort should be made to roll up a big Communist vote to help defeat the candidates of reaction.

WASHINGTON, N. C.—A federal jury convicted two white North Carolina vote registrars here last week for refusing to allow qualified Negro citizens to register for primary elections in defiance of the U. S. Department of Justice's recent equal vote-rights edict.

Fined $25 each following conviction were J. H. Brown of Plymouth Township, N. C., and Robert L. Lewis of Lee's Mill Township, N. C. The fines, levied by Federal Judge Don Gilliam, constitute the first known action to be taken in line with U. S. Attorney General Tom Clark's recent order to criminally prosecute persons responsible for denying the right to vote to qualified citizens.

The convictions were regarded by Negroes here as indicative of removal of the last barrier in the fight to secure better educational facilities for Negro children and an equitable share of public funds.

4-Year-Battle

The convictions last week climaxed a four-year battle by Washington Negroes for their Constitutional right to vote. It began when Miss Doris Bell and the Rev. Joseph Winborne were denied the right to register for the 1942 primaries. When the books were opened for the 1944 registration, three other Negroes—Charles V. Bell, Robert H. Graves and John H. Battle—appeared before Registrar Brown and were told that they would have to comply with the state requirement by reading or writing a portion of the U. S. Constitution, and returned. After to do but the registrar had no copy of the document.

The would-be voters left the polling place, secured a copy of the Constitution, and returned. After satisfying the law, they asked to register. Brown, evidently undecided what the next "white supremacy" move would be, told them to return in three hours. When they came back at the appointed time, they were told by Brown that W. W. White, chairman of the Washington County Board of Elections, had instructed him not to register any Negroes.

All School Teachers

The incident was reported to federal authorities and after a two-year investigation, enough evidence had been secured to prosecute the case.

Sat 4-27-46

All three of the complainants are school teachers. Bell, a North Carolina College graduate, teaches at Plymouth's Washington County High School; Graves is a graduate of Lincoln (Pa.) University and an instructor at Reynolds' High School in Winston-Salem; Battle, a N. C. State Teachers' College alumnus is on the faculty of the Macedonia School.

Denied Registration—Didn't "Explain" The Constitution

Journal-Guide

ORIENTAL, N. C.—The privilege of democracy and the right of citizenship are being denied Negro citizens of this community, the Journal and Guide was advised last week following on the heels of the unsuccessful attempts of eight citizens to register and vote in the Democratic primary election held Saturday, May 25. 6-1-46 Sat.

On both Saturday May 4 and May 11 registrars used techniques to intimidate and embarrass those who appeared at the polls for registration. They were asked to write about ten pages of the constitution which, as might be expected, was not to the satisfaction of the officials. Norfolk, Va.

On the following Saturday the individuals returning for the second attempt to qualify and use the rights due them as citizens were asked to read a paragraph on the Presidential Board of Elections. They then were told to write the paragraph and explain it. As might be expected the explanation was not to the satisfaction of the registrar and he refused to permit registration. 6-1-46 Sat

A protest was discouraged when an onlooker declared his wilingness to testify that the persons did not pass the test and qualify for registration.

No Negroes are on the books in Pamlico County but there is still evidence that other attempts will be made to register and vote in subsequent elections.

Ballot Key To N. C. Struggle

Baltimore

RALEIGH, N. C.—In eastern North Carolina Negro school teachers are being threatened with the loss of their jobs if they attempt to place their names on the voters permanent registration list.

In Durham every device and technique is being used to encourage Negroes to register for the May 25 elections. 5-25-46

In Nash county with a potential Negro voting strength of 8,000, only 50 Negro token voters are permitted to cast ballots. In sections where Negroes constitute a large portion of the population every effort is made to eliminate their vote. Notable exception is Vance County—15,938 whites, 13,958 Negroes—where the state's strongest NAACP branch has effectively cleared a path to the polls for Negroes.

The southern Negro's sudden and universal recourse to the ballot, noticeable since the war, means that the Negro has abandoned hope of achieving equality under a biracial system and is determined to end segregation and its attendant differentials.

Though this is not a poll tax state, the Negro desiring to vote has been effectively checked either by outright intimidation, or through employment of the literacy clause in the registration law.

There have been numerous cases of highly educated Negroes failing to read or write to the satisfaction of the registrar while the names of illiterate whites were entered upon the permanent registration list. 5-25-46 Sat

Recently, however, the four year fight of a group of school teachers in Washington County to register ended successfully with the conviction of two white registrars by the eastern federal district court.

The case against the poll officials was the first employment by Negroes of Attorney General Tom Clark's order calling for the criminal prosecution through federal courts of any persons charged with interfering with the right of any citizen to exercise his right to vote.

One Of Worst Chicago Ill.

Franklin—17,323 whites, 13,042 Negroes—is regarded by Negroes as one of the worst counties in the state. Three of the seven lynchings that have occurred in North Carolina since World War I took place in this county.

It is typical of the entire eastern section of the state where all but one of the seven lynchings have taken place.

This is the area where 80 per cent of the land is owned by five per cent of the people. Here are found the greatest number of sharecroppers, exploited tenant farmers and underpaid farm laborers. Negroes are not the only victims of the exploitation and persecution that makes them among the most miserable of the state's inhabitants. Poor whites, too, are frequently prevented from voting.

I was told of counties with a potential voting strength of 8,000 to 20,000 where men have been elected to office with only 400 to 500 votes.

Though poor whites are victims of the same disfranchisement, it is only the Negroes in these areas who are fighting for a full exercise of their citizenship privileges.

Negroes, in addition to being denied the right to vote are forced to use outmoded and inadequate school facilities and, for the most part, have no publicly supported library, recreational or health facilities, as do the poor whites.

Feared by the white minority struggling to maintain its stranglehold are Negro teachers. Because of their education and their consciousness of the rights of citizenship, they are regarded as either actual or potential leaders of the effort of Negroes to vote.

In nine counties, Negro teachers have been impressed with the fact that their teaching contracts don't have to be renewed if, in the judgment of local school officials, their conduct and fitness are questionable. 5-25-46

It is impossible to attack the Negro teachers on the basis of their training. Ninety per cent of the Negro teachers in the state are college graduates, and Louis F. Austin, militant editor of the Durham Carolina Times, recently disclosed that Negro teachers as a whole have had more years of training above the elementary grades than whites.

Salaries Equalized

In 1942 by executive order of Gov. J. M. Broughten, the salaries of Negro and white teachers were equalized. Increases are granted on the basis of training and experience, making it possible for Negro teachers to earn more than whites.

Believed to be a subtle effort to reintroduce a differential guaranteeing whites higher pay is the work now being done by the Governor's Commission on Study of Merit Rating System for Teachers.

But even with the intimidation of Negro teachers there is reason to believe that Negroes can no longer be barred from the polls.

Western North Carolina is different enough from the east to be another section of the country altogether. Negroes in some counties are as scarce as they are populous in the east. Because by sheer weight of numbers alone they do not constitute the threat they do in the east, Negroes find fewer barriers to their participation in government in the west.

Youthful John R. Larkin, whose position as consultant on Negro work to the State Board of Public Welfare, requires him to travel throughout North Carolina, has this to say of the western counties:

"Were separation laws a matter of local option, instead of state law, I believe there are numerous communities, maybe even a few counties, where there would be no legal Jim Crow." Chicago Ill.

Negro Vote May Decide Victors In '46, '48 – Ickes

Chicago, Ill.

WASHINGTON—Negro voters may hold the balance of power in the coming congressional and presidential elections, Harold L. Ickes said here Sunday.

Speaking before a meeting sponsored by the biracial committee for racial democracy, the former Secretary of Interior, declared that no party can hope to win in '46 and '48 without carrying the Negro vote in five Northern states.

Declaring that this balance of power is "as good as a majority," Ickes urged full use of the ballot by Negroes. He also advised no close alignment with either major party in order to make fullest use of the situation.

It is here where Negroes are so scare that the absurdity of the separation law is best seen. Graham County, for example, with only two Negro residents according to the 1940 census, has to maintain a one room, one teacher school at Fontana. Cherokee County has a similar school.

However, equally as ridiculous are certain eastern sections of the state where large numbers of Indians reside. In an effort to prevent what Gov. R. Gregg Cherry calls mongrelization, three separate school systems are maintained.

In Robeson County, for example, there are 34,585 whites, 25,573 Negroes and 16,629 Indians. To educate them there are 26 white schools, 96 Negro schools and 21 Indian schools. Most of the schools are large, brick, consolidated schools, well equipped and served by a fleet of buses. Most of the Negro schools are of the small clapboard, rural variety.

Political activity among Negroes is at its height right now in Durham where the citywide Suffrage Committee is staging the most energetic effort to assure the election of two Negroes, in an effort to prevent the election of two Negroes, Edward and Jackson Counties said that Avant, candidate for county prosecutor and John L. Holloway, chief addressograph operator for the two counties.

In Jackson County where a number of Indians, many of them veterans of World War II, attempted to register, they allege the registrar told them "I am under orders from the election board of Jackson County not to register Indians regardless of qualifications."

In awakening to their own rights as citizens, North Carolina Negroes, it seems, are awakening others in the state.

Durham's Voters Show 'Em

The Afro-American Baltimore, Md.

Using the single-shot or en bloc system, colored voters in Durham, N.C., set the town on its ears by an amazing show of strength in last May's Democratic primary elections.

Spearheaded by the Durham Committee on Negro Affairs, these voters held the balance of power in electing a member of the State House of Representatives, a Recorder's Court judge, a constable, four of five county commissioners and scared the daylights out of Carl Durham, Congressional candidate who was denied a first primary majority. Sat.

Their own candidate for county commissioner, John L. Holloway, ran seventh in a field of 8 candidates running for 5 places. Voting in the two predominantly colored precincts —Brady's Store and Court House—was overwhelmingly in favor of the DCNA-backed candidates. 6-29-46

The Durham SUN wept editorially that "pressure bloc organization and voting . . . is class voting, selfish and aggressive group voting. It is the subordination of the general good to the factional advantage . . .," intimating that such tactics will only serve to heighten racial tensions and help the revival of the Ku Klux Klan in North Carolina.

It all depends upon whose ox is being gored. This political awakening in Durham is indicative of what is happening and what is going to happen in many other communities. Votes are power. It is through a wider use of the ballot as well as through the acquisition of greater economic power that we will realize first-class citizenship.

ASSERT NEGRO VOTE WILL SWING TO GOP

The Times

Pennsylvania Leaders Declare Race Will Protest 'Bilboism' in All Northern States

New York, N. Y.

By FELIX BELAIR Jr.

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 17—Negro voters of Pennsylvania will vote overwhelmingly for Republican candidates in the State and Congressional elections, according to independent Negro leaders here who assert that Negroes in New York and other Northern States will do likewise.

With an estimated 300,000 Negroes eligible to vote in Philadelphia alone, leaders of Negro organizations say a vast majority of the group will desert the Democratic party for the first time in more than a decade. They say the large Republican vote will be in protest against what they term "Bilboism" among the Democratic high command.

Fri. 10-18-46

Other reasons are given by Negro leaders for a shift of voters back to the party of Lincoln and of Booker T. Washington. Paramount among these is the fact that Eleanor Roosevelt no longer has a voice in Democratic party councils and that Franklin D. Roosevelt is no longer a force for uniting minorities behind the New Deal.

Other Factors Described

Still other factors involved in the expected reversion of the Negro vote to the Republican column include what is regarded as an indifferent attitude of the Administration toward a permanent Fair Employment Practices Act and the pre-eminence of so-called "Deep Southerners" in the highest Government circles including those of the White House.

Discussion among Negroes of what they regard as a lack of sympathy on the part of the Truman Administration toward the Negro and his problem gets down to personalities. It is recalled that Mr. Truman himself is a Missourian, a Southern State for purposes of sociological discussion.

Readily mentioned in proof of its alleged lack of sympathy are such Administration stalwarts as James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State; Under-Secretary Will Clayton, George E. Allen, Reconstruction Finance Corporation director and confidant of the President; John W. Snyder, Secretary of the Treasury, another Southerner, and Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, Presidential military aide, who is from Kansas.

No Sympathy Expected

Without going too deeply into the records or pronouncements of these and other Administration representatives, Negro leaders here contend that from such men and against such a sociological background a sympathetic approach to the aspirations and problems of the Negro is not to be expected.

The Negro leaders here regard this apparent lack of interest in their race as a refinement of the same so-called "Bilboism" against which they are bound and determined to register their protest in the only effective way they can.

There has not always been unanimity of opinion on the method and there are still those who contend that Pennsylvania and other Northern States is not the place to protest against conditions in the South.

But to these arguments the majority always answer that there is no other place in which the Negro protest can be registered if not in the northern States.

In the South, he either is disenfranchised or his vote is nullified, the leaders here assert. Although granting that the best place to remedy conditions in the South is in the Democratic Party, leaders argue that the Negro is deprived of a voice in that forum. The recent reflections of Gov. Eugene Talmadge in Georgia and of Senator Theodore G. Bilbo in Mississippi on the issue of "White Supremacy" and of the withdrawal under pressure of a Negro candidate in Atlanta are cited as failures of the Democratic Party to clean its own house. On all such instances of intolerence and political bigotry Negro leaders are extremely well-informed.

Opinions on Roosevelt

Negro leaders assert they were not under any illusions as to where they stood in the Administrations of President Roosevelt. They contend that with discrimination and segregation generally practiced throughout the armed forces and the Federal Government under Mr. Roosevelt no less than under Mr. Truman it is idle to speak of Mr. Roosevelt as a friend of the Negro.

At the same time their leaders concede that the Negro fared better politically under President Roosevelt than under any of his predecessors. Much of this they attribute to Mr. Roosevelt's emphasis on the coalescence of minority groups for political purposes.

It was largely because of the demonstrated friendship of Mrs. Roosevelt for the Negro, according to leaders, that no effort was made to throw their votes into the Republican column. They say it would have been a fruitless task then but that Mrs. Roosevelt as the First Lady and as private citizen are two different things.

Leaders are reluctant to guess what percentage of the Negro vote will go over to the Republican column next month. They do expect as many to vote Republican as have been voting Democratic and that there will be a minority who will vote for Senator Joseph F. Guffey and the rest of the Democratic ticket just as there were those who remained loyal to the Republican party through all the Roosevelt Administrations.

'Abolish Poll Tax Week' Set

Kansas City, Mo.

March 24-31 Designated By Two Senators

The Call - Friday

WASHINGTON.—Senators Homer Ferguson of Michigan, Republican, and James M. Mead of New York, Democrat, this week jointly called upon the American people to observe "Abolish the Poll Tax Week", March 24-31, in order "by all the powers of free expression...in this great democracy" to guarantee that the federal bill to abolish the poll tax is brought before the United States Senate and passed.

Senators Ferguson and Mead are leaders of the bi-partisan Senate Steering Committee on H. R. 7, the anti poll tax bill.

According to informed sources, the poll-tax section of the Democratic party is making great behind-the-scenes effort to keep the anti-poll tax bill from coming up. The Senators' call for "Abolish the Poll Tax Week" is one answer to such effort.

The joint call touched on the international situation when it opened with: "As Americans we believe that the best and only way to solve the differences that may come betwen us is by the honorable and hallowed way of a free vote. We stand before the world today as pleaders for other nations to settle their differences by this method. Therefore we cannot longer stand for the condition that still exists in seven of our southern states whereby the people are denied a free vote by the archaic and inexcusable poll tax." 3-21-46

The statement went on:

"Twice before when this issue has come before the United States Senate, a filibuster has prevented the Senate from voting on it. Two-thirds of the Senate must concur before a filibuster can be stopped. 3-21-46

"Therefore we call upon the American people to observe the week of March 24 to 31 as "Abolish the Poll Tax Week' and by all the powers of free expression that we have in this great democracy, to call upon the Senators of the United States to vote to free the people in seven of our own states from this blot on our democracy—to restore to them a free franchise so that they may enjoy those great freedoms that are the basis of American citizenship." Signed: Homer Ferguson, James M. Mead.

'End Poll Tax Week' Scheduled

Pittsburg, Pa.

Sat 3-2-46

WASHINGTON—(ANP) — March 24-30 has been designated "Abolish Poll Tax week" by the national executive board of the Anti-Poll Tax Committee which met here last week and decided upon this action to focus attention on the fight to be waged to get the measure before the Senate.

During this week, or eight days, meetings will be held, delegates will visit the Senate, statements will be made, people will be seen and floods of letters will be showered on the Senate to ask that the bill be brought up for action.

Additional material will be furnished the general public on this matter before the action week and organizations which have cooperated in the past are invited to join this effort. Mrs. Catherine Schryver of the committee says that every effort will be made to show the Senate that people want action on this matter at this session of Congress.

TO THE NEXT LEGISLATURE

The News Birmingham, Ala.

This newspaper has had much to say against the restrictive, undemocratic poll tax law which keeps thousands of good Alabamians from voting and encourages the buying of votes of those who can be bought for the price of the $1.50 yearly poll levy. About another fault in our voting laws we have not had nearly enough to say. We refer to the law governing the manner, time and place of registering.

Boards of registrars this past Spring met more often than ever before and more new voters were registered than in any five-month period in many years. Still, however, we are far behind Georgia and a number of other states with respect to making registration easy and convenient. Fri. 11-15-46

For example, the Columbus, Ga., newspapers report that there have been provided in our neighbor city six voter registration booths in convenient parts of town. They are open six days a week until 6 p.m. The purpose is to get as big a registration of voters as possible. Even after these booths close, candidates for registration will be able the year round to apply any day in the week at the courthouse and apply to register.

By contrast to this plan, purpose of the Alabama law seems to be to make it as difficult and inconvenient for a person to register as possible.

The 1947 Legislature should make passage of legislation providing for year-round legislation at courthouses and city halls one of the first orders of new business. Good, progressive government depends upon wide citizen participation in elections. Democracy depends upon the same thing. If democracy in Alabama is to stand and good government is to be something more than a dream, we must have more—many more—voters. One way to get them would be to make registration simple, easy and convenient.—Lee County Bulletin (Auburn).

Poole Demands Stop Poll Tax, In Publication

The Advertiser Montgomery, Ala. Tues. 12-31-46

Its Usefulness Is Lost, Black Belter Declares In Farmers State

Agriculture Commissioner Joe Poole, a Black Belter from Butler County, came out today for repeal of the poll tax on the grounds that it has outlived its usefulness.

"The poll tax has a two-fold purpose," Poole wrote in The Alabama Farmers State. "First, to retard the voting of certain people; and, second, to furnish funds for the school system of Alabama.

"Since the Boswell Amendment was adopted, the first objective . . . has been removed. The second, to supply money for the school system, has dwindled into utter insignificance due to the large cost of the present school program."

Revenue from the $1.50 a year franchise levy is earmarked for education.

The Boswell Amendment, ratified in the Nov. 5 election, raises voting qualifications by requiring registrants to be able to "understand and explain" any section of the federal Constitution. It did away, too, with the old provision which gave the right of ballot to anyone who owned $300 worth of tax-paid property.

"Now, since all World War I and World War II veterans, as well as everyone else over 45 years of age, are exempt from paying the poll tax, the amount collected from it will be insignificant and since the Boswell Amendment takes care of the voting qualifications, frankly, I do not think it matters if the poll tax is abolished."

Gov.-elect James E. Folsom campaigned on a platform which included poll tax repeal and legislative reapportionment.

Of the latter issue, Poole said in his newspaper article that although the present system of allotting legislative representation is "obviously unfair," no changes should be made which would disturb the balance of power now held by small counties.

Asserting it is difficult to write a "fair and equitable" reapportionment bill, the Agriculture Commissioner said that "if you would go strictly according to population, you would give Jefferson, Montgomery, Mobile, Etowah and several other larger counties an overwhelming majority." Tues. 12-31-46

Dollars Well-spent

Atlanta Daily World Atlanta, Ga.

The example of 52-year-old William Everett of Birmingham, Alabama in paying 24 years back poll-tax totalling $36 in order to become a qualified voter, is indicative of a growing consciousness among Negroes of their personal and individual obligations in the crusade to achieve political equality in the South. Sun 7-24-46

The road to political freedom for Negroes in the South has been long, devious and difficult. It is still hilly and at times precarious. But in spite of the drawbacks and artificial restrictions imposed upon Negroes by southern whites, they cannot escape the fact that there is much they can do to hasten the day when the ballots will be free to all.

That is what William Everett did when he took it upon himself to register, no matter the cost, no long the years. That is what other Negroes must do, in Birmingham in Atlanta in Memphis, and every other place in the South, before he can achieve the freedom about which he is so prone to argue on street corners and so loathe to pay for through intelligent organization, individual initiative and social action. Mr. Everett's $36 is well spent and it is bound to reap a rich harvest if followed to its logical ends.

FREEDOM SHOULD PREVAIL

Last year citizens of Calhoun paid more in poll taxes than ever before in the history of the county.

It is splendid that so many showed that much interest in qualifying to exercise the right of the ballot; it reveals that persons who have been reluctant to vote want to avail themselves of the privilege of voicing their opinion. Birmingham News

However, there is a painful experience. Twenty-eight of those meeting the poll tax requirement paid the maximum of $36, under the cumulative system, for the privilege of exercising the right of the ballot.

That means 28 citizens of Calhoun County are paying $36 for the privilege of voting in one election. Where else in the country would a person of average means pay such tribute to express a choice?

It is unthinkable that Alabama places a penalty on the right of a citizen to exercise a prerogative in a "free" election.

The poll tax, as a prerequisite to voting, is bad enough, but when a citizen has to pay for all past years, up to a maximum of $36, for the privilege of qualifying to vote, it is atrocious. Tues 2-26-46

The tax as a means of gaining access to the polls is a vicious instrument in itself, but when the tax accumulates, because citizens balk at paying it for right to vote, it puts a premium on voting. B'ham., Ala.

Alabama should abolish the poll tax as a requirement for voting; we are one of only seven Southern states where its payment is essential to qualify a voter. But if the powers that keep it on the statutes refuse to repeal it, certainly they should do the only sportsmanlike thing of eliminating the vicious, penalizing cumulative clause of the law.

More than the meager 10 to 15 per cent of the people of Alabama should exercise a voice in their government, but they'll never do it as long as it costs many citizens the premium of $36 for the privilege of using a voice that should be free.—Anniston Star.

KEEPING FAITH WITH FREEDOM

Birmingham News

The poll tax is truly an unjust law. Its restrictive features rob many an Alabamian of that right which should be his as a citizen of the United States of America. Under a republican form of government such as ours, those elected to public office are subject to the vote of the people, but how can you have a representative electorate when a prohibitive measure keeps many a person from becoming a qualified voter? B'ham. Ala.

There's a trend to elect World War II veterans to public office in our nation. These men, asked to sacrifice their all in armed conflict, fought against the enemies of our way of life and did their share to keep us free of foreign domination. Now these men should be entrusted to hold office and go against those evils which exist in our government. Tues 2-19-46

In Alabama the World War II veterans have been freed of the poll tax. And having been given this liberty, they should, when elected to the Legislature, be fair-minded enough to liberate their wives and parents of this suffrage act.

Heretofore some Alabamians have shouted about Negro votes every time repeal of the poll tax was mentioned. The recent U. S. Supreme Court ruling giving this minority group the right to cast ballots in state primaries has hushed the cry about the poll tax being the law which blocked the Negroes from voting.

One by one the other Southern states are repealing this law. By electing enough legislators this year pledged to remove the poll tax as a voting measure, the few now-qualified Alabama voters will keep faith with the spirit of freedom.—Cullman Tribune.

PAY YOUR POLL TAX, Ala.

Little more than a month remains in which those who have not paid their poll taxes may pay the tax, if they are to be eligible to vote in the all-important Democratic primaries next May. Friday

It is a blot on democracy that Alabama voters are required to pay to vote. Perhaps some day the voters of our state will demand that the poll tax law be thrown into the discard in order that the voting base may be broadened and democracy function more nearly perfectly in Alabama. Until that is done, however, it is important that everyone of voting age pay the tax and be a voter in good standing. 1-4-46

There has not been a time in the modern history of our state that a large electorate was more important than it will be in 1946. For next year elections of great consequence on the future life of Alabama are to be held. We shall be electing a governor and other state officials, congressmen and county officeholders. Those whom we name to office by our ballots will serve during a period of great stress. They will be called upon to determine great questions which will determine whether Alabama will meet the challenge of the postwar years. During the 1947-51 quadrennium, our governor and other elected officials will carry the state forward to great attainments which will enrich the lives of all our people, or they will carry us backwards to economic, social and political poverty.—Lee County Bulletin (Auburn).

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—(SNS) — $36 VOTER—William Averett (above), 52, of 1308 Cahaba Street, who paid 24 years back poll tax at $1.50 per year, a total of $36 for the right to vote.

Mr. Averett became interested in voting when he heard that his step-son, James Sampson, honorably discharged from the Navy after seven years service had become a qualified voter.

Back home, Mr. Sampson returned to Parker High to complete his education. One afternoon he was fascinated with a corner discussion of voting by Prof. Henry Williams, Parker teacher. So he went up and registered, having been well instructed in the procedure and mechanics of registration by Mr. Williams. Sat 2-23-46

The exciting story dazzled his step-father, who said he would not be out done. Soe he went to see Mr. Williams about voting, and was given the same helpful instructions. He was registered and paid the life-time poll tax of $36.

When Miss Bessie Sampson, sister of ex-sailor Sampson was honorably separated from the WAC's after 34 months in service, she was told the story, and lost no time becoming a qualified voter.

Two lessons are in the story. One is that veterans can interest their families and friends in voting. The other is that it would be good tax for the registrars to register all qualified citizens alike for voting.

VETERANS AND POLL TAXES

Birmingham News.

To the Editor of The News:

Truly the writer, Walter L. Phillips, of Talladega, Ala., was misinformed when he asserted: "Capt. H. C. Terrell is trying to get as many as 15,000 Negroes, who have served time in the war, to pay poll tax, with the aid of his associates, although he knows that under the Alabama law veterans are not required to pay poll taxes." ala.

It is regrettable that the writer has misinterpreted the honorable and patriotic efforts of an ex-Army chaplain who was merely trying to get Negro veterans to become registered voters. Wed. 4-3-46

The Rev. Mr. Terrell, who is now the pastor of the Emanuel A. M. E. Church and the chaplain of the Alabama Veterans Association and the chairman of the registration committee of the Jefferson County Veterans Council, affiliated with the Alabama Veterans Association, did not and would not betray his comrades by advocating that they should pay a tax which no veteran is required to pay.

UNMENTIONABLES?

Birmingham News Alabama

Maybe the 1946 Alabama gubernatorial contest is not far enough advanced to expect discussions about two critical controversial issues, reapportionment and repeal of the cumulative poll tax. To most politicians these two measures are treated the way petticoats were when grandmother was a girl—"unmentionables!" Ala 3-6-46

Why should these aspirants for the highest state office be so modest about these two issues? Thousands of Alabamians don't want any blushing from the candidates. They want to know what each of the five, now wishing to be our next governor, will ask the new Legislature to do about reapportionment and poll tax repeal.—Cullman Tribune.

PAY IN POLL TAX SLOW IN COUNTY

Birmingham News 1-10-46

With the deadline only three weeks away, 15,000 or more county residents have yet to make poll tax payments if they expect to cast votes in the May primary election, Tax Collector J. W. Hamilton reported yesterday.

In order to be eligible to cast ballots in the May election, voters must bring their poll tax payment record up to date before Feb. 1.

Mr. Hamilton said yesterday that in about a week he would make a concerted drive for collection of the poll tax by establishing substations at about 25 scattered locations throughout the city and county. The stations are for the convenience of persons who find it difficult to go to the courthouse during the day. Most of the stations will be open during the evenings hours.

Registration Irregularities To Be Investigated By Grand Jury

As the result of a 1944 constitutional amendment, World War II veterans will be eligible to vote on a large scale for the first time in this year's elections.

Poll tax collections totals a year ago were $55,356 and two years ago amounted to $62,059. Collections on Jan. 1 this year amounted to $13,- 998, as compared with $15,262 on stead, said, of reported voter registration irregularities in Houston County.

Judge Halstead said "40 or 50 or 60" citizens living in Beats 6, 11 and 12 had been registered as recent arrivals in Alabama and only two years' back poll tax paid despite the fact they have lived in the state "several years."

Alabama law requires payment of cumulative poll taxes for every year a voter has lived in the state after reaching the age of 21. No one can register, however, until he has been in Alabama at least two years.

Judge Halstead said the "obvious" purpose of the alleged irregularities was to avoid paying more than two years' back taxes, but he expressed the opinion that some of the registrants themselves might be innocent; that they might have been registered by other persons.

"It looks like an effort on the part of two or more people to use them," he explained. He did not elaborate. Ann. 3-26-46

The jurist said he had summoned the Houston county grand jury to meet April 15 and that meanwhile a state investigator had been sent to Dothan. In Montgomery, Chief N. W. Kimbrough, of the enforcement division of the Department of Public Safety, said the investigator was C. T. Donaldson.

The Right To Vote

Montgomery, Ala., Advertiser

A few months ago a woman over 45 years of age who had never voted in her life came into the Calhoun County Courthouse to pay her back poll tax. She paid the maximum of $36, and as she looked at the receipt which proved to her that she was now entitled to vote, she remarked, "Now I feel like somebody, because I can vote. All these years I have been a nobody, but now I'm somebody." Thur. 4-4-46

It should be a matter of disgrace to our State that anyone has to pay $36 for the right to vote, and the poll tax law is one of the evils we must eliminate. But it is interesting to note how many persons were willing this year to pay $36 to vote, and we feel there is a special significance in this woman's spontaneous remark.

The right to vote does make us "somebody." It means that we have a certain power, a voice to say whom we want as the leaders of our government. It is strange indeed that so many people simply do not care to take the trouble to exercise this right, prefer to remain a "nobody," with no voice in their own government.

Next Tuesday, the people of Anniston have a chance to say whom they want to lead their city government for the next four years. The Anniston poll list includes 5,710 names—5,710 out of a population of 40,000. It is too late to do anything about that small proportion of eligible voters. But it is not too late to see that every one of those 5,710 goes to the polls. Thur. 4-4-46

Throughout history, men have fought and died for the right to have a voice in their government. Surely not one of Anniston's eligible voters will be willing to sit at home next Tuesday and ignore the right that so many have considered so precious. It takes only a few minutes and very little effort to vote; it is a very little thing—to be so big.—Anniston Star.

VETERANS AND POLL TAXES

To the Editor of The News: Alabama

Truly the writer, Walter L. Phillips, of Talladega, Ala., was misinformed when he asserted: "Capt. H. C. Terrell is trying to get as many as 15,000 Negroes, who have served time in the war, to pay poll tax, with the aid of his associates, although he knows that under the Alabama law veterans are not required to pay poll taxes."

It is regrettable that the writer has misinterpreted the honorable and patriotic efforts of an ex-Army chaplain who was merely trying to get Negro veterans to become registered voters. Birmingham News

The Rev. Mr. Terrell, who is now the pastor of the Emanuel A. M. E. Church and the chaplain of the Alabama Veterans Association and the chairman of the registration committee of the Jefferson County Veterans Council, affiliated with the Alabama Veterans Association, did not and would not betray his comrades by advocating that they should pay a tax which no veteran is required to pay.

THE 10 PER CENT

Birmingham, Ala., News

Reports from this county, as well as all over the state, indicate a record poll tax payment and registration by voters. All of which definitely points to a record vote in Alabama in the coming Democratic primary, a vote well in excess of 300,000. Ann. 4-16-46

This is a good sign. It is heartening news. It is something that has long been needed, not only in this state, but throughout the nation. When the people begin to take such an active interest in their political offices and officials, then we are on the right track. A democracy works only when the people take an active part in their governmental affairs. When the people become apathetic toward their government and its philosophies and personalities, democracy fails to work, in the truest sense.

So this news of increased voter activity throughout the state makes us feel that things are looking up. But, even with this increased registration, our governmental officials are being elected by about 10 per cent of our population. Stop and think about this. Ten per cent! Ridiculous? Shameful? It most certainly is! Think of it—only one out of every 10 people you meet walking down the street or in a store or in your home, are voters, are taking an active part in their government.

A democracy? A government of the people? Yes. A government for the people? Yes. A government by the people? No—a government by 10 per cent of the people!

You own a drug store—you're a druggist. You work in a bank—you're a cashier. You own a farm—you're a farmer. You lay bricks—you're a brick mason. Druggist, cashier, farmer, brickmason—you're a part of your government—or are you? Ann. 4-16-46

If the people of Alabama want good, honest, progressive government they must start looking after their business a good deal better than they have in the past. Then, and only then, can they be absolutely sure of the highest type of government. You say you haven't the time to spare? Neither did the people of Germany, of Italy, of Japan. Do you think you would like to be in their shoes today?

Think it over. The next registration, go down to the courthouse and register. Vote—help run your business—your government—it will pay off big dividends—a free, genuine, workable democracy.

Don't you think it's worth the trouble?—Cleburne News (Heflin).

Effect Of The Poll Tax

Advertiser Fri 5-3-46

The Anniston Star, which considers Alabama's poll tax law "one of the evils we must eliminate," presents a striking example of its effect. Commenting on a municipal election, The Star says Anniston has 40,000 population and a poll list of 5,710.

These are qualified voters, about fourteen per cent of the population. The Bureau of Census reports fifty-five per cent of Alabama's inhabitants of voting age. Scarcely sixteen per cent of the electorate participated in the last Presidential election, only 15,000 more than the number of ballots cast in 1892 when the People's Party was giving Alabama Democrats a hard fight, and when only men voted. Montgomery, Ala.

The Star's comment was occasioned by a woman of forty-five paying $36 poll tax for the privilege of casting her first vote. She had to pay up for every year since her twenty-first birthday. Nearly three-fourths of Anniston's voting population must be a year or more in arrears. Presumably Anniston sentiment stands at least three to one for repeal of the poll tax law.—Louisville (Ky.) POLL TAX LOCAL OPTION

To the Editor of The News:

Our present liquor control laws provide that each county at its own option may be wet or dry. However, each county, wet or dry, shares in the tax returns from liquor. Now, since the boys who made this law seem to think it fair to have each county share in this revenue, and since it is eminently fair to allow each county to decide by its own votes whether it shall be wet or dry, why not the same system of local option to allow each county to say whether it will charge poll taxes? This would solve the problem of some viewers-with-alarm who are concerned with their own local conditions, but are disregarding the desires of other Alabama citizens.

It would require a constitutional amendment, of course, to set up a law to allow charging of poll taxes by local option, but so will any change in the law on poll taxes. But I believe a plan of this nature would enable each county to solve its own problems in its own way, and no county would be affected by the action of its neighboring county. No honest and sincere legislator could hardly oppose this plan, as it provides for an absolute method of self-determination. Under the terms of this law, each county could alter its poll tax requirements as it saw fit, and when it has deemed it necessary to abolish the tax it could do so. But as long as it felt the need of retaining the poll tax it could do so. And, of course, as under the liquor control law, each county should share in the proceeds of the poll tax collections whether or not it has tax. Shouldn't they? Birmingham, Ala.

The Legislature should and must be reapportioned; a constitutional amendment should and must be passed, giving every county a senator, and the House members reapportioned according to population, with each county having at least one. The governor-designate says he wants to do these things, and it is up to the people of this state to raise the hue and cry to insure its being done. You were with him on election day. Will you be with him when the "chips" are down? I sincerely hope you will.

Poll Tax In Alabama Debated Over Radio

The News Birmingham, Ala. Wed. 10-23-46

Arguments for and against retention of the poll tax in Alabama were heard last night in the radio forum series, "Democracy at Work," with the opposing positions taken by Judge Walter B. Jones, of the Montgomery Circuit Court, and Neil O. Davis, publisher of the Lee County Bulletin at Auburn.

Disagreeing with his opponent on whether the tax keeps otherwise qualified voters from the polls, as $36, Judge Jones asserted that "general indifference" was responsible for failure to many to pay the poll tax and that "no one in Alabama is so poor that he can't afford to pay ½-cent a day for the privilege of voting."

Alabama's 1944 electorate was only 19 per cent of the potential voters, according to Mr. Davis, who pointed out that North Carolina, a non-poll tax state, turned out 44 per cent of the potential electorate. In depression years, Mr. Davis continued, many persons could not afford to pay the $1.50 annual levy and even now cannot afford to pay the cumulative tax of as much as $36.

* * *

GOULD BEECH, of The Southern Farmer, supported Mr. Davis, while Sam Rice Baker, Montgomery attorney, sided with Judge Jones. Charles N. Feidelson, contributing editor, The Birmingham News, served as moderator for the program, which originated in the Montgomery studios of WSFA and was aired locally over WSGN.

This year, poll tax collections amounted to $546,650, which is appropriated to education and which is vitally needed by the schools, the judge indicated. Mr. Davis answered that the money pays for only two days of school operation throughout the state, and asserted that repeal would bring about a more representative electorate, which would replace the schools' loss by levying "proper taxes."

* * *

CORRUPTIONS in the form of "receipt buying has been caused by the poll tax in Alabama, Mr. Davis said, warning that "a large body of politically disfranchised people and Communist doctrines," Judge Jones replied that greater corruptions exist in Northern cities where no poll tax is levied.

Mr. Baker argued that the tax is "a rather strong link in a weak chain that must be strengthened to keep Negroes from voting. In reply, Mr. Davis said that 60 per cent of white adults do not vote in the "undemocratic reason" for the tax, he charged, is the fear of political action by "so-called lower-class whites."

Polltax Holdup

A National Issue

By Ernest Lindley

IN HIS FORMAL STATEMENT last week explaining his position on the poll-tax issue, President Truman said, "While the Federal anti-poll-tax legislation has been pending in Congress, several States have abandoned the poll tax. This is a great step forward and I hope more States will see fit to change their poll-tax laws."

Lindley

Active proponents of the Federal anti-poll-tax bill point out that the President's statement was somewhat rosier than the facts justify. The attempt to get Federal legislation to knock out State poll taxes as prerequisites to voting began in 1939. Before that, Florida and Louisiana had abolished the poll tax by State action. But since that only one State has done so. That is Georgia, under the leadership of the liberal Governor Arnall. Even Arnall might not have succeeded, however, but for a peculiar provision in the Georgia constitution permitting the Governor to suspend any tax for one year. He held the threat to suspend the poll tax over the heads of the Legislature. The results of one election held without a poll tax might not have been pleasing to some of the members if they had voted against repeal of the tax.

IN TENNESSEE the Legislature voted to abolish the poll tax but the State Supreme Court invalidated the action on the ground that it conflicted with the State constitution. So Tennessee still has the poll tax, as do six other States: Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, South Carolina, Texas and Virginia.

In all seven of these States the poll tax is imbedded in State constitutions. Proponents of Federal action insist, therefore, that as a practical matter there is not much hope of getting rid of the tax in most of those States in the near future by State action. They hold that only Congress can provide a reasonably prompt and effective remedy.

The House has passed anti-poll-tax legislation three times. The Senate has filibustered it twice, and the Southern opponents of Federal action undoubtedly will continue to resort to filibustering whenever the bill comes up, unless they are stopped by cloture.

Some of the supporters of Federal legislation may doubt that it is wise or constitutional. Many of them, like President Truman, who as a Senator not only favored Federal action but voted for cloture, would feel relieved if the seven remaining poll tax States would go ahead and abolish the tax under their own steam. But for the reasons just indicated, the prospects are not favorable for this more comfortable solution.

THERE ARE, however, other ways to work toward the objective sought by the opponents of the poll tax: the broadening of the electorate. One is to increase the number of people who pay the poll tax, which requires not only money but, in some States, quite a bit of red tape. The impending CIO organization drive in the South should, if successful, increase the number of voters who see that their tax is paid and that they are otherwise properly qualified. Supreme Court decisions in recent years have also tended to broaden the electorate, by lifting some of the restrictions on Negro voting.

Federal anti-poll-tax legislation, however, has become a national issue. It is one on which many voters in the 41 States which do not have a poll tax as a prerequisite to voting may turn. For urgent political reasons, therefore, it is becoming increasingly impractical for Democrats in Congress from outside the poll-tax-States to wait for the solution of this problem by State action.

WASHINGTON — (NNPA) — The controversial anti-poll tax bill narrowly escaped getting slipped through the Senate last Thursday while only two Senators were present on the floor.

Only Sen. Wayne Morse (Rep., Ore.) lingered in the chamber to listen to a speech against the British loan proposal by Sen. William Langer (Rep.-N.D.)

Noting the situation, Sen. Morse asked Sen. Langer whether he would yield. Sat

"For what purpose?" asked Sen Langer.

"I wonder if the Senator will yield long enough for the Senate to pass by unanimous consent, House Bill 7 (the anti-poll tax bill), replied Sen. Morse.

"Yes, indeed," said Sen. Langer. "I yield with pleasure. What is the bill about?" 4-27-46

Obtains Floor

"It is the anti-poll tax bill," said Sen. Morse.

"I yield for that purpose," said Sen. Langer.

"I believe we are in position to save the Senate a great deal of time, inasmush as the Senator and I are about the only members of the Senate now present on the floor," said Sen. Morse.

"Mr. President, let the Senator from Oregon make his request," said Sen. Langer.

"I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of House Bill 7, an act making unlawful the requirement for the payment of a poll tax prerequisite to voting in a primary or other election for national offices," Sen. Morse stated.

Maguson Stalls

In the chair, Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, (Dem.-Wash.) stalled for time. Democratic Secretary Felton M. Johnson sprinted for Sen. Ernest W. McFarland, (Dem.-Ariz.) who rushed into the Senate cloakroom, tagged passerby and suggested the absence of a quorum. 4-27-46

Sen. Langer refused to yield to Sen. MacFarland for that purpose. Sen. Magnuson explained Sen. Morse's request for unanimous consent to take up the anti-poll tax bill. Sat.

Sen. MacFarland obpected, thus blocking Sen. Morse's maneuver to slip through the measure. For the remainder of the afternoon, Southern Democrats kept a scout on the floor.

Says State Has Right To Demand Illegal Levy

Supports Theory Of Gradual Repeal In Southern Regions

(Defender Washington Bureau)

WASHINGTON — Liberal forces throughout the country were this week denouncing the shocking "states rights" statement made in regard to poll tax repeal by President Truman at Chicago on Saturday.

Tagged a "peace offering" to Southern Bourbons in Congress by the nation's progressives, the popular interpretation of the utterance here was that the Chief Executive has lost all hope for his legislative program and will not seek reelection in 1948.

The President's analysis of one of the most controversial issues ever tackled by Congress came unexpectedly at a news conference held for Chicago high school journalists. 4-13-46

The question was raised by a nervous, shy little girl whose query escaped most of the reporters regularly assigned to cover the President.

Takes "Gradual Attitude"

While in the Senate Mr. Truman was a proponent of federal repeal of the tax levied in a number of southern states as a prerequisite for voting. On several occasions, when asked about his attitude, he has pointed to his Senate record.

"Do you see any immediate solution of the poll tax in the South?" came the question at Saturday's conference. Sat 4-13-46

No, he did not, the President replied. It is a matter the states will have to work out for themselves. There are a number of southern states, the President went on, that have repealed the poll tax.

He expressed hope that they all will eventually, but that was a matter for them to work out for themselves.

He added that it was also a matter for education.

Southern Democrats have been critical of the Truman administration's stand for permanent Fair Employment Practices Committee and other "New Deal" objectives. Efforts have been under way in party circles to ease the tension by the bitter debate on some of these issues. 4-13-46

Protest Barrage Begins

Speaking at the "Win the Peace" Conference here on Sunday, Clark Foreman of Atlanta, Ga., president of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, said Truman's remarks indicate "a most significant reversal of Presidential policy."

Sen. Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) told the conference he intended to press vigorously for early consideration and passage of the bill to abolish the poll tax in federal elections. Sat.

He said, "I do not agree with the statement made Saturday by the President of the United States that it is a matter for the states to work out."

The National Committee to Abolish the Poll Tax sent the following telegram to President Truman apropos his Chicago speech:

"Distressed at the report that you have succumbed to poll tax influence and repudiated your past pledges and performance in support of federal anti-poll tax though a free vote is the foundation of our democracy and our foreign policy. We would appreciate word direct from you in regard to this."

Cites Balkans Fight

The National Council of Negro Women, through its executive director, Mrs. Vivian Carter Mason of Washington, had this to say:

"To depend upon the states to enact this legislation is to delay indefinitely the right of the people to participate in the governing classes as full citizens.

"It smacks of shameless hypocrisy for the United States Government to express concern as to whether or not democratic processes in the exercise of the ballot exists in the Balkan countries and at the same time to tolerate, excuse, and placate the flagrant denial of the elemental right to vote without impediment for millions of people here at home."

Poll Tax Was Not Designed To Bar Voting By Negroes

State Supreme Court Justice Cites Constitution of 1890; Now Only A Matter of Time Until We Must Face Problem

Cleveland Ohio Enterprise May 30, 1946

Mississippi's poll tax, "notwithstanding the perverted purpose ascribed to it by small politicians and demagogs nowadays in the national Congress, is not designed as a bar to negro voting but has as its principal purpose support of the public school system," said Justice L. A. Smith, Sr., of the Supreme Court, in a recent speech before the Jackson Kiwanis Club.

"Insofar as the poll tax is concerned, it affects both races alike and does prevent some people, both the whites and negroes, from voting."

Discussing the Constitution of 1890, Justice Smith said the real safeguards in Mississippi are two of its provisions dealing with literacy of the citizens and a system of voter registration.

"These are the provisions of the organic law of this great state designed to maintain unsullied the high character of a clean democratic form of government, to prevent selfish and corrupt practices, and to insure the processes of government shall be administered by patriotic men or good purpose and wisdom and excellent character."

Justice Smith explained that the Constitution, which nowhere mentions "race, color or previous condition of servitude" and was upheld by the United States Supreme Court, requires that "every elector shall be able to read any section of the Constitution or be able to understand the same when read to him or give a reasonable interpretation thereof.

"Many now think it may become of real value in the present status of political elections, although it is exceedingly problematical due to advance in the education of all citizens," he said with reference to the literary provision.

Pointing to recent United States Supreme Court decisions in the Texas and Georgia cases in which it was held that negroes were entitled to vote in the Democratic primaries, Justice Smith said "We in Mississippi are confronted with similar events and problems" in view of the state supporting the party promiary election.

"It is only a matter of time until the question will present itself in Mississippi, where negroes in some sections of the state far outnumber the whites. It behooves all of us to ponder the matter.

"The question is, what shall be done about it. To its answer must be brought the highest degree of human experience, character, wisdom and patriotism, aided by the purest impulses of love for our state."

Discussing some of the discriminations permitted by the federal government against the South, such as those dealing with freight rates, and outlining its leniency with defeated nations in World War II, the State Supreme Court justice said:

"The only time the United States has been mean and cruel to a defeated opponent and shown utter disregard for its citizens was when the South surrendered in the Civil War."

Ickes Flays Poll Tax

Journal-Guide

WASHINGTON, D. C. — (NNPA)—Given the ballot, the millions disfranchised through the poll-tax in the South would shortly correct and improve their own social, educational, agricultural and industrial conditions, Harold L. Ickes, former Secretary of the Interior, told a dinner-meeting of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare at the Statler Hotel here last Wednesday evening.

Attacking the poll tax before a mixed audience of some 600 people, Mr. Ickes charged that "the economic masters of the South seized the opportunity afforded by the dire straits of the Negro to impose a tax on his voting privilege." 6-1-46

"POLITICAL SLAVERY" Sat

Calling this "political slavery" Mr. Ickes said the number of impoverished whites reduced to "ballot-bondage" was twice that of colored people, and added:

"They may be, and were, drafted into the Army; they may be, and were compelled to face the common enemy, and if necessary give up their lives to protect the life, liberty, and happiness of their fellow citizens. But they cannot vote. This is the brand of democracy that we hold up for the curious regard of the world."

Mr. Ickes declared that this country is going to do away with injustices and discriminations despite the Bilbos and the O'Daniels and the Rankins." Continuing he said:

"The day will come—perhaps it is already here—when any decent human being will scorn to seek public office over the prostrate bodies of those of another race.

"It is a foul thing, this keeping the passions of the prejudiced and ignorant stirred to white heat in order to attain public office. It is foul and unclean and if I were a member of a so-called committee to investigate un-American activities I would begin at home. 6-1-46 Sat

"If denial of civil rights to American citizens, denial of the right to enjoy to the full the freedom proclaimed in the Declaration of Independence and set forth in the Constitution of the United States does not constitute un-American activities then I do not know the meaning of that term."

CONTRIBUTORS

At the meeting, which was a part of the Southern Conference's program to raise funds to carry on its educational activities in the District of Columbia, more than $9.000 was contributed to bring the total amount raised thus far in the drive to $17,000.

The largest single donation of the evening was made by Mrs. Luke Wilson who gave $2.500.

Dr. and Mrs. Mordecai W. Johnson, Dr. and Mrs. Edwin B. Henderson, Representative Adolph J. Sabath, Democrat, of Illinois, Dr. Millard R. Dean, and Mrs. Edith Porter were among the $100 contributors.

Bilbo Tries To Foul Up Polltax Bill

Bilbo's amendment, which equaled anything in that line ever done by the Nazi exponents of the same racist theories, heads as follows:

Senator Morse, Republican, Oregon, told his colleagues "a pure farce" was being enacted.

He said he had no doubt the cloture petition, which he supports, would be beaten.

It was generally understood among senators that proponents of the measure had reached an agreement with Southern opponents that if the senate declines Wednesday to limit debate, action on the bill will be dropped for this session of congress.

Anti Poll Tax Bill

That meant that Southerners could filibuster to prevent a vote on the measure itself, and hence its chances went glimmering. Advertiser

The count was 39 for applying the debate limitation rule, and 33 against, but a two-thirds majority is required. The Senate hasn't invoked the rule in 19 years. Montgomery, Ala.

Majority Leader Barkley (D), Kentucky, told reporters before the roll call:

"Everybody understands that if we can't get cloture (debate curbs) we can's get a vote (on the bill), no matter if we stay in session a month." 8-1-46

Congress tentatively is due to quit Friday. Southern foes could hold the floor that long if necessary as they have demonstrated in past opposition to the legislation which would outlaw the poll tax as a prerequisite to voting in Federal elections. Seven Southern States have the tax.

Launch Vote Education Program in Mississippi

Courier

JACKSON, Miss.—(ANP)—A program proposed to teach "vote consciousness" to citizens, many of whom hope to exercise privilege of the franchies for the first time in the forthcoming July 2 Democratic primary here, was launched last week by the Mississippi Progressive Voters' League. 6-1-46

Plans also were announced for raising $20,000 to execute the program, and to finance court action against officials who refuse qualified Negroes the right to register for the primary.

T. W. Wilson, president of the organization, said the league will be affiliated with a national group, and will endeavor to "develop, promote and maintain within the minds of our people a state of vote consciousness."

Wilson said plans include training in the mechanics of voting, and education in citizenship rights as guaranteed by the Constitution.

"We are not trying to break into the Democratic Party," he said and declared that the "white and colored people of Mississippi can settle their own problems without the aid of northerners." 6-1-46

Anti-Poll Tax Bill Up Again

Pitts. Courier

Tuesday - 7-30-46

Washington, July 29.—(AP): The senate agreed today to vote an hour after it meets Wednesday on a petition to limit debate on a bill to outlaw the collection of state poll taxes in federal elections.

The cloture petition, signed by 28 senators, was filed by Democratic Leader Barkley, Kentucky, after he had succeeded in calling before the senate the anti-poll tax bill. The measure always before has provoked a filibuster by Southern op-

SOUTHERNERS IN CONGRESS

Henry Wallace suggested the other day that congressmen who do not stand by their party should be read out of the party. He was aiming, of course, at Southerners who are voting consistently with Republicans against the administration program. Promptly, the gentlemen whose withers had been wrung cried "Purge," referring to President Roosevelt's attempt to get rid of George, of Georgia, and Tydings, of Maryland. Had Roosevelt succeeded, the Democratic party would today be a much more cohesive organization than it is. But that is irrelevant with respect to the issue Wallace had in mind.

For his proposal involves no purge. It has to do with party responsibility and nothing else. If, after a caucus decision, a member fails to toe the mark, he ought to have a very good reason for doing so or take the consequences of being disciplined. It happens that the only excuse Southern congressmen who have gone over to the opposition can produce is that they object to the administration's policies. That may satisfy their private consciences, but it simply does not meet the requirements of our parliamentary system. Unless we can have party integrity, our legislative scheme is bound to bog down. Birmingham, Ala.

That's so obvious that even those Democrats who have been knifing their party cannot deny the principle, however much they may reject it in practice. It is, moreover, a principle which has been used against recalcitrants in the past, particularly by Republicans when they exiled those rambunctious Westerners years ago. It is the principle to which the La Follette-Monroney report on reorganizing Congress gave particular attention. Once a majority of party members makes up its mind on a proposition, individuals should be good soldiers, or what was intended to be a clean-cut issue lapses into confusion and sterility. Southern "dissidents" never cared for Henry Wallace—and their dislike for him has understandably deepened. He may have gone too far in calling so bluntly for their punishment. But, in the circumstances, what else could he urge? It is plain that mere appeals to these gentry have gotten nowhere. Witness the speech which Chairman Hannegan made last week. He dealt with the coalition, declaring that is is "politically irresponsible" because it is seeking to defeat "the will of three-fourths of the people of the nation." When the chairman of the Democratic National Committee, after working so hard to bring the wandering Southern brethren back into the fold, is willing to denounce them in this fashion, he is in effect taking a position alongside Wallace. Mon. 3-25-46

What are these Southern Democrats after? Mr. Hannegan minces no words in charging them with being the mouthpieces of special interests. He ought to know what he is talking about. The question is, how do these men as politicians dare to betray their constituents? That question was answered the other day by a Southern liberal who has become a national figure. He said, in effect, that the will of the people is one thing and the will of special interests is another, and that so long as voters are unorganized or misinformed or inarticulate, the pressure of blocs seeking what they want is certain to prevail. The political power wielded by vested interests is something no officeholder can fail to recognize. Mon. 3-25-46

That is particularly true, he might have added, when everything has been done to keep the electorate small and manageable. So long as the poll tax continues to keep people from voting, so long as registration is made a cumbrous operation, so long as registrars are clothed with virtually unlimited authority to make second-class citizens of applicants for the right to vote, suffrage will belong to a select group much more responsive to "class" considerations than a larger body of voters would be. This explains the violence with which many Southerners in Washington face any proposal to remove the poll tax. Any marked change in the suffrage situation is calculated to make them insecure.

And until such a change comes, they can do as they please, even to the point of frustrating their own administration. For suppose they thereby help to defeat the Democratic party in '46 or '48. At worst, they would lose their committee assignments. But their jobs they would retain. That's not an unfair interpretation of their course. They would rather be wrong, if only they can stay in office, than right, if that involves a disburbance of their tenure. The upshot is that the people of the South, who stand in bitter need of the progressive legislation President Truman is calling for are being deprived of its benefits by the very men who have been chosen to represent them in Congress. Mon. 3-25-46

* * *

Nor is even that the whole story. The South suffers because some of its congressmen have joined the GOP while pretending to be Democrats. But the country as a whole is also hurt. We Southerners are given to wondering why other sections won't let us alone. "Why won't they let run our own affairs? We don't interfere with them." Well, we are interfering with a vengeance when a handful of our representative line up with Republican reactionaries to strangle social and economic measures to improve the national well-being. If these so-called Democrats were backing the administration instead of fighting it, price control, housing, minimum wages, would not be in such a sorry plight.

TRUMAN AND POLL TAXES

President Truman has reversed his stand on the poll tax question. Although he makes no bones about the fact that he thinks the tax should be abolished, he says it is a matter for the South to decide for itself.

The Times has always taken the stand that the poll tax is a question for Alabama and Alabamians to decide and decide alone. However, we should remember that not everyone agrees with Mr. Truman on this matter, and for this reason we should not delay too long on abolishing this undemocratic system of collecting taxes upon one's voting privilege.

Georgia has rid herself of this tax and Alabama should do likewise before the North and other sections that do not understand our problems pass an anti-poll tax bill of such a nature that may be entirely contrary to our customs and beliefs. The way to prevent outside action is to act ourselves.—Baldwin Times (Bay Minette) Times 4-18-46

Anti-Poll Tax Passed Unanimously—Almost

The Montgomery Ala. Advertiser

WASHINGTON, April 18—(AP)—The anti-pol ltax bill, target of many a southern filibuster, almost passed the Senate today by unanimous consent with three members present.

Senator Morse (R), Oregon, a sponsor of the legislation, saw his chance when only himself, Senator Langer (R), North Dakota, and Senator Magnuson (D), Washington, who was presiding, were left in the chamber.

Langer was speaking against the proposed British loan. Morse asked him to yield briefly so he could move passage of the anti-poll tax measure by unanimous consent. Fri 4-19-46

'Truman On The Poll Tax'

Washington Post, D.C.

The Post editorial of April 10, "Truman on the Poll Tax," notes with much self-satisfaction that the President has "swung over to" the contention of The Post that Federal legislation to abolish this restriction on the vote is "unconstitutional." It is not clear that the President's off-the-cuff statement to the Chicago high school journalists' press conference represents any such thing.

As a member of the Senate, President Truman cast his vote to break the Southern filibuster which prevented the Senate from acting on the anti-poll-tax bill. As a member of the Senate, President Truman announced his intention of voting for passage of the anti-poll-tax bill—an opportunity which neither he nor any other member of the Senate had because of the success of the Southern filibuster. There is little in the President's Chicago statement to justify The Post's assumption that he has changed his "point of view on this issue."

The Post, of course, would like to think that there is. The Post in its contention that the anti-poll-tax bill is "unconstitutional" has been a lonely minority—standing against a majority of the House of Representatives, against a majority of the Senate Committee on the Judiciary and against a majority of the Senate itself.

In the face of the overwhelming evidence of Congress' belief in the constitutionality of the bill and its desire to pass it in order to allow the citizens of the Southern States the same right to a free vote that is enjoyed by the people of the rest of the Nation, we can always count on the opposition of Senator Bilbo and The Post. Fri 4-12-46

The Post has never failed to support the position of Senator Bilbo in this matter when the bill has come up for action. The Southern bloc dreads more than anything else the passage of the anti-poll-tax bill, because they know that when the majority of the Southern people can vote they will send to Washington men who truly represent their interests rather than men who consistently vote against those interests. In supporting the position of Senator Bilbo on the anti-poll-tax bill, The Post opposes the interests of the great majority of the people of the South.

The Post is strong for democracy in Japan; it believes in democracy in Romania; it thinks the Greeks should have free elections umpired by us to make sure they are free. It weeps over the lack of a free electorate in Poland; it beats its breast over the right to vote in Italy, and announces with pride the size of the vote in Germany that we maintain an Army to guarantee. But when it comes to the Southern States—suddenly it goes blind. Why should it be a matter for the Federal Government to guarantee a free vote in Albania, but not in Alabama? Why is the disfranchisement of 10 million American citizens of less moment than the rights of 4 million Chinese?

The Post would be more consistent—and would be more realistic in opposing what The Post itself admits is an "obnoxious and undemocratic levy"—if it threw its weight behind the vigorous fight which a bipartisan steering committee led by Senator Claude Pepper of Florida is making to allow a majority of the Senate to express itself on the anti-poll-tax bill now.

MRS. KATHERINE SHRYVER,
Executive secretary, National Committee to Abolish the Poll Tax.
Washington.

Shocking to every advocate of true democracy was the act of Mr. Truman in washing his hands of the poll tax in his recent Chicago address. During his term as Senator he openly favored legislation to kill this unconstitutional practice, and has advocated its death since becoming President.

This sudden about-face most certainly calls for a more understanding statement than that issued at Chicago. Less than 40 per cent of his major proposals to Congress have been approved, and none has been enacted in the exact form he asked. This should not prove deterring. Many of these proposals relate directly to the constitutional rights of Americans.

The Federal anti-poll-tax bill is to be found in this group. This fact has been admitted by the President in his previous stand in the matter. To depend on poll-tax States to abolish this system through ballot does not make sense when one realizes that the limited number of voters in these States greatly favor the poll tax as their only means of keeping reactionaries in power. The Poll Tax and the UNO

Richmond Times Dispatch

Editor of The Times-Dispatch,

The pernicious poll tax is now a greater menace than heretofore, as its wicked flouting of our United States Constitution is no longer merely a matter of concern within the United States, but instead it has been, and is, a prolific breeder of suspicion. If democracy is but a name to mouth politically in any portion of our nation, can we expect to retain the respect and confidence of the UNO? Times Dispatch

We have insisted on "free" elections in other nations and we must come with "clean hands." Sun.

Even the wildest claims for "State rights" cannot class a citizen's vote as other than a Federal right rooted in United States citizenship and therefore not subject to limitation by either the action of any State or by Congress. Both, however, are bound to see that each citizen is protected in casting an untrammeled vote. 4-14-46

Otherwise, the Nazi seed are being nurtured and sprouting under disregard of the foundation principles of democracy, and are disrupting the unity of the UNO.

Sen. Pepper Of Fla. Calls For End Of Dixie Poll Tax

Chicago Defender
Chicago, Ill.

WASHINGTON—Senator Claude Pepper (D. Fla.) this week demanded passage of the anti-poll tax bill now up for consideration in Congress.

The Dixie liberal, who is opposed to a permanent fair employment practice committee, declared that the poll tax was a denial of the democratic rights of white and Negro citizens.

Appealing to the American people over a nationwide radio hookup to urge their Senators to support the anti-poll tax bill, Senator Pepper referred to the costly war for freedom and said "we must overcome every obstacle to the enjoyment of that freedom."

Asks People's Support

He ended his address by appealing to the people to let their senators know they wanted them to support the bill to abolish the poll tax. Sat 3-30-46

Among other southerners to urge passage of anti-poll tax legislation here last week was Barry Bingham, publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal, recently discharged from the Navy.

In a statement to Jennings Perry, editor of the Nashville Tennesseean and leader of the fight against the poll tax, Mr. Bingham said:

"Of course, we will face another filibuster but I believe the time has come when the American public must decide whether it will allow a minority group in Congress to stifle legislation.

"The issue is even more important, I believe, than the immediate abolition of the poll tax, but I think this cause is the strongest one on which to make a fight against the filibuster rule."

See Early Fight

The National Committee to abolish the Poll Tax is pressing for early action by the Senate on the anti-poll tax bill. Already passed by the House, the bill has been on the Senate calendar since last October.

Remaining as one of the chief opponents of the poll-tax bill will be the professional southerner, John Rankin. When the bill came up six years ago, it was introduced by Congressman Lee Geyer of California. Congressman Geyer died before the bill came before the House for debate, much to the regret of the bill's supporters.

At that time, Geyer in an address to the House said on August 22, "When we are talking these days about reaching down into the eight southern states and taking those young men and putting them into uniform, let us first give them a little democracy for which they can fight. There are about 3,500,000 colored people without the vote and seven million white people without the vote in these southern states.

I hope my colleagues on my right (referring to the Democrats) will do something to clean this thing up that exists in our own democratic one party states."

Rankin Rants

In reply Rankin said, "This bill will never become a law as all well-informed members of the House know. But I am getting tired of having a few members rise on this floor and make these misleading statements without regard to the facts or the feelings of the rest of the membership.

"They are constantly telling the country that only a few thousand voters go to the polls in Mississippi or in other southern states and then pointing out the number of their representatives in the House, or try to leave the impression that only a few people are permitted to participate in selecting their members of congress or other officials.

"Now as a matter of fact, in those states where there is only one party as is the case in Mississippi, and practically all other southern states, our battles are settled in the primaries, and there is no opposing vote in the general election. Therefore, the vote in the general election is very light."

On the same date an article from the New York Post was inserted in the Congressional Record which said: Sat 3-30-46

"In 1938 when the last vote for new congressmen was counted, it was estimated that one representative from the city of Chicago received 28,000 more votes than all the 32 congressmen rfom the eight poll tax states put together."

The fight dragged through several months in 1940 and 1941 the bill finally being killed in the Senate. The Senate committee holding hearings on the bill included Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming, Tom Connally of Texas, Murdock of Utah, George W. Norris of Nebraska and Warren Austin of Vermont.

All except George W. Norris are still in the Senate and it is more than probable that any bill on the poll tax would come before this group again.

Barkley Told to Get Busy on Polltax Bill

The Worker New York N.Y.

CIVIC LEADERS DECRY FAILURE OF SENATE TO SCHEDULE ACTION

The Worker Washington Bureau

1-20-46

WASHINGTON.—Senate Majority Leader Alben Barkley has been urged by 14 prominent Americans to bring up the anti-poll tax bill for action by the Senate at the beginning of the present session.

The demand was made in a letter which pointed out that six months have passed since the House adopted HR-7 by an overwhelming majority. 1-20-46

"It is undisputed that a vast majority of the American people are determined to return a free vote to 10 million American citizens now disfranchised by a wholly artificial condition of voting which defies the U. S. Constitution. Yet, to our disappointment, the second session of the 79th Congress has begun and there is no Senate action on the bill even scheduled," the letter said. 1-20-46

The letter is signed by Harry Emerson Fosdick; Rabbi Stephen S. Wise; Bishop J. A. Gregg; A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; Nathan Cowan, legislative director, CIO; Leon Green, dean of the Northwestern University law school; Charles H. Houston; Chas. W. Anderson, Kentucky assemblyman; Clark Foreman, president of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare; James Patton, president of the Farmers Union; Jenny Perry, editor Nashville Tennessean; Will Alexander and Virginia Foster Dun of the National Committee to Abolish the Poll Tax.

By Charles N. Feidelson

VIRGINIA'S EXAMPLE

Retiring Gov. Darden, of Virginia, included in his final message to the General Assembly the following declaration: "The poll tax should be eliminated as a prerequisite to voting. The right to vote should not be conditional upon the payment of a sum of money. In a free society the ballot should rest in the hands of all persons of demonstrated competence who evidence an attachment to, and an interest in, the welfare of the state." The argument against the poll tax could scarcely have been stated more succinctly, and its logic applies to the State of Alabama as much as it applies to the State of Virginia. 1-17-46

We could also learn something from Virginia with reference to preparing for changes in qualifications and registration for voting. A commission has been at work, studying the problem and filing a report which the Legislature will use as the basis for action. Instead of the procedure in Alabama, under which reforms are to be initiated by politicians who know what they want, Virginia has chosen a much more enlightened approach, which involves an objective facing up to the question of poll tax repeal and registration. We have preferred to let distortion and prejudice have their way. To our Legislature, the poll tax is sacred, and a system of registration which lends itself to discrimination can be improved only by being made more iniquitous.

The result is that Alabamians will be voting on the so-called Boswell amendment, which undertakes to localize qualifications for the right to vote. That is to say, each board of registrars will in effect have to consult merely its own sense of discretion to determine whether it will permit an applicant to qualify. That is not, of course, sound practice or fair play, but what are such considerations to people who shout "white supremacy" when what they are after is minority rule? Things being what they are, it is to be taken for granted that the Boswell amendment will be approved, but that prospect only makes the whole situation more lamentable for a functioning democracy in Alabama. For this we must be grateful to our Legislature, a fact which brings to mind a letter which Benjamin Franklin wrote in 1784. "It is wonderful how preposterously the affairs of this world are managed," he observed. "We assemble parliaments and councils to have the benefit of their collected wisdom, but we necessarily have, at the same time, the inconvenience of their collected passions, prejudices and private interests. By the help of these, artful men overpower their wisdom, and dupe its possessors; and if we may judge by the acts, arrests, edicts all the world over . . . an assembly of great men is the greatest fool upon earth."

POLL TAX IS DOOMED

Present indications are that Alabama and Mississippi soon may be left alone as the only two states in the Union that will continue to operate on a basis of minority control, as it seems that all other states in the Union soon may have done away with the poll tax as a prerequisite to voting.

Commissions now are sitting in both Virginia and South Carolina for the purpose of making drastic revisions in their state constitutions, with particular attention being given to the poll tax, which has had the effect of disfranchising so many voters in both states.

Another question being given consideration in South Carolina is the election of the state superintendent of education. It is proposed to have this changed so that this constitutional officer may be elected by the State Board of Education and allowed to succeed himself when satisfactory service is rendered.

The latter also is a reform greatly needed in Alabama, as it has the effect of taking the schools out of politics and makes for greater efficiency wherever it is tried. Let us follow Georgia, Virginia and South Carolina, therefore, and revise our own organic law in accordance with the age in which we live.—Anniston Star. 1-17-46

Poll Tax Congressmen Bottle Up Progress

Courier-Journal

FOR those who are accustomed to thinking of the poll tax as exclusively a Southern problem, there is evidence of its really serious national importance in a recent release by the National Committee to Abolish the Poll Tax. Only seven States still cling to the device of charging a voter for his franchise, but the representatives of those States maintain a strangle hold on the legislative processes of the nation. Louisville, Ky.

Senators and Congressmen elected under the poll tax system have an easier time staying in their seats through the years, since such constricted elections are more readily controlled by machine tactics. The Congressional rule of seniority then elevates these men to the top positions on important committees, where they often act as effective blocks against the passage of any progressive legislation. 1-17-46

Of 18 major Senate committees, seven have chairmen who were elected under the poll tax. Nine of the 19 chairmen of major House committees are poll tax beneficiaries. Look at the Senate list: Appropriations (GLASS); District of Columbia (BILBO); Finance (GEORGE); Foreign Relations (CONNALLY); Immigration (RUSSELL); Post Offices and Post Roads (McKELLAR); Rules (BYRD). Thursday

The story is the same in the House. Moreover, the vice chairmen (ranking members) of 10 of these 19 House committees and eight of the 18 Senate committees serve by benefit of the poll tax. President TRUMAN spoke earnestly of the power Congressional committees wield in his address of January 3: "It is the committees which hold up action on bills. Indeed it is not even the whole committee. Often a bare majority—a handful of men—can prevent a vote by the whole Congress on measures of major policy."

Such power exerted by men who represent only a small minority of the citizens of their own States works to the disadvantage of the nation at large. The Senate Appropriations Committee, for instance, is ruled by a Senator, now a perpetual absentee, whose State sent only 388,000 people to the polls in the Presidential campaign of 1944. This is a smaller number than the total polled by many a Congressman in an urban district, and it represents but 22 per cent of the eligible voters of Virginia.

Only half a million voters, 28 per cent of the electorate, participated in the 1944 election in Tennessee, which perennially returns McKELLAR to the Senate. In South Carolina, only 10 per cent of the voters took part in the last Presidential election.

Political control by the representatives of these States is not fair to Kentucky, which gets 55 per cent of its electorate to the polls, or to the other States which range up to 71 per cent. Senator BARKLEY and Senator STANFILL could serve the interests of their State by helping to bring the bill to abolish the poll tax in Federal elections to the floor of Congress, where it has sufficient pledged strength to pass. It has long suffered the fate of many other important measures, bottling up in committee, with poll tax representatives keeping their fingers firmly on the cork.

The Poll Tax

Times-Dispatch

Editor of The Times-Dispatch:

The poll tax affects adversely about 10,000,000 people in our land—about 6,000,000 white and 4,000,000 colored. Of these it is fair to assume the majority, by reason of homestead and other exemptions, pay no direct tax for the government whose benefits they enjoy.

In most States the cost is $1 or $1.50 a year. (This is less than the present cost of a pint of the cheapest diluted whisky advertised on the market.) If a man doesn't care to fork out the cash, there is usually provision made for him to do its equivalent on some public work, like the roads. Or he can provide a son or other substitute. If he doesn't care to do any of those, nobody persecutes him or insults him. He merely puts himself in the class with some 10,000,000 other people, who, having paid, are too lazy or indifferent to get out and vote. (In the election last Fall, out of 3,000,000 Virginians, your paper recorded about 105,000 who voted.) Richmond Va.

If it were a question of money only, the issue would be trivial. It amounts to less than a third of the tax returns expected from the horse-race pari-mutuels, if the proposed law is passed. It concerns also what they call the "ideology" of government. If government is a thing that just is, like the air we breathe, or like the manna that fell from heaven into the wilderness, a lot of the raving is quite in order. But if it is the product of the money and sweat of people, who created it and maintain it, then it seems fair that only those who put their ante on the barrel head shall have a hand in the game. Deploring the South Carolina Legislature's refusal to let the people vote on a proposed state repeal of the poll tax, Editor William A. Townes, of The Spartanburg Herald, points out truly that "there are Southern states without the poll tax, and there is little evidence that the fact contributes one way or another to political results." In The Roanoke (Va.) Times, Editor H. Powell Chapman comments on what he calls South Carolina's mistake. Editor H. Powell Chapman hopes the bad example will not deter Virginia's Legislature from taking retiring Gov. Darden's fine advice against poll taxes in the Old Dominion. "The people of Virginia favor repeal," he declares, "and unquestionably will state action," the former governor said. He said it was time for Southerners to prove that "States rights" are all wedded to the theory of education, decent living conditions and better health standards as pressing problems to be met by the South.

End Poll Tax, Ex-Governor Of Texas Urges Dixie

Chicago

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Former Governor of Texas, James C. Allred last Friday night called upon the South to take immediate steps to abolish the poll tax by state action.

This would bring more voters to the polls, he pointed out.

Allred, who is now a federal district judge, listed a higher standard of education, decent living conditions and better health standards as pressing problems to be met by the South.

Allred said the attorneys general of 15 Southern states that, if the states abolish the poll tax, then Southern Senators will not have to filibuster to kill a similar federal law. He said the proposed federal anti-poll tax law was unconstitutional.

Poll Tax Bloc Holds Reins on Committees

Southerners Have Key Posts on Bottlenecks In Congress

Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—President Truman's charge that Congressional committees are the choke points for vital legislation is clearly demonstrated in the fact that 16 of the 37 most important groups in Congress are headed by Southern poll-tax reactionaries.

Although in some instances, it is not the chairman, but a handful of these reactionaries responsible for holding up specific measures mentioned by the President, his challenge to most of the committee leaders is inescapable.

In commenting on this, Mrs. Katherine Shryver, executive secretary of the National Committee to Abolish the Poll-Tax declared:

"The President calls attention to this situation, although we wish he had had the courage to point out how the poll-tax system, flourishing at home on disfranchisement of the majority of the people, flourishes in Congress and deprives all Americans of needed legislation."

Since seniority determined the chairmanship of the groups, Southern Democrats naturally fall heir to the top committee jobs, while their party is in power, largely because they are consistently re-elected by a small machine-controlled electorate. They have managed to stay in Congress longer than most.

"President Truman put his finger on the fact about Congress that delivers that body into the hands of poll-taxers," Mrs. Shryver asserted.

In addition to the predominance of poll-taxers holding down committee chairmanships, 18 of their fraternity are vice-chairmen of the major committees.

Moreover solid blocs of Southerners, such as the group on the House Rules Committee which Truman cited for holding up the permanent FEPC bill, are in complete control of the votes.

Action By States Would Eliminate Need For Filibuster

By NNPA NEWS SERVICE

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—Southern leaders were urged last week by former Governor James C. Allred of Texas to take immediate steps to abolish the poll tax by State action as a move to bring more voters to the polls.

Allred told the attorneys general of thirteen Southern States on Friday night that, if the states abolish the poll tax, then southern senators will not have to filibuster to kill a similar Federal law. He said the proposed Federal anti-poll tax law was unconstitutional.

RIGHTS ACHIEVED THRU STATES

"We are all wedded to the theory that the rights and happiness of the people can best be secured through State action," the former governor said. He said it was time for Southerners to prove that "states rights" is more than a political phrase.

Allred, who is now a Federal District judge, listed a higher standard of education, decent living conditions, and better health standards as pressing problems to be met by the South.

"We in the South have said that we know how to deal with the racial problem and that we resent outside interference," he stated. "Is it not high time that we begin to demonstrate through real Southern leadership that we can deal best with that problem?"

Truman's Poll Tax Talk May Indicate Policy Turnabout

Montgomery, Ala. Advertiser

Mon. Apr. 8, 1946

WASHINGTON, April 7—(AP)—President Truman's Chicago statement that southern states must work out poll tax problems for themselves was interpreted by a southern speaker at a meeting here today as indicating the President has lost hope for his legislative program and will not seek re-election in 1948.

Clark Foreman of Atlanta, Ga., president of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, presiding over this morning's session of a three-day "win the peace" meeting, said the Truman remark indicated "a most significant reversal of presidential policy." 4-8-46

He said a federal poll tax repeal bill has been passed three times by the House and approved by a Senate Committee, and that Senator Pepper (D), Florida, expects to bring it up for floor action in the near future.

Foreman recalled that Mr. Truman voted for poll tax repeal as a senator and said he had been expected to back its passage now. For him to make such a statement at this particular time, Foreman said, "can only mean he does not intend to run in 1948 because he can't get any of his program through Congress as long as poll taxers dominate both houses . . . He must have finally made up his mind he is a failure, cannot be president and will not run for re-election," the speaker said.

The "win the peace" meeting, which claimed a registration of 712 delegates representing organizations in 27 states, adopted resolutions opposing compulsory military service and indefinite extension of the draft. Another resolution urged an end to production and storage of atomic bombs, and placing atomic materials and processes under civilian and international control.

Criticism of former President Herbert Hoover, by speakers at yesterday's sessions of the meeting, were followed today by passage of a resolution condemning his assignment to investigate European food shortages and demanding his recall. 4-8-46

Another resolution called on the United States to support Poland's position before the United Nations Council in opposition to the Franco regime in Spain and demanded the application of blockade tactics against the Franco government.

An omnibus resolution on "Imperialism" called on the United States to take a lead in freeing colonies and opposed grants of materials or loans "by the United States to any other nation until sufficient guarantees have been given that these materials and funds will not be used for the exploitation and oppression of colonial peoples."

New Drive to End Poll Tax

Daily Worker

Mon.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—A new drive to bring HR 7, the bill to abolish the polltax, to the floor of the Senate was launched by Sen. Claude H. Pepper (D-Fla) with a broadcast over ABC last Tuesday.

The bill, which was passed by the House last Summer, would eliminate the polltax from both primaries and general elections for Congressional and Presidential elections.

Unless the Senators can be persuaded to take up the bill within the next several weeks, its chances of passage during this session are dim. 3-25-46

Meanwhile, Reps. Adam Clayton Powell (D-NY) and Vito Mancantonio (ALP-NY) have received assurances from Republican Leader Joe Martin that Republicans will support House action of a permanent FEPC "any calendar Wednesday."

Congressional Action To Repeal Poll Tax Is Advocated By Patrick

Birmingham Ala. News

Mon. 3-25-46

WASHINGTON, March 25—(AP)—Rep. Patrick (D., Ala.), advocating congressional repeal, yesterday described the poll tax as "fundamentally wrong" and not democratic."

Patrick debated the poll tax issue with Rep. Whitten (D., Miss.) on a Washington radio program.

Whitten defended the tax as one which all citizens are required to pay in Mississippi and said that only failure to pay by a certain date disqualified one from voting.

Patrick held that the poll tax kept down the number of votes in the seven Southern states still retaining it, while Whitten argued that general election figures should not be used for comparison "since we have only one party down there and only in primaries do we have contests." Mon. 3-25-46

Whitten took issue with Patrick's view that the poll tax perpetuates "courthouse gangs," saying a citizen interested enough to pay his poll tax could not "be bought." Patrick criticized the Tennessee Supreme Court for throwing out legislative repeal of the poll tax in that state, but Whitten answered: "It found the law unconstitutional, but some people haven't got time to bother about constitutions which are a little stronger than legislation."

Repeal Of Poll Tax Up To States, Truman Says Unexpectedly

Birmingham Ala. News

CHICAGO, April 8—(AP)—In what appeared to be a peace offering to militant Southern Democrats in Congress, President Truman Saturday disclosed the view that repeal of the poll tax must be left up to the states. Mon 4-8-46

His pronouncement—one of the most controversial issues ever tackled by Congress—came unexpectedly at a news conference he held for Chicago high school journalists.

The question was raised by a nervous, shy little girl, whose query escaped most of the reporters regularly assigned to cover the president.

Mr. Truman, a proponent of federal repeal of the tax levied in a number of Southern states as a prerequisite for voting, while a member of the Senate, has on several occasions pointed to his Senate record when asked about his attitude.

* * *

"DO YOU SEE ANY IMMEDIATE SOLUTIONS OF THE POLL TAX in the South?" came the question.

No, he did not, the president replied. That is a matter they will have to work out for themselves.

There are a number of Southern states, the president went on, that have repealed the poll tax.

'He expressed hope they all will eventually. But that is a matter for them-selves, Mr. Truman continued.

He added that it also was a matter for education. Southern Democrats have been critical of the Truman administration's stand for a permanent FEPC and other "New Deal" objectives.

Efforts have been under way in party circles to ease the tension created by the bitter debate on some of these issues.

The president also told the widely-eyed, thrilled youngsters that he would help the cause of peace, he hopes.

Biggest laugh of the teen-agers' news conference came when one asked the president what he thought of women in Congress. Mr. Truman said he thought they were fine.

The Plain Dealer-Kansas City, Ka.

Fri. 1. "Senator Fulbright is said to have 'surprised' his University of Chicago audience Tuesday night by saying that the poll tax was not an issue of 'fundamental importance.' The surprise was unwarranted. Mr. Fulbright revealed long ago that his liberalism stops short of supporting any reform which would loosen the restrictions on voting by Southern poor whites and Negroes. In Senator Fulbright's home state of Arkansas only 19 per cent of those who, save for the poll tax, would have been qualified electors, voted in the presidential election of 1940 as compared to 57 per cent of qualified electors in Arizona, 80 per cent in Colorado and 82 per cent in Illinois. In the six other poll-tax states, recent voting percentages were even lower than in Arkansas. Because of the small active electorates in the poll-tax states, reactionary politicians are returned to Congress repeatedly, and by virtue of seniority eventually become powerful chairmen of committees. The poll tax is responsible. The job for the rest of the country is to defeat a coming filibuster and pass the anti-poll tax bill when it reaches the Senate in the next few weeks." It Does Not Have to Be The Same Old Routine

The Courier Journal
Louisville Ky.

ONCE again they are trying to get a vote in the Senate on the bill outlawing the poll tax. The faith and dogged purpose of its supporters deserve the reward they hope for. But everything depends on the honesty of the effort, and there is plenty of room for skepticism about that.

Year after year the process is repeated. In the House, where debate is limited, the bill passes easily. Then it goes to the Senate, where the august gentlemen can talk, if they wish, till the cows come home. Supported by this tradition, the Southern Democrats, practically the only defenders of the poll tax, move into the practised routine of their filibuster. This goes on until everybody gives up and the bill at last is withdrawn.

Just before this is done, there usually comes a punctilious agreement to vote on suspension of the old Senate rule of discussion unrestricted by time, space or content, and on fixing limits. This limitation is called cloture, but nobody ever does it. There are times when we feel that nobody ever expects to do it, and that the gentlemen merely make gestures, like a ritual. Tue. 7-30-46

Senator BARKLEY, as majority leader, says a vote on cloture on the anti-poll tax bill will be called tomorrow afternoon. We devoutly hope for the best of intentions, aware that nothing will prevent the bill's passage except another successful maneuver in marathon talking that will block it from the test.

The Southern senators know this, too, and so they talk or threaten to talk, which sometimes works just as well. The disturbing part of the thing is that other senators know it as well, and still they vote for jealous tradition and against cloture and the democratic way of doing things, by a free and decisive vote and may the best man win.

Failure to Limit Senate Debate Kills Anti-Poll Tax Bill

The News and Courier
Charleston, S.C.
Thurs. 8-1-46

Washington, July 31.—(AP): An attempt to enact the anti-poll tax bill before congress quits failed today when the senate refused to limit debate.

That meant that Southerners could filibuster to prevent a vote on the measure itself, and hence its chances went glimmering.

The count was 39 for applying the debate limitation rule, and 33 against, but a two-thirds majority is required. The senate hasn't invoked the rule in 19 years.

Majority Leader Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, told reporters before the roll call:

"Everybody understands that if we can't get cloture (debate curbs) we can't get a vote (on the bill), no matter if we stay in session a month."

Congress tentatively is due to quit Friday. Southern foes could hold the floor that long if necessary as they have demonstrated in past opposition to the legislation which would outlaw the poll tax as a prerequisite to voting in federal elections. Seven Southern states have the tax. 7-1-46

The senate's vote was taken generally as the bill's last gasp in this session although no formal agreement had been made to drop it. The house previously passed it.

In the two days of sessions preceding the cloture vote, only two speeches had been made on the bill, both of them brief ones by Senator Mead, Democrat, New York.

Five minutes before the showdown roll call, he got the floor to plead that the senate be given a chance to vote on the measure.

"While we fight for democracy elsewhere, there are over 10,000,000 voteless citizens in the United States," he declared.

"I appeal to my colleagues to give us this opportunity to express ourselves on the merits of the bill. I believe that, given an opportunity, the senate will approve this measure."

POLL-TAX CLOSURE IS DEFEATED, 39-33

Times, New York N.Y.

Senate Action Is Viewed as Ending Chances for the Bill at This Congress

Thurs. 8-1-46

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WASHINGTON, July 31 — The Senate again shunted aside the Anti Poll-Tax Bill today, apparently blocking finally in another Congress the seven-year fight to write it into law.

By a vote of 39 to 33, far short of the two-thirds majority required, it refused to adopt a closure motion sponsored by Senator Barkley, the majority leader. To cope with a possible filibuster by Southern Democrats, Mr. Barkley filed his closure petition Monday as he called up the poll-tax measure for consideration.

The test vote came today after only two brief speeches had been made on the bill, both of them by Senator Mead, Democrat, of New York. Senator Mead spoke last night, just before the closure move was brought to a vote.

Voting for the limitation of debate to one hour for each member and for the blocking of an all-out filibuster were twenty-three Democrats, fifteen Republicans and the Progressive.

Voting against closure were twenty-six Democrats, nineteen of whom represent Southern States, and seven Republicans, these being from New Hampshire, Connecticut, Maine, Oklahoma, Colorado and South Dakota. Siding in the defeat of closure were Democrats from Rhode Island, Idaho, Arizona, Nevada, Maryland and Montana.

This was the twenty-fifth time the Senate had taken a closure vote since the procedure went into effect in 1917. It was the twenty-first time that closure move was defeated and the third defeat when anti-poll tax legislation was at issue. Thurs. 8-1-46

Representative Marcantonio, American Labor party, of New Yrok, author of the measure under test today, a measure which the House passed last year, termed the Senate proceedings "a demagogic move."

"It did not fool anyone, least of all the Negro people who are seeking the right of full franchise in the South," he declared.

When the poll tax measure was called up Monday it was conceded generally in the Senate that, at this stage of the adjournment rush, a filibuster could block a vote or it with comparatively little effort. Adjournment of Congress has been set tentatively for Friday and the House already had adopted the adjournment resolution.

Few expected the closure motion to win. On Nov. 23, 1942, the Senate rejected a closure move by 37 to 41 when anti-poll tax legislation was the issue. The last previous poll tax closure test, on May 15, 1944, resulted in vote of 36 to 44.

This time, after much turnover in Senate personnel, the closure vote was a majority plus two.

The National Committee to Abolish the Poll Tax, through its executive secretary, Mrs. Katherine Schryver, termed the defeat of closure "a tragic defeat for the cause of free and democratic elections throughout the world."

Pictures Two "Victories"

Thurs. 8-1-46

The committee, however, saw two "victories" in the situation.

The first, Mrs. Shryver said, was that the bill succeeded in reaching the Senate floor, and the second that for the first time a majority of those participating in the test voted for closure on the issue.

Dr. Clark Foreman of Atlanta, president of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, said:

"Democracy at home suffered another defeat. Although a majority of 39 to 33 voted in favor of closure, the necessary two-thirds to prevent a filibuster was missing and the bill was doomed for this session. Thurs. 8-1-46

"Despite the justifiable indignation over the horrible lynchings which have recently occurred in the South, when the opportunity came to enfranchise by Federal action the 10,000,000 people who would put a stop to lynching, Senators on both the Democratic and Republican side did not respond."

OF

HON. OLIN D. JOHNSTON

OF SOUTH CAROLINA

The Congressional Record

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

Tuesday, July 30 (legislative day of Monday, July 29), 1946

Washington, D.C.

Mr. JOHNSTON of South Carolina. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD an editorial entitled "The Poll Tax Bill Again," from the Columbia State of July 24 last.

There being no objection, the editorial was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows: 7-30-46

POLL TAX BILL AGAIN

Once more the poll tax bill rears its head in the Senate. It is again on the calendar of the Upper Chamber. And Democratic Leader BARKLEY has said that he will call up the bill before Congress adjourns.

The State regretted that the Kearse bill, which passed the South Carolina Senate but failed in the house, was not passed. We see no sound reason why the poll tax should not be repealed. And we believe the people of South Carolina would be glad to see it wiped out, since it is of no value but a decided irritant. However, there is a right way and a wrong way to do a thing, and the right way to repeal the poll tax is by State action, not Federal. Therefore, while we favored action by our State assembly looking toward repeal, we are just as opposed to any action by Congress telling us what to do. And for the very simple reason that the Federal Constitution gives to each State the right to set its own voting requisites, and it is none of the business of Congress what the voting requisites are in South Carolina or any other State.

Legislation favoring repeal was passed by the National House of Representatives where southern Democrats were outvoted and had no recourse. But in the Senate it is different and while it is regretted that it will be necessary to invoke filibuster again, that is what will be done if Senator BARKLEY insists on testing the bill on its merits.

If Congress wished to submit an amendment to the Constitution to the people of the United States, there would not be the objection to it that there is to direct legislation seeking to force abandonment of the poll tax by the seven States which still have it, for it would be an orderly procedure.

As a matter of fact, the poll tax keeps no one from voting in South Carolina who really wishes to vote. It is only $1, is not paid by women, and by men only between certain age limits. But there is a principle involved when Congress tries to dictate voting requisites to States in violation of the Constitution. And that is the point.

The Anti-Poll Tax Bill Almost Passes the Senate

Norfolk Va. Journal & Guide Sat. 4-27-46

BUT for the dramatic appearance of a fourth member who dashed in at the last moment to voice his objection, the highly controversial anti-poll tax bill would have passed the Senate last week by unanimous consent.

With Senator WARREN MAGNUSON, Democrat, of Washington, an implacable foe of the poll tax presiding, the neat parliamentary maneuver was attempted while only two other members of the Senate were present: MORSE, Republican, of Oregon, and LANGER, Republican. of North Dakota.

This three-man minority, in a practical demonstration of minority rule in reverse, thus almost succeeded where the entire Senate has failed many times within the past several years because of the filibustering tactics of a few of their colleagues who retain their Senate berths year after year through the beneficence of the price tag on the ballot.

And this same selfish bloc has been quick to charge that the action of Senator MORSE in interrupting an anti-British loan speech by Senator LANGER so that he could move passage of the anti-poll tax measure by unanimous consent, was nothing more than a cheap parliamentary trick, and that the dramatic last-minute appearance of Senator MCFARLAND, Democrat, of Arizona, to block the move, was in the nature of an act of God. Sat 4-27-46

But when it comes down to cheap parliamentary maneuvers there is none more despicable than the filibuster when used in the manner, and for the purpose for which it has been employed by this group. Besides, what's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander.

Poll Tax Bill Goes Down For 3rd Defeat in Senate

Courier Pittsburgh, Pa. Sat. 8-10-46

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NNPA)—The sham battle for enactment of an anti-poll tax law resulted in a defeat for the proponents of the legislation last Wednesday when a motion for cloture was beaten by a vote of 39 to 33—nine votes short of the two-thirds required to limit Senate debate. The vote came after only two short speeches had been made on the bill, both by Senator James M. Mead, Democrat, of New York, in behalf of cloture.

Just before the vote was taken Senator Mead made it clear that a vote for cloture was a vote for the bill, while a vote against cloture was a vote against the bill.

INTERNATIONAL ASPECT

Speaking on the preceding night, Senator Mead declared it was time to act on anti-poll tax legislation "because we are endeavoring to interest the Nations of the world in our democratic principle of government."

Passage of the anti-poll tax bill, Senator Mead said, would extend suffrage to 10,000,000 people—7,000,000 white and 3,000,000 colored—and would stimulate interest in Government and make for better citizenship.

Voting for limitation of debate to one hour for each member were twenty-three Democrats, fifteen Republicans and one Progressive. Voting against cloture were twenty-six Democrats, nineteen of whom represent Southern States, and seven Republicans, these being from New Hampshire, Connecticut, Maine, Oklahoma, Colorado and South Dakota.

This was the twenty-fifth time the Senate has voted on cloture since the rule was adopted in 1917. It was the twenty-first time a cloture motion was defeated and the third defeat when anti-poll tax legislation was at issue.

FILED FOR CLOTURE

In accordance with a pledge he had made to get an anti-poll tax amendment to the Tidelands Oil Bill tabled, Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, the Majority leader, called up the Anti-Poll Tax bill on July 29 and immediately filed a petition for cloture.

Supporters of the Anti-Poll Tax bill, including many of the twenty-eight who signed the cloture petition, charged that Barkley had made a "deal" with Southern Senators that if cloture was defeated the measure would be laid aside and no new effort made to adopt it before Congress adjourned Friday.

Following is the vote by which the Senate last Wednesday rejected a move to limit debate on the Anti-Poll Tax bill (a two-thirds vote of the Senators present and voting would have been required for adoption):

Urges Poll Tax

Constitution, Atlanta Ga.

Editor Constitution: Thousands voted for Talmadge this time who had never supported him before, because Gov. Arnall in his mad rush for notoriety and publicity saw fit to get the General Assembly to abolish the poll tax and change the age limit permitting teen-age citizens to vote. This very act put the Negro question in the campaign as an issue. We would not have been troubled with this under the old law requiring $1 to be paid at the age of 21 and paid each year until the age of 60 had been reached, all of this going into the fund for common schools of the State. A vast majority of the voters feel just as I do, that under the old law the Negro would not care to keep his poll tax paid for the privilege of voting. Fri. 8-2-46

The in-coming administration's first act should be to abolish or repeal this pet piece of Gov. Arnall's so-called good and wise government legislation. This within itself would solve the question to a very large extent.

MISSISSIPPI KEEPS POLL TAX FOR VETS

Gettysburg Pa. 2-9-46

JACKSON, Miss.—(ANP)—The Mississippi House of Representatives last week refused to pass a bill waiving poll tax restrictions so that veterans of World War II might vote, tax free, in the 1946 and 1947 primaries.

Poll Tax (South Carolina)

What S.C. Really Fears

Afro-American

The South Carolina House of Representatives recently rejected a Senate-approved resolution to repeal the poll tax. The vote was 69 to 40. Baltimore, Md.

Delegates said that they wanted to keep the poll tax because its repeal would mean the possibility of racial trouble in low-country counties which have large colored populations. 1-26-46

What the delegates really meant was that if the poll tax were repealed, then, for the first time, counties like Calhoun (colored population, 11,867; white, 4,351) and Beaufort colored population, 14,781; white, 7,255) would have enough colored votes to elect county officers and even delegates to the State Legislature.

In the final analysis, therefore, "trouble" in South Carolina means the possibility of electing a qualified colored person to a political office.

Opposition Sees Attempt To 'Ram Down Throat'

Fears Two-Party System If Negro Gains Ballot

COLUMBIA, S. C. — (NNPA) — The South Carolina House last Tuesday defeated a bill which would have abolished the poll tax as a prerequisite for voting in this state. The vote was 69 to 40.

Opposition to the repeal measure was led by Representative Calhoun Thomas, who charged that abolition of the levy would serve "to ram the Negro down our throats."

He told the House that, "through the medium of the poll tax and adroit maneuvering of election officials, we have kept the Negro from voting in our county of Beaufort."

S.C. Defeats Bill To End Polltax

One Good Voice

PM N.Y.N.Y. 2-5-46

Rep. J. Claude Fort spoke well, but in vain at the last debate in South Carolina's House of Representatives on a measure to bring the poll tax question to a public vote. "If we took the lead now, it would be a great thing for South Carolina and the nation," he said. P.S.—the measure was killed.

South Carolina Decides To Retain the Poll Tax

The Louisville Courier Journal Louisville, Ky.

FREQUENTLY the politicians of the South contend that the poll tax is not a device beloved by them as an instrument to curtail or prevent the use of the ballot by Negroes. Tacit admission that the poll tax is favored just for that purpose is made in the remark of Representative CALHOUN THOMAS of the South Carolina Legislature, the lower house of which last week defeated a poll tax repeal bill by a vote of 69 to 40.

Representative THOMAS opposed the bill because abolition of the levy would "ram the Negro down our throats." Clearly he thinks that the poll tax keeps the Negroes from the polls (and from being rammed down "our" throats). Sat. 2.2.46

Mr. THOMAS was at least frank. He added: "Through the medium of the poll tax and adroit maneuvering of election officials, we have kept the Negro from voting in our county of Beaufort."

Mr. THOMAS wants to avoid the two party system in his state, he revealed, keep the Democratic party all-powerful, and "keep the white people in the saddle . . ."

Mr. THOMAS ought to be told that the poll tax disfranchises twice as many white men and women as it does Negroes. On second thought, perhaps he knows that. Word, then, ought to be spread among the disfranchised whites. When they know, the day when the death knell of the poll tax sounds will be advanced.

There are two or three encouraging aspects of the South Carolina situation.

First, of course, is the mere introduction of a bill in the legislature to outlaw the poll tax.

Another is the size of the vote; forty South Carolina legislators are sufficiently sick and tired of the poll tax to have voted for its repeal.

Still another encouraging development is the kind of thinking shown by some of the advocates of repeal. One, Representative LEWIS WALLACE of York, said: "I want to rid my state of this stigma, this thing that denies a man—white or colored—the right to vote." Another outspoken repeal advocate was Representative J. CLAUDE FORT of Cherokee. May their tribe increase! Sat. 2.2.46

Finally, white members of a branch of the Southern Regional Council (successor to the Southern Interracial Commission) in South Carolina have agreed to accompany each would-be Negro voter to the polls in the next election and to jot down pertinent facts necessary to permit them to give first-hand testimony when the barriers to voting are tested in the courts.

It is things like this which keep the Negro and his liberal friends of other races from a surfeit of deepest despondency.

The Bandwagon

Substitute for Poll Tax

The News and Courier Charleston, S.C.
Wed, 10-16-46

Repeal of the poll tax would be agreeable to The News and Courier if for it as a qualification for registering and voting should be substituted that the candidate for the suffrage present a receipt for direct taxes amounting to $50 paid six months before election day. Were voting confined to persons who have a little stake in public affairs, who pay $50 in the aggregate in taxes to the state, county, municipal and federal governments, objection to colored persons voting would be removed. There is no objection to persons voting because they are not white. In the state are hundreds of thousands of colored persons and tens of thousands of white persons no more competent to vote intelligently than they are to play bridge with ordinary skill, and government is never safe when the balance of power in elections is in the hands of improvident, ignorant, lazy persons who can be herded to the polls by rascally politicians. That, the Americans will soon or late discover if, in the mean time, democracy shall not subject the country to a communist dictator and make slaves of all the people. In eastern Europe is a great country where slavery prevails, and it is not called by its name. In the United States is an enlarging element in the population eager to be well nourished, well clad and well housed slaves.

Truman On The Poll Tax

Birmingham Age-Herald

BY ERNEST K. LINDLEY

Special Age-Herald Washington Correspondent

In his formal statement last week explaining his position on the poll tax issue, President Truman said: "While the federal anti-poll tax legislation has been pending in Congress, several states have abandoned the poll tax. This is a great step forward and I hope more states will see fit to change their poll tax laws."

Active proponents of the federal anti-poll tax bill point out that the president's statement was somewhat rosier than the facts justify. The attempt to get federal legislation to knock out state poll taxes as prerequisites to voting began in 1939. Before that, Florida and Louisiana had abolished the poll tax by state action. But since then only one state has done so. That is Georgia, under the leadership of the liberal Gov. Arnall. Even Arnall might not have succeeded, however, but for a peculiar provision in the Georgia constitution permitting the governor to suspend any tax for one year. He held the threat to suspend the poll tax over the heads of the Legislature. The results of one election held without a poll tax might not have been pleasing to some of the members if they had voted against repeal of the tax. Thursday

In Tennessee the Legislature voted to abolish the poll tax, but the state Supreme Court invalidated the action on the ground that it conflicted with the state constitution. So Tennessee still has the poll tax, as do six other states: Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, South Carolina, Texas and Virginia.

In all seven of these states the poll tax is imbedded in state constitutions. Proponents of federal action insist, therefore, that as a practical matter there is not much hope of getting rid of the tax in most of these states in the near future by state action. They hold that only Congress can provide a reasonably prompt and effective remedy. 4-18-46

The House has passed anti-poll tax legislation three times. The Senate has filibustered it twice, and the Southern opponents of federal action undoubtedly will continue to resort to filibustering whenever the bill comes up, unless they are stopped by cloture.

Some of the supporters of federal legislation may doubt that it is wise or constitutional. Many of them, like President Truman, who as a senator not only favored federal action but voted for cloture, would feel relieved if the seven remaining poll tax states would go ahead and abolish the tax under their own steam. But for the reasons just indicated, the prospects are not favorable for this more comfortable solution. 4-18-46

There are, however, other ways to work toward the objective sought by the opponents of the poll tax: the broadening of the electorate. One is to increase the number of people who pay the poll tax, which requires not only money, but, in some state, quite a bit of red tape. The impending CIO organization drive in the South should, if successful, increase the number of voters who see that their tax is paid and that they are otherwise properly qualified. Supreme Court decisions in recent years have also tended to broaden the electorate, by lifting some of the restrictions on Negro voting.

Federal anti-poll tax legislation, however, has become a national issue. It is one on which many voters in the 41 states which do not have the poll tax as a prerequisite to voting may turn. For urgent political reasons, therefore, it is becoming increasingly impractical for Democrats in Congress from outside the poll tax states to wait for the solution of this problem by state action. 4-18-46

Truman Retreats on the Poll Tax

Abe American Baltimore, Md.

CHICAGO — Retreating from his previous position as advocating Federal repeal of the poll tax, President Truman, Saturday, mollified Southern Democrats by revealing that he felt that repeal of those laws should be left up to the States. Sat 4-13-46

The reversal of the President's views on this issue came at a news conference held for high school journalists, in answer to the question, "Do you see any immediate solutions for the poll tax in the South?"

Sees No Solution

Mr. Truman, who, when a Senator voted for Federal repeal of the laws several times, answered, "No, I do not. That is a matter they will have to work out for themselves." Sat 4-13-46

The President, in what appeared to be a peace offering to militant Southern Democrats in Congress, went on to point out that there were a number of Southern States which have repealed the poll tax, matter they (the States) will have to work out for themselves. Wed 4-10-46

We do not know what has happened to change the President's point of view on this issue. But his present stand finds solid defense in the nature of our Federal system. It would be impossible to bring every problem to Washington for solution, especially problems that are entrusted to the States by the Constitution, without destroying our dual pattern of governmental authority. In deference to this fact we suggest that the antipoll-tax movement now turn the full force of its influence upon the recalcitrant handful of States which perpetuate this obnoxious and undemocratic levy.

Truman On The Poll Tax

Washington Post, D.C.

For a number of years The Post has maintained that the proper approach to the poll-tax problem in the South is pressure on the States to eliminate this relic of post-Reconstruction days. Naturally, therefore, it is gratifying to note that President Truman has swung over to this position. In the Senate Mr. Truman supported the Federal poll-tax repeal bill which we have always believed to be unconsitutional. Since he has been in the White House he has pointed to his voting record when asked for comment on antipoll-tax legislation. But in his press conference for Chicago high school journalists he clearly replied to a poll-tax question that that is a reasonably prompt and effective remedy.

The House has passed anti-poll-tax legislation three times. The Senate has filibustered it twice, and the southern opponents of Federal action undoubtedly will continue to resort to filibustering whenever the bill comes up, unless they are stopped by cloture.

VIRGINIA'S EXAMPLE

Retiring Gov. Darden, of Virginia, included in his final message to the General Assembly the following declaration: "The poll tax should be eliminated as a prerequisite to voting. The right to vote should not be conditional upon the payment of a sum of money. In a free society the ballot should rest in the hands of all persons of demonstrated competence who evidence an attachment to, and an interest in, the welfare of the state." The argument against the poll tax could scarcely have been stated more succinctly, and its logic applies to the State of Alabama as much as it applies to the State of Virginia.

We could also learn something from Virginia with reference to preparing for changes in qualifications and registration for voting. A commission has been at work studying the problem and filing a report which the Legislature will use as the basis for action. Instead of the procedure in Alabama, under which reforms are to be initiated by politicians who know what they want, Virginia has chosen a much more enlightened approach, which involves an objective facing up to the question of poll tax repeal and registration. We have preferred to let distortion and prejudice have their way. To our Legislature, the poll tax is sacred, and a system of registration which lends itself to discrimination can be improved only by being made more iniquitous.

The result is that Alabamians will be voting on the so-called Boswell amendment, which undertakes to localize qualifications for the right to vote. That is to say, each board of registrars will in effect have to consult merely its own sense of discretion to determine whether it will permit an applicant to qualify. That is not, of course, sound practice or fair play, but what are such considerations to people who shout "white supremacy" when what they are after is minority rule? Things being what they are, it is to be taken for granted that the Boswell amendment will be approved, but that prospect only makes the whole situation more lamentable for a functioning democracy in Alabama. For this we must be grateful to our Legislature, a fact which brings to mind a letter which Benjamin Franklin wrote in 1784. "It is wonderful how preposterously the affairs of this world are managed," he observed. "We assemble parliaments and councils to have the benefit of their collected wisdom, but we necessarily have, at the same time, the inconvenience of their collected passions, prejudices and private interests. By the help of these, artful men overpower their wisdom, and dupe its possessors; and if we may judge by the acts, arrests, edicts all the world over . . . an assembly of great men is the greatest fool upon earth."

Electoral Reforms in Virginia Wait on Future Votes

Sun. 3-10-46

By VIRGINIA DABNEY

RICHMOND, March 9—Abolition of the poll tax and tightening of the laws against fraud are essential parts of the suffrage-reform program just adopted overwhelmingly by both branches of the Virginia Legislature. Since much of the program requires constitutional amendments, these essential parts will have to be approved by another Legislature and by the people before it becomes effective.

A small minority of the Legislature contends that provisions for annual registration and a central electoral board will give the dominant political "machine" a firmer grip than the poll tax does now, but this is not the prevailing view. Three different methods of registering annually are provided, one of them being the mere process of having voted the preceding year.

Admittedly it may be beaten either by the next Legislature or by the people. The fact that the Legislature voted by huge majorities to submit it to the electorate could be due to the Democratic party's commitment to let the people vote on the issue. Many who voted to submit say they will work against repeal in the election. Most of the leaders in the party organization, dominated by Senator Harry F. Byrd, have either been silent or have a record of opposition to poll-tax repeal.

News Notes: Kentucky's TVA "ripper bill," which passed the State Senate, 24 to 14, was beaten in the House, 60 to 31. It was sponsored by the Kentucky Utilities Company. . . . Gun-totin' Kentucky feudists had a setback when the Legislature made carrying a concealed deadly weapon a felony, with one to five years' imprisonment as the penalty.

Veterans Report Vote Registration Denied

The Journal and Guide Norfolk Va.

(Reprinted from Last Week's Late Edition)

NORFOLK — It is reported that a number of colored veterans of World War II who have not paid their poll tax for 1943, are being refused voting registration by officials in the registrar's office here. This alleged refusal, it is stated, may lead to a petition to the court to rule on the matter.

The Virginia General Assembly at a special session last year passed an act exempting all veterans of the recent war from payment of the poll tax as a prerequisite for voting.

TURNED AWAY Sat. 3-23-46

The widely-circulated reports state that the local rigistrar's office is turning away veterans who entered the services in 1944 without having paid the 1943 tax.

It was learned this week, that upon the request by interested citizens for an explanation of the matter, Thomas J. Nottingham, city registrar and James M. Wolcitt, chairman of the city electoral board, agreed that the refusal is based upon their interpretation of provisions of the statute.

However, Mr. Wolcott, it is reported, stated that he would immediately apply to Attorney General Abram Staples for a ruling on the point.

Up until Thursday morning of this week, however, such a ruling was still being awaited.

Mr. Nottingham, in a telephone conversation to the Journal and Guide, claimed that no veterans, to his knowledge, were being denied their lawful right to register. He did not amplify this statement.

MR. STAPLES' LETTER

It is known that Mr. Staples, in a letter containing an unofficial opinion, received here a few days ago, construed the law literally, and held a view that the statute exempted from payment of the poll tax all veterans in active service during the war years of 1942, 1943, 1944, or any part of those years. 3-23-46

The war voters act was the general assembly's response to the growing demand in the state for the repeal of the poll tax as a basis for voting for all citizens. While liberal elements in the state were putting the pressure on members of the legislature for the poll tax repeal, Democratic party officials, who were opposed to the poll tax repeal, affected a compromise with the passage of the act permitting veterans to vote without payment of the poll tax.

Why Virginia Sleeps

Times Dispatch Richmond Va.

Editor of The Times-Dispatch:

Your April 14 editorial dealing with the political apathy of voters in Virginia is highly praiseworthy and instructive. It should be the awakening call to all those who have been lulled into slumber by political sirens who worked and planned for this tragic state of affairs. 4-19-46

Two things in this involved situation are highly responsible for the present lack of political interest—demagogy and the poll tax. To build a self-perpetuating political machine politicians some years back skillfully maneuvered the people into a one-party system and built their platform on race-baiting and hatred. The best qualified candidate was he who could best keep back the rising tide of color and Romanism. The results were the establishing of a ruling class or family in the State and the restriction of other political aspirants. Some ballots in Virginia have consistently carried the names of certain candidates for years. The common voter wonders what's the use of paying a tax and going to the polls to vote for the same people each time.

The undemocratic, disfranchising poll tax glorified by demagogues contributes its share of evil. An annual tax of $1.50 amounts to a great deal in a few years. Despite the fact servicemen and women were exempt by Federal law from the poll tax while on active duty, it seems very likely that all back taxes accrued during that period must be paid by these veterans before they again can vote! Tim 4-19-46

And what about the thousands of Negroes kept away from the polls by the wily tactics of registrars who insist upon enforcing the grandfather clause, property claim and Constitution interpretation by the applicant? I knew of two Negro voters in Appomattox County both now deceased. There are other sections where Negroes vote freely, of course.

Georgia sued for a progressive platform, abolished the poll tax, abandoned the white primary, and the number of her voters doubled. Why cannot Virginia, that used to be first among the States, at least follow some good examples and cease to be among the least and the last?

NEW ATTACK ON POLL TAX

Times Dispatch Richmond Va.

The pressure against poll tax laws has appeared in a sensational new form this week in a brief filed in the U. S. Supreme Court by the American Civil Liberties Union.

The court is urged to hear a poll tax suit to the Constitution Virginia's representation should be reduced as long as her citizens are hindered from voting by the state. The brief supports an Henry L. Saunders of poll-tax laws. Sat 4-27-46

The ACLU told the Supreme Court that Virginia's representation should be reduced as long as her citizens are hindered from voting by the state poll-tax laws, according to a report released Wednesday by B. Gray Tunstall, city treasurer. Of this number 4,377 are colored, and 22,509 white.

While this does not mean that this number will vote in the Councilmanic election on June 11, it is an indication of the approximate number that may be qualified to cast their ballots at that time. Equally a smaller number vote in the election than the number qualified to vote, and because the payment of the poll tax does not qualify unless one is registered, quite a number of the poll tax payers are not qualified.

The entrance of Victor J. Ashe in the Councilmanic race is expected to stimulate voting among Negro citizens. The positions which will have to be filled in the June election are now held by Mayor James W. Reed, Richard W. Ruffin and C. E. Wright, neither of whom has as yet indicated his desire for re-election. However, George G. Martin Jr., former OPA

Congress' ruling in the apportionment act of 1941 that Virginia is entitled to nine representatives evidently meant that she is only entitled to nine representatives if the right to vote is not illegally curtailed. If the court agrees to hear the case and rules for Saunders, representation in all the poll-tax states will be reduced until the tax is lifted as a condition of voting.

The ACLU brief, signed by Osmond K. Fraenkel and John F. Finerty, of New York City, both constitutional lawyers, says: "It is basically fallacious to treat the Congressional Apportionment act of 1941 either as providing for a minimum total of 435 representatives for the nation or for a minimum apportionment to the State of Virginia of nine representatives. On the contrary, both should be recognized as maximum figures, subject to such reduction as may be required by the Fourteenth Amendment," providing that representation shall be reduced in proportion as the right to vote is abridged.

The brief holds that this is the only interpretation of the Congressional act which squares with the Constitution, and must therefore be what Congress intended. "Such a construction, moreover, has the advantage that should an offending state remove any illegal disenfranchisement, such state would automatically be restored to the number of representatives originally apportioned by Congress."

Saunders' appeal reaches the Supreme Court in the form of a $20,000 damage suit against the Secretary of State for Virginia for refusing to certify him as a candidate for Congressman-at-large in the election of November, 1944. Through his attorney, Moss Plunkett of Roanoke, Va., Saunders is maintaining that under the 14th Amendment Virginia is not entitled to nine representatives who now run in nine districts, and therefore ought to run a reduced number of candidates-at-large. The lower federal courts ruled against him on the ground that representation is not a matter for the courts, but a "political question" up to Congress itself.

We do not believe the Supreme Court can possibly rule in favor of Saunders, but this case well illustrates the constant agitation which may be expected against the poll tax. Sat 4-27-46

No informed observer believes the poll tax can survive much longer. A federal government committed to extension of the ballot has many potent weapons against state restrictions, as Texas and Georgia have found out recently. The time is not far away when Alabamians must face this problem squarely.

Lawyer Sues Virginia On Arbitrary Poll Tax

The Defender Chicago, Ill.

Sat. 7-27-46

ARLINGTON, Va.— (NNPA) — Charging that the "unconstitutional" poll tax will deprive approximately 50,000,000 citizens of the right to vote for him, Lawrence Michael, Virginia Republican candidate for Congress, this week filed suit in federal court against Gov. William M. Tuck and 32 other state officials.

Michael, running from the eighth congressional district, has announced his intentions to carry the suit to the Supreme Court of the United States if the suit is lost in the lower courts.

Charging that the sections of the Virginia constitution are "arbitrary," "unconstitutional," and "unreasonable" and violate the Fifteenth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, Michael disclosed a seven-page petition tracing the illegal history of the poll tax in Virginia. A copy of the petition was sent to Atty. Gen. Tom C. Clark.

Cites History

Asserting that as a prerequisite to Virginia's re-entry into the Union following the Civil War, Congress embodied a clause in the state constitution (Underwood constitution of 1867) safe-guarding the civil and political rights of all citizens, Michael quoted the original clause:

"No amendment of revision shall be made which shall deny or any way impair the right of suffrage or any civil or political right that is conferred by this constitution except for causes which apply to all persons and classes without distinction."

Re-Write Constitution

However, in 1901, Michael added, a Constitutional Convention under the authority of the constitution of 1867, was called in Richmond to "amend and rewrite" the very constitution that served as the basis upon which Virginia is today a sovereign state.

Referring to the records of the convention, Michael avers that convention records contain a statement by the late Sen. Carter Glass to the effect that his only aim in coming to the convention had been to "disqualify 135,000 colored Republicans."

The congressional candidate asked the court to correct this violation of the Fifteenth Amendment and to restrain the commissioners of revenue of his district from assessing any poll tax and to correct their books to show that previous poll tax collections were void.

Va. Poll Tax Suit Dismissed

The Afro-American Baltimore, Md.

RICHMOND—(NNPA)—A suit filed by Lawrence H. Michael, Republican candidate for Congress, to enjoin the collection of the Virginia poll tax in the Eighth District, was dismissed here on Sept. 30 by Federal District Judge Sterling Hutcheson.

The order to sustain the motion for dismissal was returned by Judge Hutcheson after a lengthy hearing. After the announcement, John L. Green, attorney for Michael, candidate from the Eighth Virginia District, filed notice of his intention to appeal the decision. Sat. 10-12-46

Respondents in the suit included Governor Tuck, Attorney General A. P. Staples and the commissioners and treasurers of the 15 counties and cities in the Eighth District. The Governor and the Attorney General were represented by Walter Rogers of the Attorney General's office.

Court Lacked Authority

The State sought dismissal of the suit on the grounds that the district court lacked the authority to nullify a poll tax provision in the State Constitution and that the suit was one which would enjoin the collection of State revenue.

Green's arguments, built, in a large part, around the records of the State Constitutional Convention of 1901-1902, showed, he contended, that the poll tax as a prerequisite to voting was unconstitutional and that its primary purpose was aimed at disfranchising colored people.

In sustaining the motion for dismissal, Judge Hutcheson remarked that as he saw it, the primary question in the matter was "the validity of the payment of the poll tax as a prerequisite of the right to vote."

Rockefeller Foundation Grant for Study of Voting in the South, by the Bureau of Public Administration, University of Alabama.

Voting In The South

Birmingham News

No region in the United States is so much talked about with respect to voting as is the South. Now, under a $40,000 grant from the Rockefeller Foundation, a two-year study of voting processes in the South is to be made. We should learn much about our region from it.

2-2-46

But—lest some head too promptly for the stump—we hasten to point out that the University of Alabama Bureau of Public Administration is to make the investigation. An objective, scientific report is being planned. A Southwide advisory commission of from nine to 15 men will be appointed soon by Dr. Raymond R. Paty, university president, who made the announcement.

We know that, in the South, we have far too many persons who, eligible to vote, rarely get around to casting ballots. Why? We hope to learn the answer. And we know that the poll tax keeps many from voting—how many? What is the specific effect of the poll tax on individuals? Again, we hope to get definite answers from this university survey.

The people of the South should be grateful for the Rockefeller grant, which will be administered by our own University of Alabama. The bureau of public administration at the Capstone, through this project, will be enabled on a sizable scale to serve the people, and this is its good object.

600,000 Negro Votes in South

PM New York, N.Y.

By Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 30. — Negro registered voting strength in the South was estimated at 600,000 as speakers before the Southern Conference for Human Welfare urged liberals to help more Negroes become voting allies against "Southern reactionaries." The estimate was made by Palmer Weber, CIO-PAC research director.

Mrs. Virginia Beecher, executive secretary of the Conference's committee for Virginia, estimated that 10,000 Negroes voted in Virginia's 1945 Democratic primary as against "a potential of 150,000 Negro votes in Virginia that would smother the Byrd machine."

12-1-46

Percy Greene, Negro editor of Jackson, Miss., nominated " for a distinguished service citation" the 2000 Negroes who voted in the Mississippi Democratic primary.

The Menace is Real

The News and Courier Charleston, S.C.

The aim of the leaders in the Society for the Advancement of the Colored people, their ally the C.I.O.-PAC, a politically powerful party, and their advisers among the "intellectuals", is the ultimate absorption of the negroes in the United States by the white race. Mon. 7-1-46

It is the last thing that any of them have the courage to admit.

It is the last thing that any of them would have the courage to deny.

Miscegenation received a great setback by the abolition of slavery. For race separation in the United States, Abraham Lincoln accomplished more than any other man that has lived. It is to the shame of the Southern whites that on many a plantation mulattoes were bred. The News and Courier is not seeking to defend or excuse it.

The great fact is that since the negroes were emancipated, separation of races has steadily widened in the South. The association between negroes and white people has been less and less as the years have passed. Residential separation of the two races is observable everywhere. In few cities has it been more noticeable than in Charleston, South Carolina. What is characteristic of the life in Charleston marks the life in all Southern cities, towns, villages.

These are the facts that concern and alarm "intellectuals", in Northern cities. They explain the agitation that they carry on, the money for propaganda that they spend. They cannot deny their ultimate aim. To deny it would be to ruin their scheming. They would hope to gain their object gradually, by devious and cunning ways, and especially they hope to make advances by attracting some of the Southern whites and contracting with them.

Of these Southern whites, one element is composed of honest "highbrows" who deceive themselves that they perform a holy service to humanity by teaming up with the negro and white combination operating out of New York and Washington.

Another element is scalawag raw material. There is much of it. If the negroes in this state for example shall acquire the habit of voting in numbers (nothing is in the way of it) there will be low fellows to go into partnership with them to get offices and divide offices with them—as there were in the state between 1867 and 1877. This material now is more abundant, in 10 or 20 times the ratio that it was in those years, for the simple reason that the public offices are now 10, 20 or 40 times as many as they were in the "Reconstruction period."

The News and Courier tells, it warns, the white people of the South that the integrity of their race is menaced now more than it has been in 70 years. A movement under direction of men of ability and large resources to destroy it is afoot.

ISSUE ON NEGRO VOTING PONDERED

Mississippi Studies South Carolina Laws

(The Associated Press)

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 7.—South Carolina's election laws, designed to prevent Negroes from voting and to obviate any possibility of federal intervention, were under scrutiny of state officials here this past week as predictions were made no special session of the Mississippi Legislature to change election laws will be called to convene prior to November 20.

For South Carolinians two years ago did just what Mississippi leaders have been planning—putting the primary elections into the hands of the party and making parties sole judges of qualifications—and yet a few Negroes are voting in South Carolina.

But what worries state officials is a threat of a federal court action to force the Democratic party to open its doors to Negroes in the Palmetto State.

Actually fewer than 3000 Negroes were estimated by election officials to have participated in the 1944 general elections, when 95,000 South Carolinians cast ballots and less than a score of Negroes have succeeded in getting their names on Democratic party books. But that few has the state officials wondering if their plans to make Negro voting impossible in Democratic primaries and ineffective in general elections will do the work.

The thing Mississippi officials are watching is to see whether James M. Hinton, chairman of the South Carolina chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, will carry out his repeatedly announced plans to bring a federal suit to gain admittance into the Democratic party for Negroes.

S. C. Democrats Bar Registration

The Afro-American Baltimore, Md.

Say Laws Don't Apply to Lily-White Group

Sat. 7-27-46

COLUMBIA, S.C. — (ANP) — South Carolina Democrats, last week, continued to ignore appeals of colored citizens to register for the primary to be held Aug. 13.

They contend that their "preferential" primary is not a part of the State's election machinery, and that Federal laws and court rulings do not apply locally.

South Carolina abolished all laws governing or affecting the Democratic primary or party organization in 1944, when the Supreme Court ruled that colored persons might participate in the Texas Democratic primary.

Party Untouchable

The South Carolina Democratic party, according to a special rules committee, is a "private, voluntary association of individuals, mutually acceptable to one another."

State party rules stipulate that "white Democrats" only are eligible and the primary is going to be conducted in accordance with that rule, Tom B. Pearce, State Democratic chairman, declared.

Undaunted, the South Carolina chapter of the NAACP and the Progressive Democratic Party are organizing and directing attempts of colored citizens to register for the coming election.

County Bond Issue Defeated

News & Courier

Some 10 per cent of Charleston county's 25,000 registered voters turned out yesterday to administer a thumping defeat to the $895,000 county bond issue sponsored by State Senator O. T. Wallace.

Three of the four propositions appearing on the ballot were defeated in the county precincts and city dwellers simply added to the majorities. Rural voters found favor in the county police short wave system: defeated the abattoir and a public building at Folly beach by large majorities and rejected the $750,000 road and bridge item by 18 votes. Charleston, S.C.

There were 2,445 ballots cast at 43 polling places. In the city's 24 precincts 1,657 ballots were returned and in the 19 county precincts, 788 ballots were cast.

Sharpest defeats were registered on the abattoir and the Folly Beach building. For the latter item 1,784 votes were cast against to 630 for. The county abattoir lost 1,763 to 655.

The highway project lost 1,592 to 804; while the police radio was 827 voters to 1,557 against.

Totals on the propositions by city and county precincts follow:

The returns in the special election were tabulated in the office of Coroner John P. DeVeaux, secretary of the election commission. They are unofficial until the commission meets as a board of canvass to declare the result of the election. Totals are expected to change little from the preliminary figures. The vote will be canvassed next Tuesday. Wed 6-19-46

The four propositions won in the following county and ward boxes:

Highways: John's island, Meggett, James island, Wadmalaw island, North Charleston, St. Philip's and St. Michael's parish, Warren's Crossroad; Ward 3, Box 1, 5-2, 7-2, 9-1, 9-2, 11-1, 11-2.

Abattoir: Meggett, James island, North Charleston, St. Philip's and St. Michael's parish, Warren's Crossroad; Ward 3, Box 1, 5-2, 7-2, 9-2, 11-2.

Folly Beach building: John's island, Meggett, James island, North Charleston, St. Philip's and St. Michael's parish, Warren's Crossroad; Ward 3, Box 1, 5-2, 9-1, 9-2.

Police radio: Midland Park, John's island, Meggett, James island, Wadmalaw island, St. Andrew's parish, North Charleston, St. Philip's and St. Michael's parish, Warren's Crossroad, Edisto island; Ward 3, Box 1, 5-2, 7-2, 9-2, 11-1, 11-2.

An estimated 238 negroes voted in the election. There were 100 reported in county precincts. North Charleston counted 35 and St. Philip's and St. Michael's parish, 65.

ELECTION CONTRASTS—Some precinct managers in yesterday's bond issue election were kept busy and some were not. The top picture shows D. W. Aldous in St. Philip's and St. Michael's parish (navy yard section) swearing a group of voters. Negroes came in large groups to the voting place. In contrast, is the scene below, at Ward 1, shortly before noon. No city work was carried in the bond issue. The managers shown are William W. Humphries and Randell C. Stoney. (Staff Photos by Holcombe.)

In both precincts all items carried.

In the city some 138 were reported. The largest number, 65, were in Ward 12, Box 1. None of the propositions carried in this box. In Ward 11, Box 1, 19 out of 24 votes counted were cast by negroes, it was said. The highway item and the police radio carried in this precinct. In Ward 9, Box 1, one-third of the 36 ballots were said to have been cast by negroes. Here the highway and Folly Beach building carried.

The largest total of ballots was returned from Ward 2, Box 2, where 181 were counted. Next was St. Philip's and St. Michael's parish with 176.

Besides the $750,000 highway item, the borrowing plans amounted to $100,000 for the abattoir; $25,000 for the building at Folly Beach, which would have housed a local police lockup, first aid and comfort stations, and $20,000 for the police radio.

Bond issue legislation grew out of a public hearing last January when nearly 30 persons from communities around the city appeared to tell the legislative delegation their wishes on public improvements. One of the noisiest delegations came from Ferndale, but only a total of 34 votes were cast above North Charleston. Not a single project carried in Ladson, which returned six ballots and only the police radio won in Midland Park, by two votes.

Most of the demands for improvements had come for drainage of low areas but the issue's enabling act made no mention of drainage in its project authorizations. Wed

Last night, Senator Wallace declined to comment on the election.

Political implications were immediately read into the results. Opinion was divided whether the outcome spelled loss of support to Senator Wallace, who seeks reelection this year. Another note was struck when a caller to the newspaper blamed Mayor E. Edward Wehman, Jr., for the defeat and said it sounded his political doom.

It is viewed as significant, however, that voters in the county, where the money would have been spent, defeated three propositions and gave a slender majority to one. None of the borrowed funds would have been spent in the city, yet the city vote merely ratified and extended the county majorities on three propositions and reversed the fourth. 6-19-46

S. C. Negroes Use Up All Blanks; Board Closes Business

Black-Shefield

RIDGELAND, S. C. — (ANP) —The Hampton county registration board here was wholly unprepared for the number of application for voting certificates here Monday and had to close up after only a few hours of work. There simply weren't any more certificates to issue. Sat 6-15-46

More than 100 Negroes, members of the Progressive Democratic party, were waiting when the board opened, the largest group ever to apply in the history of this small county. The board didn't try to discourage or reject them. There wasn't a single rejection. But certificate forms soon ran out and the board apologetically explained to the approximate remaining persons that it was in a dilemma. The procedure has been for members of the board to sign enough certificates in advance to take care of estimated registrants. None remained; but next month, if the applicants would only be sympathetic, an adequate supply would be available.

As the group trekked away a clerk cheerily "now all you be sure to come back next month."

Hampton county has 10,095 Negroes and 7,370 whites.

In South Carolina — where the Democratic primary is equivalent to the election — you can't vote effectively unless you are white. Here is the evidence in black and white. This officially-sponsored ad in a Charleston paper sets forth the rules. Heading item No. 1 is the single word "white." Minimum age of 18 recently set by State Democratic Committee is to make certain of corraling as many white voters as possible if the current battle to retain white primary is lost by die-hards.

Deny Vote To Negroes In Primary

COLUMBIA, S. C.—Eleven Negroes are known to have voted last week in South Carolina's State-wide Democratic primaries although new party rules limit balloting to white citizens. Names of Negroes had been purged from the books "in keeping with orders."

Ten of the thirteen Negroes enrolled in Spartanburg succeeded in voting. No explanation was given.

A colored woman, mistaken for white, voted here in Ward 3, but seven other Negroes, including James M. Hinton, NAACP State president, were turned away when they sought to cast ballots.

VOTE IN ARKANSAS

At the same time, primary elections were being held in Arkansas, but no issue was made of Negroes voting.

Several other South Carolina cities reported Negroes attempted to vote, but were turned away.

Hinton said a suit would be filed in Federal Court within a week against the State Democratic Party. The Courier

The suit, when filed, is expected to involve only denials in Columbia. It is doubted that similar action will be taken in Spartanburg, since some Negroes did vote. However, it was learned this week party officials plan to void the Negro votes.

Interest is focused on the outcome of the court action, which will decide whether or not a State can legally take action to put itself outside the scope of Federal regulations relative to voting. Following the U. S. Supreme Court ruling in the Texas primary case in 1944, South Carolina, in a special legislative session, repealed all laws governing the primary and has since operated the primary as "private clubs." Pittsburgh, Pa.

No attempt of violence was reported when Negroes attempted to vote. Sat. 8-24-46

Hinton and his group were told by Richland County Democratic Chairman John I. Rice: "You boys know your names have been purged from the books in keeping with orders."

Negroes Want US to Force Primary Door

By the Associated Press

Negroes "who are qualified electors" will attempt to vote in the state Democratic primary August 13, the South Carolina Conference of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, wrote the United States department of justice yesterday and "federal intervention to safeguard" their "constitutional rights" was asked.

James M. Hinton, state NAACP president, told the justice department in a letter that when "Negroes presented themselves" for enrolment for the primary they "were denied, or given the run-around." (State Democratic party rules prescribe that only "white Democrats" are eligible for enrolment).

"The primary in South Carolina has been, and still is, the real election, since nomination in the primary is tantamount to election," Hinton's letter said, "and the denial of this constitutional right to Negroes leaves them bereft of the exercise of franchise. . . .

"The South Carolina State Conference of NAACP is requesting action from the department of justice to assure all Negroes who present themselves for voting that right and privilege.

"We are asking for federal intervention to safeguard the constitutional rights of qualified Negro electors."

Hinton wrote that "members of the United States house of representatives are to be chosen" in the primary "and Negroes wish to have a voice in the selection, as well as a voice in selecting the governor . . . ."

Negro Ballot Issue Is Sent To Washington

United States District Attorney Claud N. Sapp said today that he had referred the matter of Negro vote denial in Columbia to the United States department of justice.

Mr. Sapp said he had asked the justice department for advice on the matter.

Attorney General Tom Clark announced recently that Negroes would be aided in their campaign to vote in primaries and general elections.

The protest against the denial of the right to enrol on the club books occurred recently in two city wards in which affidavits were made and referred to Mr. Sapp as district attorney.

No word has yet been received from Washington, D. C., since the refusals were brought to attention of federal authorities.

Despite the protests, John I. Rice, county party chairman, said the "party rules still stand" and has authorized enrolment secretaries to "continue to refuse to allow unauthorized persons to place their names upon the books."

Johnston Denies Pearson's Charge On Negro Voting

The News and Courier Charleston, S. C. Sun. 7-7-46

(By a Special Correspondent)

Washington, July 6: Tipped off in advance that Columnist Drew Pearson was taking him over the coals Sunday morning for his attitude on negro voting, Senator Olin D. Johnston tonight issued a reply simultaneous with publication of the Pearson column.

Pearson said that in Mr. Roosevelt's first term as president, Mr. Johnston was governor of South Carolina and "made the unprecedented move of permitting negroes to contribute funds to the Democratic state committee." "With pathos in voice," continued Pearson, "the then governor of South Carolina used to tell visitors how these fine colored folks stood in line to contribute 25 cents or a dollar to Democratic campaigns.

"Some of them can spare only 10 cents," Johnston told this columnist. "But we don't care how much it is, as long as it's a fair Democratic party. Just the same it's a fine thing." Pearson went on to say that it is time means to rid our nation of this scandal monger and character destroyer.

Mr. Johnston-Smith campaigns for the negro's sympathetic friend, so far as voting is concerned. Even President Roosevelt had occasion to call Pearson a liar. It seems to me that we should find some means to rid our nation of this scandal monger and character destroyer.

Negro Voting In The South

By Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—In Georgia, for the first time, the Negroes voted in really important numbers this year—80,000 seems the best estimate of the Negro vote. Elsewhere, they have voted in greater numbers than ever before. The result—the Southerners of every political stripe are agreed that one follows on the other—has been that in most states with an important Negro minority the movement to disenfranchise the Negro once and for all has been greatly strengthened. This movement exists not only in Talmadge's Georgia or Bilbo's Mississippi. It also exists in the liberal oasis, Alabama, where the racial issue was not raised in this year's political contest. That is the measure of the depth of feeling on the racial issue in the deep South.

Georgia and Mississippi, if the plans of the Bilbo and Talmadge political camps succeed, intend to imitate the example of South Carolina. The Supreme Court decision, which confirmed the right of Negro citizens to vote in the Democratic primaries, was based on the state laws of Texas. South Carolina has in effect by-passed the decision merely by repealing all its state laws dealing with the primary. The primary thus becomes a private affair, extra-legal—much as if every person with red hair or the name of Smith banded together to nominate a candidate—and in South Carolina the primary has been exclusively white. A move is on foot to test the constitutionality of this device before the Supreme Court, but in the meantime the Talmadgites and the Bilboites are for it.

* * *

IN ALABAMA another device has been proposed to accomplish the same end. It is called the Boswell amendment, and the citizens of Alabama will either approve or reject it this November. There is no doubt in anyone's mind as to its purpose; its sponsors have stated frankly that it is designed to keep the Negroes from voting. The vote would be restricted to those who can "understand and explain" the constitution. As pointed out by Col. Richard Rives, of Montgomery, one of the leaders of the liberal Hill-Sparkman camp in Alabama politics, Justice Felix Frankfurter would undoubtedly be obliged in all conscience to disenfranchise Justice Hugo Black under the terms of the amendment, and vice versa. The uses which an unscrupulous machine politician of the stripe of Huey Long, could make of this kind of regulation not only against Negroes, but against whites of the opposite political camp, are all too obvious.

The amendment has the approval of the powerful Democratic Executive Committee, and at the moment the betting is that it will be approved. Yet the degree of opposition to the kind of "solution" of the racial issue offered by the Boswell amendment is often underestimated outside the South.

There is in fact a powerful party in almost every Southern state of those who believe sincerely that that qualified Negroes should be given the vote. Sometimes this is a mere pious and public wish, but more often it is sincere. Yet all these men are gradualists. They would slowly work the Negroes into the existing political system, in such a way that a bloc Negro vote, the nightmare of all white Southerners, should be avoided.

* * *

MORAL JUDGMENT to one side, it is important to realize that this is about the position on the racial issue held by the great majority of those men who are leading the fight against Bilboism in the South. It is politically important to the rest of the country, both that strong opposition to Bilboism exists, and that the leaders of this opposition are all gradualists. For nothing can be more obvious than that, whether Northern idealists like it or not, Bilboism will be beaten, if it is beaten at all, by Southerners.

Such men believe, rightly or wrongly, that if the South is given time it will eventually reach a point where the Negroes can achieve political and economic equality with the whites. But it is unrealistic to blink the fact that social segregation is still a firmly rooted part of the whole Southern cultural pattern. Even Southern CIO leaders will tell you that it will be generations before Jim Crow is eliminated. It may surprise many Northerners to find that in the CIO itself a mild form of Jim Crow is practiced. There is complete voting and economic equality between whites and Negroes in a union, but at a meeting the whites will sit on one side of the hall, and the Negroes on the other. If a union social function is scheduled, there is one for the whites and one for the Negroes, and they take place under separate roofs.

The CIO in fact practices what the Southern gradualists preach: political and economic equality and social segregation. That such a compromise is unsatisfactory in a democracy goes without saying. But it is fatuous to imagine that more can be achieved in the measurable future. And any Southerner, CIO leaders included, will tell you that ever this will not happen overnight. It will take a long long time.—©.

The Inside Outsiders

Thurs. 10-31-46

This year, on election day, November 5, while the rest of the nation is trooping to the polls, the 300,000 adult Americans who reside in our fair capital city of Washington will have a chance to go through the same motions.

It is a chance they have, in exasperation, given themselves. Since their election won't count, the whole thing is rather pathetic. It is like the children playing tea party with colored water in the nursery while the family has the real stuff downstairs.

Perry

To mark the difference, the Washingtonians are calling their election a plebiscite—a "foreign" term of loose meaning here. The questions on the ballot will be:

¶ "Do you want the right to vote for officials of your own city government in the District of Columbia?

¶ "Do you want the right to vote for President of the United States and for members of Congress from the District of Columbia?"

It is silly to ask such questions, it would seem, of Americans suckled on the belief that taxation without representation is evil. But the constitutional ban against the suffrage in the capital is one of those reservations about democracy of which unfortunately our nation always has been capable.

It is intended that the plebiscite will help along the proposed Sumners - Capper amendment that would allow Washingtonians to vote for representation in Congress. It will do no harm, the Washingtonians have thought, to show Congress at the same time that the people would rather choose their own municipal officers than have government-by-Bilbo thrust upon them.

I hope they are right. I think I know how they feel. As one of those who have been working for years to clear the right to vote of millions in the South whose suffrage has been taxed I have an honest sympathy for political neuters anywhere. Without the suffrage they are dispossessed of the prime substance of citizenship. They have no part in vox dei. I have seen these people of Washington often. They are strangely like the rest of us. Because of their near and constant exposure to government-in-the-making, they are if anything, I suspect, better qualified than the rest of us to cast an intelligent vote. The taxi-drivers are, as everybody knows.

With a relatively high literacy, these Washingtonians must have been reading somewhere (possibly in the hand-written Constitution of the United States) that the vote is a right. Living within earshot of the halls of Congress, they certainly have been hearing for over a century about the "preciousness" of the ballot. If what they have read and have been told for so long has given them ideas, they really can't be blamed.

I don't know that our lords of the U. S. Senate, wh. have callously juggled the plight of the South's voteless for the past decade, will be more inclined to accede to the plaint of the voteless Washingtonians. A typical answer would be that the Washingtonians are barred from voting only by their "indifference" or their "laziness": That they would maintain "voting residences" elsewhere if it mattered to them. This would be of the same sophistry that insists the poll tax is no obstacle, that the Southerners would pay and vote "if they want to."

I admire the people of Washington for what they are trying to do. With their help the last great battle of the American Revolution yet may be won.

Voting Is Quiet In the South's 'Trouble Spots'

Total Vote Is Low Due To Lack of Issues

Wed. 11-6-46

ATLANTA, Nov. 5—(UP)—Fears that election disorders might break out in some areas of Tennessee and Arkansas, where Army veterans opposed local machines, turned out to be groundless today as the South formally elected Democratic candidates to office.

Only in scattered races was there any doubt about the outcome. One was the congressional race in Georgia's Fifth District (Atlanta), where Incumbent Representative Helen Douglas Mankin waged a strong write-in campaign against Democratic Candidate James C. Davis.

Threats of violence had been raised in Polk County, Tenn., which adjoins McMinn, site of Athens, Tenn., where war veterans violently overthrew the Burch Biggs political machine last August.

Veterans Back GOP

The Biggs machine also controls Polk County, and a veterans group backed a Republican ticket there against the Democrats.

Other veterans had organized to oust local machines in Crockett County, Tenn., and in several Arkansas counties.

In Alabama, voters balloted on an amendment to the State constitution which would change a requirement that voters be able to read and write any section of the United States Constitution to one requiring them to "understand" any section.

The amendment was aimed at Negroes, who have been permitted to vote in Alabama Democratic primaries because of Supreme Court rulings.

James E. Folsom, who was elected Governor of Alabama in today's election, opposed the amendment, along with some church and civic groups.

In Georgia, Eugene Talmadge, who won nomination on a white supremacy platform, was formally elected Governor. He is pledged to bar Negro voting. In Mississippi, Senator Theodore G. Bilbo was returned to office without Republican opposition.

Because of lack of issues and lack of Republican candidates in many races, voting generally was light throughout the South.

POLITICIANS QUAKE

Ga. 'Bosses' Discuss Appeasement Policies

RICHMOND, Va. — That non-white citizens make up by far the largest single group interested in political changes for the benefit of labor and the masses was revealed by a study of votes cast in the latest elections in Georgia and Virginia.

This year, when for the first time colored citizens of those States voted in appreciable numbers, they are credited with supporting liberal candidates in every primary election.

It was the vote of the non-white citizens of Georgia which gave James V. Carmichael a majority of the popular vote over Eugene Talmadge; and in Virginia, they voted overwhelmingly for Martin A. Hutchinson, who opposed Sen. Harry F. Byrd.

Politicans Fear Vote

Fear of the potential liberal colored vote has reached such proportions in Chatham County, Ga. that municipal politicians are said to be considering letting the city primary in December go by default.

The action would be based on the hope that the Talmadge administration, which is to take office in January, will be successful in restoring the "white primary" for Georgia.

Consider Making Concessions

So interested are white politicians in controlling the potential colored vote in the South that in some municipalities, they are considering opening police, fire and public works departments to colored employees, it was revealed.

This is particularly true in Savannah, Ga. (Chatham County), where the colored vote has been exceptionally well-organized and highly effective thus far.

Vote Barriers Watched

These maneuverings are watched, however, with the background of the manipulations of the potential vote. Of the 60,000 colored men of the city, a block organization was thrown into action during the last primary that turned out most of the potential vote. Of the 60,000 were colored. Led by the professional aries like Senator Bilbo and Governor-elect Talmadge throttle their exercise of the right to vote, their aid can be depended upon in defeating the conservative rings and machines in local politics.

Survey Shows Negro Vote Growing Strong In South

Defender Chicago, Ill.
Sat. 9-14-46

By ENOC P. WATERS JR.
(Defender Staff Correspondent)

Challenging possibilities of a Negro-Progressive alliance to unseat entrenched Dixie bourbonism, came into sharp focuse this week as pre-election primaries came to an end with a survey showing the Negro voter had established an all-time record for successfully crashing the traditional lily-white southern primary.

However, although thousands of black voters cut a deep swath into antiquated political bias, thousands more were kept from the polls by ingenious trickery and outright intimidation, defying the two-year old Supreme Court decision opening the primaries to disfranchised Negroes. The battle is not yet won—it has just had a successful beginning.

Though some states quietly complied with the ruling handed down in the now famous Texas primary case which is applicable throughout the South, others have and still are resisting.

Opposition Local

In some states like Oklahoma and Louisiana, Negroes were voting in the Democratic primaries even before the Supreme Court ruling of April 1944. In others such as Virginia, North Carolina, Texas, Mississippi, Alabama, and Georgia, while the state central Democratic committees offered no resistance, there was local opposition to Negroes voting, offered principally by registrars who quickly developed techniques to discourage Negroes.

South Carolina and Arkansas resorted to legislative action to circumvent the Supreme Court decision. In the former, all laws relating to the primary were wiped off the statute books, and the Democratic party became a private club for membership in which only whites were eligible. The legality of this device is to be tested in a case, the groundwork for which has already been laid by the state NAACP.

In Arkansas, the state and federal primaries were divorced and Negroes barred from participation in the former. The Arkansas Supreme Court recently placed its stamp of approval on this technique. However, the fight against it will be taken to the United States Supreme Court.

In Florida state Democratic bosses discussed ways and means of keeping Negroes from voting when they met at Jacksonville last spring, but took no formal action.

Heaviest Negro vote cast to date was in Georgia and Texas. In each more than 100,000 Negroes exercised their franchises. But even in these two states there were local instances of Negroes being barred.

In sections of Tennessee, Oklahoma and Kentucky there is considerable Republican strength and one of the biggest quandries of Negro voters is whether to flock to one or the other of the parties or to split their strength between them.

In the face of pre-election threats against Negro voters and the legion of techniques employed to discourage them, the showing made throughout the South by Negroes in the several primaries is not only encouraging, but is indicative of a courage that many felt the southern Negro lacked.

Coalition Beginning

In states like Texas and Georgia where Negro voters made a great show of strength there are the beginnings of a coalition between progressive white Democrats and Negro Democrats. A continuation of this trend could conceivably lead to the upset of entrenched reactionaries.

The fate of Negro candidates for various offices, many of whom were premature since the Negro vote had not been solidified and the voters themselves were not experienced was generally unfortunate.

Except for victories in all-Negro, or mostly Negro precincts Negro candidates were beaten. According to available records no Negroes were elected to positions or posts of any importance that they had not held before. However on the basis of experience gained in some campaigns, particularly the strong councilmanic race of Victor Ashe in Norfolk, it is believed that Negroes might be able to be more successful later on.

Perhaps the most hopeful sign is that in many places Negroes are maintaining their interest in registering and voting even during the lull between primaries.

On a broader scale the whole South has been benefitted by the political activity of Negroes. Everywhere that Negroes voted, more whites qualified and cast ballots.

Negro Voting Strength Cited At Conference

Times-Dispatch Richmond, Va.
Sun. 12-1-46

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 30—(AP)—Negro registered voting strength in the South was estimated at 600,000 as speakers before the Southern Conference for Human Welfare urged liberals to help more Negroes become voting allies against "Southern reactionaries."

Th 600,000 estimate was made in a speech by Palmer Weber, director of research for CIO-PAC, who declared, "this year for the first time young Negroes broke through in large numbers to use the ballot."

Mrs. Virginia Beecher, executive secretary of the conference's committee for Virginia, estimated that 10,000 Negroes voted in the 1945 Democratic primary in that State. She asserted there was "a potential of 150,000 Negro votes in Virginia that would smother the Byrd machine."

'Task Cited'

The first task of liberals is to eliminate the "fear complex" that keeps Negroes away from the polls, declared Percy Greene, Negro editor of Jackson, Miss. He said a national civil rights statute was needed.

"About 2,000 Negroes voted in the last Democratic primary, the first such vote in Mississippi in 70 years," Greene asserted. "They voted after a campaign that was one of the most violent, vicious, vulgar and unchristian in all the history of Mississippi. I nominate those 2,000 for a distinguished service citation. Their example undoubtedly had its effect on thousands of others in other States."

He said Senator Bilbo (D-Miss.) had opened the 1946 campaign two years in advance with a speech at a joint session of the Legislature in which "he asked that the doctrine of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man be eliminated from the pulpit and that any white man who preached it should be run out of Mississippi."

Will The Negroes Vote?

Washington Post D.C.

IN LESS THAN a month the CIO begins its all-out campaign to sign up the unorganized white and Negro workers of the South, and thus to break the power of the reactionaries in the Democratic Party's Southern wing. It is really the thought of this campaign which is making the Southerners in Congress foam with public rage against Postmaster General Robert Hannegan, who has officially blessed the CIO plan. In the long view, moreover, the CIO campaign may well prove the most significant political event of our time. For it will test the stability of the South's peculiar political setup. And this setup has been a central fact in American politics for about 70 years.

Wed. 4-10-46

The CIO aim is a million and a quarter new members in the South in the next 10 months, mainly in the textile, lumber, turpentine and steel industries. CIO strategists believe that they enjoy a peculiar advantage at present, when they have established an 18½ per cent wage increase as Administration policy. The effect of the campaign on the low-wage areas of the Southern economy could be immensely important. It is nevertheless more important still that the frankly avowed CIO aim is franchise for the Negro in the parts of the South where no Negro has previously voted.

IT IS A mistake to assume that extension of the franchise to the Negro is entirely novel in the South. Negro voting had a share, for example, in the CIO effort to defeat Representative Martin Dies, which is already known to be the model of the present CIO campaign. The job on Dies was done by James Carey, who has been a member of the National CIO staff ever since Communist factions drove him from his Electrical Workers' Union. Carey went out to Dies' Texas district, found that the Negroes and poorer white workers were not voting, and encouraged them to do so, partly by paying a good many poll taxes with CIO funds. Paying the poll tax and registering to vote was required of all members by the Oil Workers Union which is strong in the district.

Thus when Dies went to Texas to file for election, he found that he could not survive the fire that had been built under him. He announced his retirement from Congress with a loud blast against "Communists"—which is one thing that Carey, who hates Communists almost as much as Dies, quite certainly is not. Carey, who will play a considerable part in the larger campaign now in prospect, has said that CIO's idea is "ultimately to take the profit out of discrimination."

THE SAME METHODS which beat Dies will be used in the new campaign. Workers will be organized. They will be urged to pay their poll taxes and where necessary given financial aid in doing so. And they will be required to register and vote. As far as the Negroes are concerned, the CIO campaign will, of course, be greatly assisted by the Supreme Court decisions outlawing white primaries and spelling out the voting equality guaranteed under the fifteenth amendment of the Constitution.

These Supreme Court decisions may be expected to bear fruit long before the CIO campaign, which is starting too late to influence many primaries this year. In Texas, Alabama and Florida, the ballot boxes have already been officially opened to the Negroes. In Georgia, Negro votes are reported to have helped Representative Helen Mankin in her recent Atlanta fight against 17 other contestants. Negroes have voted in Kentucky, Virginia, Oklahoma, North Carolina and Tennessee. In fact, white primaries and white elections will only be maintained this year in Arkansas, Mississippi and South Carolina.

In some of these States Negroes voted before in special areas. In all of them, during the immediate future, Negro voting will undoubtedly be much rarer, more local and more sporadic than white voting. But it is important that eight States which formerly had white primaries now have primaries in which some Negroes will vote.

ALL THIS DRIVES Southern Democrats of the type of Representative John Rankin of Mississippi into a sort of incoherent frenzy.

4-10-46

"It's a Communist plot," he said, when asked about the CIO organizing campaign. "That's what I know about it. They'll be down there buying elections. They'll be trying to give the Nigger a vote. No Nigger will ever run against me. Of course, we slipped up once. We let them beat Martin Dies and Joe Sarnes. We're all asleep at the switch. They're takin' over the country; we got to stop them if we want this country."

There was more than a trace of evident fear in Rankin's remarks, which were delivered in a tone half way between a yelp and a bellow. Every sensible Southerner joins every Northerner who does not belong to the lunatic right in regarding Representative Rankin as one of the least appetizing figures in American politics. But although he speaks with hysteria, what he says has some meaning.

It has meaning for a very simple reason. If the CIO campaign is successful, the days of Rankins are numbered in most parts of the South. But if it fails, it will confirm the power of the Rankins and their kin in many areas, and it will make them a lot worse. In short, the CIO runs the risk of inflaming the very condition it desires to cure. It is an immense gamble.

Political Stirring In The Deep South

Norfolk Va.

AS A RESULT of the ban on traditional "white" primaries, colored citizens during the past six weeks, for the first time in the deep South since Reconstruction, either prepared to or exercised their political franchise in primaries.

Sat 4-13-46

At least 32,000 colored voters participated on a state-wide basis in Florida; an undetermined number, with veterans swelling the ranks cast their ballots in Alabama; and in Fulton County, Georgia, where heretofore no more than 5,000 had voted, the local All-Citizens Registration Committee spearheaded a drive, the results of which showed nearly 25,000 persons registered to vote in the 1946 state primary and general elections. In other sections of Georgia also, colored citizens took advantage of their newly won privilege to appear at the polls.

Evidently then, a political stirring is gradually getting underway in the deep South. This is good. The movement stems primarily from the desire of the more consciously democratic citizenry to comply with the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the Texas case, which held that Negroes could not be barred from primaries because of race or color; and the determination of an that span of time, America's one-tenth has proven that it has achieved more maturity, that it is loyal, dependable, courageous, and a valuable segment of the national citizenry—that in spite of the innumerably imposed hardships and handicaps.

It is a far cry from the days of the "carpet bagger" to the present. In the reported resurgence of the Ku Klux Klan in Georgia, Florida, and Tennessee, among other states.

Fully aware of the Negro's right to full citizenship is the intelligent America now striving to make the Four Freedoms a beacon for a confused world on the brink of disaster. Hence it is not believed that an enlightened people, regardless of race, will stand by passively and permit any organization whose unsavory record bespeaks an American brand of the Nazi Gestapo, to upset domestic accord by an attempt to deprive any minority of its legally sanctioned rights on these shores.

A noteworthy example of the forthright action taken in Dixie to combat the KKK was made during the past week in Atlanta, when the Georgia Legislative Council, a labor organization, demanded immediate action by the Treasury Department and the Federal Bureau of Investigation to crush the renewed activity of the Ku Klux Klan. This move is probably exemplary of a considerable cross-section of the national sentiment. Sat. 8-25-46

The Negro in the deep South, in spite of this dissonant note in national relationships is exercising the political franchise. This is being done calmly and judiciously. He will continue to do so in increasing numbers through organization and able leadership. All of which portends in post-war America, political representation more conscious of its obligations to all of the people in state and national affairs.

PAC SEES LARGER DIXIE NEGRO VOTE

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 19. (AP) — Organization of labor politically and negro voting may be the leven which will make the south politically progressive, according to Henry Lee Moon of Detroit, assistant to the chairman of the CIO-PAC.

The impact of the CIO's organizing campaign, together with that of the AFL, in the south "will inevitably be reflected in political activity," Moon said yesterday, speaking before the Institute of Race Relations as it neared the end of a three-week session at Fisk University.

The south, he said, already is more progressive than in the past, as is evidenced by removal of the poll tax in some states, increasing negro voting, enfranchisement of 18-year-olds in one state and labor union growth.

Jennings Perry, associate editor of the Nashville Tennessean, asserted that voting is a right and not a privilege, and "is the sole protector of every other liberty in a democracy."

Birmingham, Ala., News

Negro Voting In The South

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—In Georgia, for the first time, the Negroes voted in really important numbers this year—80,000 seems the best estimate of the Negro vote. Elsewhere, they have voted in greater numbers than ever before. The result—the Southerners of every political stripe are agreed that one follows on the other—has been that in most states with an important Negro minority the movement to disenfranchise the Negro once and for all has been greatly strengthened. This movement exists not only in Talmadge's Georgia or Bilbo's Mississippi. It also exists in the liberal oasis, Alabama, where the racial issue was not raised in this year's political contest. That is the measure of the depth of feeling on the racial issue in the deep South.

Georgia and Mississippi, if the plans of the Bilbo and Talmadge political camps succeed, intend to imitate the example of South Carolina. The Supreme Court decision, which confirmed the right of Negro citizens to vote in the Democratic primaries, was based on the state laws of Texas. South Carolina has in effect by-passed the decision merely by repealing all its state laws dealing with the primary. The primary thus becomes a private affair, extra-legal—much as if every person with red hair or the name of Smith banded together to nominate a candidate—and in South Carolina the primary has been exclusively white. A move is on foot to test the constitutionality of this device before the Supreme Court, but in the meantime the Talmadgites and the Bilboites are for it.

* * *

IN ALABAMA another device has been proposed to accomplish the same end. It is called the Boswell amendment, and the citizens of Alabama will either approve or reject it this November. There is no doubt in anyone's mind as to its purpose; its sponsors have stated frankly that it is designed to keep the Negroes from voting. The vote would be restricted to those who can "understand and explain" the constitution. As pointed out by Col. Richard Rives, of Montgomery, one of the leaders of the liberal Hill-Sparkman camp in Alabama politics, Justice Felix Frankfurter would undoubtedly be obliged in all conscience to disenfranchise Justice Hugo Black under the terms of the amendment, and vice versa. The uses which an unscrupulous machine politician, of the stripe of Huey Long, could make of this kind of regulation not only against Negroes, but against whites of the opposite political camp, are all too obvious.

The amendment has the approval of the powerful Democratic Executive Committee, and at the moment the betting is that it will be approved. Yet the degree of opposition to the kind of "solution" of the racial issue offered by the Boswell amendment is often underestimated outside the South.

There is in fact a powerful party in almost every Southern state of those who believe sincerely that that qualified Negroes should be given the vote. Sometimes this is a mere pious and public wish, but more often it is sincere. Yet all these men are gradualists. They would slowly work the Negroes into the existing political system, in such a way that a bloc Negro vote, the nightmare of all white Southerners, should be avoided.

* * *

MORAL JUDGMENT to one side, it is important to realize that this is about the position on the racial issue held by the great majority of those men who are leading the fight against Bilboism in the South. It is politically important to the rest of the country, both that strong opposition to Bilboism exists, and that the leaders of this opposition are all gradualists. For nothing can be more obvious than that, whether Northern idealists like it or not, Bilboism will be beaten, if it is beaten at all, by Southerners.

Such men believe, rightly or wrongly, that if the South is given time it will eventually reach a point where the Negroes can achieve political and economic equality with the whites. But it is unrealistic to blink the fact that social segregation is still a firmly rooted part of the whole Southern cultural pattern. Even Southern CIO leaders will tell you that it will be generations before Jim Crow is eliminated. It may surprise many Northerners to find that in the CIO itself a mild form of Jim Crow is practiced. There is complete voting and economic equality between whites and Negroes in a union, but at a meeting the whites will sit on one side of the hall, and the Negroes on the other. If a union social function is scheduled, there is one for the whites and one for the Negroes, and they take place under separate roofs.

The CIO in fact practices what the Southern gradualists preach: political and economic equality, and social segregation. That such a compromise is unsatisfactory in a democracy goes without saying. But it is fatuous to imagine that more can be achieved in the measurable future. And any Southerner, CIO leaders included, will tell you that even this will not happen overnight. It will take a long, long time.—©.

Dixie Attempts New Schemes to Bar Negro Vote

The Argus
St. Louis, Mo.
Fri. 9-13-46

COLUMBIA, S. C. — (ANP) — Various schemes have been adopted in southern states to circumvent decisions of the United States Supreme court prohibiting election officials in the South from barring Negroes from the Democratic primaries, it was disclosed last week by a review of events in several localities by Negro leaders here and in other sections of the south.

More Negroes voted in this year's primaries in the south than ever before. In the Democratic primary in Georgia alone, about 100,000 Negroes cast their vote. Georgia Democrats resorted mostly to intimidation to prevent Negroes from voting.

In Arkansas strategists of the Democratic party engineered the separation of the party primary from federal elections. Recently the Arkansas Supreme court held that this law was valid.

Democratic leaders in Alabama have relied mostly on a drastic poll tax requirement for voting to hold down the number of Negro voters. The vote of Negro veterans who didn't have to pay the poll tax helped to swell the number of Negroes at the poll.

A big battle is one in South Carolina between Negro voters led by the Progressive Democratic party and white Democrats. It appears that the strategy of Negro Democratic leaders is to make cause with progressive white Democrats and liberal white voters including union members so as to gain sufficient strength through the unity of these groups to control party politics in the state.

White Democrats in South Carolina have always feared the Negro vote, not because any number of them vote, but because of the heavy Negro population. The same fear exists in Mississippi.

Tennessee and North Carolina have had less reasons to fear the Negro vote even though payment of the poll tax for voting is not required in the latter state. In both states Negroes vote on pretty much the same motives as the whites. 9-13-46

Negroes voted for the first time in Florida last spring, although the state does not require payment of the poll tax in order to vote. Other voting restrictions prohibited Negroes from voting in the past. These restrictions were no doubt followed to discourage Negroes from voting since the state has a large Negro population.

VOTING IN THE SOUTH

colored people are conscious of the fact that acquisition and intelligent use of the ballot is one of the most important means of achieving political emancipation.

I ran across an old sweetheart of mine recently and, as we reminisced over school days, I asked her why she refused to marry me when I popped the question and assured her that I would wait until we both had graduated and were well on our way to success in life. Her reply was, "You took 'no' for an answer."

Millions of returning veterans and others of our group in the deep South are seeking the ballot and they are not taking no for an answer. The significance of this is reflected by what happened in Birmingham recently.

A group of fifty colored veterans sought to become registered voters and were turned down. They reported their experiences to a group of citizens known as the United Registration Council.

This group decided to turn the light of pitiless publicity upon the refusal to register these qualified veterans and others by spreading the truth in paid full-page advertisements in the two local daily newspapers and the two local leading weekly newspapers, with a combined circuation of upward of a quarter million readers. The advertisement read:

"QUALIFIED TO VOTE BUT DENIED CHANCE

"Every registration period held by the Jefferson County Board of Registrars witnesses the mass rejection of Negro citizens as voters. This is especially true of Negro veterans. Twenty-one such veterans who were rejected without good cause on January 23 have appealed to the Circuit Court. Their cases are set for June 24.

"Scores more were refused June 3 They have protested in vain. Open letters to Governor Sparks in newspapers have brought no relief. Letters to editors and editorial comment have not eased the situation. The appeal is now directly up to the people of Jefferson County and the State of Alabama.

"The issue is clear-cut: Registration practices are not the same for white and Negro veterans. No white veterans are known to have been refused. Seldom are any Negro veterans registered. Washington, D.C.

"The Negro veterans are not asking for special favors. They seek to exercise their citizenship right by registering on the basis of their qualifications—on the same basis of their former white comrades in arms.

"WHAT THE LAW PROVIDES: Alabama law requires that an applicant be the possessor of $300 worth of taxable property or be able to read or write any section of the United States Constitution in the English language, in order to register as a voter. Trib. 7-2-4

"Every veteran with an honorable discharge presents evidence of measuring up to Army literacy requirements. The honorable discharge therefore, should be strong and satisfactory evidence in his favor.

"This is properly the case with regard to white veterans, who are registered automatically upon presenting their discharges and demonstrating the further proof of their literacy which is involved in filling in the oath of application.

"It is not true of Negro veterans. Among those who have been rejected are those with high school and college training, some who own property and operate successful business concerns; others who were non-coms and commissioned officers in the service.

"PRACTICES AND TACTICS: The following recital of facts is based on countless experiences of Negro veterans at the office of the Jefferson County Board:

"With his application form filled in correctly, his honorable discharge papers in hand, the veteran appears before the board. He may be asked such questions as:

" 'What kind of government have we?'

" 'How is a congressman elected?'

" 'What must a political party do to win'

"Or he may be asked to read and explain or interpret a section of the Constitution to the satisfaction of the Board. This done, he is likely to be told, " 'If you are registered you will hear from us. We are taking your application under advisement.'

"Usually that is the last word the veteran receives from the Board.

"Or, he may be rejected on the spot—without explanation. Trib. 7-2-46

"A fair proportion of the seats in the office of the Board of Registrars is not provided for Negro applicants to complete their application forms. In addition, about one Negro is admitted to the office of the registrars to every 10 white. And this is a most generous estimate.

"YOU SHOULD KNOW THE TRUTH: It is an unseemly commentary on our political institutions when men and women who fought for their country cannot vote in their country. It is an irony which America can ill afford, that the hateful ideologies which these vote rejectees helped to put down abroad are erected against them at the office of the Jefferson County Board of Registrars.

"We do not believe our white comrades know of these injustices. We do not believe the citizens who demonstrated the vitality of our political institutions by voting in such large numbers in the recent elections will any longer tolerate the systematic and pernicious flouting of the established law by the Board of Registrars.

"We believe the public will come to our rescue where the governor of this state and local officials have not. Washington

"WHAT CITIZENS CAN DO ABOUT IT. Citizens can speak for fair registration practices. They can speak out against public servants who deny registration to any citizen because of bias or for personal or arbitrary reasons. They can insist that the board of registrars perform its duties according to law—one law for all people. D. C.

"You, as an Alabamian, proud of our state and its democratic destiny, are asked to:

"1. Call for an investigation of the registration practices alleged by Negro war veterans and other citizens of color.

"2. Ask the governor, on the basis of established evidence, to replace the present board with officials who respect the law of the state they are paid to serve.

"3. Observe for yourself the practices of the board at the courthouse on June 17 and from June 24 through July 5 registration days.

"Unless democracy works for all, it works for none. Fair voter registration practices is an indispensable factor in improved race relations. Men who face bullets overseas deserve ballots at home.

"You, the citizens of Jefferson County and Alabama who love democracy enough to support it, can change this condition. You are asked to act now, to make your voices heard as the sovereign rulers of this state."

Democratic Primaries And the Negro Voter

SOUTHERN STATES, which since Reconstruction days have used "grandfather clauses," white primaries or other means to prevent Negroes from voting, are casting about now to circumvent the United States supreme court ruling in the Texas case.

We regret to see that a movement has been initiated in Florida for this purpose. Alabama is preparing to vote on a state constitutional amendment in November to keep the Negro from the polls.

To understand the means to which some political leaders are turning to accomplish this end, it is necessary to know that the federal court held that as long as the state government regulates and finances a primary, that primary must be open to Negroes who properly qualify as voters.

Florida and Alabama are taking different courses toward the same objective. In Florida Sen. John E. Mathews of Duval county has prepared a lengthy pamphlet in which he contends that CIO Communists are seeking to control the Negro vote and that the Negro can exercise the balance of power in Democratic primaries. To maintain the white purity of the party, he urges passage of a law to divorce the primaries from the state government. South Carolina has done this successfully, he says.

On the other hand, Alabama is considering an amendment which would require prospective voters to be able "to understand and explain" the United States Constitution to a board of registrars before they can be registered as voters. The registrars in each county would be appointed by the governor, state auditor and state commissioner of agriculture. Appeals could be taken from this board to a jury without giving security for costs or without hiring a lawyer. The proposed amendment also would repeal an old provision giving the right of registration to anyone with property worth as much as $300.

Theoretically, the Alabama proposal is a good one. It would apply equally to illiterate whites as to Negroes and should raise the quality of intelligence of the electorate. If it could be fairly enforced, we would favor it even though the supreme court never had ruled in the Texas case, for we believe electors should know something of the principles of their republican government before they are allowed to vote. But what about its enforcement? Is anyone gullible enough to believe that the board, or even the juries, would be unbiased in their decisions? And these decisions might be against a white man who they considered "radical" as well as against a Negro.

Prior to the last Florida legislature, J. Tom Watson, attorney general, served as chairman of a committee of legislators and outstanding citizens from all parts of the state to consider this question and to make recommendations to the legislature of 1945. The final upshot was that no recommendation was made, at least in the name of the committee, and matters were allowed to take their course. Negroes have been allowed to register as Democrats and to vote in the primaries with no untoward effects that we have seen.

Although party leaders in Alabama point to 150,000 Negroes voting in Georgia, that state elected a "white supremacy" man for its next governor.

To divorce the primaries from state control, or to go back to party conventions, would lead to fraud, corruption and control far worse than could result from a "controlled Negro vote."

The only state in which there has been mass Negro voting in the "White" Democratic Primary is Georgia and the result was ironic.

OPENS THE DOOR

That opened the way for the closest thing to universal suffrage the tradition-bound Deep South ever has seen. Previously Georgia pioneered in lowering the voting age to 18.

The Supreme Court of the United States in refusing to review a suit started in Georgia held in effect that the Democratic Primary must be thrown open to Negroes.

The Georgia experience apparently did not answer to the complete satisfaction of Deep South politicians whether the Negro is inclined to vote en bloc.

The situation in Georgia was such that the Negro could not honestly have voted otherwise than the way he did. Yet in some recent county and municipal elections in Georgia the Negro split his vote pretty much as white voters did.

In the two-party border states of Tennessee and North Carolina, where Negroes have voted in primaries for years, the Negro apparently has not been inclined to vote on the basis of prejudice rather than principle.

Sun 8-25-46

The "White Supremacy" issue was not raised. There was no race for Governor and the campaign was listless. The Negro vote consequently was relatively small.

Negroes voted in Texas this Summer in fairly large numbers, but on nothing like the Georgia scale. Texas has a poll tax.

LONE STAR RULING

It was in a Texas case that the United States Supreme Court first held, over two years ago, that Negroes are entitled to vote in the South's Democratic Primary—the real election.

Arkansas separated its primaries—that is, provided separate primaries for State and Federal offices—in a move designed to keep Negroes from voting in primaries for State offices. This law recently was upheld by the Arkansas Supreme Court.

Alabama was the first State of the Deep South to open the door to Negro voting. But Alabama has strict voting requirements, including a drastic cumulative poll tax.

For years a few Negroes have voted in some Alabama counties. This Summer they voted on a statewide basis for the first time, but the vote was relatively small. Negro war veterans, as all war veterans, are exempt from the Alabama poll tax.

INGRAINED TRADITION

The political tradition of the South is more deeply ingrained in Mississippi and South Carolina than anywhere else. Both have heavy Negro populations. The Negro vote in Mississippi is small, in South Carolina Negroes do not vote at all in the "White" Primary, but have organized their own "Progressive Democratic" Party. This has no connection with the Democratic Party, but can put up candidates in a general election. In the last general election the Progressive Democrats polled several thousand more votes than the combined Republican vote, split between two factions contesting for national party recognition.

No sooner was the ink dry on the Texas decision than Gov. (now Senator) Olin D. Johnston called the South Carolina Legislature into session and it stripped every law pertaining to the primaries off the statute books. The Supreme Court probably will have to rule eventually on the "South Carolina Plan."

TALMADGE PLAN

The South Carolina Plan is the one Talmadge proposes to adopt in Georgia. A hindrance is the cherished County Unit plan, now protected by law. Talmadge proposes to have the State Convention, which he will control, adopt the County Unit plan as a part of the party regulations.

Then, in January, he will ask the Legislature to repeal the County Unit law and all other laws pertaining to primaries. Presumably this would make the County Unit plan a party affair and put it beyond the Supreme Court, at least for a while.

Sun 8-25-46

No politician or public figure in Georgia advocates abolition of the County Unit system. Since the recent primary, however, there have been suggestions that it might be modified to give the large cities a little more voice in government, while maintaining the setup in principle.

Georgia, largest state in area East of the Mississippi, has 159 counties. All of them are small in size and most of them are small in population. Outside of a few large cities the State is chiefly rural.

Defenders of the County Unit system—and it has been law or custom in Georgia for generations—say that the only alternative is rule by the potential big city machines.

S. C. Negroes Prepare To Vote In Democratic Primaries

COLUMBIA, S. C.—(ANP)—Preparation to vote in the Democratic primaries in this state was expressed here last week by 150 delegates to a state-wide meeting of the South Carolina Progressive Democratic party.

A fiery keynote speech was delivered by A. J. Clement, Charleston insurance man, on the efforts of white Democrats to block Negro voters in the primaries. He called the action of the recent state Democratic convention as "defiance and utter disdain of the highest court of the land" in denouncing their plots to deny suffrage right to Negroes.

Clements ridiculed the white democrats' anti-Negro stand by saying they "dared to fool themselves into a false state of security by adoption of some ram-shackled, bombastic and redundant porridge of words as to who is a 'Democrat.'" The word Democrat was defined in a resolution adopted by the delegates to the state convention, which would, according to Clement, bar all Negroes and "80 per cent of the white people of the state."

The insurance man's speech was highlighted when he said:

"We are not going to give anyone trouble," but "if presenting ourselves brings trouble, then let trouble come."

A determination to seek legal recourse for those who are denied the right to vote in the primaries was expressed by J. M. Hinton, president of the local branch of the NAACP, who remarked that "the NAACP is sure that the eight old tired men will liberate the Negroes in South Carolina as they did in Texas, Georgia and Florida.

Thirteen resolutions were adopted as the party platform, including enactment of federal laws to make officers found guilty of participating in mob actions guilty of insurrection against the federal government, re-allocation of the number of congressmen in states "which circumvent" free voting of all citizens, immediate court action against boards of registration "suspected of deliberately" restricting Negro registration and inclusion of "competent colored citizens" on grounds charged with projects "of interest of all citizens."

Clement was elected executive secretary. Other officers elected were John H. McCray, editor of The Lighthouse and Informer, chairman of the party; John H. Green, Charleston, first vice chairman; the Rev. B. F. Sumpter of Union, second vice chairman.

Frightened Whites Admit Negro Voters

LAKE CITY, S. C.—(ANP)—Frightened white Democrats opened city primary books to Negroes here two weeks ago when they learned Negroes had qualified to vote in the subsequent general election at a ratio of almost four to one white person.

City Democratic officials had maintained a discourteous attitude to Negroes who asked for enrolment. When they learned Negroes planned to put forth their own ticket in the general election and had nearly four votes to each one the whites could muster, Democratic officials quickly relaxed and opened their rolls, explaining "We Democrats must stick together."

South Carolina Cuts Voting Age For Democrats

By JAMES T. HOWARD

You can vote at 18 in South Carolina, if you're a Democrat. The State Democratic Executive Committee, which makes the rules for the Democratic primaries, has passed a resolution lowering the minimum voting age from 21 to 18. It also ruled that new voters must be able to read and write and "interpret the State Constitution."

This sounds good, but the purpose apparently is to corral as many white Democrats as possible should the Democratic organization lose its court fight to keep Negroes from voting in their primaries. The Supreme Court has ruled that Negroes may vote in Southern elections. There are so few Republicans in South Carolina that the Democratic primary is, in effect, the election.

Ridgeland, June 25.—Special: Five negroes attempted to enroll in Ridgeland for the August 13 Democratic primary election but were refused by H. Klugh Purdy, county Democratic chairman.

Mr. Purdy said they were informed that it was a white primary.

COLUMBIA, S. C.—The State Federation of Women's Clubs has officially opened its campaign to increase the number of Negro voters. At a meeting last week in Florence, Mrs. Marian B. Paul, retiring president, stated that the Federation had distributed 35,000 placards bearing pertinent information in reference to registration and that these placards will be placed all over the state. The Federation also voted to require delegates attending conventions to present registration certificates as pre-requisites to admittance to future conventions.

The officers elected this year were: Mrs. Hattie Duckett of Greenville, president; Mrs. Mabel Conyers of Florence, first vice president; Mrs. Mamie Fields of Charleston, secretary, and Mrs. Belle Vincent of Columbia, treasurer.

The Democrats, (regular lily-whites) are in a quandry. They are debating whether or not they should gracefully bow to the decision of the U. S. Supreme Court, as did Georgia, Florida and Texas, and permit Negroes to participate freely in the primaries, or to uphold the traditions of the state and attempt to defy the decisions of the courts when they dislike those decisions. If they chose the latter course, they are certainly in for a fight to the finish because the Negro citizens are thoroughly aroused and determined to force the issue.

Negroes Seek Federal Action To Vote in S. C.

Justice Department Asked to Intervene In White Primary

COLUMBIA, S. C., June 4. (AP)—Federal intervention in an attempt by Negroes to enroll on South Carolina's Democratic party books for a vote in an August 13 primary was sought today from the department of justice.

Chairman James Hinton of the South Carolina conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said sworn affidavits were "in the mail" to the justice department at Washington from four Richland county Negroes who he said were refused enrolment here last week.

The affidavits were filed, he said, on the basis of a Fifth federal circuit court of appeals decision in a recent Georgia case which found that party primaries were an integral part of the state's election processes.

South Carolina Democratic party officials have declared the party a private one, unconnected with state government and not subject to election laws. Party primary laws were removed from statute books three years ago by a special legislative session.

Hinton said the justice department had informed him that it would prosecute "any state or party official who attempts to prevent any persons from voting because of color" in a primary or general election.

Penalty for violation of section 18 of the criminal code which a justice department spokesman said several weeks ago would be violated by refusal to enrol Negroes, is a $1,000 fine or five years in prison.

Tomorrow has been set by the state NAACP and by the South Carolina Progressive (Negro) Democratic party for Negroes to seek enrolment on Democratic party books throughout the state. The books close June 25.

Unless allowed to enroll as a member of the Democratic club, it will not be possible, according to Pearce, for a voter to participate in the Democratic primaries in November.

In 1944, all legislation relating to primary elections in this state was erased from the statute books, and a Democratic club was substituted for the Democratic party.

The club, according to Pearce, "is a private voluntary association of individuals mutually acceptable to each other." It is "not authorized by virtue of any statute or law, but solely by the rules of our voluntary association."

Pearce claims that the club is simply going to poll its membership in November to determine what candidates it plans to support in the general elections. The enrollment period, closing June 25, is for the purpose of making up the club's membership roster.

To enroll as a member of the club, one doesn't have to pay poll tax or present a property certificate. These two requirements are necessary only for voting on the general election.

Eligible for membership in the club, according to large ads appearing in local papers here are "white males and females, 18 years old before Nov. 5, 1946."

There has been no attempt to conceal the motives of white Democrats here. The Charleston Post last week in an editorial comment declared "the white party's affairs are being conducted without benefit of law for the sole purpose of preserving the white primary."

Since in this state, and in many others in the South, the primary is tantamount to election, Negroes will have no hand in the election of public officials. Their votes in the general election can only confirm the selections made in the primary.

In anticipation of Negroes attempting to enroll in the club, the state executive committee issued the following set of instructions:

"... the enrollment book should not be placed in the open where it may be signed by any passerby ... Should any unqual-

CHARLESTON, S.C. — A political battle that will reverberate throughout the South was staged this week in South Carolina as determined Negroes attempted to enroll in the state's Democratic club, created by white politicians to evade recent federal rulings giving Negroes the vote in Southern Democratic primaries.

The club was formed as a "private voluntary association" designed to select primary candidates within its all-white membership, leaving the Negro, with his new franchise, the privilege of endorsing the nominees chosen.

On Wednesday, June 5, according to militant John H. McCray, editor of the Lighthouse and Informer and former president of the state NAACP, qualified Negroes were scheduled to attempt to enroll in the club.

McCray, chairman of the Progressive Democratic club, made up of Negroes throughout the state, in a letter to Tom B. Pearce, white, chairman of the state Democratic executive committee, declared that "orderly courteous and polite attempts will be made to enroll and if refused we will engage in no disaffidavits of such instances will be placed in the hands of the United States Department of Justice and other actions will be brought."

In a similar communication Hinton declared, "Please advise all of those serving as enrollment clerks that qualified Negroes will present themselves for enrollment, but will be orderly, courteous and will create no embarrassment."

Anticipating a tense ness at the polls, Hinton and other Negro leaders throughout the state are calling for all their jobs at a strike.

The state Democratic committee will undertake to defend any party officials, including members of the enrollment committee, clerks and managers . . . who may be brought to court by reason of having enforced the rules of the party . . ." Chicago

South Carolina thus thumbs its nose at Supreme Court rulings and challenges Atty. Gen. Tom Clark who has pledged himself to prosecute through the federal courts any persons interfering with the right of qualified Negroes to participate in primary elections.

Florence Negroes Try to Enroll

News-Courier

Florence, June 11.—Special: The first attempt in Florence county by negroes to enroll for the Democratic primary election was turned back here Monday by Frank H. Barnwell, chairman of the Florence county Democratic party. The

A delegation of four negro men appealed to Mr. Barnwell requesting permission for negroes to register and vote in the August primary. Lawrence Howard, Timmonsville negro and spokesman for the group, told Mr. Barnwell they had been sent to him from the executive committeeman of one of the Timmonsville precinct clubs and explained that he and other members of his race wanted to "register and vote in the primary to place in office the most capable men".

Howard said he and the people he represented are "citizens of the state of South Carolina, and see no reason why we should be called on to defend and die for our country and not to be allowed to vote in elections of office holders".

Mr. Barnwell explained the rules of the party and said it is a party of white persons having no provision for the registration and qualification of negroes. Charleston,

Mr. Barnwell said the group, composed of the Rev. Roy C. Cannon, Norman C. Parks and Theodore R. Giles, in addition to Howard, was polite and respectful in every way.

Democrats Ban Negroes In South Carolina Vote

GEORGETOWN, S. C.—(UP)—Negroes here Saturday were barred from registering for South Carolina's Democratic primary.

T. H. Rhea, county secretary, said he has informed a delegation of negroes who called on him that under the rules of the party they are not eligible for registry.

The Hell In South Carolina

Daily World, Atlanta Ga.

(From the Lighthouse and Informer)

When Rep. John D. Long of Union declared a few weeks ago that "hell is brewing" after looking over the Negro's attempt to smash down voting restrictions against him, he spoke but in half truth. "Hell" has long been rampant in South Carolina and the fact that Negroes have joined issues with it has not started a "brewing." 6-5-46

Whatever "hell brewing" there shall be in South Carolina—we don't believe there's the slightest possibility of its appearance—will be the responsibility of one segment of white people who prate about "white supremacy" and who employ numerous devices to keep the Negro voteless. Wed.

White Democrats in state convention last week had before them a sensible resolution urging admission of Negroes into the Democratic Party. We doubt that the resolution, had it been adopted, would have been acceptable to Negroes who seek unrestricted voting privileges, but it would have been a start; would have established good faith. But the resolution, calling for admission of "qualified" (educated) Negroes was enough to provoke a firm rebuff by the Democrats who countered with "white supremacy" declarations and Bamberg county schemes to circumvent Negro admission while conceding the prospect of court orders against the organization.

Courts in Texas, Georgia and Florida cases have written death sentences for the type of racial subjugation South Carolina flouts. Alabama, noting its own prospects, attempted honestly to meet the issue, though on a restricted basis. We doubt that Alabama Negroes will rush into court for considerations while Alabama is at least attempting a solution. Negroes are temperate and anxious to build a sensible and sound state.

Carolina Publisher Calls For Negro Suffrage Drive

New York, N.Y.
Daily Worker

Osceola McKaine, publisher of the Charleston News and Observer and chairman of the South Carolina Progressive Democratic Party, this week called upon the forthcoming National Negro Congress convention to launch a major campaign for the suffrage rights of southern Negro citizens.

"There are many indications," said McKaine, "that the grass roots of the working Negro population are being deeply stirred. In a short and limited drive in Birmingham, the number of Negro votes was increased 150 percent, and the last two voters this writer helped to process were two Negro firemen employed by the L. & N. railway, who had to pay $36 each to qualify to vote. 5-22-45

"The 17-day drive in Savannah increased the number of Negro voters from 8,000 to about 20,000; in Augusta a campaign of 15 days augmented the voting strength of Negroes from 1,200 to 4,900; in Durham, N. C., a drive of 12 days increased the voting strength from a doubtful 3,000 to an effective 5,500." Wed.

Officials of the National Negro Congress, which meets in Detroit May 30 to June 1, report that over 1,000 delegates have already indicated their intention to attend.

An NNC convention train carrying New York, New Jersey and Connecticut delegates will leave Grand Central Station at 7:00 p.m. May 29.

S.C. Democrats Fix 18 as Vote Age

Make Higher Literacy Ballot Requirement

COLUMBIA, S.C.—By voting to lower the franchise age to 18 years, and by stringently tightening literacy requirements for the ballot, the Democratic party's executive committee, Wednesday, sought to preserve its white primary.

Second Southern State to lower the age for voting (Georgia was first), this action has been the first taken here to regulate Democratic primaries, since the legislature stripped the laws after the Supreme Court's Texas decision opened primaries to colored voters. 5—23—46

Keeps Poll Tax

The action, too, came as the answer to the Richland (Columbia) County delegation's resolution proposing that "serious and open minded consideration" be given to allow colored citizens to vote in the primaries. Mc

The party committee in this State, one of seven still retaining the poll tax, by lowering the voting age and increasing literacy requirements, felt that the action would keep "90% of the people we don't want, from voting."

At least, that was the pronouncement of State Senator J. Carl Kearse of Bamberg, who introduced the legislation 5-25-46

South Carolina Daily Taboors Vote Fight News

Miami Herald

CHARLESTON, South Carolina (ANP)—South Carolina Negroes are regarding as highly significant and an indication that their vigorous fight to vote has gone well, the announcement by the vitriolic News and Courier that no longer does it intend to publish sayings and doings of Negroes seeking admission into the white Democratic party of this state. 6-8-46-Sat.

Opinion is that the newspaper, which has vigorously opposed admission of Negroes into the Democratic party, seeing its cause lost, has elected to salve itself in a hatred so bitter it cannot stand to talk about Negroes. Miami Fla.

The News and Courier criticized the Associated Press for giving generous coverage to the Progressive Democrats and the South Carolina NAACP conference which are leading the fight, calling upon other subscribers to AP to complain against the coverage and to "kill" releases carrying the coverage.

Affidavits Protest S.C. Voting Ban

Afro-American

COLUMBIA, S.C. (ANP)—The first affidavits on refusal of white Democrats to enroll colored persons for the State summer primary voting were filed with the U.S. Department of Justice last week, the State NAACP conference and the Progressive Democratic Party announced jointly. Sat 6-15-46

The affidavits grew out of the

The affidavits grew out of the enroll would-be registrants on May 31. In Ward 9, it was revealed, four did enroll, but it was said that they would be purged when enrollment ended on June 25.

In all of the 46 counties attempts were made to be listed, while in most colored sections residents took a general holiday in an effort to enroll in a body. Affidavits charging each county will be filed, the two agencies reported. Baltimore Md.

Meanwhile, following reports that county clerks were panic-stricken, many having resigned, the Democratic executive committee held an emergency and strictly secret session on June 3, from which all newsmen were barred.

Later, despite the recognized fact that the party lacks funds, the committee announced that it would give full backing to any clerk taken to court in accordance with the Justice Department's promise to take action if any persons were refused the right to register. Sat. 6-15-46

Insufficient Forms

In Hampton County, it was learned that the registration board was wholly unprepared when over 100 members of the Progressive Democratic Party applied for certificate forms. P. Allender

Forced to reject approximately 50 persons, because of the lack of forms, the board promised to take care of the remainder when the applications were continued. Hampton County has 10,095 colored residents and 7,370 whites.

'Democrat' Redefined

Meanwhile, it was revealed that in an effort to thwart the rise of the colored Democratic group, the bigots of the white party have divorced their group from the national organization and also set up a new definition of the word "democrat."

Rejecting all "those whose ideas" or belief border on "communism, fascism, nazism, statism, totalitarianism or the Fair Employment Practices Committee, the new rule also discards those who believe in biracial committees.

The Danger in Apathy

News & Courier

The apathy of the populace that Major Workman, staff correspondent of The News and Courier describes, in regard to the white party's citizens who have put up handsome sums to be candidates for governor in the primaries, threatens the existence of the white party.

If one of every two white persons 18 years old or older shall neglect to enroll, vote, pledge themselves solemnly to support the nominees in the general election, we may have independent candidates in the general election and the qualified negro voters may have the balance of power and use it to elect them. That was the condition in Chicago, New York and other Northern cities when your Dr. Byrnes, while he was filibustering against an anti-Southern bill, announced in the senate, "The negroes have come into control of the Democratic party." The apathy in South Carolina may place negroes in control, or in part control, and that to our mind, would make matters even worse than they now are. Charleston, S.C.

In South Carolina the scalawag material is 20 times as abundant now as it was in 1876, because there are now 50 or 30 times as many white people sucking from the federal treasury. Tues 6-18-46

The News and Courier points to the danger; it warns; that is all that it can do, and nobody else is bothering about the general election in 1946.

Tennessee Negroes Form Political Group

Daily Worker New York, N.Y.

Sat 4-13-46

Special to the Daily Worker

COLUMBIA, Tenn., April 12.—At a public meeting in the African Methodist Episcopal Church last night presided over by Rev. Calvin Lockridge, the first held in Columbia since the bloody events that followed the attempted lynching of the young Navy veteran James Stephenson and his mother, 68 prominent citizens voted unanimously to organize under the name of Maury County Voters League to achieve the registration of all Negro citizens as voters. This was the first meeting held here since the attempted bloody lynchings. Cooperation of churches, trade unions and fraternal societies will be sought in a drive for full registration and for united political action.

The venerable Negro leader, Julius Blair, was elected by acclamation as president of the new league. Rev. Lockridge was made vice-president, Whilliam Hayes secretary, Charles Fleming assistant secretary, and Rufus Pillow, treasurer.

Speeches emphasized the need of rescuing the people of Maury County from political corruption and alliance of the police and gangsters.

Leading in the discussion were Rev. B. C. Frierson, Rev. S. W. Smith, Rev. A. E. Martoin, Rev. F. M. Riley, and Rev. Z. A. Brown as well as Mr. Blair, Mr. Lockridge, two white trade unionists and a young Negro veteran.

The principal address was made by Robert Minor, southern editor of the Daily Worker, as the guest speaker.

Sat 4-13-46

"To continue the old record of suppression . . . terror," Mr. Minor said, "and lynchings in this part of Tennessee, is not what we mean when we say we want good relations of peace and harmony between the colored and white people.

"In the quickest possible time, and that means now, every Negro worker must be gotten into trade unions, and every veteran into a veterans organization. The entire mass of Negro people of Tennessee must move forward into the category of full citizenship, serving as others do on juries, voting in all primaries and holding public office."

The meeting resolved to set up a special committee to concentrate on getting women registered as voters. Another committee will concentrate on registering veterans.

Tennessee Gets Set For March To Polls; McKellar Big Issue

Birmingham News Birmingham Ala.

Venerable Senate President Pro Tem Seeks Reelection; White Supremacy Cry Absent

Sun. 7-23-46

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 23—Negroes will vote in Tennessee's Democratic and Republican primaries Aug. 1 but unlike the recent experience of some sister Southern states it will be nothing new.

Mixed balloting is an old and unspectacular story in Tennessee; party primaries and general elections have been open to whites and Negroes alike since Reconstruction Days. There has been no racial strife of any proportions in the state's modern history on the issue of the ballot.

The Negro vote normally is small. Except in Memphis, home of the blues and Beale Street, it is only a fraction of the total in statewide elections. The state's Negro population is 500,000—about 16 per cent of the total.

In the big cities, Negroes generally vote Democratic. Only in East Tennessee, traditionally Republican, are they supporters of the GOP, but there, too, their numbers are negligible. The state primaries law give the right to vote to any and all who pay poll taxes and agree to support the primary nominees.

7-23-46

THUS the "white supremacy" issue, which highlighted Georgia and Mississippi primaries, will be lacking when some 300,000 Tennesseans decided nine days hence whether to return the veteran senator, Kenneth D. McKellar, Democratic president pro tem of the Senate, to Washington for a sixth term.

There is however the lively issue of the CIO Political Action Committee. It is supporting McKellar's principal opponent and is making its first real bid for political power in Tennessee. The CIO claims 30,000 members in Memphis, half of them Negroes.

The 77-year-old McKellar, backed by the powerful Shelby County (Memphis) organization of Democratic Political Leader Edward H. Crump, is challenged by 46-year-old Edward Ward Carmack, endorsed by the state CIO-PAC.

Carmack is the son and namesake of the late U. S. Sen. Carmack, who was slain on a Nashville street in a pistol duel with a political opponent in 1908. Two years ago young Carmack was nosed out by Sen. Tom Stewart, Democrat, Tennessee's junior senator.

The senatorial contest and the nomination of a governor and a state public utilities commissioner in the Democratic primary highlight the forthcoming balloting. Democratic nomination in statewide contests such as these usually means election in Tennessee.

The state will also nominate 10 congressmen, but only seven are contested races. In the Republican First District there is a hot scrap among five candidates for the seat vacated by Rep. Carroll Reece, new chairman of the Republican National Committee.

INCUMBENT GOV. JIM NANCE McCORD, one-time auctioneer seeking a second two-year term with Crump support, is opposed by former Gov. Gordon Browning, a lieutenant colonel now on the Army civil affairs staff in Berlin. His campaign has been conducted by friends in his absence.

Carmack has stumped the state actively, charging that McKellar has sought to hamstring the Tennessee Valley Authority for patronage purposes and that his health is failing.

McKellar has kept in Washington.

Medic Scores Politicos:

Negro Voters Insulted At Knoxville Meeting

Pittsburgh Courier Pittsburgh Pa.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—From now on Dr. J. H. Presnell, prominent physician of 609 Butler Street, will be proud to call himself one of the "trashy" crowd, he told Knoxville in a paid 30-inch advertisement in Knoxville's leading newspapers after a hectic session of the Citizen's Protective League from which he and other prominent Negroes were ejected as "trash."

The Citizens' Protective League was formed by prominent Knoxville business men and political figures to campaign for the recall of Mayor Cas Walker and five city councilmen who recently voted City Manager Paul Morton out of office in the stormiest political event of Knoxville's history.

ASKED TO COME

The CPL, headed by Ralston Matheny, president, had advertised a Twelfth Ward rally to be held at Mountain View School, April 5 (one of several such political rallies staged by the group this month). C. M. Force, formerly of Cincinnati, was to tell Knoxville taxpayers of Cincinnati's "good government efforts."

"All voters of this ward—Negroes as well as white persons — have been invited," stated advance advertisements of the meeting.

Dr. Presnell, for many years a practicing physician here, showed up for the meeting along with other Negro taxpayers. Among the group of Negroes were a prominent contractor, a grocery man, who is a two-decade voter in Knoxville, and ranks high in the Negro element, two carpenters, a plasterer, a tailor, a city fireman, and his wife, and the wife of a city policeman.

Sat. 5-25-46

ASKS "TRASH" TO LEAVE

Time for the meeting to open passed, the chairman paced the floor while the gathering expectantly waited, and finally a knot of CPL members engaged in a short conference.

"As soon as the trash gets out of the hall, we will proceed with our meeting," the Protective League president announced. The meeting ended in a near riot with President Matheny and Atty. Lockett Ely (white) almost coming to blows.

Not only the Negroes, but most of the indignant whites, left the meeting, leaving Matheny and eleven of his friends to their own devices.

The advertisement, a three-column spread in the Knoxville Journal, appeared a few days later over the name of Dr. Presnell, whose scathing comment "took the hide off Knoxville's politicians," as one Negro expressed it.

MEDIC PREFERS "TRASH"

"Personally, I prefer to live among and vote with the 'trashy' crowd, where I won't be so class-conscious," Dr. Presnell said.

Voiceless in Southern politics since the days of slavery, the Negro had again "been put in his place." But there are storm clouds rising, and an increasing number of fair-minded whites are beginning to see the light.

Voter Shot in Back During Election

Sheriff and Political Machine Routed

After Six-Hour Bloody Gun Battle

ATHENS, Tenn. — A six-hour gun battle involving hundreds of persons touched off when a colored voter, Tom Gillespie, was shot in the back on Aug. 1, left this community with a wrecked jail in the hands of armed veterans, and officers and leaders of Sheriff Pat Mansfield's political machine locked in their own irons or in full flight.

Also in hiding with the wounded sheriff was State Senator Paul Cantrell, founder of the political machine, which has for 15 years filled all county offices by its ability to control the ballot box.

In the hospital with Gillespie are some 10 persons. Another 20 had undergone treatment for gunshot wounds, bruises and lacerations sustained when hundreds of former GI's raided the Athens armory and marched on the jail to retrieve ballot boxes in the hands of the Cantrell-Mansfield faction and to free three veterans being held as hostages.

"Wasn't Votin' Right"

Gillespie was shot in the back by Special Deputy Wendy Wise because he "wasn't votin' right." The wounded man, it seems, had boldly voted against the machine candidates and for a fusion ticket put on the ballot by World War II veterans.

Wise, who surrendered with some 25 other deputies after the army of veterans dynamited the jail, was beaten almost to death and is now locked in a cell of the battered jail.

An estimated 500 rounds of machine gun, pistol and rifle bullets were fired in the exchange of shots during the battle which lasted throughout Thursday night.

Fourteen sleek-model automobiles belonging to fee-drawing deputies were wrecked or burned and the town was isolated for several hours when the veterans cut all telephone circuits to prevent the beleaguered sheriff and his force from calling the State guard.

Two Near Death

Two men are near death and perhaps 40 others wounded and the town has only a patrol of veterans to enforce the law. These veterans, manning the jail now filled with members of the Cantrell machine, have appointed a three-man extra-legal committee to work with the GI fusionists to see that order is kept.

The town of 10,000 has returned almost to normalcy except that armed veterans, carrying Army rifles and pistols, still walk the streets.

A new tenseness sprung up Saturday with reports that Sheriff Mansfield is in Polk County ready to invade the McMinn County seat aided by armed supporters of political boss Burch Biggs, who works with the deposed machine.

Governor Silent

Gov. Jim Nance McCord, who ranks second only to Boss Ed Crump of Memphis in control of the State-wide machine of which the ousted group here was a major cog, has declined to take action. He has been roundly criticized by the State's press.

Cong. John Jennings (Rep., Tenn.) said in Knoxville Saturday that Attorney General Tom Clark had been warned by Jennings in Washington months ago that armed conflict would result in the county's efforts to overthrow Cantrell and Mansfield.

He insisted that Clark must now probe the incident "because civil rights are involved in the despicable shooting of Tom Gillespie."

The sentiments of all East Tennessee are with the GI's who blasted the machine out of control in the county's "bastille day."

Literally thousands of people will be involved in a major gun battle if Mansfield makes good his threat to come in and recapture his office.

The election commission has certified the election of the GI fusionists, with a majority of almost three-to-one.

Biased Official Opposed For Several Reasons

Daily World
Atlanta, Ga.
Sat. 8-10-46

EL PASO, Tex. — (ANP) — Negro voters of El Paso, some 600, played a decisive part Saturday in defeating County Judge M. Scarborough in the first state primary election held here in which Negroes have participated.

In all parts of the state at least 75,000 Negroes cast their ballots, according to reports. In this city and the surrounding county, the 3,000 Negro residents were most interested in the county judgeship, since the county judge is the political head of the county.

How significant the Negro vote was may be seen from the fact that Judge Scarborough lost by a mere 316 votes. The winner is Victor Gilbert, local attorney, who received 6,840 votes to Scarborough's 6,524.

OPPOSITION REASONS

The 600 Negro votes went heavily against Scarborough for several reasons:

1. Not a single Negro is employed by the county.

2. The city-county hospital, whose board is named by the judge, refuses to accept Negro physicians in any capacity; therefore, no Negro doctor can accompany his patient to the hospital.

3. When a group of Negroes sponsored the Southernaires last year, and sold tickets to white friends without segregation, Scarborough sent a deputy sheriff to order the sponsors to segregate the patrons. This order he issued two hour before concert time.

FLEMING VISIT

4. When FEPC sent G. James Fleming here in 1942 to direct investigations into job discrimination, Scarborough telephoned the White House, it is reported, and protested a Negro in such a capacity. A few days later, when Scarborough thought Fleming had been recalled, he telephoned a newspaper and said: "I've goten rid of that coon at last, and a northern one at that."

DETROIT—A new twist to Dixie's relentless fight against Democratic principles was revealed here last week by a Texas delegate to the newly-organized Civil Rights Congress.

The delegate, T. M. Hogrobrooks, a resident of Dallas, exhibited his poll tax receipt, signed by E. Davis, election deputy, whereupon his race was designated as "white." The practice, said the Texan, has become common since a supreme court ruling enfranchised large numbers of Negro citizens. Poll tax receipt lists on which "white' names predominate are quite an impressive argument against state appropriations for educational, health and other facilities benefiting Negroes, Hogrobrooks said.

Negro Vote Aids Texas Veterans Slate

Sat. 6-22-46

PASS CHRISTIAN, Texas (ANP) — Eighty Negroes, voting here in a municipal Democratic primary for the first time recently, aided in a landslide victory for candidates running on the Veterans' slate.

One election commissioner resigned, just prior to the election, because his fellow commissioners insisted on allowing Negroes to vote. He commented: The Sun, Tex.

"I had written the Attorney General, and he had told me we should allow every qualified voter to vote, but I am a Southern man and I did not feel that a Negro was qualified to vote in a white primary.

200,000 Negroes Ballot In Texas

The Chronicle
Detroit, Mich.
Sat. 8-10-46

DALLAS, Texas—Possibly 200,000 Negroes voted for the first time in Texas history in a Democratic primary last week. This number represented more than 15 per cent of the total votes cast in the state. There was no trouble reported as Negroes freely exercised their new right.

The Texas Election Bureau returns from 233 of 254 counties, gave Beauford Jester 294,214 votes to 179,022 for Homer P. Rainey in the gubernatorial race. For lieutenant governor, Allen Shivers led Boyce House 283,568 to 226,182.

Senator Tom Connally, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, was re-elected by three times as many votes as his four opponents.

No Vote Barriers In Texas

The Courier
Pittsburgh, Pa.
Sat. 7-20-46

HOUSTON, Tex.—There will be no 'Bilboism" in Texas, July 27, when approximately 75,000 Negroes go to the polls for the first time since Post-Civil War days in this State's Democratic primary.

Negro voters are certain to be an important factor in State Democratic Party affairs.

To date, there has been no raising of the "white supremacy" issue and indications are there will be none.

General opinion is that Negroes will vote in the primary, which actually amounts to election, just as though they had not been barred by party election laws since Post-Civil War days.

10 PER CENT OF TOTAL VOTE

It is believed that they'll vote about ten per cent of the total vote cast throughout the State.

Largest Negro vote is expected in Houston's Harris County where 16,151 colored persons are qualified to cast ballots. Old-age and first-voter exemptions, plus veterans voting on their discharge papers, will bring the Negro eligible total to nearl 20,000.

Dr. Homer P. Rainey, deposed president of the University of Texas, is actually bidding for the Negro vote in the race for Governor. Thirteen others are seeking the post.

SEEKS NEGRO VOTE

Dr. Rainey's chief plea for the Negro vote is through a side issue in his fight for what he calls "academic freedom" in Texas. In the fight that followed his being fired as president of the university, Dr. Rainey raised the cry that Negroes do not have full educational opportunities in Texas.

The Negro vote is sure to be an important factor in Houston and Dallas because Negroes are running for precinct chairmanships. If they win they automatically become members of their county Democratic executive committees.

In one Houston precinct, veteran Chairman Jim Liuzza is opposed by a Negro war veteran. The precinct has 4070 voters. Of these, 4,033 are Negroes and thirty-seven are white.

Negroes hold the majority of votes in two precincts in Dallas.

Capture Control Of Two Precincts

The Courier
Pittsburgh, Pa.
Sat. 8-3-46

By J. DON DAVIS
(Special Correspondent)

HOUSTON, Tex. — Casting their ballots in a Lone Star State Democratic primary for the first time since Civil War days, colored Texas voters revealed potential voting power here Saturday when Houston Negroes gained control of two precincts, with victory in a third as a probability.

Real Democracy triumphed in Precinct 47, where Charles Brossard, a colored candidate, was elected delegation chairman and ten colored and nine white delegates were elected to the County Convention slated for this week.

Chairmanship of Precinct 48 went to Roger Adams in a landslide, with incumbent James Liuzza conceding defeat immediately prior to precinct meeting.

Rev. L. H. Simpson was elected as temporary chairman and an all-Negro delegation of twenty-nine members was named.

Mr. Liuzza did not remain to witness the voting; none of the seventy-nine residents of the precinct attended the convention.

THIRD CHAIRMAN PROBABLE

A third Negro chairman is a certainty when the count is completed in predominately Negro Precinct 25, where Edwin Harrison, Boy Scout worker, ran as a write-in candidate.

John Leonard Glynn, youthful Ex-Navy man, suffered defeat at the hands of Victor Anders in Precinct 79. Immediately after his victory, Anders declared he would take action seeking a return to the "white primary." Many Negro citizens criticized Glynn's action in filing for office in view of the fact that 79 carries a larger white vote than colored. The Courier

Election of colored precinct delegates was not the only significant result. Although Dr. Homer Price Rainey trailed Beauford Jester in the Gubernatorial race, none of the Texas editions of Bilbo, Rankin and Talmadge got to first base. Jester had plenty of colored support in some areas. His only race-baiting came in a speech where he attacked the FEPC as not being wanted by the better white or colored citizens. Pittsburgh, Pa.

LILY WHITES DEFEATED

According to all reports that seeped into Houston Sunday, there was no violence and Negroes were permitted to vote unmolested.

In Houston, Negroes en route to the polls were swamped with cards for candidates and cordiality prevailed. The only precinct that came in for questioning was 48, where some five thousand voters had to stand in line until they could gain entry into the small fire station, where the voters were processed. Phyllis Wheatley, the largest high school in Texas, is one block from the fire station. The law calls for closing of the Texas polls at 7 P. M., but with inadequate space and the people already in line, technically they were in the booth. They were permitted to vote. This evoked protests of some candidates.

SHERIFFS' RACE HOT

Biggest surprise in the local election was the runner-up place won by Bob Davidson in the Sheriff's race. The Negro vote was split on two candidates, incumbent Neal Polk, and Constable Fay Wooley, who bid for the tan vote with a promise to appoint two colored deputies. Wooley was trailing in third, Sunday, but refused to concede defeat. It was in this race that Negroes showed their power. Julius White, wealthy business man, was a rabid Wooley man and dug into his pocket and financed the Wooley campaign among Negroes. Hobart Taylor, taxi tycoon, did the same for Polk.

SOME DISQUALIFIED

A sad chapter in the election was the overzealous use of sample ballots by various organizations. In passing out sample ballots, the "militants" failed to sufficiently impress prospective voters with the fact that it was not permissable to carry sample ballots into the voting booths. This oversight caused hundreds of Negro voters to be disqualified.

This error proved costly in East Texas centers also.

R. R. Grovey, formerly an arch Republican, but now a CIO organizer and PAC man, encountered an embarrassing situation when the judge of the precinct in which he attempted to vote challenged him and refused to permit him to vote because he resided in another precinct. The Courier could not contact Grovey, long considered a political leader, for a statement on the incident.

"WRONG" PRECINCT AN ISSUE

Another PAC figure refused to serve on the delegation from Precinct 48. It was learned that he too, was in the "wrong" precinct. His refusal to accept the appointment caused Rev. Simpson to caution all not to accept posts in precincts where they did not reside.

Political observers are freely predicting that a large element of white Texans are in accord with the rejuvenated drive to re-establish the "white primary."

L. O. Anders, county chairman, charged that the way Negroes voted in Saturday's election resembled machine politics. He described it as deplorable in sanctioning Victor Anders' plan of return to the "white primary."

However, well over a hundred Negroes will sit in as delegates at Saturday's county convention, and with the support of white liberals, labor and a large segment of church people, attempts by Texas regulars to gain control of the party may be thwarted.

Fifty Residents Were qualified

The Informer Houston, Texas
Sat. 9-21-46

HOUSTON — An inquiry into a report that Negroes were denied the ballot in a Harris County community during the July 27 primary, revealed that Negroes did not vote in Hockley, Texas. The inquiry was made Saturday, September 14, not quite a month after the runoff, when Hockley Negroes refused to go to the polls after not being able to vote in the primary. Several Hockley citizens, eligible to vote verified the report, slightly modified, that Negroes 'did not' vote.

Approximately 50 Hockley residents paid poll tax and were eligible to vote, complainants reported, but before more than eight or ten percent reported at the polling place, word had spread around that Negroes could not vote, complainants stated.

The polling place in Hockley was held in the home of Fritz Becker, white citizen. Harry Williams, a Negro exemptee, 68 years old, who has been a taxpaying resident of Harris County for 44 years, stated that he went to the voting place to vote July 27. He stated that he was stopped at the gate of the front yard and there he was told that 'no instructions' to let Negroes vote had been given. He said he was not permitted to enter the yard.

Henderson Riley, 66, resident of Hockley for 15 years, stated that he went to the polling place, but did not vote. He said he noticed that no Negroes were at the place, so he asked if Negroes were voting. He said he was then told by a white citizen that Negroes were not voting. He said he asked why and his informant shrugged his shoulders and said. "I don't know." He said he did not ask anyone else because he did not 'feel like' Negroes were being permitted to vote.

Probably shedding more light on the situation than ony of the others, was the statement made by Roy Davis, 55. Mr. Davis who said he had been a taxpayer in Harris County since he was 18 years old, said when he went to vote he was told that Negroes were not voting.

"When I asked why, I was told that Negroes had to follow the 'old-timers," Mr. Davis stated. He said he was told that the old-timers never voted in the white primaries and he could not either. He stated that his informant then told him that some of the old-timers had gotten together earlier that morning and decided that they would not vote and that he had to abide by their decision.

He said that he had his poll tax receipt. He paid for it with money he had earned working for Fritz Becker, he stated. When he was on the job for Mr. Becker, he said, Mr. Becker told him:

"Roy, this is the first time that you colored people have had a chance to vote. You be sure to pay your poll tax so you can vote."

Mr. Davis stated that he got to the polling place a few moments before Henderson Riley and witnessed Mr. Riley's being turned away.

In each of the statements, the person concerned said he never made any attempt to vote in the runoff, because he 'felt' that it was useless.

THE ENEMIES OF TEXAS

Informer Houston Texas

(AN EDITORIAL)

Sat. 7-6-46

Today Texas stands not only as the largest geographical state in the Union, but as potentially one of the greatest states in the Union. Texas has the minerals, the crops, transportation facilities, including great water routes; the wealth and the total means for taking its rightful place as the leader of the South and one of the leading states of the nation. But the demagogues are making Texas a reactionary Colossus, fighting for selfish interests and for outmoded preference by divisions.

In the 1944 election Texas, with its large number of seniors in the Congress and with preferential positions in the Administration, had a rich opportunity to increase its prestige nationally. But a few demagogues, known as the Texas Regulars, scuttled this fine opportunity and came near scuttling the Democratic party in Texas. Having failed to hold control of the party in Texas, the Texas Regulars ostensibly disbanded in 1945, but in reality went underground to work toward their purpose. Houston Texas

Governor Coke Stevenson and Grover Sellers may or may not admit affiliation with the Texas Regulars, but every act follows the party line of the Texas Regulars. These men refuse to busy themselves with the problems of the progress and growth of Texas, and devote their energies trying to split the people and the races to their selfish ends. Sat. 7-6-46

There is not an intelligent Texan, man or woman, white or black, who denies that in the matter of education the officials of Texas have stubbornly and shamefully misused their right to administer the funds by refusing to provide that quality of opportunity upon which separation and segregation are predicated. Yet Grover Sellers, candidate for Governor, who has been one of the main elements of prolonging this flaunting of law and of justice in the matter of education, is now shouting and beating his breast like Hitler over a bugaboo which he makes. Informer

He shouts that no Negro shall enter the University of Texas, as if some evil or mischievous Negro were trying to leave a rich educational opportunity to project himself into the midst of the University of Texas as a matter of teasing or annoyance. He knows as well as anyone in this state that there are Negroes needing, and ready for education on the university level. He knows that Texas furnishes no place or opportunity for such Negroes. He knows that Negroes have tried to get Texas to furnish such place and opportunity, and he and his fellow demagogues have gone on accumulating vast wealth that could not be used at the University of Texas, while denying this opportunity to Negroes. Houston Texas

Now in the hope of getting elected by arousing the emotions of whites, he is trying to cover up a defect on the part of Texas by making it appear that Negroes are trying to take advantage of whites, or are trying to take something from whites.

If Negroes are knocking at the door of the University of Texas, it is because they have been driven there by the reactionism and the demagogy of men like Grover Sellers. Where else can Negroes go for law and medicine, or any of the professional training needed Who is responsible for there being no other place for them to go? Who can deny that it is a natural aspiration for them to seek these things? Sat. 7-6-46

Unfortunately, men when elected to govern people only serve well when they have the respect of the people whom they govern. How will Negroes be able to respect Mr. Sellers if he becomes governor, when he shows such vicious and vigorous racial hatred, and such virulent Hitlerism in trying to persecute Negroes as Hitler persecuted Jews? Negroes will not elect Mr. Sellers. We predict that if the whites elect Mr. Sellers, they will be continuing the enemies of Texas in public office. What we need in Texas today are men of statesmanlike vision, who will take these knotty problems and find equitable and sensible solutions. Men who take these problems and puff them into race-baiting in order to divide the races are enemies of Texas. 7-6-46

Race Vote in Houston Elects Texas Sheriff

By J. DON DAVIS, Special Correspondent

HOUSTON, Texas—In a battle of ballots so hot and close that the winner was not known until the colored vote in the predominantly Negro Precinct 48 was counted and proved the deciding factor, incumbent Neal Polk, Sheriff of Harris County, nosed out Captain J. R. "Bob" Davidson in the election returns made public here Monday.

Davidson got into the run-off by virtue of a court decision ruling that there were irregularities in voting at Precinct 48 in the first primary.

Never before in the history of Harris County had interest been keener or suspense greater than that which prevailed in Saturday's contest for the office of sheriff.

DR. RAINEY DEFEATED

Dr. Homer P. Rainey, deposed University of Texas president, was snowed under by Beauford Jester in the gubernatorial race. Dr. Rainey ran with the support of the so-called liberal forces, but Jester's victory is not seen as endangering the status of Texas Negroes.

The only mention he made of Negroes in the campaign was an expression of opposition to FEPC. Rainey lost much Negro support when he advocated separate voting polls.

FIRST PRIMARY CONTESTED

In the campaign for sheriff, Captain Davidson had contested Box Forty-eight in the first primary and entered the run-off over Fay Wooley, when the court ruled voting irregularities at Forty-eight.

Saturday, the voting at Forty-eight was conducted in the spacious Wheatley High School, with a complete Negro staff serving, and Will Green, acting as judge.

Every precaution was taken to see that things went right at Forty-eight Saturday. It was the most closely watched box in Texas. Station KTHT, local Mutual outlet, made several broadcasts from the precinct. In one, the officer who reported irregularities in the first primary, declared that things were perfect. County Chairman M. L. O. Andrews told The Courier representative the same thing.

SITUATION TENSE

Late Saturday night, Captain Davidson held a 1600 lead. But Precinct Forty-eight had not reported, and that was the biggest topic at the courthouse, where the returns were being read. A nervous tenseness prevailed.

Then came the first returns from the big colored precinct:

Polk, 1,129; Davidson, 39.

Then the biggest question in both camps was: "Were there enough unreported votes in Forty-eight to overcome Davidson's lead?"

Harris County went to bed knowing that not until the colored precinct completed its count would it know who would be its sheriff.

NEGRO VOTE BRINGS VICTORY The Courier

Early Sunday morning the report was completed, and this is how it read: Pittsburgh, Pa.

Polk, 1,904; Davidson, 87.

This gave Polk a 158 lead and victory. Sat. 8-31-46

Captain Davidson did not say whether he would contest Forty-eight this time, but experienced observers said he didnt't have a ghost of a chance, inasmuch as the precinct was so efficiently manned.

Negro Vote Splits Texas In Half

Defender Chicago, Ill.

AUSTIN, Texas — In Texas, history repeats itself. Sat. 7-6-46

A recent poll of interviewers reveals that Texas, like the U. S. in pre-civil war days is split in half on the question of the Negro voting.

The split, as might be expected from past American history, is determined by the prejudiced opposition of the whites from that part of the state where most of the Negroes reside, the eastern half. A majority of the whites in the western half of the state voice no objection to the Negro voting. This is the part where the fewer number of Negroes live.

The Negroes themselves have voiced a strong determination to take advantage of the recent Supreme Court ruling that prohibits them from being barred from the primaries on July 27. Most of the whites believe only a few of them will vote.

"Do you think colored people should or should not have the right to vote in the Democratic primary elections in Texas was the question put by the interviewers to the people of the state.

On the basis of a negative or affirmative answer to the question, the interviewers found that the stathe seemed to divide into east and west sections roughly on a line through Fort Wort, Austin, and San Antonio and including those cities.

In the eastern half 38 per cent of the whites said yes; 55 per cent no. In the western half 55 per cent said yes, and 36 per cent no. The overall percentage was 44 per cent yes, 49 per cent, no. All the Negroes questioned answered affirma-

In the east and the west sections 87 per cent of the whites did not think that many Negroes would take advantage of the opportunity to vote in the primary given them by the Supreme Court.

The Civil War is being refought here, apparently, or maybe it just never ended.

The Lowest-Voting State in the Union

Time-Dispatch

VIRGINIA has the shameful distinction of being the lowest-voting State in the Union, in proportion to population, so far as the balloting which really counts is concerned. Probably most Virginians do not realize how deplorably low the effective vote in this State is, as compared with other States. Realization of the fact should be shocking to the people of the Old Dominion, where American democracy was born, but where its development has languished sadly.

The fact is not generally recognized, largely because election statistics comparing the returns for the various States usually are confined to the figures for presidential elections. In this respect Virginia is by no means the lowest-voting State, since some of the other Southern States rank well below us in presidential balloting. That, of course, is because there is rarely any question about how any Southern State will go for President. But this consideration applies no less to Virginia than to the rest of the South. This State has not gone Republican in a national election since Reconstruction, except in the extraordinary circumstances of the SMITH-HOOVER campaign in 1928. Nor is there ever any doubt about how the Commonwealth will go in any general election for State offices.

Sunday 6-23-46

Virginia makes a fair showing in presidential elections. In 1944 its total major-party vote was 388,824. Of this, 241,907 went to ROOSEVELT and 146,917 to DEWEY. In each of the two preceding presidential elections the total vote was far in excess of 300,000. But general elections, either national or State, usually are mere formalities in the Old Dominion, as elsewhere below the Potomac.

It is only in the Democratic primaries that voting is of any real consequence in Virginia and other Southern States. These are the elections which determine our political affairs. They are therefore the most important. But no one would know that from the size of the vote cast in our State primaries. Not once has the total vote in a Democratic primary come close to the 241,907 ballots cast for the Democratic ticket in the presidential election of 1944. The nearest approach was in 1937, when the total was 193,274, divided 166,319 for JAMES H. PRICE and 26,955 for VIVIAN L. PAGE. In 1933, when three candidates were running for Governor, the total was 189,623. But usually the balloting for Governor or United States Senator in the primaries has fallen far below those figures. In the gubernatorial contest last year the total was only 135,212. In 1941 three gubernatorial candidates divided 137,974 ballots. In the senatorial primary of 1922—the last one we had—SENATOR CLAUDE SWANSON received 102,045 votes to 37,671 for WESTMORELAND DAVIS, for an aggregate of 139,716. 6-23-46

How do such figures compare with the showing in other Southern States? In the recent gubernatorial campaign in Alabama, the vote exceeded 365,000 in the first primary and reached a comparable figure in the run-off. Alabama is not much larger in population than Virginia, and has a smaller qualified vote, due largely, no doubt, to the fact that Negroes constitute one-third of the population there, as compared with one-fourth here. But a far larger proportion of the voters go to the polls in Alabama.

Mississippi is considerably smaller than Virginia, and Negroes constitute about one-half of its population, or twice the proportion in Virginia. Yet four candidates for Governor of Mississippi in 1943 polled a total of 285,630 votes in the first primary, and the two high men in the run-off divided 269,035 votes between them.

6-23-46 Sun.

Oklahoma also is smaller than Virginia, and a larger proportion of its population is normally Republican. Yet Oklahoma Democrats cast 593,695 votes in their gubernatorial primary in 1938.

Tennessee is somewhat larger than the Old Dominion, and has a greater proportion of Republicans normally. The vote for Governor in Tennessee's Democratic primaries has frequently passed the 300,000 mark, and in 1938 was 394,103.

Time-Dispatch

North Carolina is larger than Virginia, but its Democratic primary vote is far greater in proportion as well as numerically. In the 1940 race for Governor seven candidates polled an aggregate of 469,396 votes. In 1936 Tarheel Democrats turned out 516,864 strong for four candidates in the first primary and rolled up a total of 480,768 votes in the run-off.

Richmond Va.

Georgia's primary balloting for Governor and for United States Senator—and there are almost invariably spirited contests for both offices—frequently exceeds 300,000 and sometimes runs to nearly 400,000, as in 1936, when three gubernatorial candidates brought out 389,313 votes.

South Carolina, like Virginia, is a low-voting State, polling a total in primaries generally comparable to ours. But the Palmetto State is far smaller than the Old Dominion, so proportionately its vote is larger.

In all States outside the South the two-party system is stronger than in any Southern State, and their main political battles take place in the general elections. Their primary votes, therefore, are not comparable to ours. In all of them a larger proportion of the people participate in elections. 6-23-46

What accounts for Virginia's disgraceful apathy about voting? Is it due simply to political lethargy? That would seem to be true on the surface. But there must be reasons for the relative lack of interest in elections. It is clear that the only way to bring about greater participation in Virginia elections is to remedy the causes of this apathy.

There are several explanations of why In Virginia is the lowest-voting State in the in Union. We shall explore them in subsequent editorials and indicate how the defects may be remedied. Surely Virginians do not want to keep on wallowing in the depths of this abysmal political indifference, caring little, so far as may be judged from their participation in elections, how their public affairs are managed.

Negroes Urged To Cast Votes In Primary

Times-Dispatch Richmond, Va. Sun. 8-4-46

Dr. J. M. Tinsley, president of the Richmond branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, yesterday urged Negroes to vote in Tuesday's primary, but to do so without "dictation by political ward heelers."

The NAACP, he said, does not endorse any candidate but urges Negroes to study the issues and the records and platforms of the candidates, and then to vote their convictions.

"Our association has been in the forefront of the fight for a free ballot for all citizens," Dr. Tinsley declared. "We recognize that only through political action can the people give effective expression to their views on important local, national and international issues. . . . Our people are interested not only in the bills for a permanent Fair Employment Practices Commission and for abolition of the poll tax, but also in such other measures as higher wages, Federal aid to education, expansion of health facilities, better housing for our returned veterans, effective price control, civilian control of atomic energy and international co-operation for world peace."

Dr. Tinsley said the local NAACP branch, which recently sponsored a drive to get Negroes to register to vote, has a membership of 4,500.

Ballot Strength Increasing in Virginia, Study Reveals

Afro-American Baltimore, Md. Sat. 7-6-46

RICHMOND, Va. (ANP)—Virginians of color are becoming vote conscious as never before since a brief period of the reconstruction, it was disclosed, here, last week.

This observation is based on a study of the increase in voters and participation in local and State elections during the past five years. 7-6-46

The recent defeat of non-white candidates for the city council in Charlottesville, Danville, Lynchburg and Norfolk has not discouraged voters in these cities nor in other Virginia cities. Though defeated, all the candidates received some white votes.

Candidates Popular

Dr. L. Coles of Charlottesville received more votes in predominantly white precincts than he did in precincts with a majority of colored voters.

Victor J. Ashe of Norfolk, who received 3,101 votes, won votes in every precinct in the city's 37 precincts.

C. V. Wilson, mortician in Lynchburg, and Charles K. Coleman of Danville, who polled 956 vtes out of 4,187 cast, received some white votes in the councilmanic election this year.

The civic organizations, which conducted campaigns in all parts of Virginia, are laying plans for a more extensive and concentrated drive for colored voters throughout Virginia. 7-6-46

The need for a better organized voters' drive in places like Lynchburg, Danville, Charlottesville, Covington, Newport News, Petersburg and Richmond is obvious from the small vote in these cities.

Roscoe C. Jackson and his Richmond Democratic League have interested some citizens in preparing to vote, but for the size of the population the success of these drives has been poor.

It is believed that Norfolk has a higher per cent of colored voters than any other city in the State. 7-6-46

When the Rev. W. B. Ball, Baptist minister, ran for the House of Delegates last August, in the Democratic primary, he did not poll half the number of votes which Mr. Ashe got in the June 11 councilmanic election.

There was no show of strength among colored voters in Lynchburg or Charlottesville. Civic leaders here say the drive for more voters must be conducted on a 12-month basis. 7-6-46

The federation is renewing its drive to get all citizens with paid up poll taxes to register before Oct. 5. Veterans will not have to pay their poll tax in order to register. All they must do is take their discharge certificates with them to the registrar's office.

VA. POLL TAX FAILS TO KEEP NEGROES FROM POLLS

Chicago Ill. Defender Sat. 9-7-46

ARLINGTON, Va.—The Aug. 6 primaries here witnessed the greatest turnout of voters from the colored communities ever seen in the history of this county, according to reports from the Arlington Federation of voters.

Although the results were far short of the 100 per cent vote turnout aimed at by the organization two Negro candidates who filed for office missed election by only a few votes.

In a precinct election, Mrs. Esther I. Cooper was short by 12 votes in a district which carried the largest group of colored voters. Mrs. Cooper is president of the local NAACP branch and vice-chairman of the Arlington chapter of the Southern Conference for Human Rights.

In the Crane precinct, Isaiah K. Adams in a close contest lost out by 46 votes. Adams, who served in the war and fought in the Bouganville campaign, was commissioned a second lieutenant at the Ft. Benning, Ga., infantry school. He is treasurer of the North Arlington Veterans' Committee.

Virginia Negroes Become Vote Conscious

RICHMOND, Va.—Not since Reconstruction days have Virginia Negroes been so politically conscious as they are today.

A study of recent elections held here, made by civic organizations, reveals that the Negro under the stimulant of present legal encouragement, has become increasingly aware of himself as a voter.

The defeat of Negro candidates in various cities in the state in these elections has failed to dampen his ardour.

Better organization and more concentrated drives, the civic organizations conclude from the study, would bring out more voters and result in a greater percentage of Negro candidates being elected to office.

In Charlottesville, the study revealed, the Negro candidate, Dr. L. Coles, received more votes in predominantly white precincts than in precincts where a majority of the voters were Negro.

In Richmond, with a heavy Negro population, the success in developing Negro voting was limited. In Norfolk with the highest percentage of Negro voters in the state, and where a better organized and determined drive seems to have been made, the study shows, Victor J. Ashe, a colored candidate, won votes in every one of the city's 37 precincts.

GOV. LANEY BARS VOTE BY ARKANSAS NEGROES

New York Times N.Y.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 6 (AP)—Gov. Ben Laney said today that Negroes would not be permitted to vote in the Democratic primaries in Arkansas this year and added: "The Justice Department can crack its whip."

His statement followed a declaration by Solicitor General Howard J. McGrath in Washington yesterday that the Justice Department would prosecute "any State or party official who attempts to prevent a person from voting because of color" in a primary or general election.

Mr. Laney, nominal head of the Democratic party in Arkansas, said:

"We will conduct our primaries for State officials as we have always done." Sun 4-7-46

The Arkansas Legislature last year passed an act which separated Democratic primaries for State offices and those for Federal offices. Legislators frankly admitted the act was planned to prevent Negroes from voting in elections for State offices after the Supreme Court had held they could not be barred from voting for Federal officers in primary elections.

Negro-Vote Curb Upheld In Arkansas

Supreme Court Of State Rules 1945 Act Valid

Louisville, Ky.

By the Associated Press

Little Rock, Ark., June 26.—A legislative act designed to ban Negroes from voting for State officials in Democratic primaries was upheld today by the Arkansas Supreme Court.

In the same unanimous decision, the court ruled that the Counties will have to foot the bills for two of Arkansas' four 1946 Democratic primary elections. Thur. 6-27-46

The high tribunal held constitutional Act 107, passed last year, which set up separate U. S. and State primaries to keep Negroes from voting in elections to select Democratic nominees for State offices. It ruled that the Counties must—as provided in the Act—finance the Federal primaries.

Courts Refusing Funds.

Quorum courts of more than two thirds of the Counties have failed to appropriate funds to pay officials and cover the costs of ballots for these primaries.

Lee Whittaker, Fort Smith, candidate for Congress who sought to force the Democratic state committee to place his name on the State primary ballot, had challenged the act's validity.

Whittaker and other Congressional candidates seeking to unseat three incumbents said the Counties' failure to appropriate funds for the federal primaries precluded a representative vote.

The federal preferential Democratic primary will be held July 16, with a runoff August 6. Primaries to nominate State officials are scheduled July 30 and August 13.

The Arkansas Supreme Court made it clear that it was not concerned with "the wisdom or policy of the legislation" but merely with its validity.

The decision reversed a decree by Pulaski Chancellor Frank Dodge holding the primary separation act unconstitutional.

After the ruling was handed down today, Governor Laney, state leader of the Democratic Party, indicated that the 1947 Legislature might be asked to repeal Act 107.

Arkansas Court Upholds Jim Crow State Primary

Chicago

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — The state supreme court, here last week, disregarding "the wisdom or policy of the legislation" upheld as constitutional a legislative act passed last year to prevent Negroes from voting for officials in state Democratic primaries. Ch. 7-6-46

Lee Whitaker, Fort Smith congressional candidate, seeking to get his name on the state primary ballot had challenged the constitutionality of the act. Whitaker and a group of other candidates for Congress argued that the failure of the counties to provide funds for the Federal primaries in which Negroes may vote precluded a representative vote. The law requires counties to appropriate money for this purpose.

Arkansas Primaries Must Be Separate

Michigan Chronicle

Detroit, Mich.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—(NNPA)—Arkansas must have separate federal and state Democratic primaries this year, and counties voting on candidates for federal offices must pay the cost of such balloting, the state Supreme Court ruled last Wednesday.

Upholding Act 107 of 1945, which was enacted in an attempt to prevent colored people from voting in primaries to select Democratic nominees for state office, the tribunal's decision apparently ended a long political dispute. Counties virtually were ordered to hold separate primaries for federal candidates. Sat. 7-6-46

In a unanimous opinion, written by Justice Frank G. Smith, the Supreme Court pointed out that the act imposed a duty on counties with federal candidates and that it is their duty to discharge it.

Texas Ruling Cited

"Holding of an election in a county is a matter of vital concern to the citizens of the county, who otherwise would be deprived of their privilege to vote," the opinion said. "A county election is a public and county purpose and a very important one, and if so the General Assembly has the power to impose its cost on the county holding the election."

The tribunal said the United States Supreme Court's recent decision (Smith vs. Allwright) involving Texas primaries had made its opinion easier. The United States court in that case ruled that political parties are in effect state agencies and cannot be controlled by private regulations.

Decision Is Irrelevant

Dr. J. M. Robinson of Little Rock, president of the Arkansas Negro Democratic Association, said his organization "would advise all qualified Negro Democrats to regard the decision as irrelevant to us." Sat. 7-6-46

"The Supreme Court and directives from the attorney general's office state plainly that any judge or officer of the law who shall attempt to prevent any qualified Democrat from voting in the primaries shall be subject to prosecution," he added.

Vote Fight Causes "Red Nightmare"

Atlanta, Ga.

Daily Worker

TAMPA, Fla.—(ANP)—Fearful that thousands of Negroes will follow the lead of the Communist party in the battle for the ballot, the Tampa Morning Tribune published an anguished editorial protesting the vigorous campaign of local Communists to register colored citizens as voters in the forthcoming May primaries.

During the last few weeks, members of the Tampa club of the Communist party have distributed thousands of copies of an "Appeal to the Negro People" urging Negroes to register Democratic at the Madison school, local registration headquarters. The state Democratic executive committee has grudgingly conceded that it cannot get around the 1944 U. S. Supreme court decision outlawing the Texas primary and recently passed a back-handed resolution permitting Negroes to vote in the party primaries but in jim crow voting booths.

The Tampa Tribune accuses the Communists of trying "to arouse racial prejudice" and "to deceive Negro citizens by false claims of their political importance" and "to infiltrate Communist designs into the Democratic primaries."

Sat 3-9-46

The editorial also called other leaflets, distributed in Ocala, Fla., as "an appeal to Negro racial prejudice" because they urge Negroes to register Democratic "as a protest against the lynch murder of Jesse James Payne of Madison county, and Sam McFadden, of Suwanee county," who "will not have died in vain if you register Democratic."

Florida Democrats Ask State For White Primaries

N.Y.

JACKSONVILLE. (ANP)—Ninety-eight members of the State Democratic Executive Committee adopted a resolution here last week asking the state legislature to repeal at the 1947 session all election laws "which prevent the Democratic Party from remaining an exclusively white party."

Sat. 6-22-46

The committee's action followed by one month the first Democratic primary in this state in which Negroes voted in numbers. On January 21, the same committee failed for the first time since 1904 to include in its qualifications for voting in the Democratic primaries that the voter be of the white race.

Basis for the move to nullify Negro suffrage rights in state primaries is said to be on state and federal court decisions that Negroes can be barred from primaries conducted by the state. The Negro vote became a major issue in this county, Duval, last month in a legislative race.

Saturday

State Senator John E. Mathews charged, after winning a re-nomination in a second primary runoff with Mabry Corlton that "the CIO communists" were organizing the Negroes into a voting bloc. Carlton received a big majority of the Negro vote. Mathews was a principal foe against Negro voting in state primaries at the 1945 legislative session.

6-22-46

Any possibility of transferring jurisdiction over the Democratic primary from the secretary of state and county commissions to the party machinery of state and county Democratic committees seem remote. Such a move might temporarily block Negro participation in Democratic primaries, some observers said.

Opposition is expected against such a proposal from R. A. Gray, secretary of state, who heads all election officials in Florida. He has expressed fear that the evils of party control of primaries will more than offset any problems created by Negro voting, which played an insignificant role in primaries in this state last month.

Saturday

6-22-46

Gray was influenced last year in preventing the legislature from changing Florida's present primary system. The committee said that if the legislature should see fit to pass laws giving the party control over its affairs "this committee will call and hold the white Democratic primaries for the nomination for candidates for office of the Democratic primary."

Miami

The United States Supreme Court has already ruled that Negroes may not be barred from Democratic primaries in states in which they are conducted under supervision of the state. The committee's resolution may depend upon the election of Joe Hill Williams, assistant state attorney, as chairman.

Florida

Many anti-Negro Democrats still remember the important part Negro votes played in the election of Congresswoman Helen Mankin and in the defeat of Speaker Roy Harris, Governor Ellis Arnall's chief legislative foe, earlier this year.

Democrats Meet; Plan Vote Steal

Sat. 6-15-46

By ENOC WATERS
(Defender Staff Correspondent)

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Rebellious lily-white Democrats here took first steps Wednesday, June 5, to follow the leads of South Carolina and Arkansas in seeking to circumvent the recent federal court ruling opening the Democratic primaries to Negro voters.

At a day-long reorganization session of the State Executive Committee of the Democratic Party held at George Washington Hotel, here, a resolution was adopted asking the state legislature to "repeal laws which prevent the Democratic Party from remaining an exclusively white party."

To assist the state's solons, the committee further instructed its legislative committee to "work with the legislature of the State of Florida and the Bar Association" in passing such law or laws as might be needed to authorize white primaries in this state.

Robbed Of Vote

In both South Carolina and Arkansas, the state legislatures and the Democratic party have conspired to rob the Negro of participation in local primaries. Both of these actions are bound to face high court tests by Negroes determined to take full advantage of recent federal court and Department of Justice rulings in their favor.

If the move to disfranchise Negroes in Florida is accomplished, it too, will have to face a bitter test in the federal courts, and it is likely that criminal prosecution will be instituted against those endeavoring to junk the recent edict extending the ballot to Negroes in the primaries.

The technique proposed at Wednesday's meeting was a divorcement of the Democratic party and the primary from the state "by which the Democratic party would be permitted to control its own affairs."

Full Accord

It is presumed that the new officers of the committee are in full accord with the action taken at the meeting. They are Joe Hill Williams of Lake Butler, chairman; Mrs. Lucille C. Talley of Tavares, vice chairman; and Irvin Walden of Sarasota, secretary-treasurer.

The lily-white conspirators were welcomed to the city by Mayor C. Frank Whitehead. Ex-Gov. Fred P. Cone was one of the principal speakers.

The presence at the sessions of S. D. Clarke, president designate of the state senate, and other influential members of the legislature, suggested that assurances have already been given that the legislation requested by the committee will be acted upon when the legislature meets next year.

2 States Demand 'White Party' Rule

Anti-American

WASHINGTON

Two Southern States — Florida and Alabama—moved boldly last week to circumvent the U.S. Supreme Court's decree nullifying the un-democratic "white primary," and thus continue the political mechanism through which the credo of "white supremacy" is maintained. Sat 6-15-46

The Florida State Democratic Executive Committee adopted without a dissenting vote a resolution, at a reorganization meeting on June 5, calling on the State Legislature to repeal laws which prevent the party from remaining "an exclusively white party."

It instructed its legislative committee to work with the Legislature and the State of Florida and the bar associations in passing such law or laws. The resolution said further: Sat. 6-15-46

White Rule Lauded

"If the Legislature sees fit to pass such legislation . . . the committee will call and hold white Democratic primaries for the nomination of the candidates for office of the Democratic party."

Former Governor Fred Cone extolled the "white man's government," and urged Democrats "to allow no one to take charge of the party except those who believe in the principles of the party."

Congressman Lex Green also praised "white men's government" and Tammany Hall, which he said was "the Southern party's Northern wing."

Raps CIO, Communists

State Senator John E. Matthews of Jacksonville asserted:

"It is not the colored people . . . who are organizing themselves, but outside agitators. It would not be so bad if the colored man were allowed to vote his honest convictions, but he is being used as a dupe by CIO-Communist inspired organizations."

Alabama Amendment

Seeking a return to the traditional "white primaries," Alabama considered a constitutional amendment which would make the qualifications for voters more stringent in the hope of excluding colored citizens.

To get around the U.S. Supreme Court's decision outlawing the "white primary," the Democratic Party plans to amend the registration laws through a bill requiring all registrants to "understand and be able to explain" the Constitution.

The bill, to be voted on in the November general election, would make County boards of registrars the sole judges of a prospective voter's qualifications, with their word law unless questioned in court procedure. 6-1 46 Sat

Suit Feared

The proposed act, while not mentioning race, has been called "essential to white supremacy" by an Alabama legislator. Party Chairman Gessner T. McCorvey referred to it as an "effective way of keeping colored people from voting in primaries in the future." The proposed amendment has brought some opposition.

Richard T. Rives Jr., Montgomery attorney and politician, argues that enactment would "encourage colored citizens to go to court to enforce their right to vote," and that court action "inevitably breeds bad feeling between the races." He cited a suit pending in Federal Court.

Voters Tricked

The colored vote in the May 7 Democratic primaries was reported negligible for several reasons.

One was the fact that the State committee failed to register the colored people in time, and another was that many were barred from the primaries by the Feb. 1 deadline on payment of poll taxes.

Efforts to repeal the poll tax in Alabama so far have been of no avail. The Legislature blocked a move to abolish the levy during the 1945 session.

Progress in the Primaries

Daily Worker New York, N.Y. Fri 7-19-46

THIS week's primary elections were good signs for the country. They demonstrate once again that a majority of the American people—where the issues are relatively clear—choose progress and democracy and reject that which smacks of fascism.

In the Montana primary the case is clear-cut. Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, with a long record as an America Firster in thought and action, who fought FDR and the New Deal, was defeated by Leif Erickson, the candidate backed by CIO, PAC, the ICC and the Roosevelt forces of Montana and the nation. Endorsements by William Green, John L. Lewis and President Truman could not save Wheeler. And it is thought probable that the Truman letter, coming so soon after his strikebreaking in the railroad dispute, actually helped defeat Wheeler.

ERICKSON

The Georgia primary is more complicated. Gene Talmadge, one of the worst of America's grass roots fascists who based his campaign largely on scurrilous attacks on the Negro people, won the nomination, although his opponent received more popular votes. This paradox is the result of the archaic unit rule system which still prevails in Georgia and under which rural counties with a tiny population have as many unit votes as more industrial counties with large populations.

Despite the "legal" outcome of the Georgia primary, as decided by the unit vote, the really significant fact remains that a majority of the people of Georgia voted against Talmadge and all he stands for.

The Georgia primary was historic because the Negro people voted in large numbers for the first time since the disfranchising constitution was adopted shortly after the turn of the century. More than 134,000 Negroes were registered, and although the Talmadge forces attempted to purge thousands of them from the registration lists, a large number braved terror and intimidation to vote.

The new upsurge of Negro voting in the South is partly the result of the U.S. Supreme Court decision outlawing the white primary. It is partly due to the growing realization of large sections of the white South, especially labor, that depriving the Negro people of their rights hurts all the common people of the South. But more than that it reflects the growing political consciousness of the Negro people and their determination to assert their rights as citizens of this commonwealth.

This is a development which is being repeated to some degree throughout the South in the 1946 primaries. It means that never again can the southern bourbons fail to reckon with the Negro people as an important political and electoral factor. It underscores a lesson long pointed out in these columns, that if labor and the progressive forces will fight for the rights of the Negro people consistently and effectively—including the support of Negro candidates for office in southern states—the progressives will have an ever more powerful ally.

3 Southern States Plan to Restrict Registration

The Afro-American Baltimore, Md.
Sat. 9-21-46

ALBANY, Ga. — A southwide conspiracy to evade the U.S. Supreme Court decision opening primary elections to all citizens was evident last week with the baring of sinister moves in Alabama, Mississippi and Georgia to bar registration of non-white citizens.

Moves are afoot in these States to amend their constitutions, stripping from them provisions regulating primaries and setting up those elections on a non-legislative basis as did South Carolina in 1944.

That the South Carolina plan has proven effective, so far, in eliminating non-white primary voters is indicated by the fact that less than 20 colored persons are enrolled on the Democratic party's books throughout the entire State.

Practice Not Tested

The threat of Federal court action to force the Democratic party in South Carolina to open its doors to all citizens seems no deterent to white-supremacists, who already have set into motion proposals for further restricting registration.

This is due to the fact that no Federal court in South Carolina, as yet, has contested the party's right as a private organization to establish qualifications of its membership and methods of selecting its nominees.

Vote Due in Alabama

Alabama has taken the first step of the three States to restrict registration of colored persons, through the State Democratic Executive Committees' launching of a constitutional amendment to tighten registration.

When Alabama voters go to the polls on Dec. 5, they will pass on the Boswell amendment, which will, in effect, make the Democratic party in the State a "white man's party," by keeping colored citizens from registering in it.

Appeal to Fear

Although directed against non-whites, the amendment is said to give reactionary politicians a legal opportunity to break up the political organization fronted by "liberal" Sen. Lister Hill, thus checking progressive white voters.

Prejudice and fear of white voters of the State are appealed to in the printed letter urging adoption of the amendment sent out by the committee, which states:

"We are now at the crossroads and Alabama must surround the exercise of suffrage . . . with such legal safeguards as will protect our State" from domination by colored persons.

Miss. Ready to Act

State officials in Mississippi propose calling a special session of the Mississippi legislature some time after Nov. 20 to change their election laws, possibly to follow the South Carolina pattern.

They are, however, keeping a "weather eye cocked" on the situation in South Carolina, where the NAACP has threatened to bring Federal suit to break down the party restriction against colored citizens.

It is pointed out that legislation may employ other methods of depriving groups of participation in primaries than the one in use by South Carolina, such as using excessive property or educational requirements.

Georgia Awaits Talmadge

In Georgia, the carrying-out of the pledge of Governor-elect Talmadge not only to return the "white primary," but also to continue jim-crow practices on inter-State busses and trains, in defiance of the Supreme Court's ruling, awaits his incumbency.

Meanwhile, colored voters have shown their strength by voting as a bloc against Talmadge, during the last primary election.

Positive proof as to who they supported lies in the fact Talmadge was snowed-under by ballots cast in the 50 separate voting boxes used for them in Chatham County.

It is reported that only 50 ballots in all the colored precincts of the county were marked for Talmadge.

Citizens Fight for Vote

That non-white citizens in Georgia will fight legally for their right to primary registration is seen in the fact that a court battle is at present being carried on there.

A petition is now before the U.S. District Court enjoining registrars against removal of the names of 20 non-white citizens from registration lists in four southwest counties.

CIO COUNCIL TO FIGHT RETURN OF WHITE PRIMARY

The Defender Chicago, Ill.
Sat. 10-19-46

MACON—Hitting out at efforts to bring the white primary back to Georgia and demanding stern justice for lynchers, the Georgia CIO ndustrial Union Council last week pledged a fight to keep for its Negro members their democratic right to vote.

More than 300 delegates passed a resolution terming moves by reactionary forces to bring the white primary back to the state "undemocratic," and added that "it violates the interests of all CIO members by threatening to disfranchise Negro CIO membership and weaken democracy in the South."

Other resolutions demanded that lynchers feel the full force of the law and endorsed the Wagner-Ellender-Taft long range housing program.

Van Bittner, director of the drive in the South, pointed out that Ohio workers have three times the purchasing power of those doing similar work in Dixie. He asserted that the CIO and its seven million members, will not be satisfied with anything less than wage parity in an organized South.

Convention Preserves White Primary

In the opinion of this newspaper, the action of the state Democratic convention, meeting in Macon Wednesday, urging the repeal of all primary laws, in order to prevent voting by Negroes, is sheer tragedy.

It is that because such action means that the white people of Georgia—at least enough of them to control the machinery of the Democratic party—are saying to the Negroes of the state that they are not wanted as citizens.

This is a great pity, because the Negro is capable of being, and desperately wants to be, a good citizen. It is folly to deny him the rights and to refuse to place upon him the duties of citizenship, because democracy is frail enough to need all the resources it can command.

Refusal of the ballot to the colored third of the state's population, solely because it is colored, is a denial of the principles of democracy at a time in history when the supreme need of mankind is to make democracy work. It is a needless discouragement to Negroes who need only encouragement to make them respond to the high demands of good citizenship.

The convention's action also is tragic for the white people of the state because it is illegal and unfair and unintelligent and no man can so act without unfavorable reaction upon himself. The ultimate penalties of wrongdoing are visited most heavily upon the wrongdoer.

The action is illegal because the Constitution of the United States makes the Negro a citizen and guarantees him the right to vote. Any scheme that nullifies these provisions is a subterfuge and violates the Constitution. Even if the scheme proposed by the convention were slick enough to circumvent the Constitution, it could add nothing, but would take away a good deal, from Georgia's self-respect.

Moreover, the convention's action, if translated into law, is unjust. Negroes are required to discharge their share—sometimes more than their share—of public burdens. For example, they pay taxes. They are drafted for military service and perform in war the duties assigned to them. The laws operate upon them as they do on white people. It is only elementary fairness that, discharging these burdens, they should also enjoy the privileges of citizenship. And we cannot deny those privileges to them without a consequent deterioration in our own character.

Furthermore, denial to the Negro of the rights of citizenship is foolish. It hurts us. We cannot hold the Negro down without injury to ourselves. His wellbeing and prosperity increase our own. Our welfare is inseparable from his. We cannot keep a third of our population in bondage without being ourselves dragged down to the same low level.

Finally, the action proposed by the convention will be fruitless in the end. It will not change the fact that the primary in Georgia controls the result and is the real election, or nullify the Constitution and the laws which confer on all citizens the right to vote in real elections. The net result will be finally only added bitternesses and new hatreds, without the preservation of the white primary, if that institution were worth preserving.

It is our hope that the General Assembly will not follow the convention. The price demanded for "white supremacy," in illegality, injustice, foolishness and loss of self-respect is too great for Georgia to pay.

Talmadge Foes Adopt Watchful Waiting Policy

By BENNETT DELOACH

ATLANTA, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Political opponents of Eugene Talmadge are taking a "wait and see' attitude as the next Administration gets set for taking over the affairs of State in January.

So far, there has been little publicly announced opposition to Talmadge and his plans which include setting up a white primary for the Democratic Party and adopting the Governor-Nominate's campaign platform.

That, however, has been the usual trend of political affairs in Georgia before the State Democratic Convention meets.

There have been rumblings though, of possible opposition which might be brewing against Talmadge and his supporters.

One person active in State politics has dropped some hints that he might take to the stump in opposition to Talmadge's plan to set up a white primary.

This man, who asked that his name not be used, said he was considering attacking the white primary idea after the State Convention had acted on it, as the "Talmadge party and primary."

One legislator, who declined use of his name, said "it was regretful" that Talmadge had not given his blessings to any World War II veteran for any of the major General Assembly jobs.

Advocates of the proposed Constitutional Amendment making the State Public Welfare Board a Constitutional group have indicated they plan to answer Talmadge's recent attacks on the proposal.

Talmadge has called for defeat of the proposed amendment, and one his chief supporters, Roy Harris, said he expects the State Convention at Macon to adopt a resolution condemning the measure.

Whether there will be any organized opposition to Talmadge remains to be seen.

The logical leader of any such opposition would be Governor Arnall or James V. Carmichael, who was runner up to Talmadge in the State Democratic primary.

Neither has said what he plans to do about politics when Talmadge takes office, but there has been speculation that Carmichael would take no leading part in State politics.

Meanwhile, Talmadge himself says nothing about politics. The nearest thing to a political remark recently was his comment that "you'll really hear something at Macon about the white primary" when he speaks.

Most of those close to Talmadge say the present plans are to stick principally with the original strategy of asking the Convention to adopt the white primary and Talmadge's Summer campaign platform.

Georgia Acts To Get 'All-White' Primary Tangled In Confusion

The News Birmingham, Ala.
Tue. 12-6-46

ATLANTA, Dec. 6—(AP)—Confusion as an outgrowth of a move to give Georgia an all-white primary by repealing all primary laws was reported by The Atlanta Constitution today. It said this is resulting in greater support for an alternate plan to strengthen educational requirements of voters.

The newspaper reported the confusion is leading to these possibilities:

1. A question whether any part of the state can have a white primary if any county refuses to have its own local primary laws abolished.

2. A battle between white primary advocates and legislators backing the continuance of a legislative courtesy policy through which the General Assembly follows the wishes of local legislators on local matters.

3. Necessity for a deluge of local and special bills repealing by name and number every measure regulating primaries of municipalities, if Negroes are to be banned from voting in city as well as state primaries.

4. Opposition to repeal of special and local laws governing primaries in Atlanta and Fulton County.

5. Creation of innumerable political machines in cities throughout the state by those who control local Democratic committees.

Roy Harris, of Augusta, retiring speaker of the House, has written incoming legislators that he is drafting a bill to repeal both state and county primary laws. He suggested that the new representatives introduce local bills to repeal laws governing their municipal primaries.

Duke Charges 'Sabotage in Primary Move

The Atlanta Constitution
Wed. 12-18-46

Constitution State News Service.

MACON, Dec. 17—An "unholy alliance" is attempting ',to carve up the corpse of the s pirit of progress in Georgia" and keep this State tied to a "colonial system" of economics, Asst. Atty. Gen. Dan Duke charged in a speech before the Lions Club Tuesday.

Blasting representatives of the "railroad monopoly" and public officials who advocate abolition of legal regulations for party primaries, Duke declared:

"I charge that there now exists a designing alliance between the special interest groups who profit by our colonial status and a group of conniving political demagogues and that they have a deliberate plan to sabotage the first real effort ever made in our State to break the stranglehold of the railroad monopoly on the Southeast. You will see their lobbyists actively at work. Indeed, it is rumored that one railroad employee is slated to become an official of one of our legislative bodies.

"It is already predicted that this intriguing alliance will seek to strike down by emasculation and assassination the legal protection which every citizen has when he casts his ballot in a party primary. When that day comes we will have government of men and not by law. Every man, woman and child will then become a pawn in a vicious game of petty, personal, partisan politics."

This Georgia cannot permit, Duke continued, declaring that Georgians must organize in every village and hamlet to keep alive an "active progressive movement that will defy any demagogue who is being used by our modern quislings to keep us tied to our colonial system.

"We will have to develop the leadership for this movement in our own State. We cannot look to outside leadership. Our program must be solid and sound, based absolutely upon the needs of our people and functioning within the framework of our traditional concepts."

Restoration Of Poll Tax; Purge Of Negroes Seen

Daily World
Atlanta, Ga.

Talmadge Hopes To Disqualify Negro In Statewide Move

According to Roy V. Harris, of Augusta, retiring speaker of the House of Representatives and co-chairman of the Talmadge campaign for governor, the incoming administration has the following plans for attempting to preserve the white primary in Georgia:

1. A measure repealing all state laws that refer to party primaries and leaving party rules and regulations as to membership and elections to the rules adopted by the state convention in Macon in October.

2. A revision of the Georgia code striking the word primary from all election laws and leaving the references only to elections.

3. A grandfather clause that repeals all general, special and local laws governing primaries of any description.

4. Enactment of a new law against fraud in elections, including repeating, bribery, ballot box stuffing and illegal counting.

5. A strong law on the qualification of voters that will prevent illegal balloting.

6. Invalidation of existing registration lists and a fresh start on statewide registration, with a fee being required for registering.

Observers immediately saw in the Talmadge administration an attempt to restore a poll tax which for years kept thousands of Negroes and poor whites from registering, and a statewide purge of Negroes from voters' lists.

Harris claimed that the white people of Georgia voted overwhelmingly for a white primary in the recent election, in which white supremacy was the issue. Said he:

"We have checked the vote in every county in Georgia and have found out that if white people only had participated in that primary, Governor Talmadge would have carried 141 counties, Rivers 10 and Carmichael only eight."

Concerning discrimination, the retiring speaker said that the state can not discriminate against any of its citizens but that a political party can. He said that it is legal to discriminate against a class of people in every county in the world except Russia and the United States. "We do not want to get any closer to communism than we are now," he asserted. Harris claimed further that in order to be classed as a liberal today, one must subscribe to the Russian view as to what our foreign policy ought to be and he must believe in social equality for all races.

Tues. 12-17-46

Asked to explain the white primary plan, Harris said:

"It is not my idea to let people seeking to advance their own interest force a minority group into the Democratic party. Let the Negroes form their own party if they want one."

The group went on record as favoring a sales tax plan, among other proposals coming from new legislators.

Georgia's White Primary Leaders Consider New Move at 'Rescue'

Atlanta Constitution, Ga.
Thurs 3-28-46

By M. L. ST. JOHN

Georgia's Negro voting issue has taken a queer turn, with some political leaders who want to ban Negroes making moves to accept the Federal Appellate Court's decision.

They do not want the Columbus case carried to the United States Supreme Court, where they anticipate a similar decision holding that the Negroes are entitled to vote in Georgia's Democratic primary, it was learned.

They would prefer to accept the Appellate Court's ruling as just, and then quickly summon the Legislature into special session to repeal the primary laws. This would leave primary regulations in the hands of the political party, which could permit only white people to vote, they claim. Many do not trust the party to retain the county unit election system, however, once state regulations are lifted.

The moves of the leaders came too late to stop the appeal to the Supreme Court. Thurs. 3-28-46

It is possible for the Supreme Court to consider accepting the Columbus case Monday, attorneys for both sides said yesterday. A day after Charles Bloch, of Macon, filed an appeal for the Muscogee County Democratic Executive Committee, Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook airmailed his brief to Washington as "a friend of the court."

Harry Strozier, of Macon, is attorney for Primus E. King, Columbus Negro who was awarded damages by Federal Judge T. Hoyt Davis, of Macon, and the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

All attorneys are hopeful that the Supreme Court can dispose of the Georgia case before the summer recess, otherwise the final decision might not be reached until after this year's primary.

While some political leaders preferred to call the Legislature into session immediately instead of going to the Supreme Court, most political observers predicted the Legislature would not meet in special session.

Voters End White Primary Regime

Afro-American
Baltimore, Md.

AUGUSTA, Ga.—(ANP)—With over 4,000 colored persons voting in the heretofore white primary the Richmond County "Cracker Party" was swept out of power here for the first time in 20 years, with the defeat of Roy Harris of the Georgia House of Representatives.

William S. Morris, liberal Augusta Chronicle editor, was the victor. Harris, speaker of the House assembly, is in favor of calling a special session to repeal laws so that colored will be kept from voting in the primaries.

Factors Causing the Defeat

Admitting defeat, Harris said he lost because 4,600 colored persons were registered and voted, some welcoming the idea of voting although they do not understand.

Also accusing outside forces for his defeat, he said that the fight had just begun.

All incumbents in the race were defeated. Led by the Rev. G. H. Carter, colored citizens were solid in opposition to the Harris regime which brags it has kept the primary white since the '90's.

'Save White Primary,' Talmadge Begs Voters

Atlanta Constitution
Atlanta, Ga.

DOUGLAS, May 22—Former appealed to all white voters to those "Communists" who would where they came from."

The gubernatorial candidate, in the first day of a middle and south Georgia speaking tour, appeared at an Eastman rally Wednesday morning and talked before a gathering here in the afternoon.

In Douglas, the crowd, which Talmadge estimated between 1,100 and 1,200, applauded vigorously as he blasted Gov. Arnall and his two gubernatorial opponents for their stand on the white primary.

Coatless and snapping his red galluses, Talmadge belittled those who call "benefits to veterans handouts" and pointed to a group of former servicemen in the crowd who, he said, paid for his radio time for the Douglas speech.

H. J. Quincy, Douglas attorney, introduced Talmadge and termed the white primary issue greater than personalities, declaring "Gov. Arnall should be tared and feathered' for his stand on the issue.

Before the Douglas speech, the Harmony Singers from Waycross sang several songs, followed by a talk by the Rev. Henry Sears, Master of Ceremonies. 5-23-46

The Douglas speech, which drew a larger crowd than the morning rally at Eastman, was made in front of the County Ofice Building with a flat trailer truck as a platform. Talmadge's technique of answering questions from the audience was aided by the crowd after the movement was initiated by a supporter on his platform.

The Eastman crowd which heard the ex-Governor in City Park was courteous and orderly but did not express great enthusiasm until encouraged by a "questioner" who sat on the platform with the former Governor.

Not one cry of "Take off your coat, Gene" came from the Eastman audience, but many "pledged" their vote to the former Governor when he asked for a show of his supporters' hands. Most of the verbal response in Eastman to the Gov. Eugene Talmadge Wednesday unite under his banner and send permit Negro voting "back North former Governor, who usually works a crowd to a fever pitch, came after Talmadge began to discuss the White Primary and the "sorry white folks who make sorry Negroes." Thurs. 5-23-46

But even then the shouts of "Tell 'em about it, Gene" and "That's right, Gene" were few and far between.

In discussion of his platform, special emphasis was placed on Talmadge's desire for the veterans' vote.

"You boys who were in the service are my campaign managers," he told the sprinkling of vets in the audience, commenting on the fact that his son, Herman, recently had been released from the Navy.

Included in the candidate's promises were "the largest road-building program ever seen," more old-age pensions, special license privileges to veterans, and the placing of every Sheriff in the State on the rolls of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation, to aid him in "investgating crime."

Talmadge was introduced in Eastman by the Rev. R. G. McKinnon, retired Baptist minister. Hal M. Smith, local attorney, was mater of ceremonies.

White Primary Thing of Past, Arnall Says

Times-Dispatch
Richmond, Va.

Georgia Democrats Told to 'Face Facts'

Tri 5-3-46

ATLANTA, May 2—(AP)—Governor Ellis Arnall told State democatic leaders today that under the law the white democratic primary in Georgia is gone and that any man not willing to uphold the law is not worthy of democratic citizenship.

"Let's be honest about it," he told the State democratic executive committee. "Let's not run from the quacks who would confuse the issue. Let's not be afraid of the demagogues."

Earlier the committee declined to consider a resolution requesting a special session of the legislature to consider the question of Negro voting in the primary this year. The resolution was offered by Roy V. Harris, of Augusta, speaker of the House recently defeated for re-election as a House member in a county primary in which Negroes voted for the first time.

Thousands Register

Thousands of Negroes have registered over the State since Federal court rulings upheld their right to ballot in the democratic primary. Tri 5-3-46

Former Governor Eugene Talmadge, a gubernatorial candidate this year, has promised to maintain the white primary if he is elected. Arnall, prevented by the State constitution from seeking a second consecutive term, said today he would not announce whom he would support at this time.

The State committee selected July 17 for the primary.

White Primaries'

New York Times, N. Y.

Of the nation's 13,000,000 Negro citizens, 9,000,000 live in thirteen Southern States, several of which have laws which tend to minimize the Negroes' political strength. One law, in effect in several States, including Georgia, limits primary elections to white voters, and since primaries in the Democratic South are usually more important than general elections, many Negroes are, in effect, disfranchised. Last Monday the United States Supreme Court upheld a decision of a United States District Court that the Georgia "white primaries" were unconstitutional. The high court refused to review the case of one Primus E. King, Negro citizen of Columbus, Ga., who had successfully sued the local Democratic executive committee for depriving him of the privilege of voting in the 1944 primary. The Supreme Court's refusal to review the case brought a reaction on Capitol Hill. Senator Richard B. Russell, Democrat, of Georgia, declared that the State Democratic Committee and State Assembly would decide [illegible] steps to take for the "protection o[illegible] white primary." Sun 4-7-46

Strengthen Income Tax To Meet Expenditures

A member of the new Georgia Legislature came to town the other day and we got to talking about the major problems facing the January General Assembly, such as expanding State services, raising money to pay for the new services, and whether or not the Legislature will repeal all of Georgia's law regulating primaries.

"There has been much talk about a sales tax," the Representative-elect said. "I do not favor imposing a sales tax on the people. I think it imposes a burden on the poor people. It is harder for a man making $1,000 a year to pay a tax of three pennies on his food and clothing than it is for a man making $50,000 a year to pay the same tax."

The solon admitted that more State services are needed and more money is needed to finance them. Then he mentioned his preference for obtaining the new money.

Income Tax

"I think a fairer way to raise money would be to strengthen the income taxes of the State," he said. "The State rate probably could be raised. Then, I don't think we should exempt anyone from paying income taxes. The present minimums of $1,000 for single persons and $2,500 for married persons could be abolished altogether. Let every person pay on the basis of a percentage of what he earns; then it wouldn't hurt the man making a dollar a day to put up his tiny tax any more than it would hurt the millionaire to pay his big tax."

Commenting on a proposal that the State abolish its property tax because it is virtually impossible to administer it fairly, the Representative-elect made the counter-proposal that the tax should be retained but that the exemptions on homesteads should be increased—thereby encouraging home ownership.

He said he had heard talk that the new Administration would not want to recommend a sales tax but would stand by for a revenue-raising measure to originate in the House. From his own viewpoint, the Representative-elect predicted that the new Governor would have to indorse a revenue measure before getting it passed. He also expressed the belief that whatever new form of taxation is approved by the General Assembly will be submitted to the people for a vote next year before becoming effective. While he does not look for it to occur next session, the Representative-elect said that Georgia's entire tax structure needs revamping.

Primary Laws

The new Representative said he was "between the devil and the deep, blue sea" on the proposition of restoring the Democratic white primary. The Talmadge-controlled State Democratic Convention has asked that the laws regulating the primary be abolished so that Georgia can get around the United States Supreme Court ruling which permitted Negroes to vote in last Summer's primary. The new Representative said he favors restoring the white primary. He thinks that the white people should be permitted to choose their own nominees for public office in a primary without interference from the Negroes—that the Negroes have the right to participate in the general election now and that they can, if they like, hold their own primary. On the other hand, he does not favor wiping out laws which prevent fraud in the primaries. He does not want to hand over control of the State government for all time to any one man or small group of men. When State regulations are abolished, and party rules substituted, Georgia is turning its government over to the man who names the delegates to the State Democratic Convention, he pointed out. It gives one man the power to make the rules and write his own ticket from here on out, he reasoned. So he is opposed to this plan. He predicted a fight would be waged against any effort to abolish the primary laws.

Since the man is a newcomer to the Legislature, he asked that his name not be used in this interview. He did not think it behooved a newcomer to brashly announce beforehand what the House should or should not do—but he said he would take his stand publicly in the House if the bills offered were not to his liking.

Answers Accusation White Primary Case 'Thrown'

(Editor's Note: Charles J. Bloch, then President of the Georgia Bar Association, defended the Muscogee County Democratic Executive Committee in the suit brought by Primus King, Columbus Negro, seeking the right to participate in Democratic party primaries. The following communication, wherein Mr. Bloch answers an attack upon him by Eugene Talmadge as a slander on the entire Georgia Bar, is a clear-cut explanation of the facts involved in the so-called white primary issue.) Constitution

My attention has been called to a pamphlet being circulated by Eugene Talmade in an effort to secure nomination of the Democrats of Georgia for the office of Governor of Georgia.

This pamphlet contains these statements:

"Throwing the Primus King case (losing it on purpose) was the most brazen, below-the-belt sell-out of Georgia white people since the despicable carpetbagger Governor Bullock." . . . An honest trial of the Primus King case would have won it."

The "Primus King case" is the case of Primus King versus Joseph E. Chapman, Jr., et al. (members of the Democratic Executive Committee of Muscogee County, Georgia) in which King sought damages by reason of the fact that the members of the Muscogee County Committee refused to permit him to vote in the Democratic primary of July 4, 1944, solely on on account of his color. 7-2-46

THIS CASE was filed in the District Court of the United States for the Middle District of Georgia on Aug. 22, 1944. Times

Shortly thereafter A. Edward Smith, of the Columbus bar, and I were retained by the party authorities to represent the defendants and to contest the case as vigorously as we could. Atlanta

The charge made by Mr. Talmade, therefore, is that Mr. Smith and I betrayed the trust which had been confided to us as attorneys and deliberately tried to lose a case which we had been engaged to defend.

The charge is absolutely false.

I KNOW the character of the members of the Bar of Georgia, and I have implicit confidence that they will resent such reckless slander of other members of the Bar of Georgia.

The mere utterance of such an unfounded charge demonstrates the means which Mr. Talmadge is willing to pursue in an attempt to attain his ambitions.

This case was not only bitterly contested by Mr. Smith and me before Judge Davis, of the District Court, but just as vigorously contested in the Circuit Court of Appeals. An earnest and sincere effort was made to have it reviewed by the Supreme Court of the United States.

THE POSITION of the plaintiff in this case was that it was controlled by decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States in the cases of Classic vs. United States, 313 U. S., and Smith v. Allwright, 321 U. S., in which the court had construed primary laws of the States of Louisiana and Texas and held that the action of the party in these States was the action of the States respectively.

We advised and contended that the situation under the laws of Louisiana and Texas was so different from the situation under the laws of Georgia that these decisions of the Supreme Court were not controlling.

In a brief of 132 printed pages filed in the Circuit Court of Appeals we urged that the facts upon which the conclusion of law in the Texas case was based did not exist in Georgia (Brief, page 34). We urged "that an examination of the Georgia situation as contrasted with the Texas situation will convince that the Supreme Court in adjudging the latter has not pre-judged the former." (Brief, page 44.) Constitution

IN THE REPORTED opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals written by his Honor, Judge Samuel Sibley, there is this language which demonstrates that the court paid heed to what we had urged with respect to the differences between the Louisiana and Texas situation on the one hand, and the Georgia situation on the other.

"We have of course considered the decisions in United States v. Classic, 313 U. S., 299, a criminal case in which the Louisiana primary laws were discussed; and Smith v. Allwright, 321 U. S., 649, a civil suit like this one in which the State of Texas was held by its primary laws to have adopted the primary election as a part of the State's election machinery. The differences between the Georgia laws touching primaries and those of Louisiana and Texas seem to us to be fundamental, especially in that the Georgia laws do not require a party candidate to be in any case chosen by a primary, nor require the State to pay the expenses of the primary if a party calls one; and they permit persons not chosen by any party to have their names put on the official ballots at the election. The cited cases therefore do not decide this one." (154 Fed., 2nd at p. 463.) Atlanta, Ga.

Does this argument and the reaction of the court to it sound as if we were "throwing" a case?

IN THIS SAME pamphlet under the caption "Here's What Judge Samuel B. (sic) Sibley Had to Say About a White Primary," Mr. Talmadge says: ". . . but we are advised of no statute, State or Federal, which undertakes to limit the right of citizens who form a political party to select those who shall participate in it. Nor is there any statute which prohibits those who do participate in a party caucus, mass meeting or election from agreeing to support the result thereof. Accordingly there may be parties composed wholly of whites, or wholly of colored people, or of men, or of women. In a pure party activity by such parties there would result an exclusion from voting in that activity of those of another race, or sex, but it should not be a denial of the right to vote 'in any election by the people in any State, territory or county . . . or other territorial subdivision' in the words of U. S. C. A. 31, nor within the meaning of the Fifteenth or Nineteenth Amendments."

In this pamphlet, and in other of his utterances, Mr. Talmadge sets great store on these words of Judge Sibley, but he fails to let it be known that that utterance of the Court was based on arguments which we had made to it.

IN OUR BRIEF, at page 45, we had said: ". . . the voluntary action of the voluntary group, known as the State Democratic Executive Committee, in deciding in January, 1944, to hold a primary on July 4, 1944, was not action of the State of Georgia, nor was the subsequent holding of a primary action of the State of Georgia. The Democratic Party in Georgia is a voluntary organization which has come into being because its adherents desired of their own free will to associate with one another. This voluntary association alone determines if there shall be Executive Committees, County or State, and the method of the selection or election of the members of such Committees. Georgia does not direct the 'selection of all party officers.' If this voluntary association choose to do so, it can nominate candidates by convention, by mass meeting, or it can select them merely through its committees. If it voluntarily chooses to hold a primary, it must abide by stringent statutory rules and regulations. Even if it voluntarily chooses to hold a primary, it need hold no convention unless it voluntarily chooses to do so. This voluntary association defrays the expense of holding such voluntary primary by any such method of assessment it desires. Georgia has not 'cast its electoral process' as has Texas. Georgia has not made the party the agency of the State. In asking you to affirm this case, counsel for the appellee are asking that you go lengths beyond any ruling of the Supreme Court. You are asked to decide that if a primary is regulated by the State, the holding of such a primary is 'State action.' You are asked to decide that if nomination in a primary is equivalent to election, the holding of such a primary is 'State action.' We respectfully submit that the judgement of the District Court cannot be affirmed unless the rulings of the Supreme Court are thus extended."

DOES THIS ARGUMENT solemnly made before a great Court of the United States sound like argument of an attorney "throwing" a case?

DOES THIS ARGUMENT indicate that those making it and those hearing it were participating in a "dishonest trial"?

WHETHER OR NOT the primary laws of Georgia should be repealed is a matter to be determined by the voters of Georgia. The question should be determined by them upon a fair presentation to them of the law and facts. The voters are not helped in making that decision by malicious and reckless libels on members of the Bar.

The State-regulated primary can, in my opinion, be converted into a purely party primary. This would necessitate, I believe, the repeal of all laws on our statute books in any manner relating to primaries. The purity and binding effect of the primary would have to be left to the party. If the State "collaborates" in any way, I believe that the Supreme Court as presently constituted would hold that Negroes could not legally be barred from participation in a primary. 7-2-46. Times.

I HAVE DEBATED for some time as to whether I should pay any attention to Mr. Talmadge's statements with respect to "throwing" the Primus King case and an "honest trial" of it. On the other hand, I thought that the lawyers of Georgia who knew the lawyers who were engaged in the case would know that the charges were unfounded and not even worthy of being noticed. But, then, I thought there were thousands of voters in Georgia who either were not lawyers or did not know the lawyers in the case and who might be misled by what Mr. Talmadge, a former Governor and a member of the Bar, had to say about brother members of the Bar.

In order that the facts might be known I am writing this letter to all the lawyers of Georgia.

THE LAWYERS OF GEORGIA have in the past honored me with the highest office in their gift. If I ignored a charge that I had participated in the "throwing of a case"—that I had participated in a dishonest trial of a case, I would admit myself unworthy of the honor of that office.

In this same pamphlet, Mr. Talmadge says: "They desire Negroes to participate in our white primary in order to destroy the traditions and heritages of our Southland."

If, by my silence, I admitted that charge, I would admit myself to be unworthy of being the grandson of a soldier of the Confederacy. And one of my proudest heritages is that a lieutenant in the Army of the Confederate States of America was my maternal grandfather.

I ASSURE YOU, lawyers of Georgia, that we realized the gravity and importance of this case, when we undertook the defense of it. We lost it, yes. But—we lost it after exerting every effort honestly possible to gain it. We lost it—but we did not throw it. We lost it—but only after an honest, thorough and painstaking trial of it.

We, as lawyers, know that it is hard enough to have lost an important case. To be unjustly accused of having "thrown" it is a reflection on the character of a lawyer which every other lawyer will join in resenting.

Griffin Campaigns For White Primary

Atlanta Ga Journal July 8 1946

QUITMAN, Ga., July 6.—(AP) Adjutant General Marvin Griffin campaigning for Lieutenant Governor, said here Saturday that the white primary must be preserved.

"Our state has the largest Negro population of any state in the union and cannot be made to conform to the same political pattern as those states with a negligible Negro population, even though citizens of some of these states are trying to insist that we do," he told his audience.

Griffin, a veteran of the recent war, made a special appeal for the vote of the veterans with the statement:

"I feel that with my service record, I have a sympathetic understanding of veterans' problems and could be of some benefit to the veterans along with the rest of our people in helping to steer important veterans legislation through our Legislature. As lieutenant governor, I would, of course, be president of our State Senate, and would be in a position to do this."

Talmadge Plans Ban On Negroes

ATLANTA—(UP)—Gov. Nominate Eugene Talmadge said yesterday that he will ask the state Democratic convention at Macon next month to turn the Democratic party in Georgia into an organization to circumvent federal laws guaranteeing Negroes the right to vote in white primary elections.

Talmadge, who waged and won his gubernatorial campaign on the white supremacy issue, said he still likes the South Carolina system of running its party elections and thinks he would not confirm the report, opens Oct. 9. The governor to Democratic convention which Georgia will do well to follow his plans for the future.

It was reported reliably that Rep. Eugene Cox, Democrat, Georgia, who like Talmadge has been critical of the national administration, will criticized the convention often criticized the Democratic campaign

H. A. STALLINGS

A White Primary?

(The following is reprinted from the Waycross Journal-Herald)

The insistence of Eugene Talmadge that the white primary is an issue in the gubernatorial campaign is an insult to every thoughtful Georgian.

The Supreme Court of the United States has ruled on this question and it is unthinkable that even Eugene Talmadge, if elected Governor, would defy the highest legal authority in the Nation. He would not dare place Georgia in violation of a ruling of the Supreme Court unless he were prepared to have Georgia secede from the United States and establish itself an independent nation.

Instead of proposing defiance he is proposing a subterfuge that would amount to violation and yet, according to Talmadge would be workable. This subterfuge is that every law of Georgia relative to a primary be repealed and that primaries be held and controlled wholly by political parties or by political groups.

This would mean that the white Democrats would hold a white Democratic primary. But it would mean, also that the Negro Democrats, or the Negro Republicans, or just Negroes as a racial group, would be free to hold a Negro primary.

The holding of a Negro primary each year in the 47 counties where the Negroes hold a clear numerical majority could easily elect Negroes to every county office and to every city office.

However, if the Negroes and the whites vote in the same primary, there is little, if any, likelihood that Negroes would be elected to public office in any county, not even in those counties where the Negroes have a numerical majority.

If every Georgia law, relative to primaries, be repealed, as suggested by Talmadge, the sole control of the primary would be placed in the party convention. It is the custom in Georgia that the delegates to the party convention be those who voted for the winning candidate. It would be, in effect, a one-man party convention. Not only that but the party convention at any time by a majority vote could change its rules. It could decide not to hold a primary.

Not only could this one-man party convention do as it pleased about primaries, but it could at any time it desired abolish the county unit system of nominating public officials. In accordance with the suggestion of Talmadge for detouring around the decisions of the Supreme Court the only authority for maintaining or eliminating the county unit system would be this one-man party convention.

As it is now the safeguards thrown around a primary and the maintenance of the county unit system are laws of the State and have the validity and the authority of the law.

While it has not been tested, many of the able legal minds of Georgia are of the opinion that even if the primaries are controlled and regulated by party conventions, if the nominee of the convention is placed on the official ballot, the decision of the Supreme Court would hold and would control.

Eugene Talmadge knows that if he were elected Governor there is nothing, absolutely nothing, he can do about nullifying a decision of the United States Supreme Court: he knows that a strictly white primary will bring about a strictly Negro primary; he knows the party convention would be a Talmadge convention; he knows a Talmadge convention could at any time that it desired do away with the county unit system.

Eugene Talmadge knows he cannot under any circumstances keep the Democratic primary a wholly white primary. He cannot, even by force, maintain a Talmadge-dominated Georgia in rebellion to the laws of the United States.

REPEATS PLEDGE TO SAVE STATE WHITE PRIMARY

MACON, Ga., Oct. 9.—(UP)—Eugene Talmadge, lying sick in a hospital on the day of his latest political triumph, today spoke through his son to accept an unprecedented fourth term as Georgia governor.

Talmadge, who was victorious in the July 17 state primary on a campaign of white supremacy, used the acceptance speech to blast at his enemies whom he labeled "the lunatic fringe of the east that follows the party line of Moscow."

Young Herman Talmadge, the governor - nominate's campaign manager and perhaps heir to his father's political following, read the new governor's words to cheering delegates.

"I do not want to see the doctrines of Henry Wallace and Harold Ickes become a guiding beacon of government in Georgia," Talmadge said. "The radicals of the east and other sections of the country must be content and realize that Georgia will handle its own affairs."

Talmadge drafted the speech before he was sent to a Jacksonville, Fla., hospital bed last week with a serious stomach ailment. He had hoped up to the last minute that he would be recovered and could make today's appearance in person, but doctors ruled the suggestion out and he telegraphed the convention his regrets.

Talmadge, who will be inaugurated in January for a four-year term to succeed reform-bent Gov. Ellis Arnall, defeated James V. Carmichael, Marietta attorney, and former Gov. E. D. Rivers in the primary. Rivers, himself, stood in the convention hall and seconded Talmadge's nomination.

In blunt phraseology, Talmadge reaffirmed the No. 1 pledge of his recent campaign—that Negroes shall never again vote in Georgia primaries so long as he rules.

Talmadge stoutly defended registrars who purged Negro names from voter lists in numerous Georgia counties before the July 17 balloting. If they acted illegally, he said, "then Eugene Talmadge and Eugene Talmadge alone is responsible."

Talmadge also promised "to protect as long as I am governor" the state's county unit system under which he was nominated and which is now being attacked in the United States Supreme Court.

This system gives a county's unit votes to the candidate polling a simple plurality of the county's popular vote. It resulted in Talmadge's nomination although he trailed in popular votes.

But if Georgia did not have this system, Talmadge insisted the state would have a political machine "operated as efficiently as those of Chicago, New York, New Jersey and Memphis."

Delegates were urged by Talmadge to work and vote against a constitutional amendment on the general election ballot for approval November 5 which he said would "freeze in office Director A. J. Hartley of the public health department at his $7,000 a year salary for years to come."

He accused Hartley of issuing a "fake" poll in the recent campaign predicting a two-to-one victory for Carmichael.

The convention adopted a resolution by Floor Leader Roy Harris condemning Hartley as a "dictator of a one-man department who would oppose the policies of the next administration."

To carry out Talmadge's pledge of a white-only primary, the delegates passed a resoltion which revamps the party so that Democratic officials will take over responsibility of governing elections heretofore placed on state officers.

In a final step, the legislature will be asked next January to enact laws specifying and fixing punishment for election frauds such as stealing ballot boxes, deliberate wrong counts, stuffing ballot boxes, voting dead people and out-of-state residents, and buying votes.

The resolution, drafted to execute Talmadge's campaign promise to restore Georgia's "white" primary, rewrites old party rules and combines them with state laws. It offers very little change, except that in the heart of the resolution which reads:

"Any white person who is qualified to vote under the laws of Georgia may become a member of the Democratic party of Georgia by indicating his willingness to become a member and subscribing to the tenets and beliefs of the Democratic party of Georgia, as pronounced by it in its last platform or declaration of policy."

This means that only white citizens may belong to the Democratic party. Since the party will control primaries, only whites will be allowed to vote in Georgia for state and national candidates. This is similar to the method used by South Carolina to circumvent the U. S. Supreme Court ruling that Negroes must be allowed to vote in state primaries.

SUBJECT TO CALL IF MORE ACTION NEEDED

ATLANTA (U.P.)—The State Democratic Convention having accomplished its half of the job of shunting Negroes out of Georgia primary voting, political aides of Eugene Talmadge today were drafting legislation for the 1947 general assembly to complete the job.

The party assembly, which noisily nominated Talmadge in absentia at Macon yesterday for a fourth term as governor, revamped its entire structure to shift laws governing primaries for state law books to party rule books.

But this Talmadge plan to execute his No. 1 campaign promise and restore the "white primary" cannot be effective until the assembly wipes out the election laws.

Final step in the plan to skirt a U. S. Supreme Court decision under which Negroes voted in the July 17 primary will be enactment of new laws specifying election frauds and providing penalties. Present statutes do not fix a punishment for election crimes.

To make certain that any future federal court decisions would not again put Negroes in white voting lines in primaries, the convention adjourned subject to call, so long as Talmadge is in office. If the court orders Georgia again to let Negroes vote in party elections, the convention can re-convene, revamp its set-up again and re-route its course around the court edict.

Some 4,000 delegates who swamped Macon hotels grumbled their disappointment that Talmadge, recovering from a serious stomach ailment in Jacksonville, Fla., hospital could not personally accept the nomination. But they gave a wild ovation to his son, Herman, who delivered the address.

Talmadge re-affirmed his solemn pledge to keep Negroes out of "white" primaries, state, city and county, warned "radical and the lunatic fringe of the East" to let Georgia handle its own affairs. He declared he did not want to see Georgia "fall into the party lines of Moscow."

The next governor also promised to preserve the county unit system of nominating officials in the primary. He blasted state welfare A. J. Hartley, appointee of Governor Ellis Arnall, and promised to defeat a proposed constitutional amendment under which Hartley could be frozen in office for another seven years. He accused Hartley of issuing a "false" poll during the recent race predicting two-to-one defeat for Talmadge.

Convention Floor Leader Roy Harris, of Augusta, introduced an amendment condemning Hartley, called the director "Judge Hurtley," and accused Governor Ellis Arnall of planning to use the welfare department "to try to defeat our white primary plan in the legislature." He charged that Arnall "sold the white people of this state down the river."

Arnall was criticized by other convention speakers for failure to convene the legislature to circumvent the Negro vote court decision. Keynoter Eugene Cox by inference accused him of "making common cause with the Harlequins of Harlem."

Banker Charles D. Redwine, of Fayetteville, nominating Talmadge, deplored the fact that Negroes were allowed to vote in the recent primary and shouted as he pounded the rostrum, "We are ready to tell them now that by the eternal God they shall not pass."

Former Governor E. D. Rivers, who with James V. Carmichael, was defeated by Talmadge, seconded the nomination, pledged "unstinting support to Eugene Talmadge for the next four years. He called attention to a report that a Negro had filed in the race for coroner of Fulton (Atlanta) county, and called Negro participation in white primaries "a hydra-headed monster which we must and shall put down."

Throughout the one-day, harmony-party to support of Talmadge's speakers loosed campaign platform, including financial aid to counties for hospital construction, perpetuation of the teachers, and half of all state jobs for veterans.

Every mention of "Reds," at "Pinks" will hurt the people more than the target."

One of the 21 items which delegates approved without a dissenting voice was a platform pledging the barrage against the next governor and at "Blacks." Every mention of "White Primary" brought spontaneous applause.

White Primary's 'Rescue' Urged

The Atlanta Constitution

Atlanta Ga.

Former Gov. Eugene Talmadge, writing as a private citizen, has formerly asked Chairman J. Lon Duckworth to convene the State Democratic Executive Committee for the purpose of protecting Georgia's white primary.

At the same time, a move made by Speaker Roy Harris, of Augusta, to wrap the flag of educational aid around efforts to convene the Legislature and ban Negro voting, was dampened when State Auditor B. E. Thrasher, Jr., declared the state does not have any $5,000,000 surplus as mentioned by Harris.

A third development in the Negro voting picture yesterday was the announcement the United States Supreme Court has been asked to intervene in the lower Federal Court's orders that Georgia Democrats permit Negroes to vote. wed. 3-27-46

Talmadge recently said the white primary could be preserved under the New Orleans Federal Court of Appeals decision, if the Legislature and the Democratic Executive Committee took action. He said the party should first meet and write into its rules the Georgia laws protecting a white primary; then the Legislature should convene and abolish its primary laws. Asked for comment at that time, Duckworth said no one had requested him to call a meeting of the committee.

LETTER WRITTEN

Yesterday, Talmadge wrote Duckworth a letter formally requesting a meeting of the committee. Talmadge said he was wondering whether or not Duckworth desired Negroes to vote in the Democratic white primaries.

Chairman Duckworth last night said he had no comment to make on Talmadge's letter.

Harris' statement from Augusta that the Legislature should be convened to raise teachers' salaries as well as preserve the white primary caused a flurry of excitement in the State Capitol. Chief reason for the excitement was Harris' claims that some departments had not been able to use their extra appropriations provided in January, because of labor shortages, and this money could be transferred to the school teachers. wed. 3-27-46

"You need not become disturbed because of fear the State of Georgia will accumulate any surplus, or you might miss out on any surplus if you don't request funds in excess of your actual need: Thrasher notified all state officials in calling for their budget requests and financial statements for the new quarter.

"IN THE RED"

Pointing out the State today is operating in the "red," Thrasher said the income for the past nine months has been $52,500,563, while the budget allotments totaled $54,683,522. This is a deficit in current operations of $2,182,959.

"Based on past experience, the amount of money required to operate this next quarter is $17,905,000, or approximately the actual income for the three months last year," Thrasher said. "This makes it necessary that the first additional income for the three months be applied toward reducing the operating deficit for the past nine months."

"The problem," Thrasher commented, "is not one of finding a way to spend the increased income, but the serious problem is

"Past experiences have taught us we are entering into a dangerous period in an administration, the last six or nine months, when tremendous pressure is put on a governor and fiscal officers to be involved in last-minute commitments such as building roads, 100 percent from state funds, thus getting the work done prior to the change in administration, rather than letting the work take an orderly course where the taxpayers of Georgia would bear only one-half of the cost under a state-federal program," the auditor asserted. "Also, the pressure is great from some groups for last-minute commitments which would cost maybe a million dollars now, but would force six to 12 times that much money to be raised by the next administration if the program is carried out. These conditions have been avoided, but as the time goes on, the force and pressure on these matters may be expected to get worse."

FEAR OF CITIZENS

The cause of this condition is the fear of the citizens that a new administration will not let the work proceed as committed or planned, even though the commitments are well within the funds available at the time, he continued. The procedure of tearing up or cancelling work, to which the citizens are entitled, must be stopped. Thrasher said the budget bureau is asking the heads of the various state agencies to make no request for approval of commitments which cannot be financed currently.

"We are extremely anxious to pull this state through this period under a safe and sane financial policy, living within the income and not making any commitments for which no cash has been reserved to liquidate," the auditor asserted.

Attorneys for the Muscogee County Democratic Executive Committee yesterday filed a motion asking the United States Supreme Court to stay the mandate of the Federal Appellate Court which held Negroes entitled to vote in Georgia primaries.

Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook said the state would file a brief in support of the Muscogee group's petition, as a "friend of the court," within 10 days.

Cook said the State of Georgia was not named as a party in the suit filed by Primus King, Columbus Negro, and he contended the State is not responsible for the actions of the local Democratic Party groups. Federal Judge Hoyt Davis, of Macon, ruled the State does not regulate elections, and because of this, all citizens are entitled to vote, regardlesss of race, creed. or color.

Atlanta Constitution

Editor Constitution: Several weeks ago we read in our Georgia newspapers where Gov. Ellis Arnall stated that the State of Georgia had been completely paid free of all indebtedness, and that the treasury had a nice balance on hand, this being done while he had been in office as Governor.

I, being a man who does not take all that Gov. Arnall says for granted, did not believe it in the first place. Nevertheless, when we read the March 27 edition of The Atlanta Constitution, we see where the State Auditor, B. E. Thrasher Jr., says the State of Georgia is now operating in the red by approximately $2,000,000.

Eugene Talmadge has asked the State Democratic Chairman, Lon Duckworth, to call the State Legislature of Georgia into session in order to save the white primary. There have been a lot of politicians who have thrown cold water on this, saying it could not be done.

These same politicians would like a seat in Washington, D. C., if they were ever offered one, leaving our primaries to be dictated to by some Federal Judges like the ones who supported the FEPC, therefore taking away our state right. Sun. 3-31-46

Personally, I think our white primary can be saved if enough of us write our State Representatives demanding that they call this session Talmadge has asked for.

Regardless of what some people might say about Eugene Talmadge, he has the "guts" to stand up for white supremacy, and we who are born and bred in the traditions of the good old South will always admire him for that.

White Primary Out in Georgia

Peoples Voice

4-6-46

WASHINGTON—The right of Negroes to vote in Georgia Democratic primaries was upheld by the Supreme Court, Monday. The court refused to review a lower court decision that a for-whites-only primary Georgia law violates the 15th Amendment to the Constitution. Two years ago the Supreme Court ruled that Texas Negroes could not legally be barred from voting.

The Supreme Court's action had its beginning in the successful suit of Primus E. King. He had sued after he was denied the right of voting in the July 4, 1944, primary. The U. S. District Court of Middle Georgia then held that his right to vote was unconstitutionally withheld, and the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals upheld that finding on March 6. New York, N.Y.

Georgia election officials then asked the Supreme Court for a review of the lower court's decision and claimed that King's being "of the colored or Negro race" was not the reason he was refused the vote. The officials had added that the question was "of great importance, not only to the Negroes, but to the petitioners here and hundreds of others situated similarly."

UNIT SYSTEM

(Gainesville News)

In so far as we are concerned we believe the preservation of the county unit system in Georgia is of far greater importance than denial to Negroes of the right to vote. In our opinion, if permitted to vote, and the Federal Courts say they are, they will do so decently and in order, therefore let's quit all of this demagogy and stirring up of racial hatreds and yield to the inevitable.

Here in the South, the Negro is our problem and let's try to handle it without all of this political humbuggery and stirring up of racial prejudices which some office-seekers are going to try and keep alive during the approaching gubernatorial primary.

IMPORTANT

(Lincolnton Journal)

The 1946 Governor's race will be the most important one this state has seen since the carpetbaggers from the North and East were wrested from Southern control.

This campaign may well point to the future destiny of Southern state's rights and the cherished traditions of our Southland on race problems.

THE TELEGRAPH'S STAND

(Newnan Herald.)

Like many other progressive Georgia editors, Buford Boone of the Macon Telegraph has conceded editorially that Negroes should not and in fact cannot be denied the vote in Georgia. The Telegraph also points out, as the Herald has done, that if the Negro is kept out of the Democratic party (where many really belong) he will form his own group, which, to quote Editor Boone, "would be conducive to recurrent trouble" and would "furnish an ideal set-up for the Communists." Sun 4-14-46

"We have," says The Telegraph, "been embarrassed in the past by well-intentioned but poorly-informed outsiders who had a genuine desire to help the Negro. It is far worse to contemplate what the Communists could do with a disgruntled Negro population in this state or elsewhere in the South.

"The whites and the Negroes have come a long way in a few generations. The Telegraph believes that it would be far better for sensible elements in both races to work out the details of this problem at home—now, in the coming election. By doing so each will grow in the other's respect."

HOW?

(Pickens County Progress.)

Several prospective candidates for governor say that they favor retaining a white primary and the county unit system of voting therein. The Progress has never favored the county unit system, but we would like to keep the white primaries if it can be done without throwing them wide open to all kinds of corruption. Let the candidates stop using general terms and explain their plans in detail so the voters can judge whether or not it will work. If there is no law protecting a primary, and there is no place to contest one except before the committee that holds it, what chance do you have of securing an honest election?

SAVE THE UNIT SYSTEM

(Paul Green in Clayton Tribune)

Of course, everyone knows what the county unit system is—and how valuable it is to Rabun County and all the other rural sections of Georgia. Repeal of our primary laws would legally do away with above-mentioned cities. It would completely destroy the elective powers of small counties. The county unit system was designed to keep the State Government from being entangled with those infamous big city political machines. So, let the powers-that-be do anything they wish. Let Negroes vote. Let horses, cows, monkeys and parrots vote. But for the sake of Rabun County, and all other small counties like it, don't destroy our county unit system of counting votes.

Roy Harris and Talmadge Men Claim 123 Solons Want Negro-Ban Session

By M. L. ST. JOHN

House Speaker Roy Harris and outspoken supporters of ex-Gov. Eugene Talmadge have made unverified claims that 93 representatives and 30 senators are willing to convene themselves in special session to keep the ban on Negroes voting in Georgia's Democratic primary.

Harris readily admitted the Legislature would have to abolish the county unit election system and laws against fraud in elections in order to circumvent federal courts' decisions permitting the Negroes to vote. He said these regulations would be left to the Democratic party.

Names of the Senate and House members who reportedly were willing to convene themselves were not made public by Harris and Rep. Jim Dykes, of Cochran, a Talmadge leader in the Legislature, when they made their claims in an Atlanta hotel room yesterday. They declined to show the names to a reporter, and said most of the names were on letters which were in Augusta.

Their claims of 93 House members—some of them admittedly unsigned—were 22 short of the required 125 necessary to bring the General Assembly into session. Their claims of 30 Senators were sufficient, if all were signed. Harris said he would send out petitions for members to sign. When enough are signed, he would turn them over to Gov. Arnall who would then be required to call a meeting of the General Assembly.

It was reported that Dykes, who is being groomed as a floor leader for Talmadge should the latter be successful in his comeback attempt this summer, spent most of the night in Talmadge's hotel room here telephoning House members and urging them to agree to the called session. Dykes told a reporter yesterday he had obtained the consent of three House members to call a session. He appealed for the press to "give us lots of publicity, because we are going to need it."

Harris claimed he had received letters from 90 House members and 12 Senators and phone calls from two Senators agreeing to call themselves into session. Of 125 solons with whom he had communicated, Harris said only three had definitely favored permitting Negroes to vote.

The coalition of Harris, who yesterday renewed talk that he might run for Governor, and Talmadge on the white primary amused some political leaders who were contacted by both Harris and Dykes.

Harris reportedly warned some of these people that "the only way we can beat Talmadge is to preserve the white primary." His telephone call was followed a few minutes later by Talmadge's friend Dykes, pleading for a special session of the Legislature.

Harris, who faces tough opposition in his race for re-election as representative of Richmond county, remarked that "it looks like some of Atlanta's politicians have chosen to run the Governor's race in Richmond county this year."

Dykes said it would take about three weeks to bring the Legislature into special session, and five days to repeal the primary laws.

Asked if this wouldn't be too late to help the Cracker party in its contest in Richmond County April 16, Harris said: "It is already too late; we are going to have to handle that situation locally."

Three thousand Negroes are registered to vote in Richmond County. Harris said he did not know whether they would be permitted to vote.

White Primary

Editor Constitution: Our people are having a great deal to say about the possible loss of our Democratic primary but seems to be doing nothing about it.

As a private citizen of the state, I would like to say that I am very much in favor of a white people's primary and I feel like there is something that can be done about it.

I believe that if our general assembly was called in session that they could find a way out of it, and I would suggest that our big daily papers and some of our leading citizens get behind this and request our Governor to call the assembly in special session for this purpose. If he cannot see his way clear to do this, then I suggest that the representatives call themselves together.

'White' Primary Keeps Negroes From Voting

Editor Constitution: Most people are reasonable in their attitude concerning fellow human creatures. It is only equitable that any Democrat be permitted to vote in our primary. Race, color, religion or national origin should not be considered.

A primary in Georgia is more than a system of nominating candidates. Nomination is tantamount to election. Consequently, justice, common sense and the customs of the times combine to persuade us that amendments XIV, XV and XVII of the United States constitution are applicable. We, then, appreciate the logic of the declaration of the Fifth circuit court of appeals. That decision engenders greater respect for the government to which we pledge our loyalty and devotion.

A public official recently suggested that we abolish the Democratic primary. In lieu thereof, he would establish a White Committee. Nomination in its primary would be equivalent to election. Therefore, no individual could be excluded from participation therein on account of race or color. Constitutional provisions would not permit such limitation. Any attempt to circumvent the law can only delay what informed people know is inevitable.

Abolition of the Neill primary law can not evade the fundamental law of the land. We can eliminate every word concerning primaries from our statutes. Nevertheless, any system whereby officials are elected is within the scope of the United States constitution.

Negro Ballot Issue Looms In Primaries

Georgia Leaders Accept Challenge With Extra Session Requested

ATLANTA, March 7.—(AP)—Georgia political leaders today accepted as a major issue, possibly for this summer, the question of whether or not Negroes shall be permitted to vote in state Democratic primaries.

Immediate reaction came from high party men after the United States Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans affirmed the right of a Negro citizen of Muscogee County, (Ga.) to vote in the primaries.

House Speaker Roy V. Harris in Augusta called for an extra session of the general assembly at an early date "to save the white primary," but other leaders gave little support to his call.

Governor Ellis Arnall declined comment. Senate President Frank C. Gross expressed doubt whether the white primary could be saved by legislation.

The Circuit Court opinion, written by Judge Samuel H. Sibley, of Marietta, Ga., sustained a decision of the Federal Court for the middle district of Georgia in favor of Primus E. King, Columbus Negro, who was awarded $100 damages against members of the Muscogee County Democratic Committee.

King alleged he had been denied the right to vote in a Democratic primary solely on account of his race.

The Appellate Court held that conducting the primary was an action of the state and that denying King the vote violated the 14th, 15th and 17th amendments to the Federal Constitution.

Consensus of opinion about the capitol was that in the long run Negroes would have a legal right to vote in Georgia. It was generally agreed that any effort to repeal existing primary laws in order to circumvent the Appellate Court's decision would fail, because it would mean scrapping the county unit system of voting.

session would be called immediately and would adjourn within 30 days.

A decision by the circuit court is expected soon. The Muscogee county Democratic committee officials appealed to this court, after Federal Judge T. Eugene Cook entered the New Orleans court as a "friend of the court."

Special Session Rumored If Negro Vote Is Upheld

Possibility of a special session of the legislature to repeal the Neal Primary Law is seen by some Georgia political leaders, if the Fifth circuit court of appeals in New Orleans upholds the right of the Negroes to vote in Georgia's white Democratic primary.

One influential legislator predicted that the solons would fail that the special session to take a special session, the legislators would gather for special session to take whatever steps necessary to preserve the white primary. This could be done by a vote of three-fifths vote of the members. He said the members would and would be done.

Arnall's Stand on Primary Assures Session, Says Harris

House Speaker Roy V. Harris is sure that Gov. Arnall's statement calling for citizens to uphold the Negro's right to vote will guarantee an extra session of the Legislature either in May or June.

Harris, contacted last night in Augusta, where he is waging a campaign to keep his seat in the Legislature, called the county unit system a smoke screen. "We had the county unit system before we had primary laws. We will always have the county unit system," the House Speaker declared.

"As far as I'm concerned, I'm in favor of the white primary. It will be reinstated in Georgia in an extra session or at the regular session in 1947," he added.

Roy Harris and Talmadge Men Claim 123 Solons Want Negro-Ban Session

By M. L. ST. JOHN

House Speaker Roy Harris and outspoken supporters of ex-Gov. Eugene Talmadge have made unverified claims that 93 representatives and 30 senators are willing to convene themselves in special session to keep the ban on Negroes voting in Georgia's Democratic primary.

Harris readily admitted the Legislature would have to abolish the county unit election system and laws against fraud in elections in order to circumvent federal courts' decisions permitting the Negroes to vote. He said these regulations would be left to the Democratic party.

Sat. 3-30-46

Names of the Senate and House members who reportedly were willing to convene themselves were not made public by Harris and Rep. Jim Dykes, of Cochran, a Talmadge leader in the Legislature, when they made their claims in an Atlanta hotel room yesterday. They declined to show the names to a reporter, and said most of the names were on letters which were in Augusta.

Their claims of 93 House members—some of them admittedly unsigned—were 22 short of the required 125 necessary to bring the General Assembly into session. Their claims of 30 Senators were sufficient, if all were signed. Harris said he would send out petitions for members to sign. When enough are signed, he would turn them over to Gov. Arnall who would then be required to call a meeting of the General Assembly.

It was reported that Dykes, who is being groomed as a floor leader for Talmadge should the latter be successful in his comeback attempt this summer, spent most of the night in Talmadge's hotel room here telephoning House members and urging them to agree to the called session. Mississippi Seeks Way To Keep White Primary

By JOHN LeFLORE
(Defender Staff Correspondent)

Sat. 3-2-46

JACKSON, Miss.—Alarmed over Mississippi Negroes' vote demands in resolutions to the state legislature and governor last week, the House of Representatives took initial action Friday to "protect" one of the state's "white supremacy" traditions—the Democratic white primary.

Legal artifices, which they hope may afford loopholes to permit circumvention of the recent Texas white primary decision of the U.S. Supreme Court, are being planned by Mississippi lawmakers.

The House, without a dissenting vote, approved and sent to the Senate a concurrent resolution directing the speaker of the House and president of the Senate to appoint a special committee to revise the state's primary election laws.

Act To Bar Negro Voter

A rush order has been given the Senate to take similar action this week in order that committeemen may be appointed to begin work to effect a change so that the present session of the legislature may pass the revised legislation to continue the political disfranchisement of Negro citizens.

The resolution provides for a committee of five members — three from the house and two from the Senate. Speaker Walter Sillers and Lt. Governer Fielding L. Wright will be ex-officio members of the group.

The resolution, offered by Rep. Hilton Waits of Washington county, charges the U.S. Supreme Court decision outlawing the Texas white primary laws has "provoked an acute and unprecedented problem with reference to the Mississippi statutes."

Proposals Stated

All other Southern states except Mississippi have revised all their primary laws to meet the "imperfections disclosed by said decision of the U.S. Supreme Court," the resolution declared.

It also stated that "in the judgment of the legislature of the state of Mississippi, the best interests of the people of the state of Mississippi would be best served by appointing a special committee to study said legislation and make its reccommendations to this legislature."

An opinion prevailed in legislative circles that a constitutional amendment may be required to bring about one of the proposed changes:

In the Texas white primary case, the Supreme Court ruled that primary elections held under state supervision and with taxpayers' money should be open to all eligible voters. The decision denied the state Democratic party or executive committee to bar Negroes from such elections. Mississippi primary elections are conducted with public funds.

Despite Mississippi's large Negro population, fewer colored people are believed to be now voting in its primary elections than in the Democratic primaries of any other state in the South.

Legislative Call Possible On White Supremacy

Montgomery, Ala.

JACKSON, MISS., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Gov. Fielding L. Wright let it be known today that he is giving serious consideration to calling a special session of the Mississippi Legislature to change existing primary election laws in order to insure preservation of white supremacy.

"If I do call a special session," the Governor commented at a press conference, "it will not be until after the first of the year. There's a lot of deciding to be done, but I em thinking about the matter."

Tues. 12-10-46

Repeal of the "black market" tax on liquor sold in legally "dry" Mississippi will be included in the call if it is issued, the Governor added.

"If a special session is called, it will be primarily to change the election laws," Governor Wright said.

The "black market" tax issue, he explained, would be included in the call only as a specific piece of legislation to be considered, and would not throw open the whole tax structure for action by the special session.

Revision of Mississippi's primary laws has been urged since the United States Supreme Court handed down decision of cases from other States holding in favor of Negroes participating in Democratic State primaries.

Supplying The Test

The effort of Negroes to enroll for participation in the Democratic party primary in South Carolina, in violation of the party rules, generally met with rebuffs—although here and there some Negroes have been permitted to enroll. These names will, of course, be purged when the rolls are purged.

It was as expected. The refusal supplies the Negro Democrats with the evidence they need to test the South Carolina primary system in the courts. The purging of Negro names, placed on the club rolls in violation of the rules, will supply additional evidence.

The test may be made in one way or another. The Negroes denied the right to enroll may seek an injunction in the federal courts to compel the club secretaries to place their names on the club rolls. Or they may bring suit, alleging that they were illegally denied the right to vote in the primary. Or the attorney general may attempt to proceed against party officers, as he threatens, but in either case the matter must be carried to the Supreme Court for final determination.

For the South Carolina primary system was not on trial in the Georgia case which the Attorney General's office takes as its guide. Any South Carolina case will involve a different state of facts and until the Supreme Court passes upon the issue of whether where a state has abolished all its primary laws any group has the right to form a party and exclude from membership in it any other group desiring membership nothing has been settled in South Carolina.

There is no need, therefore, for any exchange of recriminations.

South Carolina's Primary Tuesday Bars Negro Voters

Advertiser

COLUMBIA, S. C., Aug. 10.—(U.P.)—South Carolina Democrats Tuesday will visit the polls from which Negroes are excluded to vote for a governor, lieutenant-governor and other state officers. 8-11-46

Due to a record entry list of 11 candidates in the gubernatorial race, it was believed that a run-off between the two top candidates is inevitable. Gov. Ransome J. Williams is a leading candidate for re-nomination.

South Carolina, with its dozens of big textile mills, is a main target right now of both CIO and AFL union organizing drives but labor pressure in the election is not expected to be influential. There are few outstanding issues at stake.

The CIO Political Action Committee said publicly it will not support any candidates because it is too busy with the job of organizing workers.

Polls open at 8 a.m. and close at 6 p.m. except in rural areas where voting stops two hours earlier. Montgomery, Ala.

South Carolina found a method of circumventing federal court rulings which specify that Negroes must be allowed to vote in white primaries.

Shortly after the famous 1944 Texas court decision in favor of Negro voting, Senator Olin Johnson, then governor of the state, summoned the legislature into special session to discuss the situation. The assembly threw out all reference to state primary laws, leaving voting procedure up to the Democratic Party. This put it outside jurisdiction of the federal law.

Negroes, acting mainly through the Progressive Democratic League, urged their people to attempt to register and said they would go into court to demand the right. There was little response, however, with eight showing up at one place and 12 at another. Their names were later purged. Sunday

When the State Democratic Party Convention was held last May, Negroes again hoped the outcome would be agreement to a two-color primary. But the matter was not discussed except indirectly. A resolution was passed requiring voting applicants to read, write and interpret the state constitution.

"That should keep out of our party at least 90 per cent of the people we don't want," said State Senator J. Carl Kearse.

Former Georgia Gov. Eugene Talmadge who recently won another term on the white supremacy theme advocated that Georgia follow South Carolina's lead in doing away with primary laws and give the Democratic Party machine the job of "preserving" a pure white elect Thousands of Negroes voted the Georgia election. 8-11-46

South Carolina Negroes expected little if any sympathy from the state's 11 gubernatorial candidates, most of whom have publicly taken a stand against letting them vote.

The governor's office, often a stepping stone to the U. S. Senate, has the following aspirants in addition to Johnson:

Dr. James McLeod, Florence; J. Strom Thurmond, Edgefield; John C. Taylor, Anderson; John D. Long, Union; Roger W. Scott, Dillon; A. J. Beattie, Columbia; Dr. Carl Epps, Sumter; Del O'Neal, Columbia; Marcus A. Stone, Florence, and A. L. Wood, Gaffney. Williams, McLeod, Thurmond and Taylor are thought to have the best chance.

COLUMBIA, S. C. — Ten Spartanburg Negroes voted last week in the South Carolina democratic primaries, while the State brazenly pushed through its essentially private white primary.

The primary was first held since the Democratic party, in a move to block Negro voting, stripped all primary regulations from state statutes and reorganized the party as a "mutual association." It may be the last white primary if threatened Federal Court suits succeed.

In the statute purge the state skirted a Supreme Court Ruling that Negroes must be allowed to vote in state primaries.

The 10 Spartanburg voters went to the polls at the suggestion of James M. Hinton, president of the South Carolina Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Democrats Strive For White Primary

Sat. 8-17-46

COLUMBIA, S.C.—Flaunting the United States Supreme Court, South Carolina whites have intensified their all-out drive to keep Negroes from voting in the Democratic primaries here next week.

The offensive shows white political officeholders, party officers and election officials cooperating in a campaign to block Negro voting.

So far, although a statewide effort was made to enroll Negroes for the primaries, only 14 in Spartanburg and four in Columbia were able to get their names on the books, and they were later purged.

In Spartanburg the 14 Negroes whose names had been purged from club rolls of the Democratic party, were told last week that rule 6 of the party regulations did not permit them to qualify for the primary nominations.

The action was protested by Atty. Harold R. Boulware who stated that the Democratic primaries in South Carolina were actual election process.

Negroes Given Stall

In Ridgeland, colored citizens, applying for registration certificates for three months now, have been told that there are no more.

Election officials at the Jasper County courthouse have told Negroes applying the first Monday of each month, according to state law, that "we don't have any more certificates ready but you can come back next month."

When more than 100 Negroes appeared in June, the board issued papers to about one-half and announced it had run out of certificates. When those who were denied and others returned in July and August they were told "we have no certificates."

New Terror

In Columbia, executive officers of the Progressive Democratic Party made plans to fight what they termed a "new terror scheme" developed by Rep. Fred L. Hiers of Bamberg County to prevent Negroes from voting.

The scheme was described as a $250,000 libel suit against officers of the PDP for protesting against Hiers' interference with Negro registration. The suit was filed against John H. McCray, state chairman; Mrs. Annie Belle Weston, secretary, and J. C. Artemus, treasurer.

The officers said that Hiers' action was an attempt to frighten county PDP leaders and slow down the rapid growth of the party formed in 1944 to break the "white primary."

"If we bow and whine before an unjust action such as this," one official said, "then we can look for it in practically every county. The obvious attempt is to frighten possible precinct and club leaders in the process of organizing. Moreover, it is a challenge to us to just let present rulers treat us anyway, law or no law, and have our program halted."

Negro leaders also said they expected to file suit next week after the primaries to invalidate the primaries. The case will be brought by a Negro whose name was one of four purged in Spartanburg. Scores of affidavits setting forth the denial of registration have been filed with the U.S. Department of Justice.

May Have Good Result

South Carolina Successfully Holds 2nd Primary Minus State Protection

Democratic Vote Declared Removed From Judgment Of Supreme Court

COLUMBIA, S. C.—(AP)—South Carolina Democratic Party members have completed their second statewide primary election minus the protection of state laws, without the occurrence of any untoward incidents.

Striving to protect its traditional white primaries, the party was successful in 1944 in having a special session of the general assembly strip from state laws all references to political primaries.

Removes Court Jurisdiction

This, party leaders said, would remove the state party's actions from the surveillance of the supreme court of the United States, which shortly before had declared Texas primaries open to colored people in a case brought on the basis of integration of the Texas primary and general election laws and machinery.

Editor John H. McCray of the committees, which settled them. Riots and other disturbances at polling places have been virtually unknown, and in any case could be handled by peace officers in the normal course of their duties.

In primary elections of 1944 and of this year, machinery worked smoothly.

There were no known colored persons on party enrolment books in 1944, but possibly a score managed to have their names entered on the club rolls prior to the primaries that were completed early this month.

These known names were purged by the county executive committees in question, yet at Spartanburg, several colored persons still were reported to have managed to cast ballots at one small precinct.

McCray and J. M. Hinton, president of the state chapter, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, have said a suit would be brought in federal district court seeking to open the party to colored people. The suit, they said, would be brought on an allegation of denial of civil rights by party officials' refusal to enroll and vote colored persons.

Since the Justice Department's advice, McCray said, he was advocating dropping the proposed suit as useless, but Hinton said he planned to pursue it, although it has yet to be initiated.

BY ALDERMAN DUNCAN

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 8.—(AP By the repeal in 1944 of all laws affecting and governing democratic primary elections, the state of South Carolina has apparently avoided compliance with the U. S. Supreme court ruling that Negroes must not be denied primary voting privileges.

The state Democratic party, membership in which is restricted to "white Democrats," now operates as a private association or club governed only by its own rules.

In state democratic high command circles, it is unofficially but reliably understood that the U. S. Department of Justice has concluded that the South Carolina situation is "untouchable." There simply is no law on which to proceed since the Democratic primary cannot be said to be a part in any of the State's general election machinery.

Court Test Expected

A federal court test is generally expected, however, because James M. Hinton, Columbia Negro insurance man and president of the South Carolina Conference of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, insists that his organization will file a suit claiming that an individual Negro's civil rights have been infringed by not being permitted to vote in the primary.

Hinton says the suit, in which a Negro will seek damages from party officials, will be filed almost any time, but another Negro leader, John McCray, thinks it will be unsuccessful. McCray, editor of a Negro newspaper here and president of the South Carolina Progressive (Negro) Democratic party, has said editorially that he was informed the justice department would take no action in the situation.

McCray also expressed the private opinion that the state democratic primary is outside the law, just as the white political forces intend it to be.

Must Sign Books

Primary voting routine in South Carolina under the democratic rules requires would-be ballot casters to sign enrollment books, which are distributed to the various precinct clubs. In order to vote, an individual's name must be on his club book by a specified date.

The only qualifications are that the individual be white, be at least 18 years old and be a resident of the club area for the specified amount of time, which is reasonably short. He must be a Democrat as the word has been understood in South Carolina since 1876, when the reconstruction period ended with the overthrow of the radical Republican forces which governed the state after the war between the states.

After the enrollment books close, The various club committees go over them and purge the names of those who do not meet the qualifications.

Procedure Violated

On the day of the primary, the voter goes to his club's polling place, presents himself and is given a ballot. No one whose name is not on the book can vote.

The 1946 primaries were held in August and September and went off according to rule except in one isolated instance in which a handful of Negroes were allowed to vote at two Spartanburg city polling places. Just why they were permitted to vote and how this happened have never been fully explained and no official report was made to the state democratic executive committee, which could take no action since the matter did not come up formally.

Spurred by Hinton and McCray, small numbers of Negroes attempted to enroll for the primary when the enrollment books were open. In most instances they were turned away as unqualified but at least one club in Columbia three, including Hinton, succeeded in signing the book because there was no one in direct charge of it at the time.

Names Later Purged

The names of these Negroes were later purged in accordance with the rules but it will be one of them, Hinton says, who will be the plaintiff in the civil rights suit.

After the Democratic nominees for state and county offices are chosen in the primaries, the party prepares its own general election ballots which are distributed to general election voting places by party officials who, as far as the state is concerned, are private individuals. Such a method relieves the state of any connection with the Democratic organization in the staging of the general election.

Under state law, any political party or organization can put up a general election ticket, provided it furnish and distribute its own ballots to the polling places, which number 1,285.

GOP Minor Factor

One or more Republican organizations usually put out ballots, which never seem to get around to all general election polling places, but they hardly ever poll more than 3,000 votes. McCray's Progressive Democrats put up a ticket at the last general election but naturally got nowhere.

There is one requirement for general election voters: Possession of a general election registration certificate, obtained by application at the court house in the county of residence the first Monday of each month.

Certificates are good for 10 year periods—from 1938 to 1948, from 1948 to 1958 and so on. In addition to a certificate, if a voter is a male, he must show proof of payment of his poll tax—women, both white and black, are not required to pay poll taxes.

The South Carolina Democratic primary laws were taken off the state statute books at a special session of the General Assembly called by the then-governor Olin D. Johnston.

Already Are Two Parties

The News and Courier Charleston S.C.

Citizens are saying, so "W. D. W. reports, that in South Carolina should be two parties. There are two parties in the state now—besides the negro "Democratic" and the Republican parties. Tues. 10-29-46

The exclusive white man's party holds primaries and nominates state and county officers. It is without connection with the national Democratic party, a mixed negro and white party. That party has adopted the principles of the late Joseph Tolbert.

One may vote in the white primary and then vote for a Republican or Socialist for president without violating a pledge. A national Socialist or Republican may be nominated for congress in South Carolina's white primary.

To this time the politicians in control of South Carolina have succeeded in holding the white primary in one state organization with the national "Democrats", and that has enabled them to go to national conventions and engage in horse-swapping.

In 1948 the national "Democratic" party, controlled by the great city politicians, will admit negro "Democratic" delegates from South Carolina to the national convention. The South Carolina white leaders will have to sit with the colored fellows, whether they like it or not, and in the national convention the white and negro Democrats will march around the hall when, in the well cooked enthusiasm, the South Carolina guidon is seized, torn from the floor.

The national "Democratic" managers will do no more than is just when they admit the South Carolina negro "Democrats" to "cooperation".

The negro "Democrats" of South Carolina are loyal to the democratic policies and principles of the late President Roosevelt and those of his widow and sons. Most of the white "Democrats" are disloyal to them.

Are Not Disfranchised

The News and Courier

The appeal of a negro of South Carolina representing the National Society for the Advancement of the Colored people to the United Nations is based on misapprehension. In South Carolina is no "Democratic primary". State and county primaries are held by white people and in them Communists, Republicans, Socialists, Democrats can vote if they have white skins and look to be 18 years old or older. In offices in South Carolina, federal and state, are white voters, who have voted for Republican candidates for president and vice president.

Negroes, whether they be "Democrats", "Progressive Democrats" or Republicans can hold primaries, excluding white people from them if they wish. No one is hindering them. If 800,000 negroes are wanting in capacity to conduct a race party, as the last 100 years and longer a white minority has carried on a Democratic party in Vermont, something is wrong with them. Charleston, S. C.

No negro in South Carolina is "disfranchised" if he have minimum qualifications to register. Where is the grown-up negro man who cannot raise a dollar a year to pay a poll tax? Great numbers of them ought to be disfranchised and a large number of white people too ought to be disfranchised. Voting should be a privilege and duty of the competent and responsible. It is not a "right" of persons because they are 21 or 18 years old or older. Of idolatries the most absurd is democracy. Tues. 11-26-46

When negroes in South Carolina shall use their franchise there will be white people, unfortunately, who will resort to and with them in political activity.

Exclusive political clubs based on color of skins, white or black, are as legitimate as clubs of Masons, Woodmen or Knights of This or That.

The whole American negro program is effort to have negroes adopted by "the white folks".

Meanwhile, exclusion and segregation appear to be going on in Palestine, India, a dozen other countries. The United Nations have much on their hands.

The American negroes seem to "have it in" for Spartanburg's Dr. Byrnes who once said in the senate that "the negroes have come into control of the Democratic party." It may be so.

Hint South Carolina Primary Stymies Justice Department

Defender Chicago, Ill. Sat. 12-28-46

COLUMBIA, S. C.—(ANP)—A hint that the white primary, as operated in South Carolina, has stumped the Department of Justice, was contained in a letter to James M. Hinton, state NAACP head, in a letter from Turner L. Smith, civil rights section chief, this week.

Smith wrote the NAACP official that action had not been taken on the case, because no federal statutes or court rulings applicable to the unique situation could be found. He cited the Primus E. King case in Georgia, this year, in which federal courts held it necessary to show that statutes or precedents covered the issues raised. There is no known guide that shows the South Carolina case as an attempt to circumvent the Texas primary decision, Smith said.

The Smith letter sustained a persistent rumor concerning the department's judgment. The new position is now considered a threat to the victories won in Texas and Georgia.

South Carolina repealed all primary laws in April, 1944. Repeals made by a special session of the legislature were approved in a November referendum.

Affidavits setting forth cases of denial to vote in the primary were filed with the Justice Department in 1942, 1944 and 1946. Last April the department assured the NAACP of a ruling declaring its intent to prosecute persons denying Negroes the right to vote in primary and general elections.

Negro Appeal to U. N.

The News and Courier

To The News and Courier:

The following letter has been addressed to Trygve Lie, secretary general of the United Nations, Lake Success, New York: Tues. 11-26-46

The South Carolina State Conference, Of The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, wish to bring to you, and through you, solicit discussion and aid, for the more than 800,000 negroes in South Carolina, the home state of "Secretary of State," Honorable James Byrnes. The negroes of South Carolina are denied the right to vote in "Democratic primaries", which are tantamount to election, thus they are reduced to mere second-rate citizenship. Charleston, S. C.

Mr. Byrnes is an outspoken exponent for free elections, and democratic action, for the enslaved peoples of many countries in Europe, while he not only condones, but, in word and actions, has been the recipient of honors from South Carolina (through elections), where only whites voted for his election. Mr. Byrnes has yet to speak for the disfranchised negroes of his own state of South Carolina.

The plight of negroes in South Carolina is in the main true of negroes representing more than 8,000,000 in the South, who are without the free use of the ballot. The United Nations are vitally concerned about similiar conditions over the world, and negroes of South Carolina in particular and the South in general, request your aid, that, they might enjoy 1st-rate citizenship in the great Democracy, which is on trial before the world.

President, South Carolina State Conference of NAACP.

Where Is a Great Future

The News and Courier Charleston, S. C.

These negro politicians of South Carolina who think they are disfranchised because white people won't take them into their voting clubs can go to the 18th congressional district of New York, where they will be hugged to the bosoms of the Marcantonians. There is a great future in New York and Detroit for all migrating negroes. Tues. 11-26-46

Another Step For Safety

News and Courier

The legislature and the people of South Carolina gave an exhibition of timely prudence when they repealed all laws relating to primary elections and thereby changed the nature of the white party, converting it into clubs and aggregations of men and women who choose to act without the assistance of colored people in selecting people to vote for. Courier

There are those who say that the federal courts, nevertheless, may order these gatherings of white people to admit negroes and, while we can think of no process of reasoning by which they could arrive at a conclusion of that kind, we also believe that the capacity of the Liberalized court to arrive at and hand down any and all conclusions and decisions is not beyond possibility. Charleston, S.C.

Another prudent step the white people should take in seeking safety first, and they should lose no time in taking it. The same organization that holds the primaries holds state conventions that elect delegates to national "Democratic" conventions. The New Deal courts might seize on that pretext to order the admission of negroes as voters in primaries and in white men's clubs. These Liberals may contend for the negro "Democrats" that, as the present white man's party elects the delegates that vote for candidates for president and vice president, it is not lawful or right that they be excluded from it.

Therefore, The News and Courier advises and urges that, after the primaries have been held this year, a state convention of white people be called that shall separate the state primary party from the organization sending delegates to national conventions and having representation in its committees. Tuesday, 6-25-46

Nothing would stand in the way of white people also having a branch of the national party which would hold conventions to send delegates to national conventions.

The News and Courier's proposal is for safety; it is to cut from under these Liberals trying to force the colored "Democrats" into the white party the last leg, or semblance thereof, that they have to stand on. 6-26-46

Florence County Negroes Request Permit to Enroll

Florence, June 11—(Special)—A group of four Timmonsville Negroes yesterday presented a politely worded request for enrolment in the "white" Democratic primary to Frank H. Barnwell, Florence county Democratic chairman.

Barnwell rejected the request and explained that the Democratic party in South Carolina made no provision for enrolment of Negroes.

Lawrence Howard, spokesman for the group, said the four men wished to "register and vote in the primary to help place in office the most capable men." He explained that they had been referred to Barnwell by an executive committeeman from Timmonsville.

Howard said the people he represented were "citizens of the state of South Carolina and see no reason why we should be called on to defend and die for our country and not be allowed to vote in the election of office holders of our country."

Barnwell said the Negroes were courteous in their demeanor. After being informed of his decision, they said they would return to Timmonsville and "talk over the matter" with the executive committeemen there.

Advice to Negroes

News and Courier, Charleston, S.C.

To The News and Courier:

Keep out of the white man's primary. Those who are telling you to go and enroll so you can vote in their primary are deceiving themselves and only making trouble for all the people. Tuesday 6-21-46

Rule 6 Bars Enrolment, Spartanburg Negroes Told

News and Courier, Charleston, S.C.

Spartanburg, Aug. 5.—(AP): The Spartanburg county Democratic executive committee Monday told a delegation of 14 negroes that the party's Rule 6 constituted a bar to their qualifying to vote in the primary elections.

The delegation appeared at a hearing in answer to an invitation by the committee that its members show cause why their names should not be purged from enrolment books.

Harold Boulware, negro attorney of Columbia, acted as spokesman for the group. 8-6-46

He said that his clients were qualified electors and taxpayers, and, as such, should have a voice in the running of their government. Tuesday

The voting privilege enjoyed by negroes in the general election means nothing since the actual selection of governing officials takes place in the Democratic primaries, Boulware told the committee.

South Carolina White Primary, Model for Talmadge, 'Club' Affair

By JOHN COURIC

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 6—This State's Democratic White Primary, pattern for the Talmadge Administration's plan to prohibit Negro voting in Georgia primaries, is strictly a "club" affair operating outside the bounds of legal regulation.

The Democratic Party no longer exists in this State insofar as South Carolina's law books are concerned, since every statute concerning the party and its primaries has been removed.

Because the Democratic Party is no longer considered part of the State Government—now that its legal connections have been severed—the Federal Court decision permitting Negroes to vote in Democratic primaries does not apply, Tom B. Pearce, Chairman of South Carolina's State Democratic Executive Committee, declared.

Like any lodge, fraternity or club, the party can use its discretion in requirements for membership and it follows logically that only the party can make rules prohibiting chicanery and fraud in primaries, Pearce added.

Editor's Note: Here is the "South Carolina Plan" for preserving the White Primary It is this plan which the Talmadge leaders will ask Georgia to adopt in order to prevent Negroes from again voting in a Democratic primary. First steps toward adoption of this plan are scheduled to be taken at the Georgia Democratic Convention in Macon Wednesday.

When asked specifically if State, County or City Governments could not prevent ballot box stealing, voting of the dead and other election frauds in Democratic White Primaries by the use of "ordinary police power," Pearce emphatically replied: "No."

Ordinary police power could only be used in the same manner it is employed against clubs and lodges: In the event of rioting, disturbance of the peace or other activities dangerous to the general public, he said.

Quiet, well-mannered vote stealing, ballot miscounting or any other similar primarly chicanery, Pearce indicated, could be punished only within the party.

PARTY REGULATIONS

The party has set up regulations which it hopes will prevent any corrupt acts within its ranks and will keep Democratic White Primaries — tantamount to elections in this State—honest.

Any person found guilty of primary malpractices may be punished by being expelled from the party and debarred from participating in its primaries, Pearce said.

The decision must be made by three-fourths of the committee concerned, after a hearing is given, and the highest appellate body is the State Executive Committee.

No other punishment may be decreed for such offenses, as in other States, where primary laws remain on the statute books.

PRIMARY MACHINERY

Explaining the machinery of the Democratic White Primary, Pearce said the State Convention is called every general election year on the third Wednesday in May to meet in Columbia. Either the State Chairman or the State Executive Committee may call the convention.

The convention is composed of delegates elected by the county conventions, with each County entitled to as many delegates as it has representatives in the General Assembly. The delegation is limited to that number under party rules and is not permitted to vote in fractions.

County conventions are composed of delegates from local Democratic clubs. One delegate from each 25 club members is sent to the county convention.

The State Chairman and the State Vice Chairman (a woman) are elected at the convention to head the State Executive Committee, whose members are elected by county conventions, one for each county.

CONVENTION'S POWER

The first primary for State offices is set by party regulation for the first Tuesday in August of each general election year after the convention has been held, according to present rules. If the convention wished to abolish the primary and select the Democratic nominees through convention methods, it could do so if approved by a majority of the convention delegates, Pearce said.

The State Convention also elects the delegates to the National Convention.

Rights to levy campaign assessments, or entry fees, on candidates for United States Senate, Congress, State officers and Circuit Solicitors are vested exclusively in the State Committee. However, one-half of the assessments against candidates for Congress and Circuit Solicitors are divided equally among the counties composing the districts or circuits, respectively.

In the primaries, balloting is carried on in various private buildings. Public structures are seldom used and, if they are, they are buildings available to any or all groups, Pearce said.

POPULAR VOTE NOMINATES

The primary ballots are printed at party expense. No candidate can be nominated on the first ballot without a majority of popular vote. (South Carolina does not have the county unit system of voting.) In the event no one receives a majority vote, the two highest candidates run in a second primary.

Winners of State-wide races are declared victorious by the State Executive Committees. The various committees then distribute ballots, with the Democratic slate printed on them, to each general election precinct for the convenience of any person desiring the use of such ballots in the general election.

Qualifications for membership in any club of the Democratic Party in South Carolina are: The applicant shall be 18 years of age, white, a citizen of the United States and South Carolina, be able to read or write, and interpret the Constitution of the United States. No person shall belong to any club or vote in any primary unless he or she has resided in the State two years and in the county six months prior to the succeeding general election and in the club district 60 days prior to the first primary following his offer to enroll. Public school teachers and ministers of regular organized churches are exempt from the provisions regarding residence.

The Defect and the Cure

The News and Courier

The one weakness in the "white primary system" as now established in South Carolina is that it is not yet separated from the convention system which elects delegates to Democratic national conventions. Negro "Democrats" have a plausible case when they set up that they have right to participation in national Democratic affairs and that they are now denied it by South Carolina Democrats in conventions and primaries. The defect can be easily cured. The "white party" can organize with rules, chairmen and committees to conduct white primaries nominating state and county officers, leaving to national Democrats to form their own and separate party organization with its rules, conventions, chairmen, committees, and so forth. Charleston S.C.

Ask 'White Folks' Help

The News and Courier, Charleston, S.C.

The discouraging aspect in the activities of these colored "Democrats" in South Carolina is that they hold no primaries of their own, that they present no formidable showing of numerical strength, that they are virtually confessing at all times in every way that they can do nothing unless they can first "get in with the white folks". One reads that "qualified voters" are allowed to cast ballots. Were 200,000 among them will seek to vote in the white primaries, and those who are not qualified voters are required to pay poll taxes. Notcounty officers. Sat. 7-6-46 of 381,000 negro adults in the state (last census) to vote in an exclusive negro primary, it would cause a sensation throughout the United States and might cause apprehension in the South. Of these adults, women and no men more than 60 years of age, exclusive white party to nominate state and the slightest prospect appears that colored politicians, without advice, assistance, guidance and bossing by white people, will get any offices, get anywhere. Because we do not wish the negroes to be the voting property of unscrupulous white men, scalawags and carpetbaggers, we insist upon the white party to nominate state and county officers.

The Problem, the Solution of It

News & Courier, Charleston, S.C.

The repeal of the laws of South Carolina relating to primary elections and the conversion of the "Democratic" party into the white man's party composed of associated clubs which nominate state and county officers, following some years the elimination of the pledge formerly taken by voters in primaries to support Democratic candidates for president and vice president, was a step necessary to prevent the forced admission of negroes into the primaries with the white people. Sat. 8-10-46

Another step is not only advisable but necessary. This white party organization in South Carolina must be separated from the organization that sends delegates to national Democratic conventions.

In the state conventions that elect the delegates to conventions that nominate the candidates for president and vice president, county representation is based on population, white and colored. In these conventions Charleston, for example, has representation for 60,000 negroes as well as for 61,000 white people, while Greenville with less than 30,000 negroes has 105,000 white people. Yet Greenville has only two more delegates than Charleston in state conventions.

So, in the conventions choosing the men who nominate candidates for president, 25 of 46 counties have larger negro than white populations.

While this condition continues the negroes will have a pretext if not a plausible case upon which to go to the federal court demanding admission into the white man's party. "You elect delegates to national conventions with county delegates whose numbers depend on white and colored numbers in the counties, thus the negro vote is used in your state conventions in the selection of Democratic national candidates, yet you deny these negroes, though they be 'Democrats', the right to participate in the choosing of national delegates". That is what the attorneys for negroes will argue in the Hugo Black supreme court, and how shall the defenders of the white man's primary answer?

We can think of no convincing answer—the case now stands. The state conventions as well as the legislature of South Carolina are composed of county delegations based on numbers of white AND colored people; thus colored strength is used by white people in the nomination of candidates for president and vice president while the colored "Democrats" are denied voice and vote in clubs, county and state conventions.

The cure for this weakness is election of state chairmen and committeemen of the white party nominating state and county officers in their primaries or in conventions wholly separate from the proceedings of the clubs and conventions that elect delegates to the national conventions.

Unless this separation shall be effected, and that quickly, what has been done to save the white people's primaries in South Carolina from the invasion of negroes that has taken place in Georgia, Texas, Alabama, will be undone. Sat. 8-10-46

The course which The News and Courier has here advised would reduce the political weight, in national elections, of Berkeley, Barnwell, Georgetown, Charleston and other counties having numerous negro populations and majorities, but we can conceive of no other procedure that would save in its purity and integrity the white man's party government in South Carolina.

The white party, if it wishes, can choose independent candidates for presidential electors, not calling them "Democrats". Any party, parcel or group of voters can do that.

The News and Courier is unable to think of a device or manner of reasoning by which negroes calling themselves national Democrats can be kept out of a national Democratic party in South Carolina.

What has been here said will not be palatable reading to political leaders in South Carolina. The senators and representatives in congress will probably have nothing to say. Nevertheless, the issue will have to be met. The News and Courier places the facts now before the white South Carolinians. If they shall be ignored by the "leaders", that is not its lookout.

S. C. Negroes Barred From Demo. Primary

The Informer
Houston, Texas

SPARTANBURG, S. C. — (ANP) —Fourteen Negroes whose names had been "purged" from club rolls of the Democratic party here were told Monday that Rule 6 of party rules did not permit them to qualify for primary nominations which take place next Tuesday. 8-17-46

Attorney Harold R. Boulware of Columbia who acted as spokesman for the group informed members of the Democratic Executive committee which had invited the disqualified persons for a hearing that Democratic primaries in this state were the actual electing process, the general election meaning nothing 8-17-46

Meanwhile at Columbia Negro leaders said they expected South Carolina's first suit to be filed next week immediately after the statewide primaries are held. The Columbia case will be brought by a Negro whose name was one of four purged there. It is also possible that a case in behalf of purged persons will be brought here. Although a statewide effort was made to enroll Negroes for the Democratic primaries, only the 14 here and four at Columbia were able to get their names on club books. Scores of affidavits setting forth the general denials have been filed with the U. S. Department of Justice

Negroes Seek U. S. Help In Voting Aug. 13

Federal intervention "to safeguard the constitutional rights of qualified negro electors" was requested today by the South Carolina state conference of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People.

"Negroes in South Carolina, who are qualified electors, are going to make an attempt to vote in the Democratic primary, to be held Tuesday, August 13, 1946," James M. Hinton, state NAACP president, wrote the United States department of justice. "Negroes presented themselves for enrolment in the primary, but were denied, or given the runaround," he charged.

Hinton said in his letter that "the primary in South Carolina has been, and still is, the real election" and denial of primary voting privileges to negroes "leaves them bereft of the exercise of franchise."

"We are asking for federal intervention to safeguard the constitutional rights of qualified negro electors . . .

"Members of the United States house of representatives are to be chosen (in the primary), and negroes wish to have a voice in the selection, as well as a voice in selecting the governor . . . he wrote.

Court Ruling On Negro Vote Faces SC Test

By [illegible] N

The United States Supreme Court ruling that Negroes must not be denied primary voting privileges in southern states is due for an acid test in the South Carolina Democratic state primary August 13.

Unlike other southern states, South Carolina has no laws governing or affecting the Democratic primary or party organization. All such laws were erased from the statute books in 1944 after the Supreme Court's decision that Negroes could not be excluded from the Texas Democratic primary.

White Democrats contend, therefore, that their "preferential" primary is not a part of the state's election machinery and that federal laws or court rulings cannot apply. Recent Negro attempts to gain admission to party ranks have been ignored.

Now the South Carolina chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has served notice that Negroes "who are qualified electors" will attempt to vote in the primary, and has asked for federal intervention to "safeguard the constitutional rights of qualified Negro electors." Because he Democratic nomination has been tantamount to election for generations, the NAACP contends that 'the primary in South Carolina has been, and still is, the real election."

Party Stands Pat

State party rules stipulate that "white Democrats" only are eligible and the state Democratic chairman, Tom B. Pearce, said, "we are going to conduct the primary according to the rules of the party as adopted by the state convention u[illegible] some higher authority than we know of now intervenes."

The South Carolina Democratic party, in the words of a special rules committee, is "a private, voluntary association of individuals, mutually acceptable to each other."

The state convention in May adopted a resolution which defined the word "Democrat" for rules purposes.

"The word 'Democrat,'" resolution said, "means said word as understood in South Carolina since 1876"—(this was the year the state overthrew carpetbag and Negro rule after Reconstruction) — "and not necessarily as understood nationally or as exemplified by the national chairman or leader of the party; and against the idea of a strong centralized, paternalistic government; and excludes those whose ideas or leadership are inspired by foreign influences, Communism, Naziism. Fascism, Statism, Totalitarianism, or the Fair Employment Practices Commission, or some such purely race committee. . . ."

Some Vote With GOP

Negroes who voted with the Democrats in 1876 were permitted to vote in the Democratic primaries as long as they lived. Since the last one died, no Negro has been allowed to take part in a Democratic primary and, until recently, the few Negroes who displayed any political activity were affiliated with the Republicans.

Encouraged, however, by the Supreme Court ruling and by Negro participation in recent Georgia, Alabama and Mississipi primaries, the Association for Advancement of Colored People and a Negro group known as the Progressive Democratic party organized and directed Negro attempts to enroll for the primary.

Officials of the two organizations announced that "qualified" Negroes would present themselves in orderly fashion for enrolment on Democratic precinct books. (To vote in the primary an individual's name must be properly enroled.) If these requests were refused, they said, reports would be made to the United States department of justice and federal district attorneys would be asked to take action.

Attempts to enroll by small Negro groups were unsuccessful in most instances. The Negroes were turned away with the explanation that they were "notqualified" or that enrolment officials lacked authority to enrol them.

Some Get On Books

In a few isolated cases, some Negroes succeeded in placing their names on the books but Democratic party rules permit the purging of names of "unqualified" persons.

Affidavits of the incidents in which Negroes were not permitted to enrol were filed with the justice department and the district attorney's office here, at Charleston and at Greenville were notified. So far, no action has been taken.

That's the way the matter stands now with the enrolment books closed.

Two Decisions

The Supreme Court decision Monday in the case involving distribution of religious literature in a company-owned town recalls the court's decision in the Texas primary case. The court held in the Texas case that Democratic primaries were in fact final elections and that voters could not be barred from them on account of color. Now, in effect, the court holds that company-owned towns are like other towns and that what can be done in the exercise of religious freedom in other communities can be done in such places.

Moreover, the decision holds that in any conflict between the rights of owners of property and the right to enjoy freedom of religion, the latter takes precedence.

The court's reasoning is that the use made of private property as a town subjects that property to the rights of religion which can be exercised in a state-created town. There is a certain consistency in this line of thought, it seems to us, with that which held that when a party primary is in effect a final election it is subject to the basic rights of suffrage.

Barring citizens from exercising their religious rights in a company-owned town, which is in effect a community center like any other town, is a limitation, of course, on religious activity. Property rights, the court holds, do not justify that limitation. The court thus shows a very vigilant and broad regard for the protection of religious liberties.

An east-west split in this state of white public opinion on the question of Negro voting was revealed recently by Texas poll interviewers. Tex. 7-5-46

Opposition to Negro voting rights came chiefly from whites in the eastern half of the state where most of the Negro population is concentrated, while a majority of whites in the western half voiced no objection to Negroes voting in the Democratic primaries, which in Texas is tantamount to election.

Negroes in the state voiced a strong determination to take advantage of the Supreme Court's ruling that prohibits them from being barred from the primaries on July 27, but most whites believe only a few of them will vote.

QUERY CONSIDERED

"Do you think colored people should or should not have the right to vote in the Democratic primary elections in Texas?" interviewers for the Texas poll asked a representative cross-section of Texans. Colored included in the survey were questioned by Negro interviewers. These are the answers to that question (included in the "East" tabulation are people living east of the line drawn roughly through Fort Worth, Austin and San Antonio, and including those cities; in the "West" tabulation are those living west of the imaginary line): Tex. 7-5-46

White only:

	East	West	All
Should	38%	55%	44%
Should Not	55%	36%	49%
No Opinion	7%	9%	7%

All the Negroes interviewed answered affirmatively.

ON PARTICIPATION

Next everyone was asked, "As you may have heard, the United States Supreme Court has ruled that colored people can vote in primary elections. How many colored people do you expect will vote around here this summer, very many or not so many?"

Whites only:

	East	West	All
Very Many	30%	14%	24%
Not Many	57%	73%	63%
No Opinion	13%	13%	13%

Colored only:

Very Many	71%
Not Many	15%
No Opinion	14%

STUDY TAX RECORDS

How many colored people actually qualified to vote this year by paying poll taxes or otherwise has been estimated at from 50,000 to 200,000. The Texas poll is now making a study of every county's poll tax records, in order to determine the actual number of qualified Negro voters. Tex. 7-5-46

Many people who opposed the Negro's voting, results of the survey show, fear that the colored people may be easily swayed by unscrupulous leaders. "They are too easily persuaded," declared a man in Corsicana, "a nickel box of snuff will buy any of them."

"They are Republicans," others declared, "and should not take part in Democratic nominations." Some people actually say they believe the Negro ought to have the right—but they do not want him to exercise the vote, for various reasons: "Not yet; we have to educate them first." "They are not smart enough." "We should be another generation removed from the Civil War before letting them vote."

Anti-Machine Virginia Woman Misses Democratic Convention Seat by 12 Votes

The Afro-American Baltimore, Md.
Sat. 8-17-46

WASHINGTON.

Daily newspapers here noted that there had been "no trouble" about colored citizens voting in the Democratic primary in Virginia, last Tuesday.

They failed to report, however, that Mrs. Esther I. Cooper, 500 S. Veitch St., Arlington, came within only 12 votes of winning election as a delegate to Arlington County's Democratic convention.

Mrs. Cooper is president of the Arlington branch NAACP and vice chairman of the Arlington chapter, Southern Conference for Human Welfare.

Won 655 Votes

Campaigning as an anti-machine candidate, Mrs. Cooper piled up 655 votes in Arlington precinct, as many as the total cast in some elections.

As a delegate to the county Democratic convention, she would have taken part in the election of a county representative to the State Convention of the party.

That convention will name a Virginian to fill out the two years of the unexpired term of the late Senator Carter Glass, father of the poll-tax in Virginia.

Headed Anti-Machine Group

Mrs. Cooper ran ahead of the two other anti-machine candidates who campaigned with her. She was selected as a candidate by the Arlington County Citizens' Association for Hutchinson.

Although the anti-machine group failed to elect any of its delegates to the county convention, it put Hutchinson over in the precinct by a margin of more than 200 votes.

Lauds Voters

In a post-election statement thanking all the progressive people of both races who had voted for her, Mrs. Cooper said that the support she was accorded was indicative of a swing to more progressive ideas in Arlington.

"We can only regret that many who realized the necessity of registering failed to do so and that many who were registered failed to vote," Mrs. Cooper said.

"But the time when 'what's the use' was a plausible excuse for staying away from the polls is ended. From now on, we all must register, pay our poll-taxes and vote. The time to register is now.

"We have important county elections ahead and two years from now the Byrd stooge who is nominated to succeed to Glass, will have to run for re-election. We must prepare now to elect a progressive candidate then."

MRS. ESTHER L. COOPER

Civic Leader

A native of Cleveland, where she served for many years as secretary to the late Harry C. Smith, a member of the Ohio legislature and father of the State's civil rights and anti-lynch bills, Mrs. Cooper has been active in Arlington civic life for 20 years.

She is a founder of the Jennie Dean Club working for recreational facilities, secretary of the Butler Homes Citizens' Association, and historian of the auxiliary to the Doris Miller Post 194, Va.

She is, at present, working with the Citizens' Committee for School Improvement, which is sponsoring a school bond issue for Arlington

Atlanta Women's Council

Daily World Atlanta, Ga.

There is an inspiring note of sincerity in the resolution adopted last Friday in Atlanta by the Council of White Church Women. They emphasized the responsibility of "church-people" to function as Christian citizens in a democracy; they expressed belief in "educational rather than racial" qualifications for voting, but even this must not be discriminatory; "We, the Atlanta Council of Church Women go on record as endorsing Governor Arnall's stand in accepting the Negro's right to vote."

Tel 4-10-46

The white womens resolution, coming as it does, so close on the heels of Governor Arnall's widely heralded stand on law and order, will go far in the direction of setting the pace for other white women's organizations and groups over the state to follow. There is no longer any doubt that the great rank and file of responsible white citizens of the state will join in full accord with the position of the governor and of the white women group. There is no other reasonable or safe position to take. For as popular as the handful of opponents of the Negro vote may think they are, there is grave danger that they will manuever themselves into an inescapable jam if they are not careful about the manner and methods they are using in order to flaunt the order of our highest court in the land. That is precisely what is uppermost in some minds in Arkansas. But the Justce Department has announced that it will prosecute to the limit, any violations or attempts at denying to any group the exercise of their constitutional privilege to vote.

Mrs. Leonard Haas Heads Women Voters

Atlanta Constitution Atlanta Ga.

Constitution State News Service.

COLUMBUS, May 10—Mrs. Leonard Haas, of Atlanta, was elected President of the Georgia League of Women Voters here Friday as the organization brought to a close its ninth biennial convention by vigorously expressing itself in favor of the right of Negroes to vote in Georgia primaries. Sat 5-11-46

Mrs. Haas succeeds Mrs. J. A. Blalock. The action on the Negro vote question came in a resolution unanimously passed by the more than 100 delegates from 16 Georgia cities. The resolution called on "all officials and legislators" to uphold "the Constitution of the United States and the ruling of the Supreme Court."

"Any endeavor to circumvent the supreme law of the land is in violation of the fundamental principle of Democracy that each individual is entitled to have a voice in the selection of those who are to rule over him," the resolution, drawn up by Mrs. Harry Green, of the DeKalb County League, stated.

Four new points were added to the League's program for the next two years, and eight old points of the previous program were retained. The new points:

1. Improvement of legislative procedure through careful checking of bills to prevent ambiguous and contradictory legislation; improvement of machinery that will give the public easy access to any bill from time of introduction, and through compulsory advertising by title of local bills, passage of which should be filed at each County Courthouse.

2. Primaries: Legal regulation of primaries to insure fair, honest and democratic procedure. No State Primary before Sept. 1, and change from a plurality to a majority vote under the County Unit System.

3. Equalization of freight rates.

4. Conservation of natural resources with emphasis on forestry.

5. An adequate probation system for Georgia.

6. Inforcement of Georgia law prohibiting sale of liquor to minors. Sat. 5-11-46

7. Placing the institution for the insane at Milledgeville under the State Health Department rather than the Welfare Department.

Other officers elected included: Mrs. Harry Green, of DeKalb County, First Vice President; Miss Johnnie Hillburn, of Augusta, Second Vice President; Mrs. Olaf Krogland, of Columbus, Secretary, and Mrs. James Selvage, of Atlanta, Treasurer.

Convention Adds Protection of Minorities and Immigration Quotas to Its Agenda

New York

Fri 5-3-46

By BESS FURMAN

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

KANSAS CITY, May 2—Two moves against racial discrimination were made at the convention of the National League of Women Voters today, one a motion to obtain consideration tomorrow of a blanket item, "protection of minority groups against discrimination;" the other for addition to the agenda of an item against racial discrimination in immigration and against lowering of quotas.

Mrs. Don Datisman of Indiana offering the anti-discrimination item, explained that it had been rejected by the league's national board to shorten the legislative program and also on the ground that other items, such as the one against discrimination in employment, made it unnecessary. She stressed other fields in the fight against discrimination and urged addition of the item. The chair also ruled that the immigration matter could be acted on since the league already is on record as opposing such discrimination.

Warning Against Inflation

Dr. Mabel Newcomer of Vassar College, delegate to the Bretton Woods conference, who is slated to become a member of the national board of the league at the convention here, warned against inflation at a session devoted largely to that subject.

"It is most unfortunate that we were in such haste to take taxes off," she said, "and we must hang on to what's left. The Social Security taxes were held back needlessly. One of the best ways of checking inflation is by social security taxes, and we will need them later for benefits."

Though the large majority of the delegates clearly favored the league's working hard for continuance of price and rent control, as recommended by the national board, sentiment against the Offic of Price Administration was vocal on the floor today, members waiting in long lines behind the microphone to get to talk.

Mrs. Lewis Steiger of New York, posed this question:

"Are we condoning the Government's letting wage controls and excess profits go off?"

Mrs. Harold Benjamin of Maryland, said that industry should not have refunds of excess profits tax when it had had "a sitdown strike to wait for higher profits."

Nebraska Threat to East

Mrs. Arthur Smith of Nebraska, voiced this warning:

"We won't feed you in the eastern part of this country if everything is rigged against us."

Mrs Smith spoke of freight rates, asserted that the farmer was not being counted in on the phrase 'full production,' and insisted that conservation and reclamation should be added to the league agenda.

Mrs. Robert Blakely of Iowa, asserted that if OPA were not continued there would be "a period in which by comparison this period is heaven." Herald 5-3-46

"The forces of greed will be glad to have that inflation," she added.

Mrs. Maurice A. Pollak of Illinois, a board member, who presented the league's plank for assumption by the Government of responsibility to prevent inflation and deflation and to stimulate maximum production and employment, declared:

"If we remove price control at this time all will be in a black market where the highest bidder gets the goods."

The convention balked at voting the board's recommendation of an agenda item favoring "high taxes to reduce the national debt in time of inflation" and substituted for it "a tax and fiscal policy designed to control inflation and deflation."

The delegates also overwhelmingly endorsed public control of atomic energy under a civilian agency to insure full development in the public interest and full conformity with international agreement.

Mrs. Harold A. Stone of Arlington, Va., new second vice president, who presented the atomic energy item, urged full support of the revised McMahon bill.

Democracy At Home

B'ham Age Herald.

An Editorial in The Columbus (Ga) Ledger

Because a lot of demagogues are trying their best to raise racial hates in this political summer of 1946, it took a good deal of courage for the Georgia League of Women Voters to go on record as absolutely favoring the right of Negroes to participate in all Georgia primaries.

6-1-46-Sat.

That, however, is exactly what the Georgia League did, and because we feel that Mrs. Harry Greene's resolution embodies an extraordinarily fine idealism, we want all of you to read it. Here it is:

The United States, notwithstanding its youth, is the oldest republic and the oldest democracy, and lives under the oldest written constitution in the world.

From the inception of our Republic the oppressed of the world have looked with hope and faith toward it.

During the recent bitter conflict for the democracy the United States held a beacon to all mankind through its formulation of the Atlantic Charter, and emerged into the position of world leadership.

B'ham, Ala.

It is now of first importance that we maintain and strengthen American prestige in the international scene and so,

Be It Resolved that it is imperative for the United States through each individual state to set its own house in order and continually strive to develop our imperfect democracy into a more perfect one, and,

Be It Further Resolved, that the Georgia League of Women Voters go on record as believing it the duty of all officials and legislators to see that the Negro is allowed to vote in the primaries of this state thereby upholding the Constitution of the United States and the ruling of the Supreme Court, and that any endeavor to circumvent this supreme law of the land is in violation of the fundamental principle of democracy that each individual is entitled to have a voice in the selection of those who are to rule over him.

It seems to us an exceedingly useful thing for any group of Americans—nurtured from childhood on the doctrine that we already have an almost perfect democracy and that it is somehow imperishable—to admit its imperfections and try to set them right.

The honest adoption of universal suffrage irrespective of race or creed is one excellent way to make our form of government even finer, and more enduring, and Georgia should be grateful to those thoughtful women for having the intelligence and courage to admit it.
